

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. SEC. 1. [Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.] * * * For Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General, four thousand dollars. * * * [26 Stat L. 944.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 541. There is no other provision relating to the appointment of this officer.

Sec. 390. [Assistant Attorney-General for Post-Office Department.] There shall be employed in the Post-Office Department one Assistant Attorney-General, who shall be appointed by the Postmaster-General, and shall be entitled to a salary of four thousand dollars a year. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 284.

The appropriation acts have not adhered to the salary fixed by this section.

Assistant attorney. — Provision is made for an assistant attorney in the appropriation acts. See Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 594, 32 Stat. L. 164.

SECS. 391, 392. [Superseded.]

These sections were as follows:

"Sec. 391. [Oath of office.] Before entering upon the duties of his office, and before he shall receive any salary, the Postmaster-General and each of the persons employed in the postal service shall respectively take and subscribe, before some magistrate or other competent officer, the following oath: 'I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully perform all the duties required of me, and abstain from everything forbidden by the laws in relation to the establishment of post-offices and post-roads within the United States; and that I will honestly and truly account for and pay over any money belonging to the said United States which may come into my possession or control: So help me, God.'

"Sec. 392. [Oath, before whom taken.] Any officer, civil or military, holding a commission under the United States, is authorized to administer and certify the oath prescribed by the preceding section."

These sections were incorporated into the Revised Statutes from the Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, sec. 15, 17 Stat. L. 287. They were superseded by the amendment of such section by the Act of March 5, 1874, ch. 46, 18 Stat. L. 19. See following text.

An act to amend the fifteenth section of an act approved June eighth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, entitled "An act to revise, consolidate, and amend the statutes relating to the Post-Office Department."

[Oath of office — before whom taken.] That section fifteen of the act "to revise, consolidate and amend the statutes relating to the Post Office Department," approved June eighth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, be amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 15. That before entering upon the duties, and before they shall receive any salary, the Postmaster General, and all persons employed in the postal service, shall respectively take and subscribe before some magistrate or other competent officer authorized to administer oaths by the laws of the United States, or of any State or Territory, the following oath or affirmation:

"I, A. B. do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be,) that I will faithfully perform all the duties required of me and abstain from everything forbidden by the laws in relation to the establishment of post-offices and post-roads within the United States; and that I will honestly and truly account for and pay over any money belonging to the said United States which may come into my possession or control;

"And I also further swear (or affirm) that I will support the Constitution of the United States; so help me God."

"And this oath or affirmation may be taken before any officer civil or military holding a commission under the United States, and such officer is hereby authorized to administer and certify such oath or affirmation." [18 Stat. L. 19.]

Sec. 393. [Clerks and employees.] There shall be in the Post-Office Department:

One chief clerk, at a salary of two thousand two hundred dollars a year.

One superintendent of the Post-Office building and disbursing clerk, at a salary of two thousand three hundred dollars a year.

One topographer, at a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars a year.

One stenographer, at a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars a year.

One messenger to the Postmaster-General, at a salary of nine hundred dollars a year.

One captain of the watch, at a salary of one thousand dollars a year.

One engineer, at a salary of one thousand six hundred dollars a year.

One assistant engineer, at a salary of one thousand dollars a year.

One carpenter, at a salary of one thousand two hundred and fifty-two dollars a year.

One assistant carpenter, at a salary of one thousand dollars a year.

One fireman and blacksmith, at a salary of nine hundred dollars a year.

Two firemen, at a salary of seven hundred and twenty dollars a year each.

Three female laborers, at a salary of four hundred and eighty dollars a year each.

In the office of the money-order system:

One superintendent, at a salary of four thousand dollars a year.

One chief clerk, at a salary of two thousand dollars a year.

In the office of foreign mails:

One superintendent, at a salary of four thousand dollars a year.

One chief clerk, at a salary of two thousand dollars a year.

In the dead-letter office:

One chief of division, at a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars a year.

In the office of mail-depredations:

One chief of division, at a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars a year.

In the office of the blank-agency:

One superintendent, at a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars a year.

One assistant superintendent, at a salary of one thousand six hundred dollars a year.

Four assistants, at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars a year each.

In the office of each of the Assistant Postmasters-General:

One chief clerk, at a salary of two thousand dollars a year. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 284; Act of March 3, 1873, ch. 226, 17 Stat. L. 508.

The designation, number, and compensation of the clerks and employees of the post-office department have been changed from year to year by the various appropriation acts, practically superseding the above section. The provisions of the Appropriation Act for the year ending June 30, 1903, are found in Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 594, 32 Stat. L. 164.

[SEC. 1.] [Substitutes for clerks subpoenaed as witnesses.] * * * That the Postmaster-General be, and he is hereby, authorized to employ substitutes in the place of clerks subpoenaed as witnesses in the United States courts in cases arising under the United States laws, and to expend for the employment of such substitutes a sum equal to the compensation allowed the clerks during the time actually absent from duty attending court. * * * [30 Stat. L. 440.]

This is from the Postal Service Appropriation Act of June 13, 1896, ch. 446.

Sec. 394. [Superintendent of free delivery.] The Postmaster-General may designate one of the present fourth-class clerks to act as superintendent of free delivery in the Post-Office Department, at an annual salary of two thousand five hundred dollars: Provided, That the salary hereby fixed shall terminate at the end of the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1873, ch. 231, 17 Stat. L. 557.
See following text.

[SEC. 1.] [Superintendent of free delivery.] * * * And for the more efficient management of the free-delivery system, the Postmaster-General may designate a fourth class clerk to act as superintendent of free delivery in the Post-Office Department at an annual salary of two thousand five hundred dollars; * * * [18 Stat. L. 231.]

This is from the Postal Service Appropriation Act of June 23, 1874, ch. 456. The later appropriation acts provide compensation for a general superintendent of free delivery and assistant superintendents. See Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 594, 32 Stat. L. 164.

[SEC. 1.] [Per diem of assistant superintendents of free delivery.] * * * Office First Assistant Postmaster-General: The assistant superintendents of free-delivery shall hereafter be allowed a per diem of four dollars in lieu of all expenses when traveling on business of the Department. * * * [30 Stat. L. 884.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of Feb. 24, 1899, ch. 187. The only statutory recognition of assistant superintendents is in the annual appropriation acts; the first provision for two being in the Act of Feb. 19, 1897, ch. 265. sec. 1, 29 Stat. L. 573.

An act providing for the appointment of an assistant General Superintendent and a chief clerk, Railway Mail Service.

[Assistant general superintendent and chief clerk railway mail service.] That the Postmaster-General may appoint, and assign to duty, one assistant general superintendent, Railway Mail Service, who shall be paid a salary of three thousand dollars per year; and one chief clerk of Railway Mail Service, to be employed in the Post-Office Department, who shall be paid two thousand dollars per year; said assistant general superintendent and chief clerk to be also paid their necessary and actual expenses while traveling on the business of the Department. The salaries and expenses of these officers shall be paid out of the appropriation for the transportation of mail on railways. [26 Stat. L. 56.]

Sec. 395. [Seal. See SEALS.]

Sec. 396. [Duties of Postmaster-General.] It shall be the duty of the Postmaster-General:

First. To establish and discontinue post-offices.

Second. To instruct all persons in the postal service with reference to their duties.

Third. To decide on the forms of all official papers.

Fourth. To prescribe the manner of keeping and stating accounts.

Fifth. To enforce the prompt rendition of returns relative to accounts.

Sixth. To control, according to law, and subject to the settlement of the Sixth Auditor, all expenses incident to the service of the Department.

Seventh. To superintend the disposal of the moneys of the Department.

Eighth. To direct the manner in which balances shall be paid over; issue warrants to cover money into the Treasury; and to pay out the same.

Ninth. To superintend generally the business of the department, and execute all laws relative to the postal service. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 285.

Ordering return of lottery postal orders. — An order of the postmaster-general to a postmaster forbidding the payment of postal orders drawn to the order of certain persons, and ordering their return to the remitters, is an order which the postmaster-general has authority to make when it appears that in his judgment the parties are conducting a lottery, or other similar business, through the mails, and this section imposes upon a postmaster the duty of obeying such order. See sections 3824, 3894, 3939, and 4041, R. S. Enterprise Sav. Assoc. v. Zumstein, (C. C. A. 1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 1000.

Sec. 397. [Property in charge of the Department. See PUBLIC PROPERTY, BUILDINGS, AND GROUNDS.]

[SEC. 1.] [Disposal of accumulated useless papers.] * * * That the Postmaster-General is hereby authorized to sell as waste paper, or otherwise dispose of, the files of papers which have accumulated, or may hereafter accumulate, in the Post-Office Department that are not needed in the transaction of current business and have no permanent value or historical interest; and the proceeds of said sales he shall pay into the treasury, and make report thereof to Congress. * * * [21 Stat. L. 412.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of March 3, 1881, ch. 130.

For other provisions, see POSTAL SERVICE, vol. 5, p. 780; EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS, vol. 3, pp. 65, 66.

Sec. 398. [Postal arrangements with foreign countries.] For the purpose of making better postal arrangements with foreign countries, or to counteract their adverse measures affecting our postal intercourse with them, the Postmaster-General, by and with the advice and consent of the President, may negotiate and conclude postal treaties or conventions, and may reduce or increase the rates of postage on mail-matter conveyed between the United States and foreign countries. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 304. See further POSTAL SERVICE, vol. 5, p. 931.

Constitutionality. — Such legislation as that contained in this section, and the practice of the government thereunder from the beginning of the government, sanction an interpretation of the Constitution different from that which might be reached by the ordinary rules of construction were the question a new one, and the provisions of this section are not in conflict with that part of section 2, article II., of the Constitution, giving the President "power by and with the advice and consent of the Senate to make treaties," etc. It seems that the right of Congress to vest in the postmaster-general power to conclude conventions with foreign governments for the cheaper, safer, and more convenient carriage of foreign mails may be derived from the authority given that body in the seventh clause of section 8, article I., of the Constitution, to establish post offices and post roads. (1890) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 513.

Registry provisions. — The postmaster-general has no authority, under this section, to negotiate a postal convention providing for the payment of indemnity for the loss of registered articles or letters. To enable him to do so further legislation is required. (1878) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 462.

"In the absence of any other expression of the will of Congress, this section would authorize the postmaster-general to not only negotiate and conclude on behalf of the United States these different conventions, as he did do, but to also adopt and carry out the registry provisions of those conventions, including those for indemnity; and if when the first of those conventions went into effect he had done so it would have been strictly within his province. But a long-continued course of conduct on the part of a government or one of its departments may have the force and effect of law in either conferring, denying, or limiting the power of executive departments or officers. And when from the first, hitherto, through so many years, the post-office department has, with the tacit assent and approval of Congress, declined to adopt or carry out the registry system of these conventions, this would seem to have become the settled policy of the government, and to now adopt one so radically different would seem to be the engrafting upon our postal system by the postmaster-general not only a plan hitherto unknown in our system, but one which has for many years had the actual disapproval of the post-office department and the tacit disapproval of Congress, and would seem to be unadvisable and of at least doubtful authority." But the Act of Feb. 27, 1897, 28 Stat. L. 599, in authorizing the postmaster-general to establish a system of registration and, as part of such system, to provide a limited indemnity for first-class registered matter lost in the mails, especially in connection with the fact of the long-continued refusal of the government to adopt the system of those conventions, must be taken as the only plan which Congress is at present willing to adopt, and as prohibiting to the postmaster-general the establishment or adoption of any other rules than those thus authorized. (1899) 22 Op. Atty.-Gen. 363.

Parcels of mail matter. — Under this section the postmaster-general has power, with the approbation of the President, to conclude a postal convention with a foreign country for admission to and transmission through the mails exchanged with such foreign country of parcels of mail matter of either class exceeding four pounds in weight. The limitation as to weight of mail packages in sec. 3879, R. S., applies only to domestic mail service. (1887) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 39. See also (1890) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 513.

Sec. 399. [Publication of postal conventions.] The Postmaster-General shall transmit a copy of each postal convention concluded with foreign governments to the Secretary of State, who shall furnish a copy of the same to the Congressional Printer for publication; and the printed proof-sheets of all such conventions shall be revised at the Post-Office Department. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 287.
See further PUBLIC PRINTING.

Sec. 3804. [Copies of postal conventions for printing.] The Postmaster-General shall transmit a copy of every postal convention to the Secretary of State for the purpose of being printed, and the printed copy thereof shall be revised by the Post-Office Department instead of by the Secretary of State. [R. S.]

Act of March 9, 1868, ch. 22, 15 Stat. L. 40.

[SEC. 1.] [Designation of officer to sign warrants.] * * * And the Postmaster-General may from time to time designate any officer of the Post Office Department, above the grade of fourth-class clerk, to sign warrants in his stead, and such warrants when so signed, shall be of the same validity as if they had been signed by the Postmaster-General. * * * [26 Stat. L. 1081.]

Warrants in money-order business. — See POSTAL SERVICE, vol. 5, p. 941.

The above provisions superseded the following provisions of the Act of Feb. 25, 1882, ch. 16, 22 Stat. L. 4.

[SEC. 1.] "That the Postmaster-General may, by appointment under his hand and official seal, delegate to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General authority to sign in his stead all warrants, registered and countersigned by the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post-Office Department, for the payment of money from the public Treasury on account of the postal service.

"SEC. 2. That warrants signed by the said Third Assistant Postmaster-General shall be in all cases of the same validity as if they had been signed by the Postmaster-General himself." [22 Stat. L. 4.]

An act establishing post-roads and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Post roads established.]

SEC. 2. [First Assistant Postmaster-General may approve postmasters' bonds and sign contracts for supplies.] That from and after the passage of this act the bonds of all postmasters may by the direction of the Postmaster General be approved and accepted, and the approval and acceptance signed by the First Assistant Postmaster General in the name of the Postmaster General; and all contracts for stationery, wrapping-paper, letter-balances, scales, and street letter-boxes, for the use of the postal service may be signed in like manner by the First Assistant Postmaster General in the place and stead of the Postmaster General, and his signature shall be attested by the seal of the Post-Office Department. [19 Stat. L. 335.]

Approval of postmasters' bonds by fourth assistant postmaster-general. See Act of Dec. 21, 1893, ch. 6, infra, p. 9.

SEC. 3. [Second Assistant may sign contracts for mail transportation, etc.] That the Second Assistant Postmaster General on the order of the Postmaster General may sign with his name, in the place and stead of the Postmaster General, and attest his signature by the seal of the Post-Office Department, all contracts made in the said Department for mail transportation and for supplies of mail-bags, mail-catchers, mail-locks, and keys and all other articles necessary and incidental to mail-transportation. [19 Stat. L. 335.]

SEC. 4. [Third Assistant may sign contracts for postage stamps, etc.] That the Third Assistant Postmaster General, when directed by the Postmaster General, may also sign, in his name, in the place and stead of the Postmaster General, and attest his signature by the seal of the Post Office Department, all contracts for supplies of postage-stamps, stamped envelopes, newspaper-wrappers, postal-cards, registered-package envelopes, locks, seals, and official envelopes for the use of postmasters, and return of dead letters, that may be required for the postal service. [19 Stat. L. 335.]

SEC. 5. [Letters, etc., on official business may be sent free. See POSTAL SERVICE, vol. 5, p. 859.]

SEC. 6. [Official envelopes — indorsement. See POSTAL SERVICE, vol. 5, p. 860.]

SEC. 7. [Members of Congress may frank public documents. See POSTAL SERVICE, vol. 5, p. 860.]

SEC. 8. [Post routes established.]

An act authorizing the Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General to approve postmasters' bonds.

[Act of Dec. 21, 1893, ch. 6, 28 Stat. L. 21.]

[Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General may approve postmasters' bonds.] That from and after the passage of this Act the bonds of all postmasters, by the direction of the Postmaster-General, may be approved and accepted and the approval and acceptance signed by the Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General in the name of the Postmaster-General. [28 Stat. L. 21.]

Sec. 400. [Blank-agency at Washington.] The Postmaster-General may establish a blank-agency for the Post-Office Department, to be located at Washington, District of Columbia. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 289.

Sec. 401. [Foreign dead-letters.] The action of the Post-Office Department respecting foreign dead-letters shall be subject to conventional stipulations with the respective foreign administrations. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 308.

Sec. 402. [Date of orders, entries, contracts, etc., to be indorsed.] Every order, entry, or memorandum whatever, on which any action is to be based, allowance made, or money paid, and every contract, paper, or obligation made by or with the Post-Office Department, shall have its true date affixed to it; and every paper relating to contracts or allowances filed in the Department shall have the date when it was filed indorsed upon it. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 287.

Sec. 403. [Form of bonds and contracts.] All bonds taken and contracts entered into by the Post-Office Department shall be made to and with the United States of America. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 287.
See further PUBLIC CONTRACTS.

Sec. 404. [Copies of contracts for carrying mail.] The Postmaster-General shall deliver to the Sixth Auditor, within sixty days after the making of any contract for carrying the mail, a duplicate copy thereof. [R. S.]

sections 403 and 3941 et seq., R. S., require executory contracts for carrying the mail to be made in writing signed by the contractor. (1878) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 484.

Contract in writing.—This section and

Sec. 405. [Orders and regulations affecting accounts.] All orders and regulations of the Postmaster-General which may originate a claim, or in any manner affect the accounts of the postal service, shall be certified to the Sixth Auditor. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 289.

Sec. 406. [Warrant of Postmaster-General, on quarterly statement of Auditor.] Upon the certified quarterly statement by the Sixth Auditor of the payments by postmasters on account of the postal service, the Postmaster-General shall issue his warrant to the Treasurer to carry the amount to the credit of the postal revenues and to the debit of the proper appropriations upon the books of the Auditor. [R. S.]

See further POSTAL SERVICE, vol. 5, p. 780.

Sec. 407. [Postal revenues, etc., to be paid into Treasury — disposition of receipts.] The postal revenues and all debts due the Post-Office Department shall, when collected, be paid into the Treasury of the United States under the direction of the Postmaster-General, and the Treasurer, Assistant Treasurer, or designated depository receiving such payment shall give the depositor a duplicate receipt therefor, to be retained by him in his office as a voucher, and shall forward the original to the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post-Office Department, to be placed to the credit of the depositor in audit of his accounts. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of Jan. 22, 1894, ch. 17, 28 Stat. L. 28. The amendment consists in the addition of all words after "duplicate receipt therefor," and the change of the words "duplicate receipts therefor" to "a duplicate receipt therefor." See further POSTAL SERVICE, vol. 5, p. 780.

Sec. 408. [Deposits, how brought into the Treasury.] All deposits on account of the postal service shall be brought into the Treasury by warrants of the Postmaster-General, countersigned by the Auditor; and no credit shall be allowed for any deposit until such warrant has been issued. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 292.

[SEC. 1.] [Payment of salaries of clerks.] * * * POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT. * * * Provided, That hereafter no payment shall be made as salaries to clerks of class one, two, three, or four in said Department out of appropriations made for other purposes; * * * [18 Stat. L. 367.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 129.

SEC. 2. [Disbursements for post-route maps — pay-rolls topographer's office — vouchers.] * * * That the disbursements of the moneys appropriated for the preparation and publication of post-route maps be made by a regular bonded disbursing-officer of the Post-Office Department, according to the laws, rules, and customs as recognized by the accounting-officers of the Treasury Department: And provided also, That the pay-rolls of the draughtsmen, clerks, messengers, and other employees of the topographer's office, shall be regularly made out by the chief of the topographer's office, examined and checked by the appointment clerk of the Post-Office Department, and the payments thereof made by a bonded disbursing-officer of the Post-Office Department: And also provided further, That all expenditures made by the chief of the topographer's office for the preparation and publication of post-route maps shall be accounted for by vouchers, accompanied by affidavit, and the moneys therefor shall be disbursed by a disbursing-officer of the Post-Office Department; and all of the above disbursements shall be paid out of the appropriation for the preparation and publication of post-route maps. [20 Stat. L. 143.]

This is from the Post-Office Department Appropriation Act of June 17, 1878, ch. 259.

SEC. 4. [Accounts in Post-Office Department.] That hereafter the Sixth Auditor shall keep the accounts in his office so as to show the expenditures of the Post-Office Department under each item of appropriation provided by law. [18 Stat. L. 343.]

This is from the Postal Service Appropriation Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 128. See further TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

"The sixth auditor" is now the "auditor for the post-office department." See TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Sec. 409. [Investigating and remitting fines, penalties, and forfeitures.] In all cases of fine, penalty, forfeiture, or disability, or alleged liability for any sum of money by way of damages or otherwise, under any provision of law in relation to the officers, employees, operations, or business of the postal service, the Postmaster-General may prescribe such general rules and modes of proceeding as shall appear to be expedient, for the government of the Sixth Auditor, in ascertaining the fact in each case in which the Auditor shall certify to him that the interests of the Department probably require the exercise of his powers over fines, penalties, forfeitures, and liabilities; and upon the fact being ascertained, the Auditor may, with the written consent of the Postmaster-General, mitigate or remit such fine, penalty, or forfeiture, remove such disability, or compromise, release, or discharge such claim for such sum of money and damages, and on such terms as the Auditor shall deem just and expedient. [R. S.]

The "fact" to be ascertained. — Where it appeared that a mail contractor was of unsound mind when he executed contracts for carrying the mail over certain routes, and also when he signed the bond of another person who was nominally contractor for carrying the mail over another route, but the real party in interest was the contractor first mentioned; and, by the failure to carry out each of the contracts, damages accrued to the United States, it was held that, in order to the exercise of the discretionary power conferred by this section upon the postmaster-general to compromise, release, or discharge claims in behalf of the government arising under the postal laws, the "fact" to be ascertained in the case is not the mental condition of the mail contractor, but whether the interests of the post-office department require the exercise of such power. (1880) 16 Op. Atty-Gen. 484.

Section 396a, R. S., makes it imperative upon the postmaster-general to deduct the price of the trip when not performed, and the provisions of this section have no application in such a case. (1882) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 276. But see (1873) 14 Op. Atty.-Gen. 179.

When a deduction has been ordered under sec. 3962, R. S., by the postmaster-general, and he afterwards becomes satisfied that the order was made under a misapprehension of the facts, it is within his power either to directly rescind the order or to refer the matter to the sixth auditor under the provisions of this section. (1885) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 313.

Under section 3 of the Act of March 3, 1851, it was held that the auditor of the treasury for the post-office department, with the written consent of the postmaster-general, had the power to compromise, release, and discharge a claim for a penalty for the violation of the postal laws. (1871) 13 Op. Atty.-Gen. 540.

Sec. 410. [Discharge of judgment debtors from imprisonment.] The Postmaster-General may discharge from imprisonment any person confined in jail on any judgment in a civil case, obtained in behalf of the Department, if it be made to appear that the defendant has no property of any description. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 324.

Sec. 411. [Subsequent execution on same judgment.] The release provided for by the preceding section shall not bar a subsequent execution against the property of the defendant on the same judgment. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 335, 17 Stat. L. 324.

Sec. 412. [Restriction upon employees being interested in contracts.] No person employed in the Post-Office Department shall become interested in any contract for carrying the mail, or act as agent, with or without compensation, for any contractor or person offering to become a contractor, in any business before the Department; and any person so offending shall be immediately dismissed from office, and shall be liable to pay so much money as would have been realized from said contract, to be recovered in an action of debt, for the use of the Post-Office Department. [R. S.]

Coal contracts.—This section does not prohibit the postmaster-general from awarding a contract for furnishing coal for his department to a firm, it being the lowest bidder, one of the members of which is an officer of that department; but if the contract was one for "carrying the mail" it clearly would be within the general prohibition of that section. (1903) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 557.

Sec. 413. [Reports of Postmaster-General.] See ESTIMATES, APPROPRIATIONS, AND REPORTS, vol. 2, p. 931.]

Sec. 414. [Copies of estimates to be furnished to Secretary of Treasury.] See ESTIMATES, APPROPRIATIONS, AND REPORTS, vol. 2, p. 890.]

Sec. 964. [Interest on balances due Post-Office Department.] In all suits for balances due to the Post-Office Department, interest thereon shall be recovered, from the time of the default, at the rate of six per centum a year. [R. S.]

Act of July 2, 1836, ch. 270, 5 Stat. L. 82.

[I. PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS.]

Sec. 131. [Time of appointing electors.] 'Except in case of a presidential election prior to the ordinary period, as specified in sections one hundred and forty-seven to one hundred and forty-nine, inclusive, when the offices of President and Vice-President both become vacant, the electors of President and Vice-President shall be appointed, in each State, on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, in every fourth year succeeding every election of a President and Vice-President. [R. S.]

Act of Jan. 23, 1845, ch. 1, 5 Stat. L. 721.

Sections 131-151 constitute chapter 1 ("Presidential Elections") of title 3 ("The President") of the Revised Statutes.

R. S. secs. 147 to 149 above mentioned are repealed. See infra, p. 17.

"Congress has never undertaken to interfere with the manner of appointing electors, or, where (according to the now general usage) the mode of appointment prescribed by the law of the state is election by the people, to regulate the conduct of such election, or to punish any fraud in voting for electors; but has left these matters to the control of the states." In re Green, (1890) 134 U. S. 380.

Sec. 132. [Number of electors.] The number of electors shall be equal to the number of Senators and Representatives to which the several States are by law entitled at the time when the President and Vice-President to be chosen come into office; except, that where no apportionment of Representatives has been made after any enumeration, at the time of choosing electors, the number of electors shall be according to the then existing apportionment of Senators and Representatives. [R. S.]

Sec. 133. [Vacancies in electoral college.] Each State may, by law, provide for the filling of any vacancies which may occur in its college of electors when such college meets to give its electoral vote. [R. S.]

Act of Jan. 23, 1845, ch. 1, 5 Stat. L. 721.

Sec. 134. [Failure to make a choice on the appointed day.] Whenever any State has held an election for the purpose of choosing electors, and has failed to make a choice on the day prescribed by law, the electors may be appointed on a subsequent day in such a manner as the legislature of such State may direct. [R. S.]

Sec. 135. [Meeting of electoral college.] [Superseded.]

This section was as follows:

"Sec. 135. The electors for each State shall meet and give their votes upon the first Wednesday in December in the year in which they are appointed, at such place, in each State, as the legislature of such State shall direct." Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 239.

It was superseded by the provisions of the Act of Feb. 3, 1887, ch. 90, sec. 1, post, p. 17, which fixes the second Monday in January as the day of meeting of the electors.

Sec. 136. [List of names of electors to be furnished to them.] [Repealed.]

This section was as follows:

"Sec. 136. It shall be the duty of the executive of each State to cause three lists of the names of the electors of such State to be made and certified, and to be delivered to the electors on or before the day on which they are required, by the preceding section, to meet." Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 240.

It was directly repealed by the Act of Feb. 3, 1887, ch. 90, sec. 3, post, p. 18.

Sec. 137. [Manner of voting.] The electors shall vote for President and Vice-President, respectively, in the manner directed by the Constitution. [R. S.]

Act of March 26, 1804, ch. 50, 2 Stat. L. 295.

Sec. 138. [Certificates to be made and signed.] The electors shall make and sign three certificates of all the votes given by them, each of which certificates shall contain two distinct lists, one of the votes for President, and the other of the votes for Vice-President, and shall annex to each of the certificates one of the lists of the electors which shall have been furnished to them by direction of the executive of the State. [R. S.]

Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 239; Act of March 26, 1804, ch. 50, 2 Stat. L. 295.

Sec. 139. [Certificates to be sealed and indorsed.] The electors shall seal up the certificates so made by them, and certify upon each that the lists of all the votes of such State given for President, and of all the votes given for Vice-President, are contained therein. [R. S.]

Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 239; Act of March 26, 1804, ch. 50, 2 Stat. L. 295.

Sec. 140. [Transmission of the certificates.] The electors shall dispose of the certificates thus made by them in the following manner:

One. They shall, by writing under their hands, or under the hands of a majority of them, appoint a person to take charge of and deliver to the President of the Senate, at the seat of Government, before the first Wednesday in January then next ensuing, one of the certificates.

Two. They shall forthwith forward by the post-office to the President of the Senate, at the seat of Government, one other of the certificates.

Three. They shall forthwith cause the other of the certificates to be delivered to the judge of that district in which the electors shall assemble. [R. S.]

Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 239; Act of March 26, 1804, ch. 50, 2 Stat. L. 295. See further Act of Oct. 19, 1888, ch. 1216, sec. 1, infra, p. 20.

Sec. 141. [When Secretary of State shall send for district judge's list.] Whenever a certificate of votes from any State has not been received at the seat of Government on the fourth Monday of the month of January in which their meeting shall have been held, the Secretary of State shall send a special messenger to the district judge in whose custody one certificate of the votes from that State has been lodged, and such judge shall forthwith transmit that list to the seat of Government. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of Oct. 19, 1888, ch. 1216, sec. 2, 25 Stat. L. 613. It originally read as follows:

"Sec. 141. Whenever a certificate of votes from any State has not been received at the seat of Government on the first Wednesday of January indicated by the preceding section, the Secretary of State shall send a special messenger to the district judge in whose custody one certificate of the votes from that State has been lodged, and such judge shall forthwith transmit that list to the seat of Government." Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 240.

Missing certificates.—The secretary of state having been notified by the president of the Senate that on the fourth Monday of January he had received by mail packages purporting to contain the electoral votes for President and Vice-President from all the states, and had received similar packages by messenger from all but four states, this section, as amended by the Act of Oct. 19, 1888, made it his duty to send special messengers to the district judges in whose custody one certificate of the votes from the four above states had been lodged. (1893) 20 Op. Atty.-Gen. 521.

Sec. 142. [Counting the electoral votes in Congress.] [Superseded.]

This section was as follows:

"Sec. 142. Congress shall be in session on the second Wednesday in February succeeding every meeting of the electors, and the certificates, or so many of them as have been received, shall then be opened, the votes counted, and the persons to fill the offices of President and Vice-President ascertained and declared, agreeable to the Constitution." Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 240.

It is superseded by the provisions of the Act of Feb. 3, 1887, ch. 90, infra, p. 17. which contains the latest legislation concerning the counting of electoral votes.

Sec. 143. [Provision for absence of President of the Senate.] In case there shall be no President of the Senate at the seat of Government on the arrival of the persons intrusted with the certificates of the votes of the electors, then such persons shall deliver such certificates into the office of the Secretary of State, to be safely kept, and delivered over as soon as may be to the President of the Senate. [R. S.]

Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 240.

Sec. 144. [Mileage of messengers.] Each of the persons appointed by the electors to deliver the certificates of votes to the President of the Senate shall be allowed, on the delivery of the list intrusted to him, twenty-five cents for every mile of the estimated distance, by the most usual road, from the place of meeting of the electors to the seat of Government of the United States. [R. S.]

Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 240.

Sec. 145. [Forfeiture for messenger's neglect of duty.] Every person who, having been appointed, pursuant to subdivision one of section one hundred and forty or to section one hundred and forty-one, to deliver the certificates of the votes of the electors to the President of the Senate, and having accepted such appointment, shall neglect to perform the services required from him, shall forfeit the sum of one thousand dollars. [R. S.]

Secs. 146-150. [Repealed.]

These sections were as follows:

"SEC. 146. [Vacancy in both offices.] In case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President of the United States, the President of the Senate, or, if there is none, then the Speaker of the House of Representatives, for the time being, shall act as President until the disability is removed or a President elected." Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 240.

"SEC. 147. [Notification of vacancies to be published.] Whenever the offices of President and Vice-President both become vacant, the Secretary of State shall forthwith cause a notification thereof to be made to the executive of every State, and shall also cause the same to be published in at least one of the newspapers printed in each State." Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 240.

"SEC. 148. [Requisites of the notification.] The notification shall specify that electors of a President and Vice-President of the United States shall be appointed or chosen in the several States, as follows:

"First. If there shall be the space of two months yet to ensue between the date of such notification and the first Wednesday in December then next ensuing, such notification shall specify that the electors shall be appointed or chosen within thirty-four days preceding such first Wednesday in December.

"Second. If there shall not be the space of two months between the date of such notification and such first Wednesday in December, and if the term for which the President and Vice-President last in office were elected will not expire on the third day of March next ensuing, the notification shall specify that the electors shall be appointed or chosen within thirty-four days preceding the first Wednesday in December in the year next ensuing. But if there shall not be the space of two months between the date of such notification and the first Wednesday in December then next ensuing, and if the term for which the President and Vice-President last in office were elected will expire on the third day of March next ensuing, the notification shall not specify that electors are to be appointed or chosen." Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 240.

"SEC. 149. [Time of holding election to fill vacancy.] Electors appointed or chosen upon the notification prescribed by the preceding section shall meet and give their votes upon the first Wednesday of December specified in the notification." Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 240.

"SEC. 150. [Regulations for quadrennial election made applicable to election to fill vacancies.] The provisions of this Title, relating to the quadrennial election of President and Vice-President, shall apply with respect to any election to fill vacancies in the offices of President and Vice-President, held upon a notification given when both offices become vacant." Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 240.

They are directly repealed by section 3 of the Act of Jan. 19, 1886, ch. 4, which is given infra, p. 21.

Sec. 151. [Resignation or refusal of office.] The only evidence of a refusal to accept, or of a resignation of the office of President or Vice-President, shall be an instrument in writing, declaring the same, and subscribed by the person refusing to accept or resigning, as the case may be, and delivered into the office of the Secretary of State. [R. S.]

Act of March 1, 1792, ch. 8, 1 Stat. L. 241.

An act to fix the day for the meeting of the electors of President and Vice-President, and to provide for and regulate the counting of the votes for President and Vice-President, and the decision of questions arising thereon.

[SEC. 1.] [Meeting of Presidential electors.] That the electors of each State shall meet and give their votes on the second Monday in January next following their appointment, at such place in each State as the legislature of such State shall direct. [24 Stat. L. 373.]

Conflicting provision of state law.—A state law providing for the election of presidential electors, which contains a provision fixing a date for the meeting of the electors in conflict with the Act of Congress, is not wholly void, but such conflicting provision must give way. McPherson v. Blacker, (1892) 146 U. S. 40.

SEC. 2. [Determination of controversy as to appointment of electors.] That if any State shall have provided, by laws enacted prior to the day fixed for the appointment of the electors, for its final determination of any controversy or contest concerning the appointment of all or any of the electors of such State, by judicial or other methods or procedures, and such determination shall have been made at least six days before the time fixed for the meeting of the electors, such determination made pursuant to such law so existing on said day, and made at least six days prior to the said time of meeting of the electors, shall be conclusive, and shall govern in the counting of the electoral votes as provided in the Constitution, and as hereinafter regulated, so far as the ascertainment of the electors appointed by such State is concerned. [24 Stat. L. 373.]

SEC. 3. [Certificate of electors by State executive — certificate of determination of controversy — copies sent to Congress.] That it shall be the duty of the executive of each State, as soon as practicable after the conclusion of the appointment of electors in such State, by the final ascertainment under and in pursuance of the laws of such State providing for such ascertainment, to communicate, under the seal of the State, to the Secretary of State of the United States, a certificate of such ascertainment of the electors appointed, setting forth the names of such electors and the canvass or other ascertainment under the laws of such State of the number of votes given or cast for each person for whose appointment any and all votes have been given or cast; and it shall also thereupon be the duty of the executive of each State to deliver to the electors of such State, on or before the day on which they are required by the preceding section to meet, the same certificate, in triplicate, under the seal of the State; and such certificate shall be inclosed and transmitted by the electors at the same time and in the same manner as is provided by law for transmitting by such electors to the seat of Government the lists of all persons voted for as President and of all persons voted for as Vice-President; and section one hundred and thirty-six of the Revised Statutes is hereby repealed; and if there shall have been any final determination in a State of a controversy or contest as provided for in section two of this act, it shall be the duty of the executive of such State, as soon as practicable after such determination, to communicate, under the seal of the State, to the Secretary of State of the United States, a certificate of such determination, in form and manner as the same shall have been made; and the Secretary of State of the United States, as soon as practicable after the receipt at the State Department of each of the certificates hereinbefore directed to be transmitted to the Secretary of State, shall publish, in such public newspaper as he shall designate, such certificates in full; and at the first meeting of Congress thereafter he shall transmit to the two Houses of Congress copies in full of each and every such certificate so received theretofore at the State Department. [24 Stat. L. 373.]

R. S. sec. 136, the repeal of which is above provided for, is given in the notes, supra, p. 16.

SEC. 4. [Counting electoral votes in Congress.] That Congress shall be in session on the second Wednesday in February succeeding every meeting of the electors. The Senate and House of Representatives shall meet in the Hall of the House of Representatives at the hour of one o'clock in the afternoon on that day, and the President of the Senate shall be their presiding officer. Two tellers shall be previously appointed on the part of the Senate and two on the part of the House of Representatives, to whom shall be handed, as they are opened by the President of the Senate, all the certificates and papers purporting to be certificates of the electoral votes, which certificates and papers shall be opened, presented, and acted upon in the alphabetical order of the States, beginning with the letter A; and said tellers, having then read the same in the presence and hearing of the two Houses, shall make a list of the votes as they shall appear from the said certificates; and the votes having been ascertained and counted in the manner and according to the rules in this act provided, the result of the same shall be delivered to the President of the Senate, who shall thereupon announce the state of the vote, which announcement shall be deemed a sufficient declaration of the persons, if any, elected President and Vice-President of the United States, and, together with a list of the votes, be entered on the Journals of the two Houses. Upon such reading of any such certificate or paper, the President of the Senate shall call for objections, if any. Every objection shall be made in writing, and shall state clearly and concisely, and without argument, the ground thereof, and shall be signed by at least one Senator and one Member of the House of Representatives before the same shall be received. When all objections so made to any vote or paper from a State shall have been received and read, the Senate shall thereupon withdraw, and such objections shall be submitted to the Senate for its decision; and the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall, in like manner, submit such objections to the House of Representatives for its decision; and no electoral vote or votes from any State which shall have been regularly given by electors whose appointment has been lawfully certified to according to section three of this act from which but one return has been received shall be rejected, but the two Houses concurrently may reject the vote or votes when they agree that such vote or votes have not been so regularly given by electors whose appointment has been so certified. If more than one return or paper purporting to be a return from a State shall have been received by the President of the Senate, those votes, and those only, shall be counted which shall have been regularly given by the electors who are shown by the determination mentioned in section two of this act to have been appointed, if the determination in said section provided for shall have been made, or by such successors or substitutes, in case of a vacancy in the board of electors so ascertained, as have been appointed to fill such vacancy in the mode provided by the laws of the State; but in case there shall arise the question which of two or more of such State authorities determining what electors have been appointed, as mentioned in section two of this act, is the lawful tribunal of such State, the votes regularly given of those electors, and those only, of such State shall be counted whose title as electors the two Houses, acting separately, shall concurrently decide is supported by the decision of such State so authorized by its laws; and in such case of more than one return or paper purporting to be a return from a State, if there shall have been no such determination of the question in the State aforesaid, then those votes, and those only, shall be counted which the two Houses shall concurrently decide were cast by lawful electors appointed in accordance with the laws of the State, unless the two Houses, acting separately, shall concurrently decide such votes not to be the lawful votes of the legally appointed electors of such State. But if the two Houses shall disagree in respect of the counting of such votes, then, and in that case, the votes of the electors whose appointment shall have been certified by the Executive of the State, under the seal thereof, shall be counted. When the two Houses have voted, they shall immediately again meet, and the presiding officer shall then announce the decision of the questions submitted. No votes or papers from any other State shall be acted upon until the objections previously made to the votes or papers from any State shall have been finally disposed of. [24 Stat. L. 373.]

SEC. 5. [Preservation of order.] That while the two Houses shall be in meeting as provided in this act the President of the Senate shall have power to preserve order; and no debate shall be allowed and no question shall be put by the presiding officer except to either House on a motion to withdraw. [24 Stat. L. 374.]

SEC. 6. [Limit of debate in each House.] That when the two Houses separate to decide upon an objection that may have been made to the counting of any electoral vote or votes from any State, or other question arising in the matter, each Senator and Representative may speak to such objection or question five minutes, and not more than once; but after such debate shall have lasted two hours it shall be the duty of the presiding officer of each House to put the main question without further debate. [24 Stat. L. 375.]

SEC. 7. [Arrangements for joint meeting — not to dissolve until result declared.] That at such joint meeting of the two Houses seats shall be provided as follows: For the President of the Senate, the Speaker's chair; for the Speaker, immediately upon his left; the Senators, in the body of the Hall upon the right of the presiding officer; for the Representatives, in the body of the Hall not provided for the Senators; for the tellers, Secretary of the Senate, and Clerk of the House of Representatives, at the Clerk's desk; for the other officers of the two Houses, in front of the Clerk's desk and upon each side of the Speaker's platform. Such joint meeting shall not be dissolved until the count of electoral votes shall be completed and the result declared; and no recess shall be taken unless a question shall have arisen in regard to counting any such votes, or otherwise under this act, in which case it shall be competent for either House, acting separately, in the manner hereinbefore provided, to direct a recess of such House not beyond the next calendar day, Sunday excepted, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon. But if the counting of the electoral votes and the declaration of the result shall not have been completed before the fifth calendar day next after such first meeting of the two Houses, no further or other recess shall be taken by either House. [24 Stat. L. 375.]

An act supplementary to the act approved February third, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, entitled "An act to fix the day for the meeting of the electors of President and Vice-President, and to provide for and regulate the counting of the votes for President and Vice-President, and the decision of questions arising thereon."

[SEC. 1.] [Transmission of certificates and lists of votes.] That the certificates and lists of votes for President and Vice-President of the United States, mentioned in chapter one of title three of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and in the act to which this is a supplement, shall be forwarded, in the manner therein provided, to the President of the Senate forthwith after the second Monday in January, on which the electors shall give their votes. [25 Stat. L. 613.]

Chapter 1 of title 3 of the Revised Statutes above mentioned comprises sections 131 to 151. "The Act to which this is a supplement" immediately precedes this.

SEC. 2. [Amends R. S. sec. 141. See p. 16.]

An act to provide for the performance of the duties of the office of President in case of the removal, death, resignation, or inability both of the President and Vice-President.

[SEC. 1.] [In case of death, etc., of President and Vice-President, who to act as President — Congress to be convened.] That in case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President of the United States, the Secretary of State, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation or inability, then the Secretary of the Treasury, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation, or inability, then the Secretary of War, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation, or inability, then the Attorney-General, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation, or inability, then the Postmaster-General, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation, or inability, then the Secretary of the Navy, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation, or inability, then the Secretary of the Interior, shall act as President until the disability of the President or Vice-President is removed or a President shall be elected: Provided, That whenever the powers and duties of the office of President of the United States shall devolve upon any of the persons named herein, if Congress be not then in session, or if it would not meet in accordance with law within twenty days thereafter, it shall be the duty of the person upon whom said powers and duties shall devolve to issue a proclamation convening Congress in extraordinary session, giving twenty days' notice of the time of meeting. [24 Stat. L. 1.]

SEC. 2. [Eligibility of officers.] That the preceding section shall only be held to describe and apply to such officers as shall have been appointed by the advice and consent of the Senate to the offices therein named, and such as are eligible to the office of President under the Constitution, and not under impeachment by the House of Representatives of the United States at the time the powers and duties of the office shall devolve upon them respectively. [24 Stat. L. 2.]

SEC. 3. [Repeal of R. S. secs. 146-150.] That sections one hundred and forty-six, one hundred and forty-seven, one hundred and forty-eight, one hundred and forty-nine, and one hundred and fifty of the Revised Statutes are hereby repealed. [24 Stat. L. 2.]

The repealed sections above mentioned are set out in the notes, supra, p. 17.

[II. OFFICE AND COMPENSATION OF THE PRESIDENT.]

Sec. 152. [Commencement of term of office.] The term of four years for which a President and Vice-President shall be elected, shall, in all cases, commence on the fourth day of March next succeeding the day on which the votes of the electors have been given. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1873, ch. 226, 17 Stat. L. 486.

Sec. 154. [Vice-President's salary.] The Vice-President shall receive in full for his services during the term for which he shall have been elected the sum of ten thousand dollars a year, to be paid monthly. [R. S.]

The Act of Jan. 20, 1874, ch. 11 (see CONGRESS, vol. 2, p. 216), by repealing the Act of March 3, 1873, ch. 226, sec. 1, in so far as it increased the compensation of public officers, and restoring the former compensation, reduced the salary of the vice-president to $8,000.

Sec. 155. [Officers of the President's household.] The President is authorized to appoint or employ in his official household the following officers:

One private secretary, at a salary of three thousand five hundred dollars a year.

One assistant secretary, who shall be a short-hand writer, at a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars a year.

Two executive clerks, at a salary of two thousand three hundred dollars a year each.

One steward of the President's household, at a salary of two thousand dollars a year.

One messenger, at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars a year. [R. S.]

The number as well as the designation and compensation of the officers of the President's household has been changed by the various appropriation acts. The provisions of the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 594, are as follows:

"EXECUTIVE. * * * For compensation to the following in the office of the President of the United States: Secretary, five thousand dollars; two assistant secretaries, at three thousand dollars each; executive clerk, two thousand two hundred dollars; executive clerk and disbursing officer, two thousand dollars; two clerks, at two thousand dollars each; six clerks of class four; one clerk of class four who shall be a telegrapher; two clerks of class three; steward, one thousand eight hundred dollars; usher to the President, one thousand eight hundred dollars; chief doorkeeper, one thousand eight hundred dollars; four doorkeepers, at one thousand two hundred dollars each; four messengers, at one thousand two hundred dollars each; three messengers, at nine hundred dollars each; watchman, nine hundred dollars; one fireman; laborer, seven hundred and twenty dollars. * * * [32 Stat. L. 132.]

Sec. 156. [Duties of the steward.] The steward of the President's household shall, under the direction of the President, have the charge and custody of and be responsible for the plate, furniture, and other public property in the President's mansion, and shall discharge such other duties as the President may assign him. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1857, ch. 108, 11 Stat. L. 228; Act of July 23, 1866, ch. 208, 14 Stat. L. 206.

Sec. 157. [The steward's bond.] The steward of the President's household shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, give a bond to the United States for the faithful discharge of his trust. Such bond must be in such sum as the Secretary of the Interior shall deem sufficient, and must be approved by him. [R. S.]

An act for the erection of United States prisons and for the imprisonment of United States prisoners, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [United States prisons — location and erection.] That the Attorney General and Secretary of the Interior be, and are hereby, authorized and directed to purchase three sites, two of which shall be located as follows: one north, the other south of the thirty-ninth degree of north latitude and east of the Rocky Mountains, the third site to be located west of the Rocky Mountains, and the same to be located geographically as to be most easy of access to the different portions of the country, and cause to be erected thereon suitable buildings for the confinement of all persons convicted of any crime whose term of imprisonment is one year or more at hard labor by any court of the United States in any State, Territory, or District under the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice of the United States, and the plans, specifications, and estimates of such sites and buildings shall be previously made and approved according to law, and shall not exceed the sum of five hundred thousand dollars each. [26 Stat. L. 839.]

Power of Congress to erect, etc., prisons.— Congress can cause a prison to be erected at any place within the jurisdiction of the United States and direct that all persons sentenced to imprisonment under the laws of the United States shall be confined there; or it may arrange with a single state for the use of its prisons, and require the courts of the United States to execute their sentences of imprisonment in them. All this is left to the discretion of the legislative department of the government, and is beyond the control of the courts. Ex p. Karstendick, (1876) 93 U. S. 396.

SEC. 2. [Employment of convicts.] That the sum of one hundred thousand dollars is further appropriated, to be expended under the direction of the Attorney General, in the fitting of workshops for the employment of the prisoners; Provided, however, That the convicts be employed exclusively in the manufacture of such supplies for the Government as can be manufactured without the use of machinery, and the prisoners shall not be worked outside the prison enclosure. [26 Stat. L. 839.]

SEC. 3. [Locality of prison, how selected.] That the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Interior be, and are hereby, authorized to select the State, District, or Territory in which to locate and erect the prisons: Provided, That the consent of the authorities of such State, District, or Territory be first obtained. [26 Stat. L. 839.]

SEC. 4. [Control and management—officers—regulations.] That the control and management of said prisons be vested in the Attorney-General, who shall have power to appoint a superintendent, assistant superintendent, warden, keeper, and all other officers necessary for the safe-keeping, care, protection, and discipline of such United States prisoners. He shall also have authority to promulgate such rules for the government of the officials of said prisons and prisoners as he may deem proper and necessary. [26 Stat. L. 839.]

SEC. 5. [Transportation of prisoners—expenses.] That the transportation of all United States prisoners convicted of crimes against the laws of the United States in any State, District or Territory, and sentenced to terms of imprisonment in a penitentiary, and their delivery to the superintendent, warden, or keeper of such United States prisons, shall be by the marshal of the District or Territory where such conviction may occur, after the erection and completion of said prisons. That the actual expenses of such marshal, including transportation and subsistence, hire, transportation and subsistence of guards, and the transportation and subsistence of the convict or convicts, be paid, on the approval of the Attorney General out of the judiciary fund. [26 Stat. L. 839.]

Expenses in transporting prisoners.— See further Act of May 28, 1896, ch. 252, sec. 12, title JUDICIAL OFFICERS, vol. 4, p. 145. See also R. S. sec. 5536, post, p. 33.

Prisoners sentenced by courts-martial.— This provision, said Attorney-General Harmon, applies "only to prisoners convicted by the civil courts of the United States, and does not apply to prisoners sentenced by courts-martial." (1895) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 204.

"A prisoner sentenced by a court-martial to confinement in a penitentiary of the United States should not be turned over to a marshal, but should be conducted to the prison by the proper officer of the department of war." (1895) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 204.

SEC. 6. [Transportation, clothing, etc., of discharged prisoner.] That every prisoner when discharged from the jail and prison shall be furnished with transportation to the place of his residence within the United States at the time of his commitment under sentence of the court, and if the term of his imprisonment shall have been for one year or more, he shall also be furnished with suitable clothing, the cost not to exceed twelve dollars, and five dollars in money. [26 Stat. L. 840.]

SEC. 7. [Minors may be committed to reformatories.] That this act shall not apply to minors, who, in the judgment of the judges presiding over United States courts, should be committed to reformatory institutions. And provided, That nothing in this act shall be construed as prohibiting the courts of the United States from sentencing to or confining prisoners, either civil or military, in the United States military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. [26 Stat. L. 840.]

SEC. 8. [Commutation for good behavior.] That the said Attorney General, in formulating rules and regulations for the conduct of said prisons, is hereby authorized to establish rules for commutation for good behavior of said convicts, but not for a longer time than two months for the first year's imprisonment, and two months for each succeeding year. [26 Stat. L. 840.]

Effect of delivery of prisoner to prison not named in sentence. — A marshal is bound to deliver a prisoner to the prison to which he is sentenced by the court, and where he unlawfully and without warrant of law surrenders the prisoner to a custody other than that of the warden of the penitentiary named in the sentence, such wrongful conduct on the part of the officer will not suspend the operation of the sentence and prevent it from expiring by lapse of time. So far as the prisoner is concerned his rights are unaffected by the illegal act of the officer, and the case must be treated precisely as if the marshal had discharged his duty according to law by committing the prisoner to the proper custody. It matters not that during a portion of the time during which the prisoner has been confined he has been held ostensibly for an offense other than that for which he was originally convicted. In the eye of the law he has all the time been serving out the sentence that was first imposed on him, because no ministerial officer by disobeying the mandate of the court and unlawfully surrendering him into another custody than that where he rightfully belonged could suspend the running of the sentence for that offense. The prisoner's term of imprisonment should be computed from the date of the first sentence, and commutation for good behavior should be allowed. In re Jennings, (1902) 118 Fed. Rep. 479.

SEC. 9. [Designation of prison by Attorney-General — separation of juvenile offenders.] That the Attorney-General shall be authorized to designate to which of said prisons persons convicted in such States or Territories shall be carried for confinement: Provided, That in the construction of the prison buildings provided for in this act there shall be such arrangement of cells and yard space as that prisoners under twenty years of age shall not be in any way associated with prisoners above that age, and the management of the class under twenty years of age shall be as far as possible reformatory. [26 Stat. L. 840.]

[Penitentiary building at Wallawalla, Washington.] * * * Penitentiary building, Washington: To carry into effect section fifteen of an act entitled "An act to provide for the division of Dakota into two States and to enable the people of North Dakota and South Dakota, Montana and Washington to form constitutions and State governments and to be admitted into the Union and on an equal footing with the original States, and to make donations of public lands to such States:" For the purchase of grounds and the erection thereon of a penitentiary, in the State of Washington, under the direction and supervision of the Secretary of the Interior, and upon such tract or parcel of land in said State as shall be designated by said Secretary, thirty thousand dollars: Provided, That the money hereby appropriated shall be devoted exclusively to the purchase of the necessary grounds and to the erection of a penitentiary in said State; and the penitentiary of the State of Washington is hereby located at or near the city of Wallawalla, Wallawalla County, in said State. * * * [27 Stat. L. 661.]

This is from the Deficiency Appropriation Act of March 3, 1893, ch. 210. The Act referred to in the text is given under the title STATES.

[SEC. 1.] [Conveyance of Wallawalla penitentiary to State of Washington.] * * * That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, authorized to apply the sum of twenty-five thousand four hundred and forty-six dollars and ninety-three cents, being balance remaining unexpended of the appropriation made by the "Act making appropriations to supply deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, and for prior years, and for other purposes," approved March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, for the purchase of a site in the State of Washington and for the erection of a penitentiary thereon, to the construction of a wing to the penitentiary building at Walla Walla, in the State of Washington. That the Secretary of Interior be, and is hereby, authorized to convey the land already purchased under the said Act to the State of Washington and to transfer to the said State of Washington the penitentiary building when completed. * * * [30 Stat. L. 56.]

[SEC. 1.] [Military prison, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, changed to United States penitentiary, and transferred to Department of Justice.] * * * The Military Prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, including all the buildings, grounds, and other property connected therewith, is hereby transferred from the Department of War to the Department of Justice, to be known as the United States Penitentiary, and to be used for the confinement of persons convicted in the United States courts of crimes against the United States and sentenced to imprisonment in a penitentiary, or convicted by courts-martial of offenses now punishable by confinement in a penitentiary and sentenced to terms of imprisonment of more than one year; and the Attorney-General is hereby directed to transfer to the said United States Penitentiary such persons now undergoing sentences of confinement, imposed by the United States courts, in State prisons and penitentiaries, as can be conveniently accommodated at the same penitentiary: Provided, That the said United States Penitentiary shall be carried on in accordance with the provisions of sections four, five, six, seven, eight, and nine of the Act approved March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-one: Provided further, That the Secretary of War is hereby authorized, upon the request of the Attorney-General, to detail an officer of the Army to act temporarily as warden of the said penitentiary, and to continue the military guard on duty thereat for such length of time, not exceeding ninety days, after the close of the current fiscal year, as may be deemed necessary to enable the prisoners and property to be transferred to the care and custody of the officers designated by the Attorney-General to receive and care for the same: And provided further, That convicts in said United States Penitentiary shall be employed only in the manufacture of articles and the production of supplies for said penitentiary, and in the manufacture of supplies for the Government, and said convicts shall not be worked outside of Fort Leavenworth Military Reservation. * * * Provided, That for the fiscal year eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, and annually thereafter, the Attorney-General shall submit estimates in detail for all expenses of maintaining said penitentiary, including salaries of all necessary officers and employees therefor. * * * [28 Stat. L. 957.]

R. S. secs. 1344-1361 provide for military prisons. They are probably superseded by the above section. See WAR DEPARTMENT AND MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT.

Effect of provision for prisoners sentenced by courts-martial. — "The provision in this Act that prisoners sentenced by courts-martial may be confined in the United States penitentiary merely puts such prisoners in charge of the civil authorities, on their delivery at the prison, which must be made by the proper officer of the department to which the sentencing tribunal belonged." (1895) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 204.

An Act To establish a site for the erection of a penitentiary on the military reservation at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Selection of site for prison at Leavenworth, Kansas, and restoration of military prison to War Department.] That the Attorney-General is hereby authorized and directed to select on the military reservation at Leavenworth, Kansas, within limits hereinafter described, a site for the erection of a penitentiary and other buildings, wall, and workshops for the employment of United States prisoners, with such improvements as he may direct in connection with the completion of the several buildings; said penitentiary to be of a capacity to accommodate at least one thousand two hundred convicts, and to be situated on said grounds and within the following boundary lines: Beginning at a point at the northwestern intersection of Grant and Logan avenues, thence north seventy-two degrees west more or less, forty-five hundred feet more or less to a stone in the field north of the Government farm barn, thence due west fifteen hundred feet more or less to the north side of Logan Avenue; thence along said avenue and its prolongation to the western boundary of the Military Reservation; thence south along said line to the southwest corner of said reservation, thence east along the south line of said reservation to the pike leading north from the city of Leavenworth to the post of Fort Leavenworth; thence north along said pike to the point of beginning; and that these grounds thus described shall be, and hereby are, set apart from the contiguous military reservation for United States penitentiary purposes, and assigned to and placed under the care and control of the Attorney-General as a United States penitentiary reservation: Provided, That when the United States Penitentiary shall be occupied and applied to the purposes contemplated by this Act, the buildings and grounds within the said Military Reservation of Fort Leavenworth that were transferred from the Department of War to the Department of Justice, in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Congress approved March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, shall be restored to the control of the said Department of War: And provided further, That this prison reservation shall be open for military tactical purposes, when such purposes do not interfere with the discipline of said prison. [29 Stat. L. 380.]

SEC. 2. [Plans, etc.] That the Attorney-General shall employ an architect skilled in the construction of penitentiary buildings, who, with the warden of the existing penitentiary, shall prepare plans, specifications, and estimates, and submit them to the Attorney-General for approval. [29 Stat. L. 380.]

SEC. 3. [Construction by convicts — use of shops, etc.] That upon the approval of plans and estimates the Attorney-General is authorized to incur the expense necessary to construct the penitentiary buildings thus approved, and for this purpose shall employ the labor of the convicts in the present United States penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth that can, under proper guards, be used on the necessary stone, brick, and wood work, in the manufacture of lime on the reservation, until the completion of the same, and shall use all the equipments for carrying on the work that are in the possession of the present United States Penitentiary building, including the sawmill and shops equipped for working in iron, stone, brass, and wood, with the use of the animals and wagons there belonging to the United States for hauling material, and other necessary transportation, and said prison shall have the right to quarry stone for prison purposes in any of the quarries on the Fort Leavenworth Reservation: Provided, That no expense shall be incurred under this Act until an appropriation is made with which to commence the buildings. [29 Stat. L. 380.]

Hard labor for prisoners. — The laws establishing the prison at Fort Leavenworth would seem to imply that hard labor would be a part of the punishment of prisoners confined there. In re Welty, (1903) 123 Fed. Rep. 123.

SEC. 4. [Limit of cost.] That the cost of employing an architect and of building said penitentiary, workshops, and improvements shall not, exclusive of the prison labor, exceed the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, of which no more than fifty thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be expended in a fiscal year. [29 Stat. L. 381.]

An Act Declaring the Federal jail at the city of Fort Smith, Arkansas, a national prison for certain purposes.

[Federal jail at Fort Smith declared a national prison — admission to prison.] That the Federal jail at the city of Fort Smith, Arkansas, in addition to the purposes for which it is now used, is hereby declared to be a national prison, for the confinement of persons convicted of crimes and misdemeanors in the United States courts and commissioners' courts in the Indian Territory, in cases where the term of imprisonment does not exceed one year, admission into said prison to be under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Attorney-General of the United States. And said jail may also be used for the care and confinement of United States prisoners in the Texarkana division of the western district of Arkansas. [30 Stat. L. 417.]

[SEC. 1.] [United States penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. — control and management, etc. — employment of convicts.] * * * United States penitentiary, Atlanta, Georgia: * * * Provided, That said United States penitentiary at Atlanta, Georgia, shall be carried on in accordance with sections four, five, eight, and nine of the Act approved March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, entitled "An Act for the erection of United States prisons and for the imprisonment of United States prisoners, and for other purposes:" Provided further, That the Attorney-General is authorized to transfer, in his discretion, to said United States penitentiary at Atlanta, Georgia, such persons now undergoing sentences of confinement, imposed by the United States courts, in other institutions, as can conveniently be accommodated therein: Provided further, That convicts in said United States penitentiary at Atlanta, Georgia, may be employed in the manufacture of articles and the production of supplies for said penitentiary; in the manufacture of supplies for the Government that can be manufactured without the use of machinery; in the construction, extension, and repairs of buildings and inclosures of the prison, and in making necessary materials therefor; and in the cultivation and care of the prison grounds and farm. * * * [31 Stat. L. 1185.]

Sec. 1828. [Report of warden of U. S. penitentiary for District of Columbia.] The warden of the penitentiary of the United States for the District of Columbia shall make to the Secretary of the Interior, annually, in time to accompany the annual message of the President to Congress, a report of his operations during the preceding year, and of the manner in which all appropriations have been applied. [R. S.]

Act of Aug. 4, 1854, ch. 242, 10 Stat. L. 573.

[SEC. 1.] [Expenses for jail of District of Columbia — estimates.] * * * That hereafter one-half of all expenses incurred for maintenance of the jail of the District of Columbia and for support of prisoners therein shall be paid out of the revenues of the District of Columbia, and estimates for such expenses shall each year hereafter be submitted in the annual estimates for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia. * * * [28 Stat. L. 417.]

"The duties of the marshal are those of supervision, of hiring guards, feeding and clothing prisoners, and supplying the prison with fuel, lights, and furniture, and paying for the same, and it is impossible to make a distinction between these classes of services. Payment is a necessary incident to hiring and purchasing, and one is as much a service under the regulations for the government of the penitentiary as the other." U. S. v. Baird, (1893) 150 U. S. 54.

Care of penitentiary at Boise, Idaho. — This section is amended by the Act of June 20, 1874, 18 Stat. L. 112, putting the penitentiary at Boise, Idaho, under the care and control of the marshal of the territory, independent of any direction from the attorney-general. Ex p. Hibbs, (1886) 26 Fed. Rep. 426.

Custodian of penitentiary in Utah.—In Nelson v. Clayton, 2 Utah 302, it was held that the marshal is the proper custodian and warden of the penitentiary of the territory of Utah.

Sec. 1893. [Rules for their government.] The Attorney-General of the United States shall prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the government of such penitentiary, and the marshal having charge thereof shall cause them to be duly and faithfully executed and obeyed, and the reasonable compensation of the marshal and of his deputies for their services under such regulations shall be fixed by the Attorney-General. The attorney-general is the only "director" of a territorial penitentiary. Nelson v. Clayton, 2 Utah 302.

Territorial provisions for supervision.—This Act supercedes and renders nugatory any law of a territory which gives the supervisory power over a territorial penitentiary to any man or set of men. Nelson v. Clayton, 2 Utah 302.

Foreign government taking testimony of federal prisoners.—"The power of the executive to extend to the German government the privilege of taking the testimony of prisoners confined in federal and state prisons, without exercising the treaty-making power, * * * can only be so extended as to prisoners confined in federal prisons in such of the territories as are not invested by law with authority to regulate the prisons within their limits, * * * these being the only prisons under federal control; and then only * * * with the concurrence of the attorney-general, who is specially charged by law with the duty of making rules and regulations for the government of said prisons." (1883) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 565.

Marshal's commissions on disbursements.—Where a salary is fixed by the attorney-general as "the reasonable compensation of the marshal" for his services as keeper or warden of a territorial penitentiary, he may not be allowed commissions on disbursements for the support of the penitentiary. U. S. v. Baird, (1893) 150 U. S. 54, reversing 29 Ct. Cl. 551.

Sec. 1894. [Payment of marshal, etc., and of expenses of subsistence, etc., of offenders.] The compensation, as well as the expense incident to the subsistence and employment of offenders against the laws of the United States, who have been, or may hereafter be, sentenced to imprisonment in such penitentiary, shall be chargeable on, and payable out of, the fund for defraying the expenses of suits in which the United States are concerned, and of prosecutions for offenses committed against the United States; but nothing herein shall be construed to increase the maximum compensation now allowed by law to those officers. [R. S.]

Sec. 1895. [Imprisonment in penitentiaries.] Any person convicted by a court of competent jurisdiction in a Territory, for a violation of the laws thereof, and sentenced to imprisonment, may, at the cost of such Territory, on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by such rules and regulations, be received, subsisted, and employed in such penitentiary during the term of his imprisonment, in the same manner as if he had been convicted of an offense against the laws of the United States. The word "may" in this statute means "shall." Territory v. Nelson, 2 Wyo. 355.

Confinement of prisoner awaiting grand jury.—A marshal of a territory (Utah) can hold in custody a prisoner to answer to the grand jury for a crime under the laws of the territory, and in default of bail he can confine such prisoner in a territorial penitentiary. Matter of Nelson, (1893) 9 Utah 366.

Prisoners sentenced in Wyoming.—The penitentiary at Laramie, Wyoming, having been erected by Congress is the only penitentiary for the confinement of prisoners sentenced by the district courts of the territory for offenses against the territorial laws, where the territorial statutes provide that the punishment therefor shall be confinement in the penitentiary. Territory v. Nelson, 2 Wyo. 355.

[Care and custody of convicts of Territories.] * * * That the legislative assemblies of the several Territories of the United States may make such provision for the care and custody of such persons as may be convicted of crime under the laws of such Territory as they shall deem proper, and for that purpose may authorize and contract for the care and custody of such convicts in any other Territory or State, and provide that such person or persons may be sentenced to confinement accordingly in such other Territory or State, and all existing legislative enactments of any of the Territories for that purpose are hereby legalized: Provided, That the expense of keeping such prisoners shall be borne by the respective Territories, and no part thereof shall be borne by the United States. * * * [21 Stat. L. 277.]

Sentence to prison claimed to be without territory. — There is no law requiring prisoners convicted and sentenced to imprisonment by the courts of the territory (Arizona) to be confined within the territory; and the fact that a territorial prison is claimed to be without the territory and within the limits of an adjoining state will not constitute imprisonment therein, under sentence of the territorial court, illegal, especially where the territory is in possession of the prison and exercises authority over it and has no other territorial prison, and where it is not alleged that the state has ever made any claim whatever to the land upon which the prison stands. In re Wilson, (1896) 72 Fed. Rep. 656.

Sec. 1936. [Control of penitentiaries in Montana, Idaho, etc., transferred to said Territories.] The care and custody of the penitentiaries in Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, and Colorado, and the personal property thereunto belonging, and the use and occupation thereof, are transferred to such Territories, respectively, until otherwise ordered by the Attorney-General; but the legal title to such penitentiaries and the property shall continue to vest in the United States. Act of Jan. 24, 1873, ch. 63, 17 Stat. L. 418.

But see the following acts. The provisions as to Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming appear to be repealed by Act of June 20, 1874, ch. 332, set out below.

An Act transferring the Control of certain territorial Penitentiaries to the several Territories in which the same are Located.

[SEC. 1.] [Penitentiaries in Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, and Colorado.] That so much of the act entitled "An act in relation to certain territorial penitentiaries," approved January tenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, placing the penitentiaries in the Territories of Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, and Colorado, under the care and control of the respective United States marshals for said Territories, is hereby repealed, and the care and custody of said penitentiaries, and the personal property thereunto belonging, and the use and occupation thereof, are hereby transferred to said Territories respectively, until otherwise ordered by the Attorney-General: Provided, That the legal title to said penitentiaries and property shall continue to vest in the United States: And provided further, That said Territories shall keep and maintain, in the penitentiaries hereby transferred to their custody and control, all persons convicted in said respective Territories of violations of the laws of the United States, and sentenced to imprisonment therefor, and all persons held to answer for alleged violations of the laws of the United States in said respective Territories, at the rate and price, to be paid by the United States out of the judiciary fund, of one dollar per day for each person so imprisoned. [17 Stat. L. 418.]

The Act of Jan. 10, 1871, ch. 15, mentioned in the above section, is incorporated in the Revised Statutes as R. S. secs. 1892-1895. See repeal of this Act in part by following Act.

SEC. 2. [Transfer to Territorial authorities.] That immediately after the passage of this act the Attorney-General of the United States shall cause to be transferred to the proper authorities of the Territories of Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, and Colorado, the penitentiaries and personal property connected therewith, situated in each of said Territories, respectively. [17 Stat. L. 419.]

An act to amend the act entitled ["an act transferring the control of certain Territorial penitentiaries to the several Territories in which the same are located," approved January twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-three.

[SEC. 1.] [Penitentiaries in Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming Territories.] That the act entitled "An act transferring the control of certain Territorial penitentiaries to the several Territories in which the same are located," approved January twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, be, and the same is hereby, amended by striking out the words Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming wherever the same occur in said act, and the said act shall hereafter have no applicability to the Territories of Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming. [18 Stat. L. 112.]

SEC. 2. [To continue under control of United States marshals.] That the penitentiaries in the Territories of Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming, shall continue under the care and control of the marshal of the United States for said Territories, under and pursuant to the provisions of the act entitled "An act in relation to certain territorial penitentiaries," approved January tenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one; which said last mentioned act is hereby revived and reenacted so far as the same applies to the Territories of Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming. [18 Stat. L. 112.]

The Act of Jan. 10, 1871, ch. 15, mentioned in the text, was incorporated in R. S. as secs. 1892-1895. Section 1 is the same as R. S. sec. 1892, with the exception of the provision as to the territories of Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, and Colorado. Section 2 is the same as R. S. secs. 1893, 1894. Section 3 is the same as R. S. sec. 1895.

Sec. 1937. [Expenses of maintenance of prisoners to be paid from judiciary fund.] The Territories named in the preceding section shall keep and maintain, in the penitentiaries transferred to their custody and control, all persons convicted in such Territories of violations of the laws of the United States, and sentenced to imprisonment therefor, and all persons held to answer for alleged violations of the laws of the United States in such Territories, at the rate and price, to be paid by the United States out of the judiciary fund, of one dollar per day for each person so imprisoned. [R. S.]

Sec. 5536. [Expenses for U. S. prisoners to be paid by the United States.] All the expenses attendant upon the transportation from place to place, and upon the temporary or permanent confinement of persons arrested or committed under the laws of the United States, as well as upon the execution of any sentence of a court thereof respecting them, shall be paid out of the Treasury of the United States in the manner provided by law. [R. S.]

Res. No. 2 of March 3, 1821, 3 Stat. L. 646; Act of March 3, 1835, ch. 40, 4 Stat. L. 777; Act of March 3, 1865, ch. 86, 13 Stat. L. 500. See further Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 529, sec. 5, supra, p. 25.

Sections 5536-5550 constitute chapter 9

("Prisoners and Their Treatment") of title 70 ("Crimes") of the Revised Statutes.

The United States may use state prisons for the punishment of federal prisoners, paying the expense and letting the prisoners be employed and treated as the state convicts are. U. S. v. Smith, (1846) 1 Woodb. & M. (U. S.) 184, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 16,346.

What constitutes such expenses.—“What are these expenses? A reasonable, agreed sum for the nourishment and clothing of the prisoner in such prison, for the other means of comfort and health which it affords, as fuel and medical service, and for the custody of the prisoner, which includes the cost of the construction, reparation, occasional improvements, and ordinary wear and tear of the establishment; that is, in a word, pro tanto indemnification of the state.” (1857) 8 Op. Atty.-Gen. 292.

Expenses of employed prisoners.—The United States, not possessing any places of imprisonment within the states, are admitted by each state into its prisons on conditions agreed for the indemnification of the state; and, although the state so employ a federal convict as to derive returns from his labor, still it may demand compensation for entertaining him in its penitentiary, to be paid by the United States. (1857) 8 Op. Atty.-Gen. 289.

To whom payable.—The compensation in such case is due to the state as such, but is payable to any lawfully appointed agent of the state. (1857) 8 Op. Atty.-Gen. 259.

Sec. 5537. [Places of confinement.] In a State where the use of jails, penitentiaries, or other houses is not allowed for the imprisonment of persons arrested or committed under the authority of the United States, any marshal in such State, under the direction of the judge of the district, may hire, or otherwise procure, within the limits of such State, a convenient place to serve as a temporary jail. [R. S.]

Res. No. 2 of March 3, 1821, 3 Stat. L. 646; Act of March 2, 1833, ch. 57, 4 Stat. L. 634.

Confinement of federal prisoners generally.—“The federal government has no regular places of imprisonment of its own, either of the class denominated jails, or of that denominated penitentiaries, within any of the states. In general, each of the respective states had acceded to the suggestion of the first Congress, and had made provision to receive in its places of confinement, general or special, the prisoners of the United States, making for such prisoners the same regulations as for their own in the matter of discipline, subsistence, and other necessities of life. The federal courts may, if they please, send their penitentiary convicts to the District of Columbia; but as to prisoners, of whatever class, confined in special or preliminary process, or convicts not sentenced to hard labor, the federal courts must depend on the prisons of the state within whose limits the incident occurs, or, in case of refusal there, make order for some other suitable, special place of confinement, at the direct charge of the United States.” (1857) 8 Op. Atty.-Gen. 291.

Implied consent of state.—The state would have the right to refuse the use of its penitentiary to the prisoners of the United States, but where for more than thirty years prisoners convicted in the courts of the United States have been sentenced to the penitentiary, and have been there received and kept, with the knowledge and acquiescence of the state authorities, and their expenses paid by the United States, it is not competent for an offender sentenced to the penitentiary by the federal court to object that there is no express legislation by the state authorizing such prisoners to be there confined; such objection could only be made by the state. Ex p. Geary, (1871) 2 Biss. (U. S.) 485, 10 Fed. Cas. No. 5,293.

Lawful detention.—So long as the state permits him to remain in its prison as the prisoner of the United States, and does not object to his detention by its officers, he is rightfully detained in custody under a sentence lawfully passed. Ex p. Karstendick, (1876) 93 U. S. 396.

Necessity of process of commitment.—In cases under this section no special process of commitment is necessary, the prisoners being already in the custody of the marshal, and their detention being still continued in his custody. Erwin v. U. S., (1889) 37 Fed. Rep. 470; Turner v. U. S., (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 629.

Special provision by courts.—District courts of the United States have power to provide specially for the confinement of persons convicted by federal law if refused admission into the jails of the state. (1856) 7 Op. Atty.-Gen. 615.

Confinement in penitentiary of District of Columbia.—In a case arising under this section the prisoner may be confined in the penitentiary of the District of Columbia. (1856) 7 Op. Atty.-Gen. 615.

Sec. 5538. [Marshal to make provision for safe-keeping of prisoners.] The marshal shall make such other provision as he may deem expedient and necessary for the safe-keeping of the prisoners arrested or committed under the authority of the United States, until permanent provision for that purpose is made by law. [R. S.]

Res. No. 2 of March 3, 1821, 3 Stat. L. 646; Act of March 2, 1833, ch. 57, 4 Stat. L. 634.

Power of Congress to legislate for arrest and safe-keeping.—Congress has the right to enact laws for the arrest and commitment of those accused of any crime or offense against the United States, whether committed within one of the states of the Union or within territory over which Congress has plenary and exclusive jurisdiction, and for holding them in safe custody until indictment and trial; and persons arrested and held pursuant to such laws are in the exclusive custody of the United States. Logan v. U. S., (1892) 144 U. S. 263.

Protection of prisoners from injury.—“The United States having the absolute right to hold such prisoners have an equal duty to protect them, while so held, against assault or injury from any quarter. The existence of that duty on the part of the government necessarily implies a corresponding right of the prisoners to be so protected; and this right of the prisoners is a right secured to them by the Constitution and laws of the United States.” Logan v. U. S., (1892) 144 U. S. 263.

Delivery of prisoners to incompetent deputies.—A United States marshal owes a duty to prisoners to keep them safely and protect them from unlawful injury, and where he has taken prisoners into his custody, permitted them to be disarmed and shackled, and knowingly delivered them over to incompetent deputies and to the known hostility of mobs, he is liable for a neglect of his duty as his own personal negligence and default; and in states in which recovery may be had when the death of any person is caused by the wrongful act of another an action may be maintained on the marshal's bond for the death of prisoners so delivered to such incompetent deputies. Asher v. Cabell, (C. C. A. 1892) 50 Fed. Rep. 818.

Examination of state jails by marshal.—A marshal is not keeper of the jails of the state; “he has no control over them; he neither repairs the jails nor feeds the prisoners nor regulates their police;” and in the absence of an order of the court requiring him to make an examination of state jails to ascertain if they are proper for the confinement of United States prisoners he is not entitled to charge for so doing. U. S. v. Smith, (1846) 1 Woodb. & M. (U. S.) 184, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 16,346.

Sec. 5539. [United States convicts in State penitentiaries.] Whenever any criminal, convicted of any offense against the United States, is imprisoned in the jail or penitentiary of any State or Territory, such criminal shall in all respects be subject to the same discipline and treatment as convicts sentenced by the courts of the State or Territory in which such jail or penitentiary is situated; and while so confined therein shall be exclusively under the control of the officers having charge of the same, under the laws of such State or Territory. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1834, ch. 163, 4 Stat. L. 739.

Construed with other sections.—This section being in pari materia with the sections immediately following is to be construed with those sections. Ex p. Karstendick, (1876) 93 U. S. 396.

Jailer of state jail.—“The United States uses the jails of the state for the confinement of prisoners under sentence or awaiting trial. But the jailer is not an officer of the United States, and the commissioner has no power to call upon him to perform any service.” Saunders v. U. S., (1896) 73 Fed. Rep. 782.

Control of marshal.—The state jails are not under the control of the marshal, nor is the custody of the jailer the custody of the marshal in such cases. Erwin v. U. S., (1889) 37 Fed. Rep. 470; Randolph v. Donaldson, (1815) 9 Cranch (U. S.) 76.

Hard labor for federal prisoners in Illinois.—As by the laws of Illinois the prisoners in the state penitentiary are subject to hard labor, unless it is otherwise directed in their sentence, and as it is provided that criminals sentenced by the United States court shall be subject to the same discipline and treatment as convicts sentenced by the state courts, it follows, as a conclusion of law, that the former are subject to hard labor as a part of the imprisonment. It is not necessary, in order to clothe the court with authority to imprison in the penitentiary, that a part of the punishment by the terms of the sentence should be hard labor. Ex p. Geary, (1871) 2 Biss. (U. S.) 485, 10 Fed. Cas. No. 5,293.

Taking testimony of prisoners.—“As to prisoners confined in state prisons, whether under sentence of federal or state courts, they are subject exclusively to the government of rules and regulations prescribed by the several states as well in respect of federal as state prisoners; * * * and * * * the executive has no power to give the German government the privilege of access to such prisoners for the purpose [of taking testimony], without the instrumentality of a treaty, supposing the subject to be, to its full extent, within the treaty-making power.” (1883) 17 Op. Atty-Gen. 565.

Sec. 5540. [Selection of penitentiary where a judicial district is divided.] Where a judicial district has been or may hereafter be divided, the circuit and district courts of the United States shall have power to sentence any one convicted of an offense punishable by imprisonment at hard labor to the penitentiary within the State, though it be out of the judicial district in which the conviction is had. [R. S.]

Act of March 28, 1856, ch. 9, 11 Stat. L. 2.

Sec. 5541. [Sentences to imprisonment for more than a year, where to be executed.] In every case where any person convicted of any offense against the United States is sentenced to imprisonment for a period longer than one year, the court by which the sentence is passed may order the same to be executed in any State jail or penitentiary within the district or State where such court is held, the use of which jail or penitentiary is allowed, by the legislature of the State for that purpose. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1865, ch. 86, 13 Stat. L. 500.

Derivation of section.—This section "is in part and without substantial change a reproduction of the third section of the Act of March 3, 1865, entitled 'An Act regulating proceedings in criminal cases and for other purposes.'" In re Mills, (1890) 135 U. S. 263.

"The words 'state jail' in section 5541, and 'state prison' in the Act of 1865, mean the same thing." In re Mills, (1890) 135 U. S. 263.

"The term 'state prison' is used in juxtaposition and as synonymous with 'penitentiary,' the meaning of which is definitely established. All understand a penitentiary to be a prison for the compulsory confinement, generally at compulsory labor, of convicts from the criminal courts." U. S. v. Smith, (1889) 40 Fed. Rep. 755.

"The term 'state prison' is not used in the general sense of any jail or lock-up of a county or city owned by the state." U. S. v. Smith, (1889) 40 Fed. Rep. 755.

Common-law offenses.—This statute does not affect the punishment of common-law offenses. U. S. v. Marshall, (1887) 6 Mackey (D. C.) 34.

Sufficient authorization.—"This language is explicit, and taken by itself is certainly sufficient to authorize imprisonment in a penitentiary at the discretion of the court in all cases where the sentence is for a longer term than one year." Ex p. Karstendick, (1876) 93 U. S. 396.

The reformatory prison at Sherborn, Massachusetts, for the reformation and punishment of female offenders sentenced to hard labor by the state and the federal courts, is undoubtedly a state penitentiary, within the meaning of this section and R. S. sec. 5542, therefore a sentence of six months without hard labor in that prison is illegal. In re Johnson, (1891) 46 Fed. Rep. 481.

Sentence of one year or less.—Under this provision of law a court of the United States has no right to order a person who is sentenced to imprisonment for a period of one year, or less, to be confined in any particular state prison or penitentiary. Matter of De Puy, (1869) 3 Ben. (U. S.) 307, 7 Fed. Cas. No. 3,814.

Punishment not exceeding one year by statute.—Under this provision, when a statute prescribes a punishment by confinement not exceeding one year, the convict cannot be confined in any state prison or penitentiary." U. S. v. Cobb, (1890) 43 Fed. Rep. 570.

Imprisonment in penitentiary not required by statute.—"Where the statute of the United States prescribing a punishment by imprisonment does not require that the accused shall be confined in the penitentiary, a sentence of imprisonment in the penitentiary cannot be imposed unless the sentence is for a period 'longer' than one year." Haynes v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1900) 101 Fed. Rep. 817.

"The court has no jurisdiction to order an imprisonment, when the place is not specified by law, to be executed in a penitentiary, when the imprisonment is not ordered for a period longer than one year, or at hard labor. The statute is equivalent to a direct denial of any authority on the part of the court to direct that imprisonment be executed in a penitentiary in any cases other than those specified. Whatever discretion, therefore, the court may possess, in prescribing the extent of imprisonment as a punishment for the offense committed, it cannot in specifying the place of imprisonment name one of these institutions." In re Bonner, (1894) 151 U. S. 242, affirming (1893) 57 Fed. Rep. 184.

"A sentence simply of imprisonment," said the court, "in the case of a person convicted of an offense against the United States, where the statute prescribing the punishment does not require that the accused shall be confined in a penitentiary, cannot be executed by confinement in a penitentiary, except in cases in which the sentence is for a period longer than one year. There is consequently no escape from the conclusion that the judgment of the court, sentencing the petitioner to imprisonment in a penitentiary, in one case for a year and in the other for six months, was in violation of the statutes of the United States. The court below was without jurisdiction to pass any such sentences, and the orders directing the sentences of imprisonment to be executed in a penitentiary are void." In re Mills, (1890) 135 U. S. 263, citing Nielson, Petitioner, (1889) 131 U. S. 176; In re Coy, (1888) 127 U. S. 731; Ex p. Rowland, (1881) 104 U. S. 604; Ex p. Virginia, (1879) 100 U. S. 339; Ex p. Parks, (1876) 93 U. S. 18; Ex p. Lange, (1873) 18 Wall. (U. S.) 163.

Hard labor prescribed by statute.—"The only case where a person can be sentenced to a jail or penitentiary not exceeding one year is where the statute prescribes hard labor as part of the punishment and leaves the term of imprisonment in the discretion of the court." U. S. v. Cobb, (1890) 43 Fed. Rep. 570.

Sentence for one year not a nullity.—The sentence for one year to a penitentiary is not a nullity, but is merely irregular as designating a wrong place of imprisonment. Ex p. Friday, (1890) 43 Fed. Rep. 916.

Erroneous sentence.—"The sentences of imprisonment in this case," said the court by Judge Caldwell, "not being for a period longer than one year, it was error to order them to be executed by confinement in a penitentiary; and neither of the statutes on which the indictments are founded providing for punishment at hard labor, that part of the sentence is also erroneous." Haynes v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1900) 101 Fed. Rep. 817.

Sec. 5542. [Penitentiary sentences, where to be executed.] In every case where any criminal convicted of any offense against the United States is sentenced to imprisonment and confinement to hard labor, it shall be lawful for the court by which the sentence is passed to order the same to be executed in any State jail or penitentiary within the district or State where such court is held, the use of which jail or penitentiary is allowed by the legislature of the State for that purpose. [R. S.]

Discretion of court as to place of imprisonment.—It is within the discretion of the court to order punishment in penitentiaries where hard labor is required as a part of the discipline. In re Welty, (1903) 123 Fed. Rep. 123.

Necessity of law providing hard labor.—To justify imprisonment in a penitentiary at hard labor in cases where imprisonment is longer than one year, it is not essential that the law defining the defense in providing for the punishment thereof should include a provision for hard labor. In re Welty, (1903) 123 Fed. Rep. 123.

Length of term of imprisonment necessary.—With regard to this section and R. S. sec. 5441 immediately preceding the court said: "It is difficult to see how language could be selected more clearly emphasizing the evident distinction in the minds of the law-makers between imprisonment only and imprisonment at hard labor. In the one case the imprisonment may be in a penitentiary if longer than one year; in the other the imprisonment, whether for six years or six months, may be in a penitentiary or state prison." Ex p. Friday, (1890) 43 Fed. Rep. 916.

"Hard labor" by statute.—"With this legislation in full force it is impossible to believe that it was the intention of Congress to confine imprisonment in penitentiaries exclusively to cases in which hard labor is in express terms made by statute a part of the punishment." Ex p. Karstendick, (1876) 93 U. S. 396.

Separate sentences on different counts.—Although for some purposes the different counts of an indictment may be regarded as so far separate as to be different indictments, yet a sentence at hard labor for two years in a state prison, on two counts, is not void as being over one year, because it directs punishment for a period that does not exceed one year for each count, when there is no statement in the record to show a separate sentence on each count. Dimmick v. Tompkins, (1904) 194 U. S. 541.

Execution of sentence.—When this section authorized the District Court to order the sentences to be executed in any penitentiary within the state, the statute implied that the District Court had the power to direct an officer to execute the order, and the only officer whom it could direct was the marshal for its own district. U. S. v. McMahon, (C. C. A. 1895) 65 Fed. Rep. 976.

"Hard labor" included in sentence.—"In cases where the statute makes hard labor a part of the punishment, it is imperative upon the court to include that in its sentence. But where the statute requires imprisonment alone the several provisions * * * place it within the power of the court, at its discretion, to order execution of its sentence at a place where labor is exacted as part of the discipline and treatment of the institution or not, as it pleases." Ex p. Karstendick, (1876) 93 U. S. 396.

Expressly including hard labor in sentence otherwise implied.—A sentence of imprisonment to a state penitentiary is not vitiated and rendered void for expressly including the element or feature of hard labor, which would have been otherwise implied in a sentence of simple imprisonment. In this case the prisoner was sentenced to a state penitentiary, the rules, regulations, and discipline of which provided for hard labor. U. S. v. Pridgeon, (1894) 153 U. S. 48.

A sentence to a penitentiary in Ohio is a sentence at hard labor, as, by the provisions of the laws of that state, hard labor is provided for all prisoners confined in such penitentiary. U. S. v. Tod, (1885) 25 Fed. Rep. 816.

A sentence may be corrected nunc pro tunc by the addition by the court of the words "at hard labor." where the omission of these words was a clerical error and the sentence actually imposed was imprisonment at hard labor. In re Welty, (1903) 123 Fed. Rep. 123.

Sec. 5543. [Deductions from term of imprisonment for good conduct.] All prisoners who have been, or may be, convicted of any offense against the laws of the United States, and confined in any State jail or penitentiary in execution of the judgment upon such conviction, who so conduct themselves that no charge for misconduct is sustained against them, shall have a deduction of one month in each year made from the term of their sentence, and shall be entitled to their discharge so much the sooner, upon the certificate of the warden or keeper of such jail or penitentiary, with the approval of the Attorney-General. [R. S.]

This and the following section 5544 are superseded in part by the Acts of March 3, 1875, ch. 145, and June 21, 1902, ch. 1140, following.

"The words 'state jail or penitentiary,' used in that section, are not to be considered as intended to limit the provision to jails supported by the state at large, if in any state there are such jails, as distinguished from the common jails kept by the counties of the state by virtue of state laws. They refer to the jails and penitentiaries within a state, whether state, city, or county institutions, which are permitted by the state to be used for the confinement of the prisoners of the United States." U. S. v. Schroeder, (1877) 14 Blatchf. (U. S.) 344, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 16,233.

Prisoners in state jails not under state system of commutation. — A federal prisoner confined in a state jail in which state there is a system of commutation, but which does not allow any deduction to prisoners confined in jails, is entitled to the reduction of one month on a sentence of one year allowed by this section on the certificate and approval as herein required. U. S. v.

Prisoners in county jails. — In re Deering, (1894) 60 Fed. Rep. 265, the court said: "There are no credits provided for the good behavior of prisoners confined in the county jails of this state [California], and hence it follows that the provisions of section 5543 of the Revised Statutes are applicable to a United States prisoner so confined. That part of this section relating to prisoners in a state penitentiary is undoubtedly superseded by the Act of March 3, 1875, but it does not follow that the provision of the section relating to prisoners confined in jails is repealed or modified by that Act."

Power of Congress to impose conditions on commutation. — "Having jurisdiction to impose the penalty of the full original term, the federal government had undoubted authority to couple any curtailment of that term with any conditions it chose to prescribe. It might have restricted such conditions so as to require abstinence from offense against its own laws only, or it might, as it has done, require the convict who is thus enlarged ex gratia, to continue to be a law-abiding member of the community, offending against no laws, state or federal, which he is bound to obey." In re Willis, (1897) 83 Fed. Rep. 148.

Sec. 5544. [Application of preceding section.] The preceding section, however, shall apply to such prisoners only as are confined in jails or penitentiaries where no credits for good behavior are allowed; but, in other cases, all prisoners now or hereafter confined in the jails or penitentiaries of any State for offenses against the United States, shall be entitled to the same rule of credits for good behavior applicable to other prisoners in the same jail or penitentiary. [R. S.]

Superseded in part. — See note under preceding section.

"The statute is mandatory, giving the convict a right to the credit for the good time provided his conduct has been such as to deserve it, and it is made the positive duty of the warden of the penitentiary, if the conduct of the convict has been good, to enter a certificate on the warrant of commitment showing the fact. The time fixed by the sentence of the court remains just as fixed until the time expires, less the deduction for good time, when the fact whether the sentence is to be cut down is determined by inspection of the certificate on the warrant of commitment. There is practically no uncertainty in this in the ordinary apprehension except such uncertainty as may exist by reason of doubt as to what the conduct of the convict will be." Howard v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1896) 75 Fed. Rep. 986.

Equal rights with state convicts. — United States prisoners confined in state penitentiaries or prisons where there is a "rule of credits," or "system of commutation," are entitled only to an equality of right with the state convicts confined therein with respect to commutation. In re Raymond, (1901) 110 Fed. Rep. 155.

A sentence does not commence to run until the prisoner is confined in the particular prison named therein. He is not entitled to deduct therefrom the time during which he was confined in a county jail pending the determination of an appeal for a review and reversal of the judgment on a supersedeas obtained by him. Dimmick v. Tompkins, (1904) 194 U. S. 541.

On successive sentences. — Where successive sentences are lawfully imposed whatever credits for good behavior a prisoner may be entitled to can only be properly taken from the end of the entire term of his imprisonment in states in which such is the law. In re Greenwald, (1896) 77 Fed. Rep. 590.

Commutation depending upon discretion of state officers. — Where the commutation of a sentence in a state depends upon the discretion of state officers it is not a "rule of credits" such as will be applicable to federal prisoners. U. S. v. Byers, (1904) 127 Fed. Rep. 995.

Imprisonment for contempt. — "Summary contempt proceedings are absolutely necessary to enable a court to protect its own dignity and even preserve its existence; and to enable it to effectively discharge its proper functions, the proceeding must be at all times under the control of the courts. The proceedings are sui generis, especially provided for in separate acts, and are not intended to be included in the ordinary general provisions embraced within the criminal code or system within which the party is entitled to all the guaranties provided by the Constitution. [A party undergoing imprisonment for contempt] is not 'a prisoner convicted of an offense against the laws of the United States' within the meaning of the statute allowing credits for good behavior." In re Terry, (1889) 37 Fed. Rep. 649.

Conditional commutation. — "The statute is self-executing so far as the annexing of the invariable condition to commutation is concerned. Good-conduct prisoners, by virtue of its provisions, earn a conditional commutation only, which becomes forfeited upon conviction of felony within the period of original sentence." In re Willis, (1897) 83 Fed. Rep. 148.

Where a prisoner is confined in a penitentiary in a state having a system of commutation he is not entitled to an unconditional commutation for good behavior under R. S. sec. 5543; and a state statute providing that on conviction of any felony between the date of his discharge and the date of the expiration of the full term for which he was sentenced he should be compelled to serve such portion of the previous sentence as had been commuted, will apply to United States prisoners, whether the offense be a felony under the state law or under the federal law. Such unexpired part of the former sentence is to be served in the penitentiary to which he is sentenced on the subsequent conviction. In re Willis, (1897) 83 Fed. Rep. 148; In re Walters, (1904) 128 Fed. Rep. 794.

Federal interference with governor. — "The federal government does not undertake to instruct the governor of the state as to what he shall or shall not do touching federal prisoners." In re Willis, (1897) 83 Fed. Rep. 148.

U. S. prisoner in California county jail. — "The system of commutations for the state of California * * * relate only to state prisons, their officers and duties, and to the convicts therein confined, their government, discipline, rights, etc. They have no application to county jails or to prisoners therein confined. The system does not include credits for minor offenders confined for short periods of time in county jails or otherwise. The provisions therefore do not reach" a prisoner of the United States in a county jail. In re Terry, (1889) 37 Fed. Rep. 649.

Credits for sentence of year or over only. — "Now, there are no credits here [California] at all for months, or fractions of a year, or of a month, or for days. The shortest term for which any credits are allowed is one year." In re Terry, (1889) 37 Fed. Rep. 649.

Under Pennsylvania Act. — "On the assumption that the Pennsylvania Act of May 11, 1901, entitled 'An Act providing for the commutation of sentences for good behavior of convicts in prisons, penitentiaries, workhouses, and county jails of this state, and regulations governing the same,' is by congressional legislation applicable to United States prisoners confined in the Eastern Penitentiary of that state at the time of its enactment, a United States prisoner so confined has no right to commutation for good conduct in the absence of a report on that subject by the board of prison officials to the governor and action thereon by the latter, with the approval of the designated state officers." In re Raymond, (1901) 110 Fed. Rep. 155.

An act to provide for deductions from the terms of sentence of United States prisoners.

[SEC. 1.] [Commutation of term for good conduct.] That all prisoners who have been, or shall hereafter be, convicted of any offence against the laws of the United States, and confined, in execution of the judgment or sentence upon such conviction, in any prison or penitentiary of any State or Territory which has no system of commutation for its own prisoners, shall have a deduction from their several terms of sentence of five days in each and every calendar month during which no charge of misconduct shall have been sustained against each severally, who shall be discharged at the expiration of his term of sentence less the time so deducted, and a certificate of the warden or keeper of such prison penitentiary of such deduction shall be entered on the warrant of commitment: Provided, That, if during the term of imprisonment the prisoner shall commit any offence for which he shall be convicted by a jury, all remissions theretofore made shall be thereby annulled. [18 Stat. L. 479.]

But see following Act.

"State prisons" and "jails" distinguished. — "We are of opinion," said the court, "that the words 'any prison or penitentiary' in the Act of March 3, 1875 (1 Supp. R. S. 184), mean state prison or penitentiary and do not include county jails or places employed for temporary confinement, or confinement for short periods for petty offenses. In some states the place of confinement in punishment of the higher grade of offenses is called a 'state prison' and in others a 'penitentiary,' and Congress recognized this fact in providing for credits in this Act. The Act supersedes the similar provision in secs. 5543 and 5544, R. S., in which the words 'jail or penitentiary' are used. This change in the language is significant and indicates an intention to limit credits to those state prisons and penitentiaries properly so called." In re Corcoran, (1889) 47 Fed. Rep. 211.

To what prisoners applicable. — "The Act of Congress applies only to United States prisoners who are confined in a prison or penitentiary of a state or territory, that is to say, in a state or territorial institution, and does not in terms or by fair interpretation of language apply to a United States prisoner confined in a county jail." In re Deering, (1894) 60 Fed. Rep. 265; U. S. v. Schroeder, (1877) 14 Blatchf. (U. S.) 344, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 16,233; In re Terry, (1889) 37 Fed. Rep. 649; U. S. v. Goujon, (1889) 39 Fed. Rep. 773.

"The fact that the state system of communication does not allow any deduction to prisoners confined in jails does not affect the question. There is still a state system of commutation, and the fact of the existence of such a system takes the case out of the scope of the Act of 1875 without regard to the particular provisions of that system." U. S. v. Schroeder, (1877) 14 Blatchf. (U. S.) 344, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 16,233.

In California. — By its express terms the deductions provided for by this Act can be allowed only to prisoners confined in a state or territory having no system of commutation for its own prisoners; and as the state of California has such system it necessarily results that the deduction provided for by that Act does not apply to the case of federal prisoners. U. S. v. Goujon, (1889) 39 Fed. Rep. 773.

Effect of particular provisions of state system. — "California has a system of commutations for its own prisoners. And 'the fact of the existence of such a system also takes the case out of the scope of the Act of 1875 without regard to the particular provisions of the system.'" In re Terry, (1889) 37 Fed. Rep. 649.

"The system of commutation provided by the statute of California (Act Cal. 1880, as amended March 14, 1881), has no application to county jails or to prisoners confined therein; and in respect to prisoners confined in a state prison no credit is allowed when the term of imprisonment is less than one year." U. S. v. Goujon, (1889) 39 Fed. Rep. 773.

SEC. 2. [Clothing, etc., to be furnished discharged prisoner.] That on the discharge from any prison of any person convicted under the laws of the United States on indictment, he or she shall be provided by the warden or keeper of said prison with one plain suit of clothes and five dollars in money, for which charge shall be made and allowed in the accounts of said prison with the United States: Provided, That this section shall not apply to persons sentenced for a term of imprisonment of less than six months. [18 Stat. L. 480.]

An Act To regulate commutation for good conduct for United States prisoners.

SEC. 1. [Commutation for good conduct increased.] That each prisoner who has been or shall hereafter be convicted of any offense against the laws of the United States, and is confined, in execution of the judgment or sentence upon any such conviction, in any United States penitentiary or jail, or in any penitentiary, prison, or jail of any State or Territory, for a definite term, other than for life, whose record of conduct shows that he has faithfully observed all the rules and has not been subjected to punishment, shall be entitled to a deduction from the term of his sentence to be estimated as follows, commencing on the first day of his arrival at the penitentiary, prison, or jail: Upon a sentence of not less than six months nor more than one year, five days for each month; upon a sentence of more than one year and less than three years, six days for each month; upon a sentence of not less than three years and less than five years, seven days for each month; upon a sentence of not less than five years and less than ten years, eight days for each month; upon a sentence of ten years or more, ten days for each month. When a prisoner has two or more sentences, the aggregate of his several sentences shall be the basis upon which his deduction shall be estimated. [32 Stat. L. 397.]

Prior sentences.—This Act does not apply to persons sentenced before its enactment. In re Walters, (1904) 128 Fed. Rep. 794.

SEC. 2. [Restoration of forfeited commutations.] That in the case of convicts in any United States penitentiary, the Attorney-General shall have the power to restore to any such convict who has heretofore or may hereafter forfeit any good time by violating any existing law or prison regulation such portion of lost good time as may be proper, in his judgment, upon recommendations and evidence submitted to him by the warden in charge. Restoration, in the case of United States convicts confined in State and Territorial institutions, shall be regulated in accordance with the rules governing such institutions, respectively. [32 Stat. L. 397.]

SEC. 3. [Effect of Act — prior sentences — repeal.] That this Act shall take effect and be in force from and after thirty days from the date of its approval, and shall apply only to sentences imposed by courts subsequent to the time that this Act takes effect, as hereinbefore provided. Prisoners serving under any sentence imposed prior to such time shall be entitled and receive the commutation heretofore allowed under existing laws. Such existing laws are hereby repealed as to all sentences imposed subsequent to the time when this Act takes effect. [32 Stat. L. 398.]

Sec. 5545. [Actual reasonable cost of subsisting prisoners to be paid.] Hereafter there shall be allowed and paid by the Attorney-General, for the subsistence of prisoners in the custody of any marshal of the United States and the warden of the jail in the District of Columbia, such sum only as it reasonably and actually cost to subsist them. And it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to prescribe such regulations for the government of the marshals and the warden of the jail in the District of Columbia, in relation to their duties under this chapter, as will enable him to determine the actual and reasonable expenses incurred. [R. S.]

Act of May 12, 1864, ch. 85, 13 Stat. L. 75; Act of March 5, 1872, ch. 30, 17 Stat. L. 35.

Sec. 5546. [Designation of penitentiary by Attorney-General — transportation of prisoners — change of place of imprisonment.] All persons who have been, or who may hereafter be, convicted of crime by any court of the United States, including consular courts, whose punishment is imprisonment in a District or Territory or country where, at the time of conviction or at any time during the term of imprisonment, there may be no penitentiary or jail suitable for the confinement of convicts, or available therefor, shall be confined during the term for which they have been or may be sentenced, or during the residue of said term, in some suitable jail or penitentiary in a convenient State or Territory, to be designated by the Attorney-General, and shall be transported and delivered to the warden or keeper of such jail or penitentiary by the marshal of the District or Territory where the conviction has occurred; and in case of convictions by a consular court the transportation shall be by some properly qualified agent or agents designated by the Department of State, the reasonable actual expense of transportation, necessary subsistence, and hire and transportation of guards and agent or agents to be defrayed from the appropriation for bringing home criminals; and if the conviction be had in the District of Columbia, the transportation and delivery shall be by the warden of the jail of that District, the reasonable actual expense of transportation, necessary subsistence, and hire and transportation of guards and the marshal, or the warden of the jail in the District of Columbia only, to be paid by the Attorney-General out of the judiciary fund. But if, in the opinion of the Attorney-General, the expense of transportation from any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia in which there is no penitentiary will exceed the cost of maintaining them in jail in the State, Territory, or the District of Columbia during the period of their sentence, then it shall be lawful so to confine them therein for the period designated in their respective sentences. And the place of imprisonment may be changed in any case when, in the opinion of the Attorney-General, it is necessary for the preservation of the health of the prisoner, or when, in his opinion, the place of confinement is not sufficient to secure the custody of the prisoner, or because of cruel and improper treatment: Provided, however, That no change shall be made in the case of any prisoner on the ground of the unhealthiness of the prisoner or because of his treatment, after his conviction and during his term of imprisonment, unless such change shall be applied for by such prisoner, or some one in his behalf. R. S.]

This section was amended by the Act of March 3, 1901, ch. 873, 31 Stat. L. 1450, to read as above.

The section as originally enacted was as follows:

"SEC. 5546. All persons who have been, or who may hereafter be, convicted of crime, by any court of the United States, whose punishment is imprisonment, in a district or Territory where, at the time of conviction, there may be no penitentiary or jail suitable for the confinement of convicts, or available therefor, shall be confined during the term for which they have been or may be sentenced in some suitable jail or penitentiary in a convenient State or Territory, to be designated by the Attorney-General, and shall be transported and delivered to the warden or keeper of such jail or penitentiary by the marshal of the district or Territory where the conviction has occurred; and if the conviction be had in the District of Columbia, in such case the transportation and delivery shall be by the warden of the jail of that District; the reasonable actual expense of transportation, necessary subsistence and hire, and transportation of guards and the marshal, or the warden of the jail in the District of Columbia, only, to be paid by the Attorney-General, out of the judiciary fund. But if, in the opinion of the Attorney-General, the expense of transportation from any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, in which there is no penitentiary, will exceed the cost of maintaining them in jail in the State, Territory, or the District of Columbia during the period of their sentence, then it shall be lawful so to confine them therein for the period designated in their respective sentences." Act of May 12, 1864, ch. 85, 13 Stat. L. 74;

It was first amended by the Act of July 12, 1876, ch. 183, 19 Stat. L. 88, to read as follows:

"SEC. 5546. All persons who have been, or who may hereafter be, convicted of crime by any court of the United States whose punishment is imprisonment in a District or Territory where, at the time of conviction, or at any time during the term of imprisonment, there may be no penitentiary or jail suitable for the confinement of convicts or available therefor, shall be confined during the term for which they have been or may be sentenced, or during the residue of said term, in some suitable jail or penitentiary in a convenient State or Territory, to be designated by the Attorney-General, and shall be transported and delivered to the warden or keeper of such jail or penitentiary by the marshal of the District or Territory where the conviction has occurred; and if the conviction be had in the District of Columbia, the transportation and delivery shall be by the warden of the jail of that District; the reasonable actual expense of transportation, necessary subsistence, and hire and transportation of guards and the marshal, or the warden of the jail in the District of Columbia, only, to be paid by the Attorney-General, out of the judiciary fund. But if, in the opinion of the Attorney-General, the expense of transportation from any State, Territory or the District of Columbia, in which there is no penitentiary, will exceed the cost of maintaining them in jail in the State, Territory, or the District of Columbia during the period of their sentence, then it shall be lawful so to confine them therein for the period designated in their respective sentences. And the place of imprisonment may be changed in any case, when, in the opinion of the Attorney-General, it is necessary for the preservation of the health of the prisoner, or when, in his opinion, the place of confinement is not sufficient to secure the custody of the prisoner, or because of cruel or improper treatment: Provided, however, That no change shall be made in the case of any prisoner on the ground of the unhealthiness of the prisoner, or because of his treatment, after his conviction and during his term of imprisonment, unless such change shall be applied for by such prisoner, or some one in his behalf."

This amendment was incorporated into section 5546 of the Revised Statutes in the second edition.

The section was further amended as stated above to read as set forth in the text.

Effect of amendment. — "The changes made by that form of amendment are to be regarded usually as not changing the whole scope and spirit of the law, but rather as confined to the specific alterations of omission or addition in the old law." (1902) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 549.

Application of section. — "Sections 5540-5542 were apparently designed to apply to cases where the state contains more than one district, while section 5546 was probably intended, notwithstanding the use of the words 'district or territory' in the first clause, to apply to the not infrequent cases where there is no suitable penitentiary within the state, in which case the court is authorized to commit the convict to some suitable penitentiary 'in a convenient state or territory to be designated by the attorney-general.'" U. S. v. McMahon, (1896) 164 U. S. 81.

Construed with other sections. — "This section is to be construed in connection with the other sections which have been referred to. In fact it may be treated as a proviso to sections 5541 and 5542." Ex p. Karstendick, (1876) 93 U. S. 396.

Compared with R. S. sec. 5541. — "Section 5546 neither by express words nor by implication repeals, modifies, or changes the provisions of section 5541. Section 5546 is legislation on a subject entirely different from that of section 5541. Its object is to define the duties of the attorney-general when there is no jail or penitentiary in the district or state where the prisoner is convicted in which such person may be confined. It preserves throughout the distinction between jail as one class of prisons, and state jail or penitentiary as another class of prisons." U. S. v. Cobb, (1890) 43 Fed. Rep. 570.

"The only difference between * * * sections 5541 and 5546 relates to the class of cases where the judge may designate the place of imprisonment, and the class where the attorney-general may designate such place. The attorney-general may designate the place of imprisonment in all cases where there is not a suitable jail or penitentiary for the confinement of prisoners in a district or territory where they may be convicted." Ex p. McClusky, (1889) 40 Fed. Rep. 71.

Authority of attorney-general. — "There is nothing, therefore, in this amendment, when read in the light of its history, which extends the attorney-general's authority beyond the boundaries contemplated in the section as it stood before the amendment." (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 377.

Courts notified of designation. — "The prevalent practice under these provisions has obtained in accordance with which the attorney-general notifies the different courts, through the district attorney, of the designation that he has made for the different districts from time to time and procures to be entered upon the minutes of the court in each district an order showing the designation which is in force." Gardes v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1898) 87 Fed. Rep. 172.

Power of court to designate. — Unless the law of Congress prescribes in what particular place the punishment of an offense shall be executed, the District Court has the power to designate any place within its jurisdiction; and, subject to this qualification, the Acts of Congress of March 3, 1825 (4 Stat. 118), June 30, 1834 (4 Stat. 739), and March 3, 1865 (13 Stat. 500), so far as they refer to the place of imprisonment, are merely declaratory. Ex p. Geary, (1871) 2 Biss. (U. S.) 485, 10 Fed. Cas. No. 5,293.

The court cannot direct imprisonment in a penitentiary when the law assigns that institution for imprisonment under judgments of a different character. In re Bonner, (1894) 151 U. S. 242.

Sentence part in jail, part in penitentiary. — The District Court does not exceed its power in fixing a part of the term of imprisonment in the county jail and the remainder in the penitentiary. Ex p. Geary, (1871) 2 Biss. (U. S.) 485, 10 Fed. Cas. No. 5,293.

Presumption of good reason for transportation. — "Why these convicts were sent to a penitentiary outside the district in which they were tried does not appear, but we are bound," said the court, "to presume that the action of the court in that particular was taken for a good and sufficient reason and was dictated by what it conceived to be the best interests of the government." U. S. v. McMahon, (1896) 164 U. S. 81.

Imprisonment without state. — "Neither do we think the objection tenable that there can be no imprisonment in a penitentiary outside of Louisiana if there are within that state jails that are both suitable and available. It is for the court to determine whether the imprisonment shall be in a jail or a penitentiary. If in a penitentiary, then a penitentiary must be found inside of the state suitable and available in order that the sentence to be pronounced may be executed there. If there is none, resort may be had to those of another state. Imprisonment need not necessarily be ordered in a jail because the penitentiary of the state is unsuitable." Ex p. Karstendick, (1876) 93 U. S. 396.

Designation of prison as part of judgment. — "If the law-makers had regarded the designation of the prison as a part of the solemn judgment of the court, it is hardly probable that they would have lodged with an executive officer the power not only to change and modify that judgment, but to do this in the absence of the prisoner by a mere stroke of the pen." Ex p. Waterman, (1887) 33 Fed. Rep. 29.

"Congress clearly recognizes a distinction between a sentence and an order for the execution of the sentence. After the former has been passed the order is made designating the prison, but the order is not necessarily a part of the judgment of the court." Ex p. Waterman, (1887) 33 Fed. Rep. 29.

Recital in judgment of conditions precedent to transportation.—Where a prisoner is committed to a penitentiary in another state it is not necessary that the judgment of the court should recite the fact that the conditions precedent to the exercise of such power existed, therefore it is not necessary that the judgment should recite that such place of imprisonment without the state had been designated by the attorney-general as the proper place for the confinement of prisoners. In re Wilson, (1883) 18 Fed. Rep. 33, affirmed, (1885) 114 U. S. 427.

The omission of the record to state that there was no suitable penitentiary within the state, and that the attorney-general had designated a certain place as a suitable place of imprisonment outside of the state, is immaterial and is no ground for the discharge of the prisoner on a writ of habeas corpus. Ex p. Wilson, 114 U. S. 417.

Home of convict not material.—"It is equally clear that section 5546, amended or not amended, contains nothing to indicate that Congress was considering the home or domicile of the convict in providing for his confinement in a suitable jail or penitentiary." (1902) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 549.

Execution of sentence ordered by court at designated place.—The sole power of designation is in the attorney-general; but when he has designated, if the facts which authorize the change of place exist, it is as much within the power of the court to order its sentence to be executed at the designated place, as to determine which of two prisons in a state, equally suitable and equally available for the punishment to be inflicted, shall be employed for that purpose. The policy of the law is to avoid circuitry of action, and to permit the courts to do directly, as far as possible, all that they may do indirectly. Ex p. Karstendick, (1876) 93 U. S. 396.

In Virginia.—"Convicts of this district are sent to penitentiaries outside of Virginia, under the authority of section 5546 of the Revised Statutes, which does not, like section 5541, limit the class of persons sent to those who are sentenced for 'longer than one year.' The practice of the court when sentencing for as long a term as one year is to order the confinement to be in a penitentiary." U. S. v. Smith, (1889) 40 Fed. Rep. 755.

Unauthorized confinement in penitentiary.—"It could not have been contemplated that a person convicted under a statute where the punishment prescribed is confinement in jail could, by reason of being sent to another state because there was no jail in the district or state where he was convicted where he could be confined, be confined in a state prison or penitentiary of the other state to which he is sent." U. S. v. Cobb, (1890) 43 Fed. Rep. 570.

"The mere fact of the attorney-general engaging prisons in another state than that in which the convict is sentenced cannot change the character of the convict's punishment or make that infamous which was not so by the sentence, nor authorize the court to confine in a state prison or penitentiary, with or without hard labor, a person who has been convicted and sentenced under a statute which prescribes imprisonment alone as the punishment, and excludes the idea of imprisonment in a state jail or penitentiary with or without hard labor. Any other construction would lead to the unreasonable conclusion that a person convicted under a statute that imposes confinement for a term not exceeding one year, and that does not impose hard labor as a part of the punishment, and sentenced to confinement for one month, could be sent to a state jail or penitentiary." U. S. v. Cobb, (1890) 43 Fed. Rep. 570.

Habeas corpus for wrongful detention.—The fact that the prisoner is detained for a time, either before or after sentence, in the county jail, does not, in either case, authorize a writ of habeas corpus. Ex p. Geary, (1871) 2 Biss. (U. S.) 485, 10 Fed. Cas. No. 5,293.

Determination by designation of prison of character of offense.—"If he would designate a state penitentiary as the place of confinement of persons convicted in one district, and fail to do so in another district, the same crime would be infamous in one case, while in the other it would be entirely free from that character. * * * Neither the judge nor the attorney-general can at their pleasure determine the infamous character of an offense. The test is whether the statutes authorize the court to award an infamous punishment, not whether the punishment ultimately awarded is infamous; whether the accused is in danger of being subjected to an infamous punishment. If convicted of larceny he is, under the power of the attorney-general to designate the place of imprisonment, in such danger." Ex p. McClusky, (1889) 40 Fed. Rep. 71.

"The statutes of the United States require in some cases that the sentence shall be to confinement at hard labor. They provide in other cases that the punishment may be imprisonment for more than a year without adding the words 'at hard labor.' It may be difficult to perceive, and more difficult to accurately express, the distinction which we suggest; but we believe there is a material distinction in the public thought between a sentence to confinement at hard labor, and a sentence to confinement in a designated state penitentiary where hard labor will be required of the person sentenced as a part of the discipline of the prison. 'At the present day imprisonment in a state prison or penitentiary, with or without hard labor, is an infamous punishment;' and 'by the express provisions of Acts of Congress, either a sentence to imprisonment for a period longer than one year, or a sentence to imprisonment and confinement to hard labor, may be ordered to be executed in a state prison or penitentiary,' and thus in either case stamp the convict with the stigma of subjection to an infamous punishment. Still we think that the embodying in the sentence the words 'at hard labor' gives the stigma an emphasis which the statute does not require in this case. We conclude from a careful consideration of the subject that the sentence should not go beyond the language of the statute in describing the character of the confinement, and we modify the sentence in this case by striking out the words 'at hard labor.'" Gardes v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1898) 87 Fed. Rep. 172.

Power to change place of imprisonment.—The power of changing the place of imprisonment of a prisoner on the ground of his health is specifically vested in the attorney-general, and after the expiration of the term of court in which the sentence was imposed, it is not within the power of the court to order such removal, from a penitentiary to a county jail. U. S. v. Greenwald, (1894) 64 Fed. Rep. 6.

Removal by court.—The court may order a prisoner's removal to another penitentiary in the same state, of equal degree and grade, and where the prison discipline would be the same as that of the penitentiary in which the prisoner was first confined. U. S. v. Greenwald, (1894) 64 Fed. Rep. 6.

Removal by President.—"The President, by virtue of his office and without authority given by some statute, has no power to remove a convict from one prison to another." Aug. 14, 1889. (1889) 19 Op. Atty-Gen. 377.

Removal from penitentiary to county jail.—It is not within the power of the court, after the expiration of the term of court during which a prisoner was sentenced to imprisonment in a state penitentiary, "to order the removal of the prisoner to a county jail, a place of incarceration for the punishment of minor offenses and the custody of transient prisoners, where the ignominy of confinement is devoid of the 'infamous character' which an imprisonment in a state jail or penitentiary carries with it and which is regarded as part of the punishment. The discipline in a county jail in this state is not the same as enforced in either of the state prisons, and such a change of imprisonment would virtually result in lessening the prisoner's punishment and involve the exercise of authority vested exclusively in the executive department." U. S. v. Greenwald, (1894) 64 Fed. Rep. 6.

"It was not the purpose of Congress by this legislation to change the jurisdiction of any court as to any class of crimes or offenses, or to change the punishment theretofore attached to any crime or offense, but to regulate and fix the places of punishment whether the sentence be to the jail or penitentiary. By no just construction can it be held that the attorney-general is given the power to change the sentence of a court from the jail to the penitentiary or to order that a prisoner sentenced to the former shall be confined in the latter. He may * * * remove a prisoner from one jail to another, or from one penitentiary to another." U. S. v. Marshall, (1887) 6 Mackey (D. C.) 34.

"The right to change the place of confinement in the absence of the prisoner has been asserted and frequently exercised; sometimes upon the request of the prisoner himself, sometimes through the solicitation of his relatives and friends, and sometimes from motives of public policy. There can be no reason founded upon principle why the prisoner should be present when the order effecting this change is signed. To require such presence would often be attended not only with large and useless expense, as in the case at bar, but with annoyance, inconvenience, and delay, not only to the officers of the law but to the prisoner himself." Ex p. Waterman, (1887) 33 Fed. Rep. 29.

Expenses of marshal.—"We see no reason," said the court, "to suppose that this Act was intended to repeal R. S. secs. 5540-5542, since the Act is a mere re-enactment of original section 5546 enacted in 1864 (one year before section 5541). * * * Upon the other hand, it appears to us that it was the intention of Congress that these several provisions should be read together, and that the restriction of the marshal to his expenses of transportation was only designed to apply where the attorney-general has found that there is no available penitentiary within the district and has designated a prison in another district for that purpose. It does not necessarily follow that because a portion of his travel was outside his district he is limited to his expenses, since the first paragraph of section 829 * * * is a general provision allowing him mileage with the exception provided for in the next paragraph." U. S. v. McMahon, (1896) 164 U. S. 81, affirming (C. C. A. 1895) 65 Fed. Rep. 976.

Convict of consular court.—"There is no warrant of law for confining in a Philippine prison a Filipino sailor convicted in the United States consular court, at Shanghai, China, of the murder of a Chinaman on the U. S. army transport Listrom, and sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment." (1902) 24 Op. Atty-Gen. 549.

"It is clear that section 5546 in speaking of 'a convenient state or territory,' did not include the Philippine Islands, and it is equally clear that the specific amendments, which do not alter the words 'convenient state or territory,' and indicate no intent beyond including consular courts among the courts of the United States whose convicts were intended to be provided for, contain nothing from which it can be inferred that the Philippine Islands were in contemplation." (1902) 24 Op. Atty-Gen. 549.

In (1875) 14 Op. Atty-Gen. 522, prior to the amendment of this section, it was held that in the case of consular courts clothed with criminal jurisdiction, as in the case of other courts invested with similar jurisdiction, the rule applies that a sentence of imprisonment cannot be legally executed beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the court which pronounced it unless authority thus to execute the sentence is conferred by the legislature. Hence, in the absence of any law giving power to send the convicts of consular courts at Smyrna and Constantinople to this country for imprisonment, if such convicts were brought to the United States for that purpose they could not legally be held.

In (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 377, Aug. 14,

1889, it was also held that "there is no statute which authorizes a convict, sentenced to prison by a consular court of the United States, to be brought to the United States for imprisonment, and there held to serve out his sentence, and in the absence of such a statute the removal of the convict to this country for that purpose would be unlawful."

Sec. 5547. [Attorney-General to contract for subsistence, etc.] The Attorney-General shall contract with the managers or proper authorities having control of such prisoners, for the imprisonment, subsistence, and proper employment of them, and shall give the court having jurisdiction of such offenses notice of the jail or penitentiary where such prisoners will be confined. [R. S.]

Act of May 12, 1864, ch. 85, 13 Stat. L. 75; Act of March 5, 1872, ch. 30, 17 Stat. L. 35.

Terms provided by state statute.—A state statute providing certain terms upon which federal prisoners may be received and supported in the state jails or prisons will not bind the United States unless in some way the United States consented to its provisions. Lewis, etc., County v. U. S., (1896) 77 Fed. Rep. 732.

By contract only.—"It is evident * * * that it is expected the United States, by its attorney-general, shall contract for the keeping and custody, under certain circumstances, of United States prisoners in some state or territorial jail or penitentiary. It was not contemplated that any state or territory by a statute could dictate to the United States what it should pay for the rent of any county jail. What the United States must pay for the rent of any jail must rest in contract, express or implied." Lewis, etc., County v. U. S., (1896) 77 Fed. Rep. 732.

Sec. 5548. [Court may order sentences executed in house of correction.] Whenever any person is convicted of any offense against the United States which is punishable by fine and imprisonment, or by either, the court by which the sentence is passed may order the sentence to be executed in any house of correction or house of reformation for juvenile delinquents within the State or district where such court is held, the use of which is authorized by the legislature of the State for such purpose. [R. S.]

Sec. 5549. [Confinement of juvenile offenders.] Juvenile offenders against the laws of the United States, being under the age of sixteen years, and who may hereafter be convicted of crime, the punishment whereof is imprisonment, shall be confined during the term of sentence in some house of refuge to be designated by the Attorney-General, and shall be transported and delivered to the warden or keeper of such house of refuge by the marshal of the district where such conviction has occurred; or if such conviction be had in the District of Columbia, then the transportation and delivery shall be by the warden of the jail of that district, and the reasonable actual expense of the transportation, necessary subsistence, and hire, and transportation of assistants and the marshal or warden, only, shall be paid by the Attorney-General, out of the judiciary fund. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1865, ch. 121, 13 Stat. L. 538; Act of March 5, 1872, ch. 30, 17 Stat. L. 35. See further Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 529, sec. 7, infra, p. 26.

Sec. 5550. [Attorney-General to contract for their subsistence, etc.] The Attorney-General shall contract with the managers or persons having control of such houses of refuge for the imprisonment, subsistence, and proper employment of all such juvenile offenders, and shall give the several courts of the United States and of the District of Columbia notice of the places so provided for the confinement of such offenders; and they shall be sentenced to confinement in the house of refuge nearest the place of conviction so designated by the Attorney-General. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1865, ch. 121, 13 Stat. L. 538; Act of March 5, 1872, ch. 30, 17 Stat. L. 35.

An act to prohibit any officer, agent, or servant of the Government of the United States of America to hire or contract out the labor of prisoners incarcerated for violating the laws of the Government of the United States of America.

[SEC. 1.] [U. S. convicts not to be hired out to labor.] That it shall not be lawful for any officer, agent, or servant of the Government of the United States to contract with any person or corporation, or permit any warden, agent, or official of any State prison, penitentiary, jail, or house of correction where criminals of the United States may be incarcerated to hire or contract out the labor of said criminals, or any part of them, who may hereafter be confined in any prison, jail, or other place of incarceration for violation of any laws of the Government of the United States of America. [24 Stat. L. 411.]

SEC. 2. [Penalty for violation of act.] That any person who shall offend against the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be imprisoned for a term not less than one year nor more than three years, at the discretion of the court, or shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense. [24 Stat. L. 411.]

SEC. 3. [Repeal.] That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed; and this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage. [24 Stat. L. 411.]

[SEC. 1.] [Keeping of Indian convicts.] * * * That hereafter no payment shall be made to any State or Territory for maintenance and keeping in prison of Indian convicts convicted in any State or Territorial court for violation of the provisions of said section nine of the said Act approved March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-five. * * * [28 Stat. L. 441.]

to establish a court of private land claims, and to provide for the settlement of private land claims in certain States and Territories.

SEC. 1.] [Court of private land claims established — justices — appointment — salaries — jurisdiction and procedure — officers of court — sessions.]
 There shall be, and hereby is, established a court to be called the court of private land claims, to consist of a chief justice and four associate justices, all be, when appointed, citizens and residents of some of the States of the United States, to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice

Transfer of powers to commissioner of general land office. — By the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of April 28, 1904, ch. 1762, 33 Stat. L. 485, all the powers of this court, in the matter of surveys executed under its decrees of confirmation, are conferred upon the commissioner of the general land office from and after June 30, 1904. See Appendix.

and consent of the Senate, to hold their offices for the term expiring on the thirty-first day of December, anno Domini eighteen hundred and ninety-five; any three of whom shall constitute a quorum. Said court shall have and exercise jurisdiction in the hearing and decision of private land claims according to the provisions of this act. The chief justice and associate justices shall each receive a compensation of five thousand dollars per year, payable monthly, and their necessary traveling and personal expenses while engaged in the performance of their duties. The said court shall appoint a clerk, at a salary of two thousand dollars a year, who shall attend all the sessions of the court, and a deputy clerk, where regular terms of the court are held, at a salary of eight hundred dollars a year. The court shall also appoint a stenographer, at a salary of fifteen hundred dollars a year, who shall attend all the sessions of the court, and perform the duties required of him by the court.

The said court shall have power to adopt all necessary rules and regulations for the transaction of its business and to carry out the provisions of this act; to issue any process necessary to the transaction of the business of said court, and to issue commissions to take depositions as provided in chapter seventeen of title thirteen of the Revised Statutes of the United States. Each of said justices shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations. It shall be the duty of the United States marshal for any district or Territory in which the court is held to serve any process of the said court placed in his hands for that purpose, and to attend the court in person or by deputy when so directed by the court. The court shall hold such sessions in the States and Territories mentioned in this act as shall be needful for the purposes thereof, and shall give notice of the times and places of the holding of such sessions by publication in both the English and Spanish languages, in one newspaper published at the capital of such State or Territory, once a week for two successive weeks, the last of which publications shall be not less than thirty days next preceding the times of the holding of such sessions, but such sessions may be adjourned from time to time without such publication. [26 Stat. L. 854.]

"By the treaties with Mexico of Feb. 2, 1848, art. 8, the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo (9 Stat. L., p. 115, of treaties), and of Dec. 30, 1853, art. 5 (10 Stat. L. 1035), the private property of Mexicans resident in the territory ceded thereby to the United States was guaranteed protection. The private titles to land rested upon Spanish and Mexican grants. By 1854, July 22, ch. 103, sec. 8 (10 Stat. L. 309), a method was provided for the investigation of such grants, looking to the confirmation of bona fide grants by Act of Congress. Less than a hundred grants were finally settled under that law in nearly thirty-seven years, and this Act (sec. 15) now repeals it." Compiler's Note, 1 Supp. R. S. 519.

Constitutionality.—"While claimants under grants made by Mexico or the Spanish authorities prior to the cession had no right to a judicial determination of their claims, Congress nevertheless might provide therefor if it chose to do so. * * * And it was for this purpose that the Act of March 3, 1891, was passed, establishing the Court of Private Land Claims for the settlement of claims against the United States to lands 'derived by the United States from the Republic of Mexico.'" U. S. v. Coe, (1894) 155 U. S. 76.

It is clearly within the authority of Congress to establish a court for determination of a claim against the United States to lands situated in a territory. U. S. v. Coe, (1894) 155 U. S. 76.

Power of political department.—"The duty of protecting imperfect rights of property under treaties, such as those by which territory was ceded by Mexico to the United States in 1848 and 1853, in existence at the time of such cessions, rests upon the political and not the judicial department of the government. To the extent only that Congress has vested them with authority to determine and protect such rights can courts exercise jurisdiction. When, therefore, a tribunal of limited jurisdiction is created by Congress to determine such rights of property, a party seeking relief must present for adjudication a case clearly within the act, or relief cannot be given." U. S. v. Santa Fé, (1897) 165 U. S. 675; U. S. v. Sandoval, (1897) 167 U. S. 278.

"Undoubtedly private rights of property within the ceded territory were not affected by the change of sovereignty and jurisdiction, and were entitled to protection whether the party had the full and absolute ownership of the land or merely an equitable interest therein which required some further act of government to vest in him a perfect title.

But the duty of providing the mode of securing these rights, and of fulfilling the obligations imposed upon the United States by the treaties, belonged to the political department of the government; and Congress might either itself discharge that duty or delegate it to the judicial department." Rio Arriba Land, etc., Co. v. U. S., (1897) 167 U. S. 298.

Determination of claims prior to this Act. — "In respect of the adjustment and confirmation of claims under grants from the Mexican government in New Mexico and Arizona, Congress reserved to itself, prior to the passage of the Act of March 3, 1891, creating the Court of Private Land Claims, the determination of such claims. Astiazaran v. Santa Rita Land, etc., Co., (1893) 148 U. S. 90; Ainsa v. U. S., (1896) 161 U. S. 208." U. S. v. Sandoval, (1897) 167 U. S. 278.

Purpose of Act. — "The Court of Private Land Claims was specially organized by the Act of Congress approved March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. L. 854), ch. 539, for the purpose of hearing and determining claims of a particular character specially pointed out and described in the body of that Act. It has no other jurisdiction than that granted by Congress, being confined entirely to claims of the character mentioned in the Act." Las Animas Land Grant Co. v. U. S., (1900) 179 U. S. 205.

Determination of question of public or private property. — "The main object of the Court of Private Land Claims is to ascertain and determine whether the land claimed as private property under the treaty is in fact private property, or, on the contrary, is public property. In the latter case, of course, a confirmation is refused; in the former case a confirmation is made if the claimant appears to have, as between himself and the United States, the right to it, but subject to the rights of others who are at liberty to assert their superior title in the local courts." U. S. v. Conway, (1899) 175 U. S. 60.

United States ownership. — But the United States, in dealing with the claimant under Mexican grants which had come into the political control of our government by the treaty of Mexico, never made pretense that it was the owner of the lands so granted by Mexico. When, therefore, guided by the action of the tribunals which the government had established to pass upon the validity of these alleged grants, it issued a patent to the claimant, it was in the nature of a quitclaim, an admission that the rightful ownership had never been in the United States, but at the time of the cession it had passed to the claimant or to those under whom he claimed. Beard v. Federy, (1865) 3 Wall. (U. S.) 478; Henshaw v. Bissell, (1873) 18 Wall. (U. S.) 268; Miller v. Dale, (1875) 92 U. S. 478; U. S. v. Conway, (1899) 175 U. S. 60; Adam v. Norris, (1880) 103 U. S. 591.

Litigation over private titles. — "It was not the object of the Act to permit private titles to be litigated in the Court of Private Land Claims (although perhaps this may be done incidentally), but merely to determine if and to whom the United States ought to release its rights as sovereign proprietor of the soil." U. S. v. Conway, (1899) 175 U. S. 60.

Right of expatriated citizen to arbitration. — A citizen of the United States in 1889 who expatriated himself in that year and became a citizen of Mexico cannot invoke article XXI. of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo for an arbitration as against an act of this government done while he was a citizen thereof. His claim to certain lands in the territory of New Mexico, and his remedy if he has any, are under the Act of March 3, 1891. (1891) 20 Op. Atty-Gen. 118.

SEC. 2. [United States attorney — interpreter.] That there shall also be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a competent attorney, learned in the law, who shall when appointed be a resident and citizen of some State of the United States, to represent the United States in said court. Such attorney shall receive a compensation of three thousand five hundred dollars per year, payable monthly, and his necessary traveling and personal expenses while engaged in the discharge of his duties. And there shall be appointed by the said court a person who shall be when appointed a citizen and resident of some State of the United States, skilled in the Spanish and English languages, to act as interpreter and translator in said court, to attend all the sessions thereof, and to perform such other service as may be required of him by the court. Such person shall be entitled to a compensation of one thousand five hundred dollars per year, payable monthly, and his necessary traveling and personal expenses while engaged in the discharge of his duties. [26 Stat. L. 855.]

SEC. 3. [Notice of organization of court to be published.] That immediately upon the organization of said court the clerk shall cause notices thereof, and of the time and place of the first session thereof, to be published for a period of ninety days in one newspaper at the city of Washington and in one published at the capital of the State of Colorado and of the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico. Such notices shall be published in both the Spanish and English languages, and shall contain the substance of this act. [26 Stat. L. 855.]

SEC. 4. [Records of General Land Office and surveyors-general to be produced in court.] That it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of the General Land Office of the United States, the surveyors-general of such Territories and States, or the keeper of any public records who may have possession of any records and papers relating to any land grants or claims for lands within said States and Territories in relation to which any petition shall be brought under this act, on the application of any person interested, or by the attorney of the United States, to safely transmit such records and papers to said court or to attend in person or by deputy any session thereof when required by said court, and produce such records and papers. [26 Stat. L. 856.]

SEC. 5. [Testimony of persons now dead, when to be admitted.] That the testimony which has been heretofore lawfully and regularly received by the surveyor-general of the proper Territory or State or by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, upon any claims presented to them, respectively, shall be admitted in evidence in all trials under this act when the person testifying is dead, so far as the subject matter thereof is competent evidence; and the court shall give it such weight as, in its judgment, under all the circumstances, it ought to have. [26 Stat. L. 856.]

The purpose of this section in permitting the use, subject to the restrictions and qualifications found in the Act, of the proceedings had before the surveyor-general was to allow all the proof then existing to be received, and to be given such weight as it was entitled to have. U. S. v. Ortiz, (1900) 176 U. S. 422.

Supplementary proceedings. — Under the provisions of this section supplementary proceedings which had been had before the surveyor-general may be introduced in evidence. The power of the surveyor-general is not exhausted by the original investigation and report, and a succeeding incumbent of the office may take any additional testimony as to the genuineness or validity of the grant. The function of the surveyor-general, under the Act of 1854, ch. 103, was merely advisory, and until action by Congress had supervened it was not only the right but the duty of that official to hear additional evidence and transmit it for the consideration of Congress in a claim pending for confirmation. U. S. v. Ortiz, (1900) 176 U. S. 422.

SEC. 6. [Claimants under unconfirmed grants — petitions — jurisdiction and procedure — notice — decree on default.] That it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons or corporation, or their legal representatives, claiming lands within the limits of the territory derived by the United States from the Republic of Mexico and now embraced within the Territories of New Mexico, Arizona, or Utah, or within the States of Nevada, Colorado, or Wyoming by virtue of any such Spanish or Mexican grant, concession, warrant, or survey as the United States are bound to recognize and confirm by virtue of the treaties of cession of said country by Mexico to the United States which at the date of the passage of this act have not been confirmed by act of Congress, or otherwise finally decided upon by lawful authority, and which are not already complete and perfect, in every such case to present a petition, in writing, to the said court in the State or Territory where said land is situated and where the said court holds its sessions, but cases arising in the States and Territories in which the court does not hold regular sessions may be instituted at such place as may be designated by the rules of the court.

The petition shall set forth fully the nature of their claims to the lands, and particularly state the date and form of the grant, concession, warrant, or order of survey under which they claim, by whom made, the name or names of any person or persons in possession of or claiming the same, or any part thereof, otherwise than by the lease or permission of the petitioner; and also the quantity of land claimed and the boundaries thereof, where situate, with a map showing the same, as near as may be, and whether the said claim has heretofore been confirmed, considered, or acted upon by Congress or the authorities of the United States, or been heretofore submitted to any authorities constituted by law for the adjustment of land titles within the limits of the said territory so acquired, and by them reported on unfavorably or recommended for confirmation, or authorized to be surveyed or not; and pray in such petition that the validity of such title or claim may be inquired into and decided.

And the said court is hereby authorized and required to take and exercise jurisdiction of all cases or claims presented by petition in conformity with the provisions of this act, and to hear and determine the same, as in this act provided, on the petition and proofs in case no answer or answers be filed after due notice, or on the petition and the answer or answers of any person or persons interested in preventing any claim from being established, and the answer of the attorney for the United States where he may have filed an answer, and such testimony and proofs as may be taken; and a copy of such petition, with a citation to any adverse possessor or claimant, shall, immediately after the filing of the same, be served on such possessor or claimant in the ordinary legal manner of serving such process in the proper State or Territory, and in like manner on the attorney for the United States; and it shall be the duty of the attorney for the United States, as also any adverse possessor or claimant, after service of petition and citation as hereinbefore provided, within thirty days, unless further time shall, for good cause shown, be granted by the court, or a judge thereof, to enter an appearance, and plead, answer, or demur to said petition; and in default of such plea, answer, or demurrer being made within said thirty days, or within the further time which may have been granted as aforesaid, the court shall proceed to hear the cause on the petition and proofs, and render a final decree according to the provisions of this act, and in no case shall a decree be entered otherwise than upon full legal proof and hearing; and in every case the court shall require the petition to be sustained by satisfactory proofs, whether an answer or plea shall have been filed or not. [26 Stat. L. 856.]

Subject to other provisions.—All the powers so conferred upon the Court of Private Land Claims are subject to and controlled by section 13. U. S. v. Baca, (1902) 184 U. S. 659.

"The meaning of the words 'complete and perfect' is to be derived by considering the context, and not by segregating them from the previous part of the sentence, exacting that the claim must be one which the United States was bound to recognize and confirm by virtue of the treaty. These words are moreover controlled by the mandatory requirements of section 13." U. S. v. Santa Fe, (1897) 165 U. S. 675.

"Imperfect grant" defined.—An imperfect grant is one which requires a further exercise of the granting power to pass the fee of the lands. Territory v. Delinquent Tax List, (N. Mex. 1904) 76 Pac. Rep. 316.

Construction of grants.—"While, in construing these Spanish grants, owing to the loose manner in which they were made and the boundaries described, we have been extremely liberal, still we are bound to consider that grants of this description, as of all others, must be construed favorably to the government, and the grantee is bound to show, not only the grant itself, but that the boundaries were fixed with reasonable certainty." Sena v. U. S., (1903) 189 U. S. 233; Slidell v. Grandjean, (1883) 111 U. S. 412; U. S. v. Oregon, etc., R. Co., (1896) 164 U. S. 526.

Ownership of imperfect grants.—"The title to an imperfect Spanish or Mexican grant was at the date of the treaty vested in the United States." Territory v. Delinquent Tax List, (N. Mex. 1904) 76 Pac. Rep. 316.

Claim for overplus.—A claim to a tract of land sued for as a demasias over which the owner of the grant had a right of purchase at the time of the treaty with Mexico is an imperfect claim and within the provisions of this section. Reloj Cattle Co. v. U. S., (1902) 184 U. S. 624.

Object of notice and effect of omission.—"The only object of requiring notice to be given the adverse possessors or claimants is to compel them to show the location and boundaries of their claims, and that they are not mere squatters or trespassers, but hold the land under a grant from the United States, in which case, under section 14, such title from the United States to such other person 'shall remain valid notwithstanding such decree.' If, however, it appear that the petitioners admit that the adverse possessors or claimants do hold under grants from the United States, and that there are no disputed boundaries, there would appear to be no substantial reason for making them parties inasmuch as they could not be affected by the decree. The only consequence of an omission to serve on them a copy of the petition is an acknowledgment of their title and its boundaries." U. S. v. Martinez, (1902) 184 U. S. 441.

Every adverse possessor or claimant a party. — "The provisions of section 6 of the Act, which relate to claims for confirmation of imperfect and incomplete titles, manifestly import that every adverse possessor or claimant should be made a party defendant." U. S. v. Green, (1902) 185 U. S. 256.

When adverse parties may be brought in. — "Congress intended that in a proceeding brought in due time to settle the validity of an alleged Spanish or Mexican grant, the United States might at any stage of such pending litigation apply to the Court of Private Land Claims * * * to have brought into the case adverse claimants who had not been made parties defendant by the petitioner, in order that such parties might be afforded an opportunity to be heard, and the Court of Private Land Claims be aided in reaching a just decision." U. S. v. Green, (1902) 185 U. S. 256.

SEC. 7. [Proceedings after petition — hearing and determination — decree.] That all proceedings subsequent to the filing of said petition shall be conducted as near as may be according to the practice of the courts of equity of the United States, except that the answer of the attorney of the United States shall not be required to be verified by his oath, and except that, as far as practicable, testimony shall be taken in court or before one of the justices thereof. The said court shall have full power and authority to hear and determine all questions arising in cases before it relative to the title to the land the subject of such case, the extent, location, and boundaries thereof, and other matters connected therewith fit and proper to be heard and determined, and by a final decree to settle and determine the question of the validity of the title and the boundaries of the grant or claim presented for adjudication, according to the law of nations, the stipulations of the treaty concluded between the United States and the Republic of Mexico at the city of Guadalupe-Hidalgo, on the second day of February, in the year of our Lord, eighteen hundred and forty-eight, or the treaty concluded between the same powers at the city of Mexico, on the thirtieth day of December, in the year of our Lord, eighteen hundred and fifty-three, and the laws and ordinances of the Government from which it is alleged to have been derived, and all other questions properly arising between the claimants or other parties in the case and the United States, which decree shall in all cases refer to the treaty, law, or ordinance under which such claim is confirmed or rejected; and in confirming any such claim, in whole or in part, the court shall in its decree specify plainly the location, boundaries, and area of the land the claim to which is so confirmed. [26 Stat. L. 857.]

Rules of court of law. — "In an investigation of this kind this court is not limited to the dry, technical rules of a court of law, but may inquire and establish that which equitably was the land granted by the government of Mexico. It was doubtless the purpose of Congress by this enactment to provide a tribunal which should examine all claims and titles and that should, so far as was practicable in conformance with equitable rules, finally settle and determine the rights of all claimants." Ely v. U. S., (1898) 171 U. S. 220.

Location of grant. — "It was not within the power of the court to locate grants, but if a location had been made and there were facts enough to nail it to the ground and determine its true boundaries that might be done." Arivaca Land, etc., Co. v. U. S., (1902) 184 U. S. 649. See also Ely v. U. S., (1898) 171 U. S. 220.

Grant for portion of larger tract. — "The powers of the Court of Private Land Claims are not narrow and restricted, and when it finds that there is a valid grant for a certain number of acres within the out-boundaries of a larger tract, it may inquire, and if it finds sufficient reasons for determining the true boundaries of the tract that was granted, it can so prescribe them and sustain the claim to that extent, referring to the land department the final and absolute surveys thereof." Ely v. U. S., (1898) 171 U. S. 220.

SEC. 5. [Claimants under completed title — hearing and determination — confirmation and effect.] That any person or corporation claiming lands in any of the States or Territories mentioned in this act under a title derived from the Spanish or Mexican Government that was complete and perfect at the date when the United States acquired sovereignty therein, shall have the right: (but shall not be bound) to apply to said court in the manner in this act provided for other cases for a confirmation of such title; and on such application said court shall proceed to hear, try, and determine the validity of the same and the right of the claimant thereto, its extent, location and boundaries, in the same manner and with the same powers as in other cases in this act mentioned.

If in any such case, a title so claimed to be perfect shall be established and confirmed, such confirmation shall be for so much land only as such perfect title shall be found to cover, always excepting any part of such land that shall have been disposed of by the United States, and always subject to and not to affect any conflicting private interests, rights, or claims held or claimed adversely to any such claim or title, or adversely to the holder of any such claim or title. And no confirmation of claims or titles in this section mentioned shall have any effect other or further than as a release of all claim of title by the United States; and no private right of any person as between himself and other claimants or persons, in respect of any such lands, shall be in any manner affected thereby.

It shall be lawful for and the duty of the head of the Department of Justice, whenever in his opinion the public interest or the rights of any claimant shall require it, to cause the attorney of the United States in said court to file in said court a petition against the holder or possessor of any claim or land in any of the States or Territories mentioned in this act who shall not have voluntarily come in under the provisions of this act, stating in substance that the title of such holder or possessor is open to question, or stating in substance that the boundaries of any such land, the claimant or possessor to or of which has not brought the matter into court, are open to question, and praying that the title to any such land, or the boundaries thereof, if the title be admitted, be settled and adjudicated; and thereupon the court shall, on such notice to such claimant or possessor as it shall deem reasonable, proceed to hear, try, and determine the questions stated in such petition or arising in the matter, and determine the matter according to law, justice, and the provisions of this act, but subject to all lawful rights adverse to such claimant or possessor, as between such claimant and possessor and any other claimant or possessor, and subject in this respect to all the provisions of this section applicable thereto. [26 Stat. L. 857.]

What determinations may be had and by whom. — "The United States, at their election, may have the validity of any Mexican grant, whether complete or incomplete, determined by the Court of Private Land Claims, so far as concerns the interest of the United States; and proceedings to establish against the United States private titles claimed under incomplete Mexican grants are within the exclusive jurisdiction of that court; but the private holder of any complete and perfect Mexican grant may, but is not obliged to, have its validity as against the United States determined by that court; and no rights of private persons as between themselves can be determined by proceedings under this Act." Ainsa v. New Mexico, etc., R. Co., (1899) 175 U. S. 76.

Asserting claims in other courts. — "A grant of land in New Mexico, which was complete and perfect before the cession of New Mexico to the United States * * * may be asserted as against any adverse private claimant in the ordinary courts of justice, * * * although the grant had neither been confirmed nor rejected by Congress and no proceedings for its confirmation were pending before Congress or before the surveyor-general at the time of commencement of suit." Ainsa v. New Mexico, etc., R. Co., (1899) 175 U. S. 76.

Determination of priority of grant. — "The duty of the court, under section 8, 'to hear, try, and determine the validity of the same' (the grant), 'and the right of the claimant thereto, its extent, location, and boundaries,' is discharged by determining the extent and validity of the grant as between the United States and the grantee, and it is not incumbent upon the Court of Private Land Claims to determine the priority of right as between him and another grantee. Such private rights are carefully preserved in the 8th and 13th sections." U. S. v. Conway, (1899) 175 U. S. 60.

"The private rights of third parties are not affected by any proceeding or decree under this Act." U. S. v. Chaves, (1895) 159 U. S. 452.

SEC. 9. [Appeal to Supreme Court — hearing and decree — notice to Attorney-General.] That the party against whom the court shall in any case decide — the United States, in case of the confirmation of a claim in whole or in part, and the claimant, in case of the rejection of a claim, in whole or in part — shall have the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, such appeal to be taken within six months from date of such decision, and in all respects to be taken in the same manner and upon the same conditions, except in respect of the amount in controversy, as is now provided by law for the taking of appeals from decisions of the circuit courts of the United States. On any such appeal the Supreme Court shall retry the cause, as well the issues of fact as of law, and may cause testimony to be taken in addition to that given in the court below, and may amend the record of the proceedings below as truth and justice may require; and on such retrial and hearing every question shall be open, and the decision of the Supreme Court thereon shall be final and conclusive. Should no appeal be taken as aforesaid the decree of the court below shall be final and conclusive.

Upon the rendition of any judgment of the court confirming any claim, it shall be the duty of the attorney of the United States to notify the Attorney-General, in writing of such judgment, giving him a clear statement of the case and the points decided by the court, which statement shall be verified by the certificate of the presiding judge of said court; and in any case in which such statement shall not be received by the Attorney-General within sixty days next after the rendition of such judgment, the right of appeal on the part of the United States shall continue to exist until six months next after the receipt of such statement. And if the Attorney-General shall so direct, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court to transmit the record of any cause in which final judgment has been rendered to the Attorney-General for his examination. In all cases it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to instruct the attorney for the United States what further course to pursue and whether or not an appeal shall be taken. [26 Stat. L. 858.]

Constitutional right of Congress to provide for appeals. — "As wherever the United States exercise the power of government, whether under specific grant or through the dominion and sovereignty of plenary authority as over the territories, * * * that power includes the ultimate executive, legislative, and judicial power, it follows that the judicial action of all inferior courts established by Congress may, in according with the Constitution, be subjected to the appellate jurisdiction of the supreme judicial tribunal of the government. There has never been any question in regard to this as applied to territorial courts, and no reason can be perceived for applying a different rule to the adjudications of the Court of Private Land Claims over property in the territories." U. S. v. Coe, (1894) 155 U. S. 76.

As equity cases. — "Causes in the Court of Private Land Claims are in effect equity causes and brought to the Supreme Court by appeal." U. S. v. Coe, (1894) 155 U. S. 76.

United States as party to appeal. — "While the government may have no interest in the result of the litigation, it is a proper and necessary party to the suit, and it would be a strange conclusion to hold that it could not follow the litigation through all the courts which are given jurisdiction of the case. Upon such appeal the government is at liberty to show that the petitioner is not entitled to a confirmation of his claim." U. S. v. Conway, (1899) 175 U. S. 60.

Allowance of appeal by associate justice. — The provision of this section with regard to the manner and conditions upon which appeals may be taken permit, under R. S. sec. 999, the allowance of an appeal by one of the associate justices of the Court of Private Land Claims. U. S. v. Pena, (1899) 175 U. S. 500.

Delay of notice by U. S. attorney. — Where the United States attorney delays giving the notice to the attorney-general provided in this section, it is sufficient to excuse the delay that the matter was called to the attention of one of the justices of the trial court, who, by allowing the appeal, approved the action of the attorney. U. S. v. Pena, (1899) 175 U. S. 500.

Affirmed finding of lack of evidence. — A finding by the Court of Claims that the evidence with regard to the settlement, improvement, etc., of a grant was so vague, contradictory, and uncertain as to be almost wholly wanting. will be adopted by the Supreme Court on appeal in the absence of clear evidence to the contrary. Sena v. U. S., (1903) 189 U. S. 233; U. S. v. Pendell, (1902) 185 U. S. 189.

SEC. 10. [Final decree of confirmation to be certified to Commissioner of General Land Office — survey and patent.] That whenever any decision of confirmation shall become final, the clerk of the court in which the final decision shall be had shall certify that fact to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, with a copy of the decree of confirmation, which shall plainly state the location, boundaries, and area of the tract confirmed. The said Commissioner shall thereupon without delay cause the tract so confirmed to be surveyed at the cost of the United States. When any such survey shall have been made and returned to the surveyor-general of the respective Territory or State, and the plat thereof completed, the surveyor-general shall give notice that same has been done, by publication once a week, for four consecutive weeks in two newspapers, one published at the capital of the Territory or State and the other (if any such there be) published near the land so surveyed, such notices to be published in both the Spanish and English languages; and the surveyor-general shall retain such survey and plat in his office for public inspection for the full period of ninety days from the date of the first publication of notice in the newspaper published at the capital of the Territory or State.

If, at the expiration of such period, no objection to such survey shall have been filed with him, he shall approve the same and forward it to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. If, within the said period of ninety days, objections are made to such survey, either by any party claiming an interest in the confirmation or by any party claiming an interest in the tract embraced in the survey or any part thereof, such objection shall be reduced to writing, stating distinctly the interest of the objector and the grounds of his objection, and signed by him or his attorney, and filed with the surveyor-general, with such affidavits or other proofs as he may produce in support of his objection. At the expiration of the said ninety days the surveyor-general shall forward such survey, with the objections and proofs filed in support of or in opposition to such objections, and his report thereon, to the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Immediately upon receipt of any such survey, with or without objections thereto, the said Commissioner shall transmit the same with all accompanying papers, to the court in which the final decision was made for its examination of the survey and of any objections and proofs that may have been filed, or shall be furnished; and the said court shall thereupon determine if the said survey is in substantial accordance with the decree of confirmation. If found to be correct, the court shall direct its clerk to indorse upon the face of the plat its approval. If found to be incorrect, the court shall return the same for correction in such particulars as it shall direct. When any survey is finally approved by the court, it shall be returned to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, who shall as soon as may be cause a patent to be issued thereon to the confirmer. One half of the necessary expenses of making the survey and plat provided for in this section, and in respect of which a patent shall be ordered to be issued, shall be paid by the claimant or patentee, and shall be a lien on said land, which may be enforced by the sale of so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose, after a default of payment thereof for six months next after the approval of such survey and plat; and no patent shall issue until such payment. [26 Stat. L. 858.]

Publication of notice of survey. See Act of June 6, 1900, ch. 791, infra, p. 65.

Authority of surveyor-general. — "The only authority given by this Act to the surveyor-general of a territory or state is by section 10, which requires him after a final decree of confirmation by the Court of Private Land Claims, and under the direction of the commissioner of the general land office, to make a survey and return it to said commissioner by whom it is to be transmitted to that court for its approval or correction." Ainsa v. New Mexico, etc., R. Co. (1899) 175 U. S. 76.

What constitutes confirmation. — "The two Acts, the decree fixing the validity of the grant and the approval of the survey fixing its extent, constitute the confirmation. * * * These two functions are vested exclusively in the land court, and until it performs them the title to an imperfect grant remains vested in the United States." Territory v. Delinquent Tax List, (N. Mex. 1904) 76 Pac. Rep. 316.

SEC. 11. [Claim of city, town, or village.] That the provisions of this act shall extend to any city lot, town lot, village lot, farm lot, or pasture lot claimed directly or mediately under any grant which may be entitled to confirmation by the United States, for the establishment of a city, town, or village, by the Spanish or Mexican Government, or the lawful authorities thereof; but the claim for said city, town, or village shall be presented by the corporate authorities of the said city, town, or village; or where the land upon which said city, town, or village is situated was originally granted to an individual the claim shall be presented by or in the name of said individual or his legal representatives. [26 Stat. L. 859.]

Statutory requirements necessary. — "Although the Act of 1891, in section 11, authorized a town presenting a claim for a grant to represent the claims of lot holders to lots within the town, this provision does not override the general requirements of the statute as to the nature of the claim to title, which the court is authorized to confirm." U. S. v. Santa Fé, (1897) 165 U. S. 675; U. S. v. Sandoval, (1897) 167 U. S. 278.

Lands outside town. — The Court of Private Land Claims is not authorized to confirm the title to a town of lands lying outside it which were permitted to be used by the town, but which remained in all particulars subject to the control of the government of the country. U. S. v. Santa Fé, (1897) 165 U. S. 675.

Title of unallotted lands. — "As to all unallotted lands, within exterior boundaries, where towns or communities were sought to be formed, the title remained in the government for such disposition as it might see proper to make." Rio Arriba Land, etc., Co. v. U. S., (1897) 167 U. S. 298.

SEC. 12. [Limitation of time — powers of judges in vacation — powers of court as to order, papers, witnesses, contempts.] That all claims mentioned in section six of this act which are by the provisions of this act authorized to be prosecuted shall, at the end of two years from the taking effect of this act, if no petition in respect to the same shall have then been filed as hereinbefore provided, be deemed and taken, in all courts and elsewhere, to be abandoned and shall be forever barred: Provided, That in any case where it shall come to the knowledge of the court that minors, married women, or persons non compos mentis are interested in any land claim or matter brought before the court it shall be its duty to appoint a guardian ad litem for such persons under disability and require a petition to be filed in their behalf, as in other cases, and if necessary to appoint counsel for the protection of their rights. The judges, respectively, of said court are hereby authorized in all cases arising under this act to grant in vacation all orders for taking testimony, and otherwise to hear and dispose of interlocutory motions not affecting the substantial merits of a case. And said court shall have and possess all the powers of a circuit court of the United States in preserving order, compelling the production of books, papers, and documents, the attendance of witnesses, and in punishing contempts. [26 Stat. L. 859.]

Laches in asserting title.—In the establishment of a title as of a certain date, possession subsequent to that date is of no value, but considering the title to have been sufficient as of that date, failure to assert such title within a reasonable time thereafter opens the case to the defense of laches. Sena v. U. S., (1903) 189 U. S. 233.

Abandoned grant.—The Court of Private Land Claims cannot confirm a Spanish grant which had been abandoned nine years before the treaty with Mexico, and where the grantee or his descendants had not been in possession since the treaty and for more than fifty years no attempt had been made to assert the title. Sena v. U. S., (1903) 189 U. S. 233.

Parties coming into pending proceeding after limited time.—“It was not the purpose of Congress to deprive the Court of Private Land Claims of power to adjudicate upon claims asserted by defendants, during the pendency of a lawful proceeding to obtain an adjudication respecting the validity of an alleged Mexican grant, even though such defendants were made parties or filed claims for affirmative relief after the period limited for the institution of an original proceeding to obtain confirmation of a claim of title.” U. S. v. Green, (1902) 185 U. S. 256.

SEC. 13. [Rules of decision — claims allowed — limit of amount — effect of allowance or confirmation.] That all the foregoing proceedings and rights shall be conducted and decided subject to the following provisions as well as to the other provisions of this act, namely:

First. No claim shall be allowed that shall not appear to be upon a title lawfully and regularly derived from the Government of Spain or Mexico, or from any of the States of the Republic of Mexico having lawful authority to make grants of land, and one that if not then complete and perfect at the date of the acquisition of the territory by the United States, the claimant would have had a lawful right to make perfect had the territory not been acquired by the United States, and that the United States are bound upon the principles of public law, or by the provisions of the treaty of cession, to respect and permit to become complete and perfect if the same was not at said date already complete and perfect.

Second. No claim shall be allowed that shall interfere with or overthrow any just and unextinguished Indian title or right to any land or place.

Third. No allowance or confirmation of any claim shall confer any right or title to any gold, silver, or quicksilver mines or minerals of the same, unless the grant claimed effected the donation or sale of such mines or minerals to the grantee, or unless such grantee has become otherwise entitled thereto in law or in equity; but all such mines and minerals shall remain the property of the United States, with the right of working the same, which fact shall be stated in all patents issued under this act. But no such mine shall be worked on any property confirmed under this act without the consent of the owner of such property until specially authorized thereto by an act of Congress hereafter passed.

Fourth. No claim shall be allowed for any land the right to which has hitherto been lawfully acted upon and decided by Congress, or under its authority.

Fifth. No proceeding, decree, or act under this act shall conclude or affect the private rights of persons as between each other, all of which rights shall be reserved and saved to the same effect as if this act had not been passed; but the proceedings, decrees, and acts herein provided for shall be conclusive of all rights as between the United States and all persons claiming any interest or right in such lands.

Sixth. No confirmation of or decree concerning any claim under this act shall in any manner operate or have effect against the United States otherwise than as a release by the United States of its right and title to the land confirmed, nor shall it operate to make the United States in any manner liable in respect of any such grants, claims, or lands, or their disposition, otherwise than as is in this act provided.

Seventh. No confirmation in respect of any claims or lands mentioned in section six of this act or in respect of any claim or title that was not complete and perfect at the time of the transfer of sovereignty to the United States as referred to in this act, shall in any case be made or patent issued for a greater quantity than eleven square leagues of land to or in the right of any one original grantee or claimant, or in the right of any one original grant to two or more persons jointly, nor for a greater quantity than was authorized by the respective laws of Spain or Mexico applicable to the claim.

Eighth. No concession, grant, or other authority to acquire land made upon any condition or requirement, either antecedent or subsequent, shall be admitted or confirmed unless it shall appear that every such condition and requirement was performed within the time and in the manner stated in any such concession, grant, or other authority to acquire land. [26 Stat. L. 860.]

"Title lawfully and regularly derived."— "This court has construed the language there used to mean not only that the title was lawfully and regularly derived, but that, if the grant was not complete and perfect, the claimant could by right and not by grace have demanded that it should be made perfect by the former government had the territory not been acquired by the United States. Ainsa v. U. S., (1896) 161 U. S. 208; U. S. v. Santa Fé, (1897) 165 U. S. 675; U. S. v. Sandoval, (1897) 167 U. S. 278." Bergere v. U. S., (1897) 168 U. S. 66.

"An inchoate claim which could not have been asserted as an absolute right against the government of either Spain or Mexico, and which was subject to the uncontrolled discretion of Congress, is clearly not within the purview of the Act of March 3, 1891, creating the Court of Private Land Claims * * * and, therefore, is beyond the reach of judicial cognizance." U. S. v. Santa Fé, (1897) 165 U. S. 675. See also U. S. v. Sandoval, (1897) 167 U. S. 278.

Right to demand completion of imperfect title.— "Under the Act of March 3, 1891, it must appear, in order to the confirmation of a grant by the Court of Private Land Claims, not only that the title was lawfully and regularly derived, but that if the grant were not complete and perfect the claimant could by right and not by grace have demanded that it should be made perfect by the former government had the territory not been acquired by the United States." Ainsa v. U. S., (1896) 161 U. S. 208. See also U. S. v. Santa Fé, (1897) 165 U. S. 675; U. S. v. Sandoval, (1897) 167 U. S. 278.

"The difference between the Act of 1891 and the California Act of 1851 * * * accentuates the intention of Congress to confine the authority conferred by the later act to narrower limits than those fixed by the Act of 1851. The Act of 1851 authorized the adjudication of claims to land by virtue of any 'right' or 'title' derived from the Spanish government, and conferred the power in express language on the board and court to presume a grant in favor of a town. The Act of 1891 not only entirely omits authority to invoke this presumption, but as we have seen excludes by express terms any claim, the completion of which depended upon the mere grace or favor of the government of Spain or Mexico, and of the United States as the successor to the rights of these governments." U. S. v. Santa Fé, (1897) 165 U. S. 675. See also U. S. v. Sandoval, (1897) 167 U. S. 278.

Title derived from territorial government.— "The lands covered by the grant being public lands of the nation, and not being subject to grant by the authorities of the territory of New Mexico, it follows that the title upon which the claimant relies vested no right in him, and was clearly not within the purview of the Act of Congress conferring jurisdiction on the Court of Private Land Claims; for obviously it cannot be in reason held that a title to land derived from a territory which the territorial authorities did not own, over which they had no power of disposition, was regularly derived from either Spain or Mexico or a state of the Mexican nation." Hayes v. U. S., (1898) 170 U. S. 637.

Grant by state in rebellion.— A grant by a Mexican state in its own name and in the name of the Mexican government, made at a time when the state was in rebellion against the nation, is invalid, especially when not ratified by the nation. U. S. v. Coe, (1898) 170 U. S. 681.

Authority of granting officer necessary.— "This manifest limitation upon the power of the court in passing upon the validity of an alleged complete grant requires that the court shall not adjudge in favor of validity unless satisfied from the inherent evidence contained in the grant or otherwise of an essential prerequisite to validity, viz., the authority of the granting officer or body to convey the public domain." Hayes v. U. S., (1898) 170 U. S. 637.

Presumption of power to grant.— "We are not to presume, that because certain officials made a grant, therefore it was the act of the Mexican government, and to be sustained. It must appear that the officials did have the power, and we are not justified in resting upon any legal presumption of the existence of power from the fact of its exercise." Ely v. U. S., (1898) 171 U. S. 220.

"Where the officer who assumed to convey the public domain had no authority ex officio to do so, such authority cannot be presumed from the mere fact of the conveyance in the absence of other evidence." Mitchell v. Furman, (1901) 180 U. S. 432.

Presumed authority to grant under vague statute.—"When the statutes and ordinances defining the powers and duties of an officer are somewhat indefinite and general in their terms, and that officer was in the habit of exercising the same power as was exercised in the case presented, and such exercise of power was not questioned by the authorities of Mexico, and grants purporting to have been made by him were never challenged, there is reason to believe that the true construction of the statutes or ordinances supports the existence of the power." Ely v. U. S., (1898) 171 U. S. 220.

Presumption of delegated power to grant.—"It may be that in some particular period of those disturbed times, and up to 1846, the supreme executive of the Mexican nation exercised arbitrary and irresponsible power and granted the public lands according to his own views of what was proper and needful for the nation, and upon occasion delegated such power to a governor; but the exercise of that kind of power was in violation of the ordinary and general laws which had been adopted by the nation; and no presumption that the supreme executive had delegated his power to a governor or political chief of a province or state can be indulged for the purpose of upholding a grant of land made by the governor in violation of the constitution or laws which had heretofore been adopted or passed." Whitney v. U. S., (1901) 181 U. S. 115.

Satisfactory evidence of authoritative title.—"The court is required to be satisfied, not simply as to the regularity in form, but it is made essential before a grant can be held legally valid that it must appear that the title was lawfully and regularly derived, which imports that the court must be satisfied from all the evidence that the official body or person assuming to grant was vested with authority, or that the exercise of power, if unwarranted, was subsequently lawfully ratified." Hayes v. U. S., (1898) 170 U. S. 637. See also Whitney v. U. S., (1901) 181 U. S. 114; Mitchell v. Furman, (1901) 180 U. S. 431; U. S. v. Elder, (1900) 177 U. S. 104; Faxon v. U. S., (1898) 171 U. S. 244; Ely v. U. S., (1898) 171 U. S. 220; Zia v. U. S., (1897) 168 U. S. 198.

Necessary evidence.—"The command of the statute is not that the United States, when an alleged Mexican title is presented for confirmation, shall be put to the burden of showing that the title in question is not genuine, but that the evidence presented in favor of the asserted title shall be of such persuasive and preponderating force as to convince the court that the title is real, and besides possesses the legal attributes which the statute requires as essential to confirmation." U. S. v. Ortiz, (1900) 176 U. S. 422.

Presumption of title.—"The statute authorizes no presumption in favor of the genuineness of a title, from the mere fact that the claimant for confirmation presents a paper which is asserted to be a grant from a Mexican official." U. S. v. Ortiz, (1900) 176 U. S. 422.

Presumption against genuineness of grant.

—"The burden of proof to sustain a Spanish grant rests upon the claimants, and the failure to show that the official archives contained evidence that the grant had been made and the fact of the production of the original title papers solely from the custody and possession of the grantee were circumstances so suspicious as to create a presumption against the genuineness of the grant, calling for the production by the grantee of more than slight evidence to overthrow the presumption." U. S. v. Ortiz, (1900) 176 U. S. 422. See also Berreyesa v. U. S., (1876) 154 U. S. 623.

Possession since treaty.—"The provisions of the first subdivision of this section preclude the idea that possession since the date of the treaty, however exclusive and notorious, can be regarded as an element going to make up a perfect title. Crespin v. U. S., (1897) 168 U. S. 208; Hays v. U. S., (1899) 175 U. S. 248; Hayes v. U. S., (1898) 170 U. S. 637; Sena v. U. S., (1903) 189 U. S. 233.

Destruction of record and long possession as evidence of title.—"Where evidence is presented that a recording grant of the Spanish government was destroyed by the American soldiers, that, together with uninterrupted possession for over one hundred and ten years, will be deemed sufficient evidence of title. U. S. v. Pendell, (1902) 185 U. S. 189.

Possession interrupted by war.—"It is very likely, as suggested, that during the war between Mexico and the United States the possession was in some respects interrupted, but such interruption cannot be adjudged fatal to the validity of the grant." U. S. v. Pena, (1899) 175 U. S. 500.

The pasturing of cattle as evidence of an adverse possession upon which to base a claim of title is a fact of very slight weight when applied to cases arising under alleged grants of land of the nature herein treated. Bergere v. U. S., (1897) 168 U. S. 66; Whitney v. U. S., (1897) 167 U. S. 529.

Effect of confirmation of similar grants.—"The fact that grants similar to the one claimed may have been confirmed by Congress or received the approval of Mexican authority is not decisive in favor of recognizing its validity. Crespin v. U. S., (1897) 168 U. S. 208.

"It is also said that Congress has repeatedly confirmed similar grants; but the fact that Congress may have thus disposed of the public lands in its discretion cannot operate to justify the Court of Private Land Claims in adjudication of a case not coming within the terms of the law of its creation." Rio Arriba Land, etc., Co. v. U. S., (1897) 167 U. S. 298.

Burden of proof.—"The law casts primarily upon the applicant for confirmation the duty of tendering such proof as to the existence, regularity, and archive record of the grant, as well as his connection with it, such as possession, ownership, and other related incidents, of sufficient probative force to create a just inference as to the reality and validity of the grant, before the burden of proof, if at all, can be shifted from the claimant to the United States." U. S. v. Ortiz, (1900) 176 U. S. 422.

Burden of proof prior to Act.—"This burden of proof resting upon the grantee had been frequently declared by this court prior to the enactment of the law of 1891, to be essentially necessitated by the situation and as the sole means of avoiding the danger of imposing upon the United States by means of forged or fabricated grants. U. S. v. Teschmaker, (1859) 22 How. (U. S.) 392; U. S. v. Pico, (1859) 22 How. (U. S.) 406; Fuentes v. U. S., (1859) 22 How. (U. S.) 443; Luco v. U. S., (1859) 23 How. (U. S.) 515; U. S. v. Bolton, (1859) 23 How. (U. S.) 341; Palmer v. U. S., (1860) 24 How. (U. S.) 125; U. S. v. Knight, (1861) 1 Black (U. S.) 227; U. S. v. Neleigh, (1861) 1 Black (U. S.) 298; U. S. v. Vallejo, (1861) 1 Black (U. S.) 541; White v. U. S., (1863) 1 Wall. (U. S.) 660; Romero v. U. S., (1863) 1 Wall. (U. S.) 721; Pico v. U. S., (1864) 2 Wall. (U. S.) 279; Peralta v. U. S., (1865) 3 Wall. (U. S.) 434." U. S. v. Ortiz, (1900) 176 U. S. 422.

"By the word 'just,' in this connection, is meant only a title which is good upon its face, or not manifestly frivolous, not one which shall ultimately turn out to be valid." U. S. v. Conway, (1899) 175 U. S. 60.

Effect of confirmation of Indian claim.—"That the Indian claim or title is a 'just and unextinguished' one, within the meaning of sec. 13, subdivision 2, of the Act, is shown by the fact that such title was confirmed by Congress." U. S. v. Conway, (1899) 175 U. S. 60.

Reservation of mineral lands.—"This provision makes it still plainer that so far as regards mineral lands there was no intention after the passage of the Act of 1891 that they should be reserved by a mere claim in a Mexican grant of ordinary land." Lockhart v. Johnson, (1901) 181 U. S. 524.

Intent of subdivision four.—"The manifest intent of Congress appears to have been that with any land, of the right to which Congress, in the exercise of its lawful discretion, had itself assumed the decision, the Court of Private Land Claims should have nothing to do. The whole jurisdiction conferred upon that court is to confirm or reject claims presented to it coming within the Act. All the powers conferred upon it are incident to the exercise of that jurisdiction. When it has no jurisdiction to confirm or reject it has no authority to inquire into or pass upon the case beyond the decision of the question of jurisdiction. The peremptory declaration of Congress that 'no claim shall be allowed for any land, the right to which has hitherto been lawfully acted upon and decided by Congress,' necessarily prohibits the court from passing upon the merits of any such claim." U. S. v. Baca, (1902) 184 U. S. 659.

Title confirmed by Congress.—"When the title has once been confirmed by Congress it should be respected by the Court of Private Land Claims as if it were a confirmation by the court itself, and conflicting claimants are at liberty to resort to ordinary remedies at law or in equity, according to the nature of the claim." U. S. v. Conway, (1899) 175 U. S. 60.

Confirmation of grant for lands already granted.—"Under these provisions, if the court were to confirm a grant for lands already granted, such confirmation would be void, as nothing is better settled by this court than that a patent issued by the United States to lands which they do not own is a simple nullity." U. S. v. Conway, (1899) 175 U. S. 60.

Lands within confirmed grant.—Lands which are within the limits of a grant which had been confirmed by Congress and a patent issued therefor cannot be the subject of a claim before the Court of Private Land Claims. U. S. v. Conway, (1899) 175 U. S. 60; Real De Dolores Del Oro v. U. S., (1899) 175 U. S. 71.

Rights determined by Congress prior to Act.—"Where the rights of claimants under land grants have been lawfully acted upon and decided by Congress, prior to the passage of the Act of 1891, it is a case directly within the fourth subdivision of this section, and the Court of Private Land Claims has no jurisdiction to determine the rights of the parties. With regard to the grant in this case, Congress had allowed to the claimants a certain portion of the land claimed, and the claimants thereafter applied to the Court of Private Land Claims for an adjudication as to the remainder. Las Animas Land Grant Co. v. U. S., (1900) 179 U. S. 201.

Conditional right to overplus.—"The cession did not increase rights. That which was beyond challenge before remained so after. That which was subject to challenge before did not become a vested right after. No duty rests on this government to recognize the validity of a grant to any area of greater extent than was recognized by the government of Mexico. If that government had a right * * * to compel payment for an overplus, or resell such overplus to a third party, then this government is under no moral or legal obligations to consider such overplus as granted, but may justly and equitably treat the grant as limited to the area purchased and paid for." Ely v. U. S., (1898) 171 U. S. 220.

Jurisdiction upon performed conditions only.—"This court 'is a mere creature of statute with prescribed and limited powers. It has no general equity jurisdiction. It can confirm a grant made upon condition only when such condition was performed. It is not under the statute at liberty to treat anything as equivalent to performance. Cases in which there was no performance of the conditions of the grant are cases which must be considered as reserved by Congress for further action on its part.'" Cessna v. U. S., (1898) 169 U. S. 165.

Unperformed conditions.—"The owner of the cabida legal did not have a vested property interest in the demasias, but, under circumstances, had the preference in acquiring it, if he so desired; and claims to overplus the conditions to acquiring which were unperformed were not open to confirmation by the court." Arivaca Land, etc. Co. v. U. S., (1902) 184 U. S. 653; Reloj Cattle Co. v. U. S., (1902) 184 U. S. 624; Ainsa v. U. S., (1902) 184 U. S. 639.

Performance of condition to grant prevented by Mexican government.—The Court of Private Land Claims is not vested with power to confirm a grant made upon any condition or requirement, and the fact that a condition attached to a grant was not performed because the performance was unlawfully prevented by the Mexican authorities will not authorize that court to consider that the performance of the condition was waived and that the title had become absolute. Even if there are no other objections to the proceeding, the admitted fact that the conditions and requirements of the grant were never performed is sufficient to justify a ruling of the court dismissing the petition. Cessna v. U. S., (1898) 169 U. S. 165.

SEC. 14. [Money judgment against United States where lands decreed to claimant have been granted by United States.] That if in any case it shall appear that the lands or any part thereof decreed to any claimant under the provisions of this act shall have been sold or granted by the United States to any other person, such title from the United States to such other person shall remain valid, notwithstanding such decree, and upon proof being made to the satisfaction of said court of such sale or grant, and the value of the lands so sold or granted, such court shall render judgment in favor of such claimant against the United States for the reasonable value of said lands so sold or granted, exclusive of betterments, not exceeding one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre for such lands; and such judgment, when found, shall be a charge on the Treasury of the United States. Either party deeming himself aggrieved by such judgment may appeal in the same manner as provided herein in cases of confirmation of a Spanish or Mexican grant. For the purpose of ascertaining the value and amount of such lands, surveys may be ordered by the court, and proof taken before the court, or by a commission appointed for that purpose by the court. [26 Stat. L. 861.]

To what cases applicable.—“This section applies only to cases where such lands have been sold or granted as public lands for a consideration which equitably belongs to the owner of the land, and not to cases where the government has merely released its interest to one apparently holding a good title under a Spanish or Mexican grant, which subsequently turns out to be invalid by reason of an older or better title. In the one case there is a moral obligation on the part of the government to protect the real owner. In the other there is a mere quitclaim of its rights to one who apparently has a better title thereto. There is no warranty, direct or indirect, that the title is a valid one, and no reason why the government should be called upon to protect it.” Real De Dolores Del Oro v. U. S., (1899) 175 U. S. 71.

Necessity of claim in petition.—An indemnity under this section cannot be sustained where no such claim is made by the petition. Real De Dolores Del Oro v. U. S., (1899) 175 U. S. 71.

Unexplained delay.—A claimant may not wait an unlimited time and then upon a simple allegation that certain lands within the grant had been disposed of recover their value. He is bound to act with promptness, and if a long delay has occurred to explain it with the proper averments. U. S. v. Martinez, (1902) 184 U. S. 441.

Upon a petition for value, filed seven years after the original petition for confirmation, a decree against the United States cannot be entered upon a single allegation that certain parcels had been conveyed and patented by the United States, without showing some excuse for the delay in presenting the petition, or some diligence in ascertaining the real facts. U. S. v. Martinez, (1902) 184 U. S. 441.

SEC. 15. [Investigation by Surveyor-General repealed.] That section eight of the act of Congress approved July twenty-second, eighteen hundred and fifty-four, entitled “An act to establish the offices of surveyor-general of New Mexico, Kansas, and Nebraska, to grant donations to actual settlers therein, and for other purposes,” and all acts amendatory or in extension thereof, or supplementary thereto, and all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed. [26 Stat. L. 861.]

Repeal of prior acts.—“The effect of these provisions of the Act of 1891 is that all prior acts of Congress providing for the assertion, whether in a judicial tribunal or before a surveyor-general and Congress, of either complete or incomplete Mexican grants, are repealed, except as to claims previously acted upon and decided by Congress or under its authority.” Ainsa v. New Mexico, etc., R. Co., (1899) 175 U. S. 76.

SEC. 16. [Recognition in future township surveys of adverse possession of limited tracts — review and issue of patents by Commissioner of General Land Office.] That in township surveys hereafter to be made in the Territories of New Mexico, Arizona, and Utah, and in the States of Colorado, Nevada, and Wyoming if it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the deputy surveyor making such survey that any person has, through himself, his ancestors, grantors, or their lawful successors in title or possession, been in the continuous adverse actual bona fide possession of any tract of land or in connection therewith of other lands, all together not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres in such township for twenty years next preceding the time of making such survey, the deputy surveyor shall recognize and establish the lines of such possession and make the subdivision of the adjoining lands in accordance therewith. Such possession shall be accurately defined in the field-notes of the survey and delineated on the township plat, with the boundaries and area of the tract as a separate legal subdivision. The deputy surveyor shall return with his survey the name or names of all persons so found to be in possession, with a proper description of the tract in the possession of each as shown by the survey, and the proofs furnished to him of such possession.

Upon receipt of such survey and proofs the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall cause careful investigation to be made in such manner as he shall deem necessary for the ascertainment of the truth in respect of such claim and occupation, and if satisfied upon such investigation that the claimant comes within the provisions of this section, he shall cause patents to be issued to the parties so found to be in possession for the tracts respectively claimed by them: Provided, however, That no person shall be entitled to confirmation of, or to patent for, more than one hundred and sixty acres in his own right by virtue of this section: And provided further, That this section shall not apply to any city lot, town lot, village lot, farm lot, or pasture lot held under a grant from any corporation or town the claim to which may fall within the provisions of section eleven of this act. [26 Stat. L. 861.]

tinuous adverse actual bona fide possession" the words "residing thereon as his home," appearing in the section as originally enacted.

SEC. 17. [Entry of lands by adverse possessors in surveyed townships — surveys.] That in the case of townships heretofore surveyed in the Territories of New Mexico, Arizona, and Utah, and the States of Colorado, Nevada, and Wyoming, all persons who, or whose ancestors, grantors, or their lawful successors in title or possession, became citizens of the United States by reason of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, or the terms of the Gadsden purchase, and who have been in the actual continuous adverse possession of tracts, not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres each, for twenty years next preceding such survey, shall be entitled, upon making proof of such facts to the satisfaction of the register and receiver of the proper land district, and of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, upon such investigation as is provided for in section sixteen of this act, to enter without payment of purchase money, fees, or commissions such subdivisions, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, as shall include their said possessions.

After a claim of the character described shall have been filed as directed in section eighteen of this act, and it shall appear that a tract claimed as aforesaid is of such shape that the claimant can not readily secure his interests by an entry by legal subdivisions of the public surveys, the Commissioner of the General Land Office may cause such claim to be surveyed at the expense of the United States, but the deputy surveyor performing the work shall not be paid for his services more than five dollars per day in addition to his necessary expenses.

Before commencing such a survey the deputy surveyor shall post, in at least three prominent places in the township in which such claim is situated, a notice in both the English and Spanish languages, calling on all persons entitled to lands in said township under this section, to submit to him within a reasonable time proofs of their rights in the lands, by affidavit or otherwise. He shall then proceed to establish the lines of such possessions in the township as seem to him to be valid, properly connecting the lines thereof with the lines of public surveys, and he shall return the aforesaid proofs to the surveyor-general with the field notes of such claims and possessions. The surveyor-general shall then, upon his approval of said proofs and field notes of surveys, cause the said claim or claims to be platted, and numbered as a lot or lots of the section or sections in which such claim or claims are situated, and shall transmit a duplicate of the amended plat to the General Land Office and a triplicate thereof to the proper district land office, after which the land claimed as aforesaid may be entered as a lot or lots by the number or numbers designated upon the amended township plat:

Provided, however, That no person shall be entitled to enter more than one hundred and sixty acres in one or more tracts in his own right under the provisions of this section. [27 Stat. L. 471.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of Feb. 21, 1893, ch. 149.

The section originally read as follows:

"SEC. 17. That in the case of townships heretofore surveyed in the Territories of New Mexico, Arizona, and Utah, and the States of Colorado, Nevada, and Wyoming, all persons who, or whose ancestors, grantors, or their lawful successors in title or possession, became citizens of the United States by reason of the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo, and who have been in the actual continuous adverse possession and residence thereon of tracts of not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres each, for twenty years next preceding such survey, shall be entitled, upon making proof of such facts to the satisfaction of the register and receiver of the proper land district, and of the Commissioner of the General Land Office upon such investigation as is provided for in section sixteen of this act, to enter without payment of purchase money, fees, or commissions, such legal subdivisions, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, as shall include their said possessions: Provided, however, That no person shall be entitled to enter more than one such tract, in his own right, under the provisions of this section." [26 Stat. L. 862.]

SEC. 18. [Time for filing claims.] That all claims arising under either of the next two preceding sections of this Act shall be filed with the surveyor-general of the proper State or Territory before the fourth day of March, nineteen hundred and one, and no claim not so filed shall be valid. And the class of cases provided for in said two next preceding sections shall not be considered or adjudicated by the court created by this act, and no tract of such land shall be subject to entry under the land laws of the United States. [26 Stat. L. 862, 27 Stat. L. 471, 30 Stat. L. 495.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of June 27, 1898, ch. 504, 30 Stat. L. 495. As originally enacted it required claims to be filed "within two years next after the passage of this Act." It was amended by the Act of Feb. 21, 1893, ch. 149, 27 Stat. L. 471, by requiring claims to be filed "within two years next after the first day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-two." It was amended by the Act of June 27, 1898, ch. 504, by requiring claims to be filed "before the fourth day of March, nineteen hundred and one," as given in the text.

SEC. 19. [Functions of court, when to cease.] That the powers and functions of the court established by this Act shall cease and determine on the thirtieth day of June, nineteen hundred and three, and all papers, files, and records in the possession of the said court belonging to any other public office of the United States shall be returned to such office, and all other papers, files, and records in the possession of or appertaining to said court shall be returned to and filed in the Department of the Interior. [32 Stat. L. 170.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 594, sec. 1.

By the section as originally enacted the functions of the court were to cease Dec. 31, 1895. The time was extended by the Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 177, 28 Stat. L. 805, to Dec. 31, 1897. The time was again extended by the Act of Feb. 19, 1897, ch. 265, 29 Stat. L. 577, to March 4, 1899. It was again extended by the Act of Feb. 24, 1899, ch. 187, 30 Stat. L. 888, to June 30, 1900. It was again extended by the Act of April 17, 1900, ch. 192, 31 Stat. L. 132, to June 30, 1902. It was again extended as shown in the text.

[SEC. 1.] [Publication of notice of survey.] * * * For survey of private land claims in the States of Colorado, Nevada, Wyoming, and Utah, and in the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico, confirmed under the provisions of the Act of Congress entitled "An Act to establish a Court of Private Land Claims, and to provide for the settlement of private land claims in certain States and Territories," approved March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, and for the resurvey of such private land claims heretofore confirmed as may be deemed necessary, ten thousand dollars, said sum to be also available for office work on such surveys and for the examination of the surveys in the field: Provided, That hereafter the notices of survey required by section ten of said Act shall be published in one newspaper only, except where specifically directed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office. * * * [31 Stat. L. 616.]

Sec. 4613. [Application of provisions of title.] The provisions of this Title shall apply to all captures made as prize by authority of the United States, or adopted and ratified by the President of the United States. [R. S.]

Sections 4613-4652 constitute the whole of title 54 of the Revised Statutes, entitled as above.

Capture by army and navy combined.—Where a town is captured by the combined naval and army forces, and after the surrender an abandoned merchant vessel is found on fire in the harbor by a commissioned cruiser which puts out the fire, a claim that such merchant vessel is a prize in which the cruiser may claim an interest for prize money may not be allowed, as the capture was made by the combined forces of the army and navy; but salvage for the services in saving the vessel may be allowed. The Siren. 1 Lowell (U. S.) 280, 22 Fed. Cas. No. 12,911, affirmed (1871) 13 Wall. (U. S.) 389.

The naval stores taken at a naval station by a naval force as the result of a naval engagement are prize, within the meaning of the statute, and the fact that they were taken from a navy yard instead of from a vessel does not render the statute inapplicable. Manila Prize Cases, (1903) 188 U. S. 254.

Barges as prizes.—Barges propelled by sweeps and by poling and floating derricks or wrecking boats captured by the navy are not prizes within the meaning of this section. Manila Prize Cases, (1903) 188 U. S. 254.

Sec. 4614. [What are vessels of the navy.] The term "vessels of the Navy," as used in this Title, shall include all armed vessels officered and manned by the United States, and under the control of the Department of the Navy. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 315.

Capture by transport.—Where a vessel and cargo were captured at sea by a steamer employed as a transport in the service of the United States, but not a commissioned vessel of war, it was held that the filing by the United States of a libel against the vessel and cargo as prize was an affirmation by the United States of the capture and that such ratification was equivalent to an original seizure by authority of the government. The Emma, (1863) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 561, 8 Fed. Cas. No. 4,461.

Sec. 4615. [Duties of commanding officer upon making capture.] The commanding officer of any vessel making a capture shall secure the documents of the ship and cargo, including the logbook, with all other documents, letters, and other papers found on board, and make an inventory of the same, and seal them up, and send them, with the inventory, to the court in which proceedings are to be had, with a written statement that they are all the papers found, and are in the condition in which they were found; or explaining the absence of any documents or papers, or any change in their condition. He shall also send to such court, as witnesses, the master, one or more of the other officers, the supercargo, purser, or agent of the prize, and any person found on board whom he may suppose to be interested in, or to have knowledge respecting, the title, national character, or destination of the prize. He shall send the prize, with the documents, papers, and witnesses, under charge of a competent prize-master and prize-crew, into port for adjudication, explaining the absence of any usual witnesses; and in the absence of instructions from superior authority as to the port to which it shall be sent, he shall select such port as he shall deem most convenient, in view of the interests of probable claimants, as well as of the captors. If the captured vessel, or any part of the captured property, is not in condition to be sent in for adjudication, a survey shall be had thereon and an appraisalment made by persons as competent and impartial as can be obtained, and their reports shall be sent to the court in which proceedings are to be had; and such property, unless appropriated for the use of the Government, shall be sold by the authority of the commanding officer present, and the proceeds deposited with the assistant treasurer of the United States most accessible to such court, and subject to its order in the cause. [R. S.]

Lists of persons claiming prize money, see ARTICLES FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE NAVY, vol. 1, p. 466.

General construction. — "The statute contemplates that the captured property, or the proceeds, if sold, shall be brought to the proper port, unless it be destroyed or appropriated to the use of the government before such delivery, and in case of appropriation before or after delivery the value of the property shall be deposited by the government for disposition. Adjudication as to the legality of the capture and award of prize money in a proper case are required when the vessel is brought in, sold or appropriated, but adjudication only as to lawful prize as distinguished from award of bounty money when the property has been destroyed." The Santo Domingo, (1903) 119 Fed. Rep. 386.

Necessity of delivery. — "Captors share in such property as is delivered for adjudication. Such delivery must be actual unless on account of the condition of the property it cannot be made, when sale is authorized by the commanding officer present, or unless it has been appropriated 'for the use of the government.'" The Santo Domingo, (1903) 119 Fed. Rep. 386.

"The duty of saving the property from recapture is a condition precedent of recovering prize money, which is measured by what is delivered secure from the hostile force, and not by what may be destroyed in view of the peril of recapture or other exigency, and this duty to defend and to save cannot be used as a plea to escape defense under the guise of appropriation at the public expense." The Santo Domingo, (1903) 119 Fed. Rep. 386.

Effect of rescue or recapture. — "A captor is not entitled to prize money unless he captures and prevent recapture. The captor must take and deliver. He must in offensive action seize, and if need be in defensive action retain, and his success in both regards, if it be good prize, perfects his right to an adjudication for prize money. Rescue or recapture defeats such right." The Santo Domingo, (1903) 119 Fed. Rep. 386.

Destruction of prize as appropriation for use of government. — "The destruction of a lawful prize at the instance of the commander of the captors, by reason of the imminent danger of recapture, is not such an appropriation of the property for the use of the government as constrains the United States to deposit the value thereof for distribution, and entitles the captors to share therein." The Santo Domingo, (1903) 119 Fed. Rep. 386.

"Property annihilated, although its non-existence be beneficial in depriving the enemy of its use, is alike incapable of use by the captors' government, and the act of destroying for the sake of destruction, as distinguished from consumption or destruction in the course of use, is not such user as the statute contemplates." The Santo Domingo, (1903) 119 Fed. Rep. 386.

Effect of destruction of prize. — "When captors take a lawful prize they have alternative duties, — to save it, if practicable; to destroy it, if it be impracticable to save. The first duty insures prize money, other elements of the right existing; the second duty involves the sacrifice of prize money, and the pecuniary reward is in the form of bounty. But captors cannot scuttle the ship captured and have her in the form of prize money. Their money reward is measured by what they deliver secure from the enemy. If persons be sent to capture a vessel and thereupon to destroy her, the destruction precludes prize money, * * * and if the destruction ex necessitate rei must and does follow capture, the captor's status is the same. Indeed, if it is impracticable to bring the property into port, or to make some safe disposition of it, the captor's duty is to destroy, although it result in a renunciation of prize money." The Santo Domingo, (1903) 119 Fed. Rep. 386.

Sec. 4616. [Statement of claim to share in prize.] If any vessel of the United States shall claim to share in a prize, either as having made the capture, or as having been within signal distance of the vessel or vessels making the capture, the commanding officer of such vessel shall make out a written statement of his claim, with the grounds on which it is founded, the principal facts tending to show what vessels made the capture, and what vessels were within signal distance of those making the capture, with reasonable particularity as to times, distances, localities, and signals made, seen, or answered; and such statement of claim shall be signed by him and sent to the court in which proceedings shall be had, and shall be filed in the cause. [Duties of prize-master.] The prize-master shall make his way diligently to the selected port, and there immediately deliver to a prize-commissioner the documents and papers, and the inventory thereof, and make affidavit that they are the same, and are in the same condition as delivered to him, or explaining any absence or change of condition therein, and that the prize-property is in the same condition as delivered to him, or explaining any loss or damage thereto; and he shall further report to the district attorney and give to him all the information in his possession respecting the prize and her capture; and he shall deliver over the persons sent as witnesses to the custody of the marshal, and shall retain the prize in his custody until it shall be taken therefrom by process from the prize-court. See R. S. sec. 5441, infra, p. 87.

Sec. 4618. [Libel and proceedings by district attorney.] Upon receiving the report of the prize-master directed by the preceding section, the attorney of the United States for the district shall immediately file a libel against such prize property, and shall forthwith obtain a warrant from the court, directing the marshal to take it into his custody, and shall proceed diligently to obtain a condemnation and distribution thereof; and to that end shall see that the proper preparatory evidence is taken by the prize-commissioners, and that the prize-commissioners also take the depositions de bene esse of the prize-crew, and of other transient persons cognizant of any facts bearing on condemnation or distribution. [R. S.]

Decree for damages against United States.

— A decree may properly be entered against the United States for damages where a vessel has been captured as a prize of war and thereafter restitution decreed to the claimants of the vessel, where the libels were filed by the United States on its own behalf. The Paquete Habana, (1903) 189 U. S. 453.

Decree for restitution with damages and costs against captors. — The statutes seem to contemplate that the libels filed by the United States were filed on its own behalf, and where a capture is made pursuant to instructions from the President, and a decree is rendered by the prize court that restitution, with damages and costs, should be made to the claimants, a decree cannot be entered against the captors of a vessel on such libel filed by the United States. The Paquete Habana, (1903) 189 U. S. 453.

Sec. 4619. [Duties of district attorneys.] The district attorneys of the several judicial districts shall represent the interests of the United States in all prize-causes, and shall not act as separate counsel for the captors on any private retainer or compensation from them, unless in a question between the claimants and the captors, on a demand for damages. They shall examine all fees, costs, and expenses, sought to be charged on any prize-fund, and protect the interest of the captors and of the United States. The district attorneys of all districts in which any prize-causes are or may be pending shall, as often as once in three months, send to the Secretary of the Navy a statement of the condition of all prize-causes pending in their districts, in such form and embracing such particulars as the Secretary of the Navy shall require. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 307.

Nature of prize court and duties of district attorney.—The prize court is and always has been a component part of the admiralty court, and in prosecuting in prize cases the district attorney acts as the law officer of the government and not in any other capacity. The

Anna. (1863) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 337, 1 Fed. Cas. No. 402.

As to the proper procedure and the duties of the district attorney in disposing of property found on the persons of individuals in the act of violating the blockade, see Property Captured by the Potomac Flotilla, (1863) 10 Op. Atty.-Gen. 467.

Sec. 4620. [Special counsel for captors.] [Repealed.]

This section was as follows:

"SEC. 4620. In any case of capture made by vessels of the Navy, the Secretary of the Navy may employ special counsel for captors, when, in his judgment, the services of such special counsel are needed in the particular case, for the due protection of the interests of the captors and of the Navy-pension fund; and, under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy, such counsel may institute and prosecute such proceedings in the case as may be necessary and proper for the protection of such interests." Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 307.

It was "struck out" by Act of Feb. 27, 1877, ch. 69, 19 Stat. L. 252.

Sec. 735. [Captures of insurrectionary property, where cognizable.] Proceedings for the condemnation of any property captured whether on the high seas or elsewhere out of the limits of any judicial district, or within any district, on account of its being purchased or acquired, sold or given, with intent to use or employ the same, or to suffer it to be used or employed, in aiding, abetting, or promoting any insurrection against the Government of the United States, or knowingly so used or employed by the owner thereof, or with his consent, may be prosecuted in any district where the same may be seized, or into which it may be taken and proceedings first instituted. [R. S.]

Act of Aug. 6, 1861, ch. 60, 12 Stat. L. 319.

The words "as prize," which appeared in the section as originally enacted, following the words "any property captured," were stricken out by the Act of Feb. 18, 1875, ch. 80, 18 Stat. L. 318.

Somewhat similar provisions are contained in R. S. sec. 564, in JUDICIARY, vol. 4, p. 236.

General rule of application.—"It is sufficiently obvious that the general object of the enactment was to promote the suppression of rebellion by subjecting property employed in aid of it with the owner's consent to confiscation. It extended to all descriptions of property, real or personal, on land or on water. All alike were made subjects of prize and capture, and, under the direction of the President, of seizure, confiscation, and condemnation." Union Ins. Co. v. U. S., (1867) 6 Wall. (U. S.) 759.

What property included.—"This Act was intended for private, not public, property—for such property of persons as required, under the laws of war, a judicial sentence of condemnation to divest the title of its owner—not such property of a hostile government as had already been captured by an army and subjected to the complete and undisputed dominion and ownership of the conquering power. It applies to all property, personal as well as real." Titus v. U. S., (1874) 20 Wall. (U. S.) 475.

Seizure necessary.—"If, for any reason, whether from the act of the defendant himself or from any cause whatever, the government cannot seize the property, it cannot enforce the forfeiture." U. S. v. Stevenson, (1869) 3 Ben. (U. S.) 119, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 16,396.

No property capable of seizure.—"The Prize Acts do not contemplate 'any proceeding as in admiralty where there existed no specific property or proceeds capable of seizure and capture.'" Morris v. U. S., (1868) 7 Wall. (U. S.) 578.

Power to award restitution.—"Every District Court of the United States possesses all the powers of a court of admiralty, both instance and prize, and may award restitution of property claimed as prize of war by a foreign captor. Glass v. The Sloop Betsey, (1794) 3 Dall. (U. S.) 6.

Forfeiture of stock of foreign corporation.—"A District Court of the United States in New York cannot acquire jurisdiction in rem to declare a forfeiture under these acts of shares in the capital stock of an Illinois corporation." U. S. v. 1,756 Shares Capital Stock, (1865) 5 Blatchf. (U. S.) 231, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 15,961.

What court may decree final distribution.

— No court of the United States is empowered to decree final distribution in prize, except the court which first acquires jurisdiction over the res or its representative proceeds. Winchester's Case, (1878) 14 Ct. Cl. 53.

Sec. 4621. [Appointment of prize commissioners.] Any district court may appoint prize-commissioners, not exceeding three in number; of whom one shall be a retired naval officer, approved by the Secretary of the Navy, who shall receive no other compensation than his pay in the Navy, and who shall protect the interests of the captors and of the Department of the Navy in the prize-property; and at least one of the others shall be a member of the bar of the court, of not less than three years' standing, and acquainted with the taking of depositions. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 307.

Sec. 4622. [Duties of prize commissioners.] The prize-commissioners, or one of them, shall receive from the prize-master the documents and papers, and inventory thereof, and shall take the affidavit of the prize-master required by section forty-six hundred and seventeen, and shall forthwith take the testimony of the witnesses sent in, separate from each other, on interrogatories prescribed by the court, in the manner usual in prize-courts; and the witnesses shall not be permitted to see the interrogatories, documents, or papers, or to consult with counsel, or with any persons interested, without special authority from the court; and witnesses who have the rights of neutrals shall be discharged as soon as practicable. The prize-commissioners shall also take depositions de bene esse of the prize-crew and others, at the request of the district attorney, on interrogatories prescribed by the court. They shall also, as soon as any prize-property comes within the district for adjudication, examine the same, and make an inventory thereof, founded on an actual examination, and report to the court whether any part of it is in a condition requiring immediate sale for the interests of all parties, and notify the district attorney thereof; and if it be necessary to the examination or making of the inventory that the cargo be unladen, they shall apply to the court for an order to the marshal to unlade the same, and shall, from time to time, report to the court anything relating to the condition of the property, or its custody or disposal, which may require any action by the court, but the custody of the property shall be in the marshal only. They shall also seasonably return into court, sealed and secured from inspection, the documents and papers which shall come to their hands, duly scheduled and numbered, and the other preparatory evidence, and the evidence taken de bene esse, and their own inventory of the prize-property; and if the captured vessel, or any of its cargo or stores, are such as in their judgment may be useful to the United States in war, they shall report the same to the Secretary of the Navy. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 308. See also R. S. sec. 5441, infra, p. 87.

"The word 'ship' embraces her boats, tackle, apparel, and appurtenances, because part of the ship as a going concern, and for the same reason 'ship or vessel of war' includes her armament, search lights, stores, everything, in short, attached to or on board the ship in aid of her operations." Manila Prize Cases, (1903) 188 U. S. 268.

"The words 'ship or vessel of war belonging to the enemy' are sufficiently comprehensive to embrace not only everything essential to the ship's navigation, but to the purposes of her existence." Manila Prize Cases, (1903) 188 U. S. 270.

A ship or vessel of war belonging to an enemy includes armament, outfit, and appurtenances, comprising provisions, money to pay the crew or for necessary expenditures, everything necessary to be used for the purposes of the vessel and as a vessel of war. The Infanta Maria Teresa, (1903) 188 U. S. 283.

Sec. 4623. [Duties of marshal.] The marshal shall safely keep all prize-property under warrant from the court, and shall report to the court any cargo or other property that he thinks requires to be unladen and stored, or to be sold. He shall insure prize-property, if in his judgment it is for the interest of all concerned. He shall keep in his custody all persons found on board a prize and sent in as witnesses, until they are released by the prize-commissioners or the court. If a sale of property is ordered, he shall sell the same in the manner required by the court, and collect the purchase-money, and forthwith deposit the gross proceeds of the sales with the assistant treasurer of the United States nearest the place of sale, subject to the order of the court in the particular cause; and each marshal shall forward to the Secretary of the Navy, whenever and as often as the Secretary of the Navy may require it, a full statement of the condition of each prize and of the disposal made thereof. [R. S.]

Sec. 4624. [Appraisal, etc., of property taken for Government.] Whenever any captured vessel, arms, munitions, or other material are taken for the use of the United States before it comes into the custody of the prize court, it shall be surveyed, appraised, and inventoried, by persons as competent and impartial as can be obtained, and the survey, appraisal, and inventory shall be sent to the court in which proceedings are to be had; and if taken afterward, sufficient notice shall first be given to enable the court to have the property appraised for the protection of the rights of the claimants and captors. In all cases of prize-property taken for or appropriated to the use of the Government, the Department for whose use it is taken or appropriated shall deposit the value thereof with the assistant treasurer of the United States nearest to the place of the session of the court, subject to the order of the court in the cause. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 314.

Declaration of prior practice.—This Act is “declaratory of a practice that had previously existed by which prizes were turned over to the United States at the appraised value, sometimes before and sometimes after adjudication, such transfer being treated as a sale.” (1879) 16 Op. Atty.-Gen. 339.

“The practice is settled that where the captors desire to take to their own use the property captured as prize, its value is to be ascertained by sworn appraisal and deposited in court, or in the treasury, subject to the order of the court.” The Ella Warley, (1862) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 204, 8 Fed. Cas. No. 4,370.

Transfer to government before condemnation.—The District Court has sufficient authority to appraise property captured as prize, and to transfer it to the use of the government before condemnation, at its appraised value. The Ella Warley, (1862) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 207, 8 Fed. Cas. No. 4,371.

Vessel sunk, but subsequently raised by government.—Where a hostile vessel of war has been so far destroyed that she cannot be brought in by the naval force that reduced her to that condition, but she is raised, reconstructed, and appropriated to the use of the government, the statute may be so construed as to permit a claim for prize money. But a vessel raised and subsequently lost by reason of her injuries prior to her appropriation by the government is not such a case as will permit the allowance of prize money. The Infanta Maria Teresa, (1903) 188 U. S. 283.

Vessels temporarily disabled.—Where vessels are run ashore and sunk by their own commanders, with the result that they are only temporarily disabled and are thereafter raised by the government and saved for governmental use, they are not vessels “sunk or otherwise destroyed,” within the meaning of section 4635, even though they cannot be repaired by any means possessed by the naval forces in the places where they lie, but they are entitled to be treated as prize. Manila Prize Cases, (1903) 188 U. S. 254.

Sec. 4625. [Proceedings for adjudication where property is not sent in.] If by reason of the condition of the captured property, or if because the whole has been appropriated to the use of the United States, no part of it has been or can be sent in for adjudication, or if the property has been entirely lost or destroyed, proceedings for adjudication may be commenced in any district the Secretary of the Navy may designate; and in any such case the proceeds of anything sold, or the value of anything taken or appropriated for the use of the United States, shall be deposited with the assistant treasurer in or nearest to that district, subject to the order of the court in the cause. If, when no property can be sent in for adjudication, the Secretary of the Navy shall not, within three months after any capture, designate a district for the institution of proceedings, the captors may institute proceedings for adjudication in any district. And if in any case of capture no proceedings for adjudication are commenced within a reasonable time, any parties claiming the captured property may, in any district court as a court of prize, move for a monition to show cause why such proceedings shall not be commenced, or institute an original suit in such court for restitution, and the monition issued in either case shall be served on the attorney of the United States for the district, and on the Secretary of the Navy, as well as on such other persons as the court shall order to be notified. [R. S.]

To what property applicable.—This section refers only to property actually captured and not to property which has been destroyed without ever having been actually seized or in the possession of the United States forces. (1898) 22 Op. Atty-Gen. 171.

Sec. 4626. [Delivery of property on stipulation.] No prize-property shall be delivered to the claimants on stipulation, deposit, or other security, except where there has been a decree of restitution and the captors have appealed therefrom, or where the court, after a full hearing on the preparatory proofs, has refused to condemn the property on those proofs, and has given the captors leave to take further proofs, or where the claimant of any property shall satisfy the court that the same has a peculiar and intrinsic value to him, independent of its market-value. In any of these cases, the court may deliver the property on stipulation or deposit of its value, if satisfied that the rights and interests of the United States and captors, or of other claimants, will not be prejudiced thereby; but a satisfactory appraisalment shall be first made, and an opportunity given to the district attorney and naval prize-commissioner to be heard as to the appointment of appraisers. Any money deposited in lieu of stipulation, and all money collected on a stipulation, not being costs, shall be deposited with the assistant treasurer, in the same manner as proceeds of a sale. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 313.

Sec. 4627. [When property may be sold.] Whenever any prize-property is condemned, or at any stage of the proceedings is found by the court to be perishing, perishable, or liable to deteriorate or depreciate, or whenever the costs of keeping the same are disproportionate to its value, the court shall order a sale of such property; and whenever, after the return-day on the libel, all the parties in interest who have appeared in the cause agree thereto, the court may make such order; and no appeal shall operate to prevent the making or execution of such order. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 308.

Exposure of vessel to great injury sufficient.—The fact that a vessel may be protected if not wholly saved by a more vigilant care bestowed upon her by her keepers, and particularly by pumping her watchfully, and by other precautionary acts requiring considerable expense, is not sufficient to prevent the sale of such vessel by the marshal, on the ground that the condition of the vessel is such as to expose her to great injury. The Ella Warley, (1862) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 213, 8 Fed. Cas. No. 4,372.

Sec. 4628. [Mode of making sale.] Upon a sale of any prize-property by order of the court, the Secretary of the Navy shall employ an auctioneer of known skill in the branch of business to which any sale pertains, to make the sale, but the sale shall be conducted under the supervision of the marshal, and the collecting and depositing of the gross proceeds shall be by the auctioneer or his agent. Before any sale the marshal shall cause full catalogues and schedules to be prepared and circulated, and a copy of each shall be returned by the marshal to the court in each cause. The marshal shall cause all sales to be advertised fully and conspicuously in newspapers ordered by the court, and by posters, and he shall, at least five days before the sale, serve notice thereof upon the naval prize-commissioner, and the goods shall be open to inspection at least three days before the sale. [R. S.]

Sec. 4629. [Transfer of property to another district for sale.] Whenever it appears to the court, in the case of any prize-property ordered to be sold, that it will be for the interest of all parties to have it sold in another district, the court may direct the marshal to transfer the same to the district selected by the court for the sale, and to insure the same, with proper orders as to the time and manner of selling the same. It shall be the duty of the marshal so to transfer the property, and keep and sell the same in like manner as if the property were in his own district; and he shall deposit the gross proceeds of the sale with the assistant treasurer nearest to the place of sale, subject to the order of the court in which the adjudication thereon is pending. The necessary expenses attending the insuring, transferring, receiving, keeping, and selling the property shall be a charge upon it and upon the proceeds thereof; and whenever any such expense is paid in advance by the marshal, and he is not repaid from the proceeds, any amount not so repaid shall be allowed to him, as in case of expenses incurred in suits in which the United States is a party. The Secretary of the Navy may, in like manner, either by a general regulation or by special direction in any cause, require a marshal to transfer any prize-property from the district in which the judicial proceedings are pending, to any other district for sale; and the same proceedings shall be had as if such transfer had been made by order of the court. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 315. See also R. S. sec. 5441, infra, p. 87.

Libel for salvage of vessel transferred to another district for sale.—A vessel condemned as a prize and transferred by the marshal to another district for sale, is still under the jurisdiction of the court of condemnation, and she may not be libeled in the district to which she was transferred for salvage services rendered in such district. The remedy is either by intervention in the proceedings in the court of condemnation, or by application direct to the government at Washington, for reasonable compensation for such services as may have been voluntarily rendered in the emergency. In re White Star Towing Co., (1898) 91 Fed. Rep. 285.

Sec. 4630. [Share of captors.] [Superseded.]

This section was as follows:

"Sec. 4630. The net proceeds of all property condemned as prize, shall, when the prize was of superior or equal force to the vessel or vessels making the capture, be decreed to the captors; and when of inferior force, one-half shall be decreed to the United States and the other half to the captors, except that in case of privateers and letters of marque, the whole shall be decreed to the captors, unless it shall be otherwise provided in the commissions issued to such vessels." Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 309.

Bounty or prize money for destruction of enemy's vessels abolished.—This section, as well as all provisions of sections 4631-4635, that relate to the distribution of the proceeds of property condemned as prize, or to the payment of bounty for destruction of enemy's vessels, was superseded by Acts of March 3, 1899, ch. 413, sec. 13. See infra, p. 80.

Ransom money, salvage, and salvage on recapture are to be distributed under the provisions of the sections named by R. S. secs. 4642, 4652, infra, pp. 83, 85.

Pension fund from prize moneys, see R. S. secs. 4752, 4759, infra, p. 86.

Right to prize money by statute only.—“The right of vessels of the navy of the United States to prize money comes only in virtue of grant or permission from the United States, and if no Act of Congress sanctions a claim to it, it does not exist.” The Siren, (1871) 13 Wall. (U. S.) 389.

Why prize money is given.—Prize money is given as an inducement to enter the service of the United States and perform the duties connected therewith with bravery and fidelity. Cole v. U. S., (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 447.

Title to captured property.—“When property is captured on land by a belligerent, the title passes and is vested so soon as the capture is complete, and the property then belongs absolutely to the sovereign. In regard to a prize taken at sea, the right of property is not changed by the seizure alone. The prize remains in the hands of the captor lawfully sequestered, under a species of trusteeship, awaiting a trial at law in the courts of the nation seizing it. While undergoing the processes of law necessary to ascertain its character, it is exempt from all power of the captors other than that of safe keeping for the purposes of trial and of determining its culpability. Until the decree of the prize court has transferred the title of the prize to the capturing power the lawful proprietorship continues with the original possessor, subject to no other use or appropriation by its occupant than that of safe keeping under arrest, pending judicial proceedings seeking its forfeiture.” The Peterhoff, (1865) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 620, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 11,025.

“Vessels making the capture.”—“If none of the other vessels were within signal distance none of them were ‘vessels making the capture,’ within the meaning of section 4630. The phrase must be taken to be used in that section in the same sense in which it is used in section 4632, where it is opposed to vessels within signal distance and is defined as meaning ‘vessels present at and rendering actual assistance in the capture.’” Mangrove Prize Money, (1903) 188 U. S. 720.

Where two ironclads, blocking the same port, were attacked by an ironclad of the enemy, which was captured by them, it was held, in The Iron-clad Ram Atlanta, (1864) 2 Sprague (U. S.) 251, 2 Fed. Cas. No. 619, and affirmed in (1865) 3 Wall. (U. S.) 425, that both were entitled to share alike in the proceeds of the prize, although all the shots fired causing the surrender came from one of the ironclads, the other receiving the fire of the enemy and reserving her own fire for the purpose of engaging at close range, and prevented therefrom by the surrender.

Vessels within signal distance.—“It cannot be contended that vessels too far away to share in the prize as being within signal distance can share under the more immediate title of vessels making the capture on the ground of some more remote contribution to the result. Vessels within signal distance and able to render effective aid are let in, it is true, presumably because they are taken to contribute to the result, but a remote contribution is excluded.” Mangrove Prize Money, (1903) 188 U. S. 720.

Prize to United States only.—In The Siren, (1868) 1 Lowell (U. S.) 280, 22 Fed. Cas. No. 12,911, it was held that “The Prize Act of 1864 (13 Stat. 306), does not exhaust the subject of prize or no prize. There may still be captures which go to the United States only and not to the captors, and there may be prize without captors.”

Vessels captured by army and navy combined.—“Prize money or bounty in lieu of it is not allowed by laws of Congress where vessels of the enemy are captured or destroyed by the navy with the co-operation of the army. To win either, the navy must achieve its success without the direct aid of the army, by maritime force only. No pecuniary reward is conferred for anything taken or destroyed by the navy when it acts in conjunction with the army in the capture of a fortified position of the enemy, though the meritorious services and gallant conduct of its officers and men may justly entitle them to honorable mention in the history of the country.” Porter v. U. S., (1882) 106 U. S. 607.

There is no Act giving prize to the navy in cases of joint capture by the army and navy, and in cases of such capture the capture inures exclusively to the benefit of the United States. The Siren, (1871) 13 Wall. (U. S.) 389.

What vessels included in determination of relative forces.—Where vessels are not within signal distance of another vessel making a capture, they may not be taken into account in the determination of the question of the superiority of force of the captured vessel, although their presence may have been a motive for the surrender. Mangrove Prize Money, (1903) 188 U. S. 720.

A vessel within signal distance of a vessel making a capture is to be included in the determination of the relative force of the captors and the prize. The Iron-clad Ram Atlanta, (1864) 2 Sprague (U. S.) 251, 2 Fed. Cas. No. 619, affirmed (1865) 3 Wall. (U. S.) 425.

Land batteries, mines, etc., not included.—In determining whether the enemy's vessels were of inferior or superior force to the American vessels engaged, the land batteries, mines, and torpedoes not controlled by those in charge of the enemy's vessels, but which supported those vessels, are to be excluded altogether from consideration, and the size and armaments of the enemy's vessels, together with the number of men upon them, are alone to be regarded. Dewey v. U. S., (1900) 178 U. S. 510.

Effect of capture on pay.—The capture of the enemy's property does not increase naval pay proper, but enlarges the right to compensation. Cole v. U. S., (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 447.

The statutory lien of a seaman for wages is not applicable as against the higher and older titles of the captors of the vessel as a prize of war, or as against the title of the United States to such vessel as prize. U. S. v. The Sally Magee, (1866) 4 Int. Rev. Rec. 134, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 16216.

Remission of forfeiture by President.—The President has authority to grant remission of forfeiture in cases of prizes of war after the vessels have been condemned, but before the prize money has been deposited in the treasury of the United States. His jurisdiction in these matters rests upon his pardoning power as defined in sec. 2, art. 11, of the Constitution." (1901) 23 Op. Atty.-Gen. 360.

Sec. 4631. [Distribution of proceeds to captors.] All prize-money adjudged to the captors shall be distributed in the following proportions:

First. To the commanding officer of a fleet or squadron, one-twentieth part of all prize money awarded to any vessel or vessels under his immediate command.

Second. To the commanding officer of a division of a fleet or squadron, on duty under the orders of the commander-in-chief of such fleet or squadron, a sum equal to one-fiftieth part of any prize-money awarded to a vessel of such division for a capture made while under his command, such fiftieth part to be deducted from the moiety due to the United States, if there be such moiety, otherwise from the amount awarded to the captors; but such fiftieth part shall not be in addition to any share which may be due to the commander of the division, and which he may elect to receive, as commander of a single ship making or assisting in the capture.

Third. To the fleet-captain, one-hundredth part of all prize-money awarded to any vessel or vessels of the fleet or squadron in which he is serving, except in a case where the capture is made by the vessel on board of which he is serving at the time of such capture; and in such case he shall share, in proportion to his pay, with the other officers and men on board such vessel.

Fourth. To the commander of a single vessel, one-tenth part of all the prize-money awarded to the vessel under his command, if such vessel at the time of the capture was under the command of the commanding officer of a fleet or squadron, or a division, and three-twentieths if his vessel was acting independently of such superior officer.

Fifth. After the foregoing deductions, the residue shall be distributed and proportioned among all others doing duty on board, including the fleet-captain, and borne upon the books of the ship, in proportion to their respective rates of pay in the service. [R. S.]

See note as to repeal under R. S. sec. 4630, supra.

Amendment.—See amendment in following Act.

Theory of general regulations.—"Those rules would seem to have been framed upon the theory that in making general regulations for the distribution of prize money, it is more just and equitable and more suitable to the rank of commanding officers to grant them a certain fractional part than to determine their shares by their rates of pay like subordinate officers and men, and upon the supposition that the fractional part awarded to the commander of a single ship will usually be more than equivalent to a share proportioned to his rate of pay." U. S. v. Steever, (1885) 113 U. S. 747, affirming (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 51.

Nature of grant.—"The law regulating the distribution of prize money among naval captors is a conditional grant by Congress, and as soon as the conditions are fulfilled the grant becomes absolute." (1864) 11 Op. Atty.-Gen. 102.

"Ship" defined.—In U. S. v. Steever, (1885) 113 U. S. 747, affirming (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 51, it was held that the word "ship" in prior acts "in the few instances in which it occurs, has no restricted sense implying three square-rigged masts or any masts at all, but is synonymous with the general words 'vessel of the navy,' or simply 'vessel,' as used throughout the Act, and comes within the definition of section 32, by which, in the term 'vessels of the navy,' are to be included for the purposes of this Act all armed vessels officered and manned by the United States and under the control of the department of the navy."

Law at time of capture governs.—"The provision of law, as to proportions, existing at the time of the capture, governs the distribution of prize money." (1864) 11 Op. Atty.-Gen. 102.

Rewards in special cases.—"The courts cannot depart from the express law because of the peculiar bravery or merit of the captors, or any of them, in a particular case." U. S. v. Steever, (1885) 113 U. S. 747; The Iron-clad Atlanta, (1865) 3 Wall. (U. S.) 425; Porter v. U. S., (1882) 106 U. S. 607; The Brig Joseph, (1813) 1 Gall. (U. S.) 545; The Anglia, (1863) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 566, 1 Fed. Cas. No. 391.

Effect of removal of charge of desertion.—When a charge of desertion is removed by competent authority all the original rights of compensation are restored and the conditions are the same as if no charge had been made. Cole v. U. S., (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 447.

The share of the admiral commanding the squadron is not increased if the capture is made by his flagship nor diminished if it is made without his participation or knowledge by another ship belonging to his command. U. S. v. Steever, (1885) 113 U. S. 747.

Effect of disobedience to orders.—A commodore who, without authority and in disobedience of the orders of the navy department, usurped command of a United States vessel cannot claim any share of the prizes captured by that vessel. (1865) 11 Op. Atty-Gen. 147.

Share of commander not according to rank.—The commander of a single ship is by the prize law aforesaid restricted to one-tenth or three-twentieths (as the case may be) of the prize money awarded to his vessel, and cannot share according to his rank where that would give him more. (1875) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 63.

Share of disabled commander.—"The share of the commander of a ship is the same whether he is leading in action or lying disabled in his berth." U. S. v. Steever, (1885) 113 U. S. 747.

Share of one in command by illegal order.—A commander on board a vessel by an illegal order of a commodore is not entitled to share in the prizes captured while thus aboard that vessel. (1865) 11 Op. Atty-Gen. 147.

A launch attached to a fleet is a single ship within the meaning of the Prize Act of 1864, and her commander is entitled to one-tenth part of the prize money awarded and not to an amount in proportion to his pay, and the other officers and the crew are entitled to share in accordance with their respective rates of pay. U. S. v. Steever, (1885) 113 U. S. 747, affirming (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 51.

"In the service."—"These words do not necessarily mean anything more than that the distribution should be limited to those serving aboard the ship." The Rita, (1898) 89 Fed. Rep. 763.

"The words 'respective rates of pay in the service' signify the rates of pay actually established and to which the parties concerned were entitled at the time of the capture of the prize." (1875) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 63.

Effect of promotion and increased rate of pay.—The promotion of a naval officer to whom prize money is distributable in proportion to his pay, conferred after the date of the capture of the prize, cannot affect the distribution of the fund, even though by the promotion he became entitled to increased pay from and including that date. In such case the rate of pay which the officer was in receipt of when the capture was made, not the increased pay resulting from the promotion afterwards bestowed, is the measure of his allowance under that provision. (1875) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 63.

Distribution according to rate of pay at time of capture.—"The direction in the Prize Act to make distribution among inferior officers and men 'according to their respective rates of pay in the service' naturally implies the rates of their pay at the time of the capture, by relation to which the subsequent distribution is made, and not those rates as affected by promotions after the capture and before decree or distribution, although such promotions as far as affects rank, and possibly ordinary pay, date from the day of the capture." U. S. v. Steever, (1885) 113 U. S. 747, affirming (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 51.

Effect of omission to keep books.—"The books of a ship are but the usual evidence of service on board; and neither the omission to keep books nor the neglect of the proper officer to enter names upon them can be held to cut off those lawfully assigned to duty on board, and actually doing such duty, from participation in prize money awarded to the ship." U. S. v. Steever, (1885) 113 U. S. 747.

Right of marines to prize money.—Marines serving with the navy and borne on the books of the ship are entitled to share in the prize money awarded to that ship. Reid v. U. S., (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 638. And see further Gates v. U. S., (1903) 38 Ct. Cl. 53; Chadwick v. U. S., (1901) 36 Ct. Cl. 471; Kimball v. U. S., (1901) 36 Ct. Cl. 465; Stovel v. U. S., (1901) 36 Ct. Cl. 392; Engagement at Manila Bay, (1901) 36 Ct. Cl. 212; Engagement off Santiago Bay, (1901) 36 Ct. Cl. 201; Sampson v. U. S., (1901) 36 Ct. Cl. 194; Sampson v. U. S., (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 578; Blandin v. U. S., (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 572; Dewey v. U. S., (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 172.

An act authorizing corrections to be made in errors of prize-lists.

[Distribution of prize moneys.] That the second and third paragraphs of the tenth section of the navy-prize law, approved June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, which relates to the shares of commanders of divisions and fleet-captains, shall apply to officers serving in those positions from April, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, (the commencement of the late war,) and the shares shall be paid in the manner as provided for division-commanders in said second paragraph, said payments to be made out of the naval pension fund; and all acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be, and the same are hereby, repealed. [18 Stat. L. 63.]

The provisions of the Act of 1864, ch. 174, sec. 10, 13 Stat. L. 309, here referred to, are incorporated into Revised Statutes as sec. 4631, pars. 1, 2.

See note to R. S. sec. 4630, supra.

Sec. 4632. [What vessels are entitled to share.] All vessels of the Navy within signal-distance of the vessel or vessels making the capture, under such circumstances and in such condition as to be able to render effective aid, if required, shall share in the prize; and in case of vessels not in the Navy, none shall be entitled to share except the vessel or vessels making the capture; in which term shall be included vessels present at and rendering actual assistance in the capture. [R. S.]

See note as to repeal under R. S. sec. 4630, supra.

"Within signal distance means within a distance at which signals can be so made out that communications to and from can be intelligently exchanged." The Ella & Anna, (1864) 2 Sprague (U. S.) 267, 8 Fed. Cas. No. 4,368.

Ability to render aid necessary.—"The words 'within signal distance' must be read in connection with the further words 'under such circumstances and in such condition as to be able to render effective aid, if required.'" Mangrove Prize Money, (1903) 188 U. S. 720.

Vessel incapable of rendering aid.—"It is not sufficient in order to entitle a vessel to share in the distribution of a prize that it was within signal distance and formed part of the force commanded by the officer who made the capture, if its situation was such that it could not have rendered any assistance in the actual conflict in which the prize was taken." The Selma, (1865) 1 Lowell (U. S.) 30, 21 Fed. Cas. No. 12,647.

Distance and size of signal flags.—A vessel provided with signal flags about three feet by four in size is not within signal distance of other vessels twelve or fifteen miles away, so that the latter vessels would be entitled to share in the proceeds of a prize captured by the former. Mangrove Prize Money, (1903) 188 U. S. 720.

Possibility of visibility of signals insufficient.—"Where signals were not actually seen from the mast-head and answered, and the answers seen, it is not enough to show that they might have been seen from the mast-head but not from the deck." The Ella & Anna, (1864) 2 Sprague (U. S.) 267, 8 Fed. Cas. No. 4,368.

Signals visible from what part of ship.—

"A vessel claiming to share with the actual captor must show her position to have been such at the time of the capture that the usual signals, if such had been made in the usual way, from the actual captor, could have been read or understood from the deck or top-gallant fore-castle of the vessel so claiming to share." The Ella, (1865) 2 Int. Rev. Rec. 117, 8 Fed. Cas. No. 4,367.

Signals visible under existing circumstances.

"To give such vessels a right to participate in the proceeds it must appear that they were within a distance at which signals could have been seen in the state of atmosphere and other circumstances existing at the time; and it is not enough to place them within a distance at which signals might have been seen under other circumstances." The Ella & Anna, (1864) 2 Sprague (U. S.) 267, 8 Fed. Cas. No. 4,368.

Rights of collier.—A vessel loaded with coal, whose crew had never been enlisted in the navy and whose armament was merely for the purpose of protection from boat attacks, but not for offensive operation, is not entitled to share in the proceeds of the prize under the provisions of this section, although she may have on board a naval officer, whose duty it was to take general charge of the vessel but not to interfere with the internal management and discipline of the ship, even though such vessel was in reserve during the action within signaling distance. Manila Prize Cases, (1903) 188 U. S. 254.

Burden of proof.—Where a prize is made by one vessel alone, other vessels that claim to participate in the proceeds solely on the ground that they were within signal distance, have the burden of proof upon them to establish all the facts necessary to sustain their claim. The Ella & Anna, (1864) 2 Sprague (U. S.) 267, 8 Fed. Cas. No. 4,368.

Sec. 4633. [What officers are entitled to share.] No commanding officer of a fleet or squadron shall be entitled to receive any share of prizes captured by any vessel or vessels not under his command, nor of such prizes as may have been captured by any vessels intended to be placed under his command, before they have acted under his orders. Nor shall the commanding officer of a fleet or squadron, leaving the station where he had command, have any share in the prizes taken by ships left on such station after he has gone out of the limits of his command, nor after he has transferred his command to his successor. No officer or other person who shall have been temporarily absent on duty from a vessel on the books of which he continued to be borne, while so absent, shall be deprived, in consequence of such absence, of any prize-money to which he would otherwise be entitled. And he shall continue to share in the captures of the vessels to which he is attached, until regularly discharged therefrom. [R. S.]

See note as to repeal under R. S. sec. 4630, supra.

Officer absent on private business. — "An officer of the fleet absent with leave from the command to which he is attached, for the purpose of attending to his private affairs, is not entitled to share in prizes captured during his absence." (1865) 11 Op. Atty.-Gen. 327.

Sec. 4634. [Determination of shares.] Whenever a decree of condemnation is rendered, the court shall consider the claims of all vessels to participate in the proceeds, and for that purpose shall, at as early a stage of the cause as possible, order testimony to be taken tending to show what part should be awarded to the captors, and what vessels are entitled to share; and such testimony may be sworn to before any judge or commissioner of the courts of the United States, consul or commercial agent of the United States, or notary public, or any officer of the Navy highest in rank, reasonably accessible to the deponent. The court shall make a decree of distribution, determining what vessels are entitled to share in the prize, and whether the prize was of superior, equal, or inferior force to the vessel or vessels making the capture. The decree shall recite the amount of the gross proceeds of the prize subject to the order of the court, and the amount deducted therefrom for costs and expenses, and the amount remaining for distribution, and whether the whole of such residue is to go to the captors, or one-half to the captors, and one-half to the United States. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 309. See note as to repeal under R. S. sec. 4630, supra.

Sec. 4635. [Bounty for persons on board vessels sunk or destroyed.] [Repealed.]

This section was as follows:

"Sec. 4635. A bounty shall be paid by the United States for each person on board any ship or vessel of war belonging to an enemy at the commencement of an engagement, which is sunk or otherwise destroyed in such engagement by any ship or vessel belonging to the United States or which it may be necessary to destroy in consequence of injuries sustained in action, of one hundred dollars, if the enemy's vessel was of inferior force, and of two hundred dollars, if of equal or superior force, to be divided among the officers and crew in the same manner as prize-money; and when the actual number of men on board any such vessel cannot be satisfactorily ascertained, it shall be estimated according to the complement allowed to vessels of its class in the Navy of the United States; and there shall be paid as bounty to the captors of any vessel of war captured from an enemy, which they may be instructed to destroy, or which is immediately destroyed for the public interest, but not in consequence of injuries received in action, fifty dollars for every person who shall be on board at the time of such capture." Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 310.

It was repealed by the Act of March 3, 1899, ch. 413, sec. 13, infra, p. 80, which abolishes bounties or prizes for destruction of enemies' vessels.

[Bounty for destruction of enemy's vessels, how paid.] * * * That the payment, to officers and enlisted men severally entitled, of the judgments of the Court of Claims for bounty for destruction of enemy's vessels, under section forty-six hundred and thirty-five of the Revised Statutes, be made on settlements by the Auditor for the Navy Department in the manner prescribed by law and Treasury regulation for the payment of prize money, the distribution of such individual share to be in accordance with the orders, rules, and findings of the Court of Claims. * * * [31 Stat. L. 1052.]

This is from the Deficiency Appropriation Act of March 3, 1901, ch. 831. A similar provision is contained in the Act of Feb. 14, 1902, ch. 17, 32 Stat. L. 27.

Section 4635 referred to in the text was repealed as to future cases by the provisions in the following text.

SEC. 13. [Distribution of proceeds of prizes or payment of bounty for destruction of enemy's vessels abolished.] * * * And all provisions of law authorizing the distribution among captors of the whole or any portion of the proceeds of vessels, or any property hereafter captured, condemned as prize, or providing for the payment of bounty for the sinking or destruction of vessels of the enemy hereafter occurring in time of war, are hereby repealed. * * * [30 Stat. L. 1007.]

This is from the Act of March 3, 1899, ch. 413. The entire Act is set out in NAVY, vol. 5, p. 249.

Sec. 695. [Appeals in prize causes.] An appeal shall be allowed to the Supreme Court from all final decrees of any district court in prize causes, where the matter in dispute, exclusive of costs, exceeds the sum or value of two thousand dollars; and shall be allowed, without reference to the value of the matter in dispute, on the certificate of the district judge that the adjudication involves a question of general importance. And the Supreme Court shall receive, hear, and determine such appeals and shall always be open for the entry thereof. [R. S.]

Amount in dispute. — The provisions of this section limiting the appeal are superseded by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, sec. 5. See JUDICIARY, vol. 4, p. 398, and note, p. 404.

"Final decree" defined. — A decree in a prize cause, which disposes of the whole matter in controversy, upon a claim filed by particular parties, which is final as to them and their rights, and final also so far as the claimants and their rights are concerned as to the United States, which leaves nothing to be litigated between the parties and awards execution in favor of the libelants against the claimants, is final within the meaning of the Judiciary Acts, and the Supreme Court has jurisdiction of an appeal from it. Withenbury v. U. S., (1867) 5 Wall. (U. S.) 819.

Appeal from Circuit Court. — Prior to this Act it was held, in The Admiral, (1865) 3 Wall. (U. S.) 603, that an appeal of a case in prize which had been carried from a District Court into a Circuit Court could properly be taken to the Supreme Court.

Filing notice of appeal. — "In prize cases wherever it appears that notice of appeal, or of intention to appeal, to this court was filed with the clerk of the District Court within thirty days next after the final decree therein, an appeal will be allowed to this court whenever the purposes of justice require it." The Nuestra Señora De Regla, (1872) 17 Wall. (U. S.) 29.

Sec. 696. [Appeals in prize causes remaining in circuit courts.] An appeal shall be allowed to the Supreme Court from all final decrees of any circuit court in prize causes depending therein on the thirtieth day of June, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, in the same manner, and subject to the same conditions as appeals in prize causes from the district courts. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 310.

Sec. 4636. [Appeals and amendments in prize cases.] The Supreme Court may, if, in its judgment, the purposes of justice require it, allow any amendment, either in form or substance, of any appeal in prize cases, or allow a prize appeal therein, if it appears that any notice of appeal or of intention to appeal was filed with the clerk of the district court within thirty days next after the rendition of the final decree therein. [R. S.]

Time to appeal. — See R. S. sec. 1009, title

title JUDICIARY, vol. 4, p. 618.

Sec. 4637. [Powers of district court after appeal.] Notwithstanding any appeal to the Supreme Court, the district court may make and execute all necessary orders for the custody and disposal of the prize-property; and in case of appeal from a decree of condemnation, may still proceed to make a decree of distribution so far as to determine what share of the prize shall go to the captors, and what vessels are entitled to participate therein. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 310.

Disposal of funds pending appeal. — This section does not give authority to the District Court to pay out of its registry or charge the moneys or fund under appeal in the Supreme Court. It is a strongly implied inhibition to the District Court against intermeddling in any way with the actual disposal of the funds left in its charge, except in execution of positive directions of the Supreme Court. The Peterhoff, (1865) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 620, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 11,025.

Control of res on appeal. — "The removal of the cause from the District Court necessarily takes from that court all authority over the subject-matters involved in the suit and places them exclusively under the control of the paramount tribunal. The latter body alone has capacity to change the position or use of the res while it is under contestation." The Peterhoff, (1865) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 620, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 11,025.

Sec. 565. [District court may proceed in prize causes after appeal.] Any district court may, notwithstanding an appeal to the Supreme Court, in any prize cause, make and execute all necessary orders for the custody and disposal of the prize property, and, in case of an appeal from a decree of condemnation, may proceed to make a decree of distribution, so far as to determine what share of the prize shall go to the captors, and what vessels are entitled to participate therein. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 310.

Sec. 4638. [Security for costs.] The court may require any party, at any stage of the cause, and on claiming an appeal, to give security for costs. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 310.

Sec. 4639. [Costs and expenses.] All costs and all expenses incident to the bringing in, custody, preservation, insurance, sale, or other disposal of prize-property, when allowed by the court, shall be a charge upon such property, and shall be paid from the proceeds thereof, unless the court shall decree restitution free from such charge. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 310. See notes under following section.

Sec. 4640. [Payment of expenses from prize fund.] No payments shall be made for any prize-fund, except upon the order of the court. All charges for work and labor, materials furnished, or money paid, shall be supported by affidavit or vouchers. The court may, at any time, order the payment, from the deposit made with the assistant treasurer in the cause, of any costs or charges accrued and allowed. When the cause is finally disposed of, the court shall make its order or orders on the assistant treasurer to pay the costs and charges allowed and unpaid; and in case the final decree shall be for restitution, or in case there shall be no money subject to the order of the court in the cause, any costs or charges allowed by the court, and not paid by the claimants, shall be a charge upon, and be paid out of, fund the [sic] for defraying the expenses of suits in which the United States is a party or interested. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 310.

Expenses of sale of prize.—A District Court of the United States is without power to make the expenses incident to a sale of prize property a charge upon the fund for defraying the expenses of suits to which the United States is a party, if there was a prize fund upon which the expenses could have been charged. Root's Case, (1873) 9 Ct. Cl. 212.

Order subsequent to decree, charging United States with expenses.—An order of a District Court subsequent to the decree of distribution, reciting in the words of the statute that there is "no money subject to the order of the court in the cause," and directing an expense account with regard to a prize cargo to be allowed and made a charge upon the fund for defraying the expenses of suits to which the United States is a party, is an order made without jurisdiction and will not sustain an action in the Court of Claims. Root's Case, (1873) 9 Ct. Cl. 212. See also (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 408.

Expenses of caring for property restored.—Where the property condemned as prize has been afterward restored to the claimant a bill of a warehouseman for services in regard to the property rendered under the official employment of the officers of the court becomes a charge upon and payable out of the fund for defraying the expenses of suits in which the United States is a party or interested. Two Hundred and Eighty-two Bales Cotton, (1864) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 610, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14,292.

Sec. 4641. [Payment of prize money.] The net amount decreed for distribution to the United States, or to vessels of the Navy, shall be ordered by the court to be paid into the Treasury of the United States, to be distributed according to the decree of the court. The Treasury Department shall credit the Navy Department with each amount received to be distributed to vessels of the Navy; and the persons entitled to share therein shall be severally credited in their accounts with the Navy Department with the amounts to which they are respectively entitled. In case of vessels not of the Navy, and not controlled by any Department of the Government, the distribution shall be made by the court to the several parties entitled thereto, and the amounts decreed to them shall be divided between the owners and the ship's company, according to any written agreement between them, and in the absence of such agreement, one-half to the owners and one-half to the ship's company, according to their respective rates of pay on board; and the court may appoint a commissioner to make such distribution, subject to the control of the court, who shall make due return of his doings, with proof of actual payments by him, and who shall receive no other compensation, directly or indirectly, than such as shall be allowed him by the court. In case of vessels not of the Navy, but controlled by either Executive Department, the whole amount decreed to the captors shall be divided among the ship's company. [R. S.]

Distribution of prize moneys and bounty abolished.—See Act of March 3, 1899, ch. 413, sec. supra, p. 80.

What "ship's company" includes.—"The granting words here are to the 'ship's company,' not to the official part of it, if it so happens that some are in the regular service of the government and some are only temporarily in that service, but to the whole of the ship's company." The Rita, (1898) 89 Fed. Rep. 763.

Who may share in prize money.—All those doing duty on board and borne upon the books of a vessel chartered by the United States for naval service, whether enlisted marines or unenlisted men serving on such vessel, are entitled to share in the proceeds of a prize captured by them. The Rita, (1898) 89 Fed. Rep. 763.

Aliens refusing to enlist.—Unenlisted men on a chartered auxiliary cruiser are not deprived of a share in prize money by the fact that they are aliens, or because they refused to enlist in the service of the government when opportunity was given after the capture of the prize. The Rita, (1898) 89 Fed. Rep. 763.

Effect of additional pay to unenlisted men.

— The fact that additional pay is to be given unenlisted men in service on a chartered vessel acting as an auxiliary cruiser, such pay conditioned upon good behavior for a certain period, will not prevent such men from sharing in prize money. The Rita, (1898) 89 Fed. Rep. 763.

Effect of modified decree awarding salvage. — Under a decree in prize of the District Court, certain money was paid into the treasury to the credit of the naval pension fund, and the court having at another and subsequent term so modified that decree as to direct that the said moneys be distributed as military salvage to the captors named in the decree, it was held that the decree as thus modified was the only final decree of the court in the cause, and should alone be regarded as the decree of the court for the purpose of the distribution of the funds within the meaning of this section, and that it was the duty of the secretary of the navy and all of the officers of the United States concerned to give effect to such decree. (1876) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 575.

Sec. 4642. [Distribution of bounty, salvage, etc.] All ransom-money, salvage, bounty, or proceeds of condemned property, accruing or awarded to any vessel of the Navy, shall be distributed and paid to the officers and men entitled thereto in the same manner as prize-money, under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy. [R. S.]

* Salvage on recapture. — See section 4652, infra, p. 85.

See note under section 4641, supra.

Sec. 4643. [Assignments, etc., of prize money, and bounty.] Every assignment of prize or bounty money due to persons enlisted in the naval service, and all powers of attorney or other authority to draw, receipt for, or transfer the same, shall be void, unless the same be attested by the captain, or other commanding officer, and the paymaster. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 310.

Bounty and prize money for destruction of Sec. 4644. [Accounts of clerks of district courts.] The clerk of each district court shall render, to the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of the Navy, a semi-annual statement of all the sums allowed by the court, and ordered to be paid, within the previous half-year, to the district attorney and prize-commissioners for services, and to marshals for fees and commissions; and he shall, in all prize-causes in the district, for the purpose of the final decree of distribution, ascertain and keep an account of the amount deposited with the assistant treasurer, subject to the order of the court, in each prize-cause, and the amounts ordered to be paid therefrom as costs and charges, and the residue for distribution; and shall send copies of all final decrees of distribution to the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of the Navy; and shall draw the orders of the court for the payment of all costs and allowances, and for the distribution of the residue. For these services he shall be entitled to receive the sum of twenty-five dollars in each prize-cause, which shall be in full for the services required by this action. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 312.

Clerk's fees on money deposited in registry of court. — Where, by agreement of the parties, the money on stipulation was deposited in the registry of the court, instead of with the assistant treasurer, the clerk of the court is not allowed a commission thereon. The Adula, (1901) 127 Fed. Rep. 849.

Sec. 4645. [Allowances and commissions to marshals.] The marshal shall be allowed his actual and necessary expenses for the custody, care, preservation, insurance, sale, or other disposal of the prize-property, and for executing any order of the court respecting the same, and shall have a commission of one-quarter of one per centum on vessels, and of one-half of one per centum on all other prize-property, calculated on the gross proceeds of each sale; and if, after he has had any prize-property in his custody, and has actually performed labor and incurred responsibility for the care and preservation thereof, the same is taken by the United States for its own use without a sale, or if it is delivered on stipulation to the claimants, he shall, in case the same is condemned, be entitled to one-half the above commissions on the amount deposited by the United States to the order of the courts, or collected upon the stipulation. No charges of the marshal for expenses or disbursements shall be allowed, except upon his oath that the same have been actually and necessarily incurred for the purpose stated. [R. S.]

Extra compensation to marshal.—A marshal may be allowed extra compensation for services outside his district in conveying a prize to another district for sale, but such compensation is limited by the time actually employed outside of his district. The Adula, (1901) 127 Fed. Rep. 849.

Sec. 4646. [Compensation of district attorney and prize commissioners.]

The district attorney and prize-commissioners, except the naval officer, shall be allowed a just and suitable compensation for their respective services in each prize-cause, to be adjusted and determined by the court, and to be paid as costs in the cause. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 312.

Necessity of authorization for extra compensation.—As the district attorney is compensated by fees and emoluments limited by law to a fixed salary, he cannot have any additional allowance for extra services, within the scope of his appointment, unless such extra reward is expressly authorized by law.

The Anna, (1863) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 337, 1 Fed. Cas. No. 402.

Apportionment by direct decree.—The court will not apportion to the district attorney, by a direct decree, the amount of the costs taxed for his services in each prize suit which ought to be paid to him toward his aggregate salary. The Anna, (1863) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 337, 1 Fed. Cas. No. 402.

Sec. 4647. [Accounts of district attorney and prize commissioner.] Each district attorney and prize-commissioner, except the naval officer, shall render to the Attorney-General an annual account of all sums he shall have received for all services in prize-causes within the previous year; and the district attorney shall be allowed to retain therefrom a sum not exceeding three thousand dollars a year, in addition to the maximum compensation allowed to be retained by him; under the provisions of Title XIII, "THE JUDICIARY," or in addition to any salary he may receive in lieu of such maximum compensation; and each such prize-commissioner shall be allowed to retain a sum not exceeding three thousand dollars a year, which shall be in full for all his official services in prize-causes; and any excess over those respective amounts shall be paid by the officer receiving the same into the Treasury of the United States, and shall be credited to the fund for paying naval pensions. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 312; Act of June 22, 1870, ch. 150, 16 Stat. L. 164.

Title 13 of the Revised Statutes consists of secs. 530-1093. The provisions particularly applicable to district attorneys are found in ch. 14, secs. 767-799, and together with later statutes repealing, amending, or supplementing the same are given in JUDICIAL OFFICERS, vol. 4, p. 61 et seq.

As a direction to the court to allow.—The amount named in this statute as a compensation to prize commissioners is a maximum limit of their earnings in any one year, and is in no sense a direction to the court to allow that sum. The Adula, (1901) 127 Fed. Rep. 849.

How taxed.—The court will tax the costs of the district attorney in prize cases under the existing law on the written assent of the counsel for the captors and the deposition of the district attorney, proving the performance of the service and its reasonable value, and will leave it to the disbursing officers of the treasury to see that no more is retained by that officer than the sum given him by law. The Anna, (1863) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 337, 1 Fed. Cas. No. 402.

The Act of March 25, 1862, sec. 3 (12 Stat. 375), did not abolish the restrictions on the compensation of the district attorney or give to him for his personal use the amounts taxed to him for services in prize cases. The Anna, (1863) Blatchf. Prize Cas. 337, 1 Fed. Cas. No. 402.

Sec. 4648. [Compensation of special counsel.] The court may allow such compensation as it deems just under the circumstances of each case to any special counsel for captors, not being the district attorney or any of his assistants, whether appointed by an Executive Department or by captors, for services actually rendered in the cause, to be paid as costs, in whole or in part, either from the entire fund or from the portion awarded to the captors; but no such allowance shall be made, except for services rendered on matters as to which the party the counsel represents has an adverse interest to the United States, or an interest otherwise proper in the opinion of the court to be represented by special counsel, or for services rendered in a contestation between parties claiming to participate in the distribution of the proceeds. [R. S.]

Sec. 4649. [Payment of fees of special counsel.] Fees of special counsel in prize-cases incurred or authorized by any Department, or for the defense of captors against demands for damages made by claimants in the district court, not paid by claimants, nor from the prize-fund in the particular cause, and audited and allowed by the Department incurring or authorizing them, and by the Solicitor of the Treasury, shall be a charge upon, and paid out of, the funds appropriated for defraying the expenses of suits in which the United States is a party or interested. [R. S.]

Sec. 4650. [Commissions of auctioneers.] The auctioneers employed to make sales of prize-property shall be entitled to receive commissions by a scale to be established by the Secretary of the Navy, not to exceed, in any case, one-half of one per centum on any sum exceeding ten thousand dollars on vessels, nor one per centum on that sum on other prize-property, which shall be in full for expenses, as well as for services; and in case no such scale shall be established, they shall be entitled to receive such compensation as the court shall deem just under the circumstances of each case. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 313.

Sec. 4651. [Payment of fees of witnesses.] Whenever the court shall allow fees to any witness in a prize-cause, or fees for taking evidence out of the district in which the court sits, and there is no money subject to its order in the cause, the same shall be paid by the marshal, and shall be repaid to him from any money deposited to the order of the court in the cause; and any amount not so repaid the marshal shall be allowed as witness-fees paid by him in cases in which the United States is a party. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 313.

Sec. 4652. [Recaptures.] When any vessel or other property shall have been captured by any force hostile to the United States, and shall be recaptured, and it shall appear to the court that the same had not been condemned as prize before its recapture, by any competent authority, the court shall award a meet and competent sum as salvage, according to the circumstances of each case.

If the captured property belonged to the United States, it shall be restored to the United States, and there shall be paid from the Treasury of the United States the salvage, costs, and expenses ordered by the court. If the recaptured property belonged to persons residing within or under the protection of the United States, the court shall adjudge the property to be restored to its owners, upon their claim, on the payment of such sum as the court may award as salvage, costs, and expenses. If the recaptured property belonged to any person permanently resident within the territory and under the protection of any foreign prince, government, or state in amity with the United States, and by the law or usage of such prince, government, or state, the property of a citizen of the United States would be restored under like circumstances of recapture, it shall be adjudged to be restored to such owner, upon his claim, upon such terms as by the law or usage of such prince, government, or state would be required of a citizen of the United States under like circumstances of recapture; or when no such law or usage shall be known, it shall be adjudged to be restored upon the payment of such salvage, costs, and expenses as the court shall order. The whole amount awarded as salvage shall be decreed to the captors, and no part to the United States, and shall be distributed as in the case of proceeds of property condemned as prize. Nothing in this Title shall be construed to contravene any treaty of the United States. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 174, 13 Stat. L. 314.

The principle of jus postliminii so far as it relates to captured vessels belonging to American citizens is embodied in this section. Oakes v. U. S., (1895) 30 Ct. Cl. 378.

Capture and recapture necessary.—This Act applies only to recaptures from an enemy. In order to come within its purpose and its very words the property in question must "have been taken by an enemy of the United States," and "retaken" by a public or private vessel of the United States. Where there has been no capture there can be no recapture. Oakes v. U. S., (1899) 174 U. S. 793.

Property purchased by enemy.—This Act does not apply to property which has come into the enemy's possession by purchase or otherwise with the consent of the owner or of his agent. Oakes v. U. S., (1899) 174 U. S. 793.

Sec. 4752. [Prize money accruing to the United States to remain a fund for pensions.] All money accruing or which has already accrued to the United States from sale of prizes shall be and remain forever a fund for the payment of pensions to the officers, seamen, and marines who may be entitled to receive the same; and if such fund be insufficient for the purpose, the public faith is pledged to make up the deficiency; but if it should be more than sufficient, the surplus shall be applied to the making of further provision for the comfort of the disabled officers, seamen, and marines. [R. S.]

Act of July 17, 1862, ch. 204, 12 Stat. L. 607.

Sec. 4759. [Privateer pension fund; how derived.] Two per centum on the net amount, after deducting all charges and expenditures, of the prize-money arising from captured vessels and cargoes, and on the net amount of the salvage of vessels and cargoes recaptured by the private armed vessels of the United States, shall be secured and paid over to the collector or other chief officer of the customs at the port or place in the United States at which such captured or recaptured vessels may arrive; or to the consul or other public agent of the United States residing at the port or place, not within the United States, at which such captured or recaptured vessels may arrive. And the moneys arising therefrom are pledged by the Government of the United States as a fund for the support and maintenance of the widows and orphans of such persons as may be slain, and for the support and maintenance of such persons as may be wounded and disabled on board of the private armed vessels of the United States, in any engagement with the enemy, to be assigned and distributed in such manner as is or may be provided by law. [R. S.]

Act of June 26, 1812, ch. 107, 2 Stat. L. 763.

Sec. 4760. [To be paid into the Treasury, etc.] The two per centum reserved in the hands of the collectors and consuls by the preceding section, shall be paid to the Treasury, under the like regulations provided for other public money, and shall constitute a fund for the purposes provided for by that section. [R. S.]

Act of Feb. 13, 1813, ch. 22, 2 Stat. L. 799.

Sec. 5441. [Delaying or defrauding captor or claimant, etc., of prize property.] Every person who willfully does any act or aids or advises in the doing of any act relating to the bringing in, custody, preservation, sale, or other disposition of any property captured as prize, or relating to any documents or papers connected with the property, or to any deposition or other document or paper connected with the proceedings, with intent to defraud, delay, or injure the United States or any captor or claimant of such property, shall be punished by a fine of not more than ten thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not more than five years, or both. [R. S.]

Sec. 1. Prize Fighting, and Fights Between Men and Animals, Forbidden.

2. "Pugilistic Encounter" Defined.

An Act To prohibit prize-fighting and pugilism and fights between men and animals and to provide penalties therefor, in the Territories and District of Columbia.

[Act of Feb. 7, 1896, ch. 12, 29 Stat. L. 5.]

[SEC. 1.] [Prize fighting, and fights between men and animals, forbidden.] That any person who, in any of the Territories or the District of Columbia, shall voluntarily engage in a pugilistic encounter between man and man or a fight between a man and a bull or any other animal, for money or for other thing of value, or for any championship, or upon the result of which any money or any thing of value is bet or wagered, or to see which any admission fee is charged, either directly or indirectly, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years. [29 Stat. L. 5.]

SEC. 2. ["Pugilistic encounter" defined.] By the term "pugilistic encounter," as used in this bill, is meant any voluntary fight by blows by means of fists or otherwise, whether with or without gloves, between two or more men, for money or for a prize of any character, or for any other thing of value, or for any championship, or upon the result of which any money or any thing of value is bet or wagered, or to see which any admission fee is charged, either directly or indirectly. Sec. 3709. [Advertisements for proposals — exceptions — opening and submitting bids — acceptance or rejection.] All purchases and contracts for supplies or services, in any of the Departments of the Government, except for personal services, shall be made by advertising a sufficient time previously for proposals respecting the same, when the public exigencies do not require the immediate delivery of the articles, or performance of the service. When immediate delivery or performance is required by the public exigency, the articles or service required may be procured by open purchase or contract, at the places and in the manner in which such articles are usually bought and sold, or such services engaged, between individuals. And the advertisement for such proposals shall be made by all the Executive Departments, including the Department of Labor, the United States Fish Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Smithsonian Institution, the Government Printing Office, the government of the District of Columbia, and the superintendent of the State, War, and Navy building, except for paper and materials for use of the Government Printing Office, and materials used in the work of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, which shall continue to be advertised for and purchased as now provided by law, on the same days and shall each designate two o'clock post meridian of such days for the opening of all such proposals in each Department and other Government establishment in the city of Washington; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall designate the day or days in each year for the opening of such proposals and give due notice thereof to the other Departments and Government establishments. Such proposals shall be opened in the usual way and schedules thereof duly prepared and, together with the statement of the proposed action of each Department and Government establishment thereon, shall be submitted to a board, consisting of one of the Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury and Interior Departments and one of the Assistant Postmasters-General, who shall be designated by the heads of said Departments and the Postmaster-General respectively, at a meeting to be called by the official of the Treasury Department, who shall be chairman thereof, and said board shall carefully examine and compare all the proposals so submitted and recommend the acceptance or rejection of any or all of said proposals. And if any or all of such proposals shall be rejected, advertisements for proposals shall again be invited and proceeded with in the same manner. [R. S.]

Act of March 2, 1861, ch. 84, 12 Stat. L. 220.

All that portion of the section beginning with the words "and the advertisement for such proposals," etc., to the end was added by the Act of Jan. 27, 1894, ch. 22, 28 Stat. L. 33, entitled "An Act to amend section thirty-seven hundred and nine of the Revised Statutes relating to contracts for supplies in the Departments at Washington."

See further amendments and limitations of the section set forth in the text following.

Effect of amendment. — The first two sentences of this section, as amended by the Acts of Jan. 27, 1894, ch. 22, and April 21, 1894, ch. 61, apply to purchases anywhere in the United States. The remaining three sentences apply only to purchases in the city of Washington. (1894) 21 Op. Atty-Gen. 59.

Volume VI.

mediate delivery.—The amendment of this section regulating the advertisement and award of contracts did not affect that portion of the section applicable when the public exigency requires immediate delivery. (1895) 21 Op. Atty-Gen. 181.

Power of United States to contract.—"The United States, being a body politic, may within the sphere of the constitutional powers confided to it, and through the instrumentality of the proper department to which those powers are confided, enter into contracts not prohibited by law, and appropriate to the just exercise of those powers." U. S. v. Tingey, (1831) 5 Pet. (U. S.) 115.

Character of government as party.—When a government enters into a contract with an individual, it deposes as to the matter of the contract its constitutional authority, and exchanges the character of a legislator for that of a moral agent with the same rights and obligations as an individual. Lyons v. U. S., (1895) 30 Ct. Cl. 353.

Effect of other acts.—No part of this section is expressly repealed by the provisions of section 96 of the Act of Jan. 12, 1895, providing for the contracting by the postmaster-general for envelopes, but that Act must be construed in pari materia with this section and with R. S. sec. 3718. (1895) 21 Op. Atty-Gen. 181.

Notice of statutory limitations upon power to contract.—A contractor dealing with the government is chargeable with notice of all statutory limitations placed upon the powers of public officers. But there is a difference between those powers expressly defined by statute and those which rest upon the discretion confided by law to an officer. Where a statute expressly defines the power it is notice to all the world, but where it confides a discretion to an officer the party dealing with him, in good faith, may assume that the discretion is properly exercised. If the discretion be vested in a superior while the transaction is with his subordinate the contractor may assume that the discretion has been properly exercised, and that the subordinate is acting in accordance with his superior's orders. Thompson's Case, (1873) 9 Ct. Cl. 187.

Statutory requirements mandatory.—In absence of any exigency of fact or of one determined by the officer in charge of a public work, or of one that can be judicially inferred, the provision of this section requiring advertisement for supplies is mandatory and contracts made in violation thereof are void. Schneider v. U. S., (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 547 (citing Clark v. U. S., (1877) 95 U. S. 539; U. S. v. Speed, (1868) 8 Wall. (U. S.) 77; Henderson's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 75; Wentworth's Case, (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 302).

To secure competition.—The provisions of this section are in the line of a wise public policy, insuring to the government the advantage of competition in making contracts for supplies. (1897) 22 Op. Atty-Gen. 1.

What contracts included.—The provisions of this section require advertisements for proposals in the case of all purchases and contracts for supplies or services in any of the departments of the government, except for personal services, and except when the public exigencies require the immediate delivery of the article or performance of the service. The amendatory acts do not modify this requirement, but simply provide a mode for carrying it into effect. (1897) 22 Op. Atty-Gen. 1.

Executory contracts.—The law requires that executory contracts for supplies and materials for the departments shall be duly advertised. (1853) 6 Op. Atty-Gen. 99.

Where advertised.—This section does not require the advertising to be done in the District of Columbia. (1897) 21 Op. Atty-Gen. 595.

Advertisements addressed to whom.—While there is no express provision as to the persons with whom the postmaster-general shall contract, or to whom he shall by advertisement address his proposals, he is justified in doing so to those who are able to do the work or furnish supplies which he needs in his department. In such a matter he will exercise his own discretion as to that which shall be for the best interests of the public, and will carry out the policy of the statute by thus limiting his advertisements, when he shall deem it expedient to do so. (1877) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 226.

The manner of advertising is left by the law to the discretion of the department advertising. No particular form is prescribed. (1877) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 226.

Where immediate delivery is necessary to the wants of the public service the article required must be obtained by open purchase; that is, by purchase at the place where articles of the description are usually bought and sold, and in the mode in which such purchases are ordinarily made between individual and individual. (1829) 2 Op. Atty-Gen. 257.

In absence of public exigency.—Where the public exigencies do not require the immediate delivery of the articles, or performance of the service, it is necessary previously to advertise for proposals respecting the same. (1829) 2 Op. Atty-Gen. 257.

Immediate performance necessary to excuse advertising.—The power here given to make contracts, without advertisement, plainly contemplates only such contracts as the urgent necessities of the service may demand and in cases where the public interests would suffer by the delay attendant upon advertising. The only exception is when "immediate performance" is required by the public exigency, and that is the test by which the necessity of advertising is to be determined. (1861) 10 Op. Atty-Gen. 28.

Immediate use necessary for purchase in open market.—Purchases in open market cannot be resorted to, except in cases of and in reference to such articles as are wanted for use so immediate as not to permit of contracts by advertisement. But such immediate want cannot usually occur in reference to hemp. (1846) 4 Op. Atty-Gen. 475.

Exigency of time only.—The "public exigency," contemplated by this section, is one of time only. While the officer intrusted with making the contract may be entitled himself to adjudicate whether or not the facts are such as to require immediate delivery of the articles contracted for, or the immediate rendering of the service desired, yet the exigency cannot be extended beyond that of time only, and if he adjudicates any other state of facts to be an exigency he is not proceeding within the authority given him by law. (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 253.

Ordinary diligence in making contract for immediate delivery.—“Immediate delivery,” under this Act, requires of a quartermaster that openness, diligence, prudence, and care which an individual might be supposed to exercise were he buying goods in just such an exigency and under just such circumstances. Therefore when a quartermaster, buying goods under extraordinary circumstances, does as an energetic business man would have done in his own business, if acting without money, with shaken credit, under a pressing emergency, in a place where but part of his needs could be supplied, endeavoring to give great publicity to his purchases and to invite competition, the conditions of the statute are fulfilled. Child's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 177.

Substantial compliance sufficient.—This statute intends that in a proper exigency supplies for the army should be procured by lawful means, and is not to be construed as declaring illegal contracts which, as nearly as possible, comply with its requirements. Child's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 177.

Application of section to contractor.—The provision in this section requiring articles or services to be obtained by “open purchase or contract at the price and in the manner in which such articles are usually bought and sold, or such services engaged, between individuals,” does not apply to a contractor with the United States. (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 253.

Whether the contractor owns the article contracted for at the time of the making of the contract cannot be inquired into. Friedenstein v. U. S., (1899) 35 Ct. Cl. 6.

Contracts with enemies.—No person can make a valid contract in behalf of the United States unless expressly or impliedly authorized by statute to do so; but, if so authorized, the right to make such a contract is not necessarily limited to contracts with persons who are not enemies of the United States. Whether the right to make the contract is a right to make it with an enemy depends upon the true construction of the statutes authorizing the making of the contract and not upon any general principles of law. (1870) 13 Op. Atty.-Gen. 314.

Supplies for navy.—Under these sections (R. S. 3709, 3718), supplies of every name and nature for the navy are to be purchased by contract upon advertisement, except in cases when the public exigency will not permit of delay, and then by open purchase as between individuals. (1895) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 181.

Postage stamps are supplies within the meaning of this section. (1898) 22 Op. Atty.-Gen. 40.

The postmaster-general should advertise for proposals for the work of engraving and printing United States postage stamps, for which work the bureau of engraving and printing may be permitted to compete. (1898) 22 Op. Atty.-Gen. 40.

Proposals for furnishing stamps limited.—An advertisement for proposals for furnishing the post office department with postage stamps may, in the discretion of the postmaster-general, be limited to “steel plate engravers and plate printers;” the purpose of limitation being to confine the submission of proposals to such persons only as can satisfactorily furnish the articles needed. (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 226.

Paper and materials for government printing office.—This section did not apply to paper and materials for the government printing office, and the acts amendatory thereof enlarged it in respect to this office only so as to apply to fuel, ice, stationery, and miscellaneous supplies. (1895) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 137.

The Act of Jan. 12, 1895, only provides for printing and binding public documents; the purchases by the public printer therein contemplated are paper and materials for that purpose, and such as do not come within this section as amended. (1895) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 137.

Purchase of seeds.—If not obligatory on the secretary of agriculture to purchase seeds, trees, etc., conformably to the provisions of this section, it is certainly competent for him to make the purchases conformably to the statute, the right to reject any and all bids being reserved. (1895) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 162.

Seals for packages in bond.—Contracts for the purchase by the government of seals used to secure packages entered for transportation in bond must be awarded upon advertisement. (1896) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 304.

Seals purchased by carriers.—“Locks and seals used to secure packages while being transported in bond, paid for and owned by common carriers, are not required to be purchased upon advertisement.” (1896) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 304.

Articles for different uses.—In The International Co.'s Case, (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 209, it was held that an advertisement by the secretary of the treasury for seal locks to be used on railroad cars in revenue service is sufficient compliance with this section to authorize a contract by a subsequent secretary for locks to be used on the cars and on bonded warehouses.

Supplies, etc., for Columbia Institution for Deaf and Dumb.—It was held in (1897) 22 Op. Atty.-Gen. 1, by Attorney-General Joseph McKenna, that the Columbia Institution for the Deaf and Dumb is in the department of the interior, so as to make the provisions of this section applicable to it in making purchases and contracts for supplies or services; but in (1896) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 349, the contrary was expressly held by acting Attorney-General Holmes Conrad.

Contract for future supply.—A contract without advertisement for a future supply of wood for the use of the army is within the prohibition of this Act and therefore void. McKinney's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 537.

Contract requiring years for execution.—The secretary of war may not under this section, without advertising for proposals, make a contract involving the expenditure of nearly $200,000, and requiring years for its execution. (1861) 10 Op. Atty-Gen. 28.

Emergency supplies during rebellion.—The purchase of military supplies for a military emergency during the war of the rebellion was governed exclusively by the provisions of the Act of July 4, 1864, 13 Stat. L. 394, and not by the Act of March 2, 1861, 12 Stat. L. 220 (R. S. sec. 3709), nor by the Act of June 2, 1862, 12 Stat. L. 411 (R. S. sec. 3744). Cobb's Case, (1871) 7 Ct. Cl. 471.

Contract in military emergency.—A military emergency cannot be measured by precise rules. It may continue equally over a period of months. In such a case, when supplies cannot be procured by immediate purchase literally in open market, and the quartermaster charged with procuring them contracts without advertisement for their delivery within thirty days, the contract is valid if it be as immediate a purchase as the circumstances admit of. Thompson's Case, (1873) 9 Ct. Cl. 187.

Purchase of envelopes in emergency.—Constructing the provisions of section 96 of the Act of Jan. 12, 1895, providing for the purchase of envelopes, stamped or otherwise, for all departments in connection with this section and R. S. sec. 3710, that section of the Act of 1895 has no application when an exigency may require an immediate delivery of envelopes to a particular department and the public service might be seriously impaired by the necessity of a requisition upon the postmaster-general. In the event of an exigency requiring an immediate delivery of envelopes, the provisions of this section govern, and the head of the department in which the exigency exists may make the purchases required by the exigency. (1895) 21 Op. Atty-Gen. 181.

Immediate construction of railroad cars.—In Mowry's Case, (1866) 2 Ct. Cl. 68, it was held that a contract in time of great public exigency and peril, immediately to construct one hundred railroad cars at an agreed price, fifty to be delivered in eighteen days and fifty in thirty days, calls for an immediate performance within the meaning of this section.

Relief of sufferers.—Where the service required was under a statute making an appropriation to relieve a suffering condition of the people of the territory, it must be held that the Act intended immediate execution, and contracts thereunder would be valid though not reduced to writing. Pacific Steam Whaling Co. v. U. S., (1801) 36 Ct. Cl. 106.

Purchase from middlemen for immediate delivery.—A contract for the purchase of naval supplies for immediate use from a middleman, at a higher price than the manufacturer's price, is not a violation of this section where there was not sufficient time to learn the place of manufacture and the manufacturer's price, and public exigency demanded immediate delivery; and the contractor may recover the contract price, although he did not deal in or possess such article at the time of the sale; but if there be ample time to learn the manufacturer's price and place of manufacture, and the contractor and purchasing agent do not avail themselves of the opportunity, only a fair and reasonable value for such articles can be recovered by the contractor, without regard to the contract price. Wentworth's Case, (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 302.

A contract for personal service is one by which the individual contracted with renders his personal service to the government through its agents, thus himself becoming the servant of the government. (1877) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 235.

Personal service of contractor only.—The personal service mentioned in this section must be personal service of the party contracted with, and not personal service which he shall employ. (1876) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 538.

Contract in part for services.—Although a contract may require in some of its details personal service, this does not make the whole contract one for personal service within the meaning of this section. (1876) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 538.

Contract for secret services.—An action cannot be maintained against the government in the Court of Claims upon a contract for secret services during a war, made between the President and the claimant. The publicity produced by an action would itself be a breach of a contract of that kind and thus defeat a recovery. Totten v. U. S., (1875) 92 U. S. 105, affirming (1873) 9 Ct. Cl. 506.

Contract for service requiring trained skill.—In all contracts for service which presupposes trained skill and experience, the public officer who employs the service must be allowed to exercise a judicious discrimination, and to select such as, in his judgment, possess the required qualifications. (1862) 10 Op. Atty-Gen. 261.

A contract for surveying Indian reservations is a contract for "personal services," and, therefore, may be made without previous advertisement for proposals. (1862) 10 Op. Atty-Gen. 261.

Modifications in bids.—Where an advertisement was published, calling for proposals for performance of certain work for the government, with the specification that it be begun on or before Oct. 1, 1892, and be concluded on or before Dec. 31, 1893, and where one of the proposals stated that the bid was that the entire work was to be completed on or before June 1, 1894, and provided for stopping that work in certain contingencies, such modifications in the proposals were inconsistent with the specifications and with the spirit and intent of this section. (1892) 20 Op. Atty-Gen. 496.

Signature and modification of firm bid.—Where a bid, in which the name of the firm is signed by typewriter, followed by the signature of the only member of the firm, is, before acceptance, modified by telegram, the modified bid, if authentic, would, upon acceptance before withdrawal, bind the bidder. (1898) 22 Op. Atty.-Gen. 45.

Modification of bid prior to opening.—A bidder under an advertisement for sealed proposals has the right, previous to the opening of the bids, to modify his bid by telegram, and the bid so modified, upon acceptance before withdrawal, will bind the bidder. (1898) 22 Op. Atty.-Gen. 45.

Omission of immaterial words.—Where the advertisement requires the proposals to be made on blank forms furnished by the department the omission or erasure of immaterial words in the proposals of a bidder does not affect the validity of his bid. (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 226.

Confirmation of telegraphed proposal.—While it is customary to confirm by letter a telegraphed proposition, such confirmation is not essential. (1898) 22 Op. Atty.-Gen. 45.

Withdrawal of bid.—In the absence of any special statutory provision to the contrary a bidder for a government contract may withdraw his bid at any time until notice of acceptance. (1894) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 56.

Effect of designating hour of opening.—The designation of two o'clock P. M. "for the opening of all such proposals in each department," means only that such proposals shall not be opened before two o'clock P. M. (1897) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 546.

No bids opened prior to time.—By designating a certain hour on a fixed day "for the opening of all such proposals," both the government and the bidders have secured to them the advantage of a prescribed moment prior to which no bids can be opened. (1897) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 546.

Proposals received after time of opening.—The statute does not say that all proposals must be received prior to two o'clock P. M., but it designates that hour for the opening of the proposals. To be sure, a proposal received after that hour, under circumstances which warranted the belief that it had been prepared and submitted in the light of the proposals submitted by the other bidders, which had already been opened and made known, should not be received or entertained; but a proposal received under conditions which preclude the possibility of such unfairness should not be rejected because it happens to be received by the board of award a few minutes after two o'clock P. M. (1897) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 546.

The object of the government is to secure fairness and impartiality in awarding government contracts; and where proper notice has been given by advertisement, and the time and the place for opening such proposals designated and published, one submitting his bid or proposal and forwarding the same by due course of mail, by which it should have been delivered before two o'clock P. M., should not be deprived of his right to participate in the competitive bidding because his letter containing the bid did not reach the board of award until a few minutes after two P. M. (1897) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 546.

Effect of acceptance.—When a bid which binds a bidder to perform is accepted, and he is ready and able to perform, the government cannot escape liability by refusing to enter into the formal written contract contemplated by the terms of its acceptance. It is liable to the same extent as it would have been had the formal contract been executed. Garfield's Case, 11 Ct. Cl. 322, affirmed by the Supreme Court. See (1875) 11 Ct. Cl. 602.

The acceptance by an executive officer, acting within the scope of his authority, of a proposal by an individual creates a contract having the same force and effect that a formal written agreement would have if one had been signed by the parties. McCullum's Case, (1881) 17 Ct. Cl. 93.

When award is made.—An award of a contract by the issuance of an order of the postmaster-general, in the usual way, and its transmission to the bidder, thus indicating the acceptance of his proposal, is sufficient, and when received by the latter the award thus made is beyond recall, and the agreement is complete and binding upon the government. It makes no difference in such case that a more formal contract was contemplated to be entered into, but has not been executed by the bidder, if the failure be not attributable to his default. (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 226.

Advertisement and proposals as part of the contract.—The advertisement for proposals, and the proposals in response thereto, do not form any part of the subsequent contract and cannot be admitted in evidence to contradict or vary the terms thereof. Harvey's Case, (1872) 8 Ct. Cl. 501.

Modified contract.—A modification "where the interests of the government will not be prejudiced or any statutory provision violated thereby" may well be provided for in every contract to which the government is a party; and a contract so modified is not such a new contract as must be preceded by an advertisement for proposals from bidders. (1895) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 207 (citing U. S. v. Corliss Steam Engine Co., (1875) 91 U. S. 321; (1885) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 101; Ferris v. U. S., (1893) 28 Ct. Cl. 332).

Extension of contract requiring advertisement.—Where an advertisement for proposals for furnishing the government with stamped envelopes, etc., stated a definite term, and did not provide for any extension of the contract beyond the term, but the contract contained a provision that it might be extended or modified by mutual agreement, and it was subsequently modified and extended repeatedly so as to embrace several successive years, such extensions were each new contracts which should have been preceded by advertisements for proposals. (1895) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 207. See also (1869) 13 Op. Atty.-Gen. 174.

Contract for preparing material under advertisement for purchase.—Advertisement for proposals having been made for the rough stone from the quarry, but not for the cutting and dressing of it before a contract therefor, the cutting and dressing are not within the exception of "personal services," and such advertisement does not meet the requirements of this section as regards the contract for such cutting and dressing. (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 253.

Second contract for different material.—Where one contract is to furnish sandstone for a public building at a designated price, and another contract is to substitute marble at a different price, the material being the sole subject-matter of either agreement, the latter contract cannot be regarded as a modification of the former, and it will require a new advertisement. Schneider v. U. S., (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 547.

Acceptance of inferior articles.—"If on account of the impossibility of readvertising, or of the contractor procuring better articles, in time to meet the exigencies, authority is lodged anywhere to accept supplies inferior to the requirements of a contract, it is vested in the officer or officers charged with the duty of making the purchases, and the rights of third parties are not to be affected by the correctness of the conclusions of such officers as to the necessity which compels such acceptance." (1882) 17 Op. Atty-Gen. 384.

Contract to supply troops and others does not include Indians.—Where a commissary of subsistence is without statutory authority to contract for the support of Indians, a contract entered into by him for beef cattle in such numbers and at such time as may be required, founded on proposals for supplying beef to the troops and others at a certain camp, cannot be construed to include cattle subsequently needed for Indians at the same camp, and no action will lie for breach if the commissary subsequently, under authority, enters into a contract with a third party for supplying such Indians. The first contract will be construed to have been limited in purpose to the subsistence of troops and ordinary camp followers. Ryan's Case, (1872) 8 Ct. Cl. 272, affirmed by Supreme Court. See 10 Ct. Cl. 115.

Suspension of work under contract and compensation for partial performance.—Where the secretary of the navy may enter into contracts for the construction, armament, or equipment of a vessel of war, he may suspend the work contracted for if the public interests require its suspension; and when he orders such suspension he may agree with the contractor upon the compensation to be paid for partial performance of the contract, and such a settlement, lawfully made, without fraud, is binding on the government. U. S. v. Corliss Steam Engine Co., (1875) 91 U. S. 321, affirmed (1874) 10 Ct. Cl. 494.

Proper exercise of discretion.—This section, "while requiring such advertisement as the general rule, invests the officer charged with the duty of procuring supplies or services with a discretion to dispense with advertising if the exigencies of the public service require immediate delivery or performance. It is too well settled to admit of dispute at this day that where there is a discretion of this kind conferred on an officer or board of officers, and a contract is made in which they have exercised that discretion, the validity of the contract cannot be made to depend on the degree of wisdom or skill which may have accompanied its exercise." (1882) 17 Op. Atty-Gen. 384. See also U. S. v. Speed, (1868) 8 Wall. (U. S.) 77, affirming (1866) 2 Ct. Cl. 429.

Contracts under discretionary power to expend appropriations.—Where the expenditure of an appropriation is especially confided to the discretion of the secretary of the interior, he has discretionary power to award the contracts therefor without advertising, as provided in this section. Fowler's Case, (1867) 3 Ct. Cl. 43.

Increase of expense by eight-hour condition.—This and the following sections make no provision for the length of the day's work by the employees of the contractors, and a public officer who should let a contract for a larger sum than would be otherwise necessary, by reason of a condition that a contractor's employees should only work eight hours a day, would directly violate the law. (1890) 19 Op. Atty-Gen. 685.

Validity of unadvertised contracts.—A public contract not founded upon advertisement is at most only voidable, and when the government allows it to be performed, and does not question its validity, a third person cannot come in and set up that it was void at law. Driscoll's Case, (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 15, reversed by Supreme Court on other grounds (1877) 96 U. S. 421.

Ratification of unadvertised contract.—An officer who in giving out a contract has failed to comply with the statutory provision requiring advertisement previous to letting the contract, cannot, by permitting performance thereunder to proceed to any extent, make such contract obligatory upon the government. (1876) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 538.

Goods delivered under void contract.—Where goods have been actually sold and delivered for the use and benefit of the government, an action may be maintained for the value thereof, though the contract under which they were delivered was irregular or void. Belt's Case, (1879) 15 Ct. Cl. 105.

No advertisement as defense to performed contract.—When a contract has been mutually performed and the contractor sues to recover a part of his compensation erroneously withheld, it is not a defense that the contract was illegal because not founded upon advertisement and proposal, the price claimed being reasonable. Mudgett's Case, (1873) 9 Ct. Cl. 467.

SEC. 2. [Advertisements, etc., under R. S. sec. 3709 limited.] That the Act entitled "An Act to amend section thirty-seven hundred and nine of the Revised Statutes relating to contracts for supplies in the Departments at Washington," approved January twenty-seven, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, be, and the same is hereby, so amended that the provisions thereof shall apply only to advertisements for proposals for fuel, ice, stationery, and other miscellaneous supplies to be purchased at Washington for the use of the Executive Departments and other Government establishments therein named; and no advertisements made or contracts awarded or to be awarded thereon since January twenty-seven, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, in accordance with the laws in force prior to said date, shall be declared to be illegal or invalid for non-compliance with said law of January twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-four. [28 Stat. L. 62.]

This is from the Deficiency Appropriation Act of April 21, 1894, ch. 61. The Act mentioned in the text is incorporated into R. S. sec. 3709, supra, p. 93, as stated in the note thereunder.

"Miscellaneous supplies" explained.—Fuel, ice, and stationery are staples required by every department and every branch of the service. The word "miscellaneous" must be restricted to other supplies of the same general nature; in other words, to that class of commodities which must be purchased on a considerable scale and used alike by many or all of the various departments and government establishments in the city of Washington. (1894) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 59.

[Purchase or service for Department of Agriculture.] * * * That hereafter section thirty-seven hundred and nine of the Revised Statutes of the United States shall not be construed to apply to any purchase or service rendered in the Department of Agriculture when the aggregate amount involved does not exceed the sum of fifty dollars. * * * [30 Stat. L. 957.]

This is from the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act of March 1, 1899, ch. 325.

Sec. 3710. [Opening bids.] Whenever proposals for supplies have been solicited, the parties responding to such solicitation shall be duly notified of the time and place of opening the bids, and be permitted to be present either in person or by attorney, and a record of each bid shall then and there be made. [R. S.]

Res. No. 8, of Jan. 31, 1868, 15 Stat. L. 246.

Sec. 3711. [Inspection of fuel in District of Columbia.—appointment of inspectors, etc.] It shall not be lawful for any officer or person in the civil, military, or naval service of the United States in the District of Columbia to purchase anthracite or bituminous coal or wood for the public service except on condition that the same shall, before delivery, be inspected and weighed or measured by some competent person, to be appointed by the head of the Department or chief of the branch of the service for which the purchase is made from among the persons authorized to be employed in such Department or branch of the service. The person appointed under this section shall ascertain that each ton of coal weighed by him shall consist of two thousand two hundred and forty pounds, and that each cord of wood to be so measured shall be of the standard measure of one hundred and twenty-eight cubic feet. Each load or parcel of wood or coal weighed and measured by him shall be accompanied by his certificate of the number of tons or pounds of coal and the number of cords or parts of cords of wood in each load or parcel. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of March 15, 1898, ch. 68, sec. 6, 30 Stat. L. 316.

The section originally read as follows:

"Sec. 3711. It shall not be lawful for any officer or person in the civil, military, or naval service of the United States in the District of Columbia to purchase anthracite or bituminous coal or wood for the public service except on condition that the same shall, before delivery, be inspected and weighed or measured by some competent person to be appointed by the head of the Department or chief of the branch of the service for which the purchase is made. The person so appointed shall, before entering upon the duty of inspector, weigher, and measurer, and to the satisfaction of the appointing officer, give bond, with not less than two sureties, in the penal sum of five thousand dollars, and with condition that each ton of coal weighed by him shall consist of two thousand two hundred and forty pounds, and that each cord of wood to be so measured shall be of the standard measure of one hundred and twenty-eight cubic feet. The inspector, weigher, and measurer so appointed shall be entitled to receive from the venders of fuel weighed and measured by him twenty cents for each ton of coal weighed, and nine cents for each cord of wood measured by him. Each load or parcel of wood or coal weighed and measured by him shall be accompanied by his certificate of the number of tons or pounds of coal and the number of cords or parts of cords of wood in each load or parcel." Act of July 11, 1870, ch. 243, 16 Stat. L. 229.

It was first amended by the Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 177, sec. 6, 28 Stat. L. 808, to take effect on and after July 1, 1895, to read as follows:

"Sec. 3711. It shall not be lawful for any officer or person in the civil, military, or naval service of the United States in the District of Columbia to purchase anthracite or bituminous coal or wood for the public service except on condition that the same shall, before delivery, be inspected and weighed or measured by some competent person, to be appointed by the head of the Department or chief of the branch of the service for which the purchase is made from among the persons authorized to be employed in such Department or branch of the service: Provided, That the weigher and measurer of the Navy Department may be appointed outside of said Department, and that such weigher and measurer shall give bond and be paid as heretofore provided by law. The person appointed under this section shall ascertain that each ton of coal weighed by him shall consist of two thousand two hundred and forty pounds, and that each cord of wood to be so measured shall be of the standard measure of one hundred and twenty-eight cubic feet. Each load or parcel of wood or coal weighed and measured by him shall be accompanied by his certificate of the number of tons or pounds of coal and the number of cords or parts of cords of wood in each load or parcel." [28 Stat. L. 808.]

As thus amended it was again amended by the Act of March 15, 1898, ch. 68, sec. 6, as given in the text.

Sec. 3712. [Appointments to be notified to accounting officer.] The proper accounting officer of the Treasury shall be furnished with a copy of the appointment of each inspector, weigher, and measurer appointed under the preceding section. [R. S.]

Act of July 11, 1870, ch. 243, 16 Stat. L. 229.

Sec. 3713. [No payment without certificate.] It shall not be lawful for any accounting officer to pass or allow to the credit of any disbursing officer in the District of Columbia any money paid by him for purchase of anthracite or bituminous coal or for wood, unless the voucher therefor is accompanied by a certificate of the proper inspector, weigher, and measurer that the quantity paid for has been determined by such officer. [R. S.]

Act of July 11, 1870, ch. 243, 16 Stat. L. 229.

Sec. 3714. [Contracts for the military or naval service, how controlled.] All purchases and contracts for supplies or services for the military and naval service shall be made by or under the direction of the chief officers of the Departments of War and of the Navy, respectively. And all agents or contractors for supplies or service as aforesaid shall render their accounts for settlement to the accountant of the proper department for which such supplies or services are required, subject, nevertheless, to the inspection and revision of the officers of the Treasury in the manner before prescribed. [R. S.]

This section was amended by the Act of Feb. 27, 1877, ch. 69, 19 Stat. L. 249, by adding the closing provision of the section beginning with the words, "And all agents or contractors," etc., as above given. See further TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Who may contract for navy department. — All contracts and purchases entered into and made by the navy department must be entered into and made by or under the direction of the secretary. (1829) 2 Op. Atty.-Gen. 257.

Express contracts by commanding general. — The authority of the general commanding a military department, to bind the government by express contract in time of actual hostility and of great public danger, must be derived from the Constitution and the laws of the United States. Fremont Contract Cases, (1866) 2 Ct. Cl. 1.

Authority of commanding general to appoint purchasing agents.—The responsibility and discretion appertaining to the purchase of military supplies are vested in the officers of the quartermaster's department, therefore a commanding general cannot appoint a civilian purchasing agent of the government nor invest him with discretion to make express contracts, nor transfer to him the responsibility which the law enforces upon the quartermaster; nor has such agent power to bind the government by express contract. Fremont Contract Cases, (1866) 2 Ct. Cl. 1.

An officer of volunteers neither mustered into the United States service nor specially employed to make contracts for subsisting his troops cannot bind the United States by express contracts. Kirkham's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 224.

Repudiation of contract by quartermaster-general.—An order of the secretary of war directing the quartermaster-general to suspend making any new contracts for an article until it is tested does not authorize the quartermaster-general to repudiate the contracts already entered into for such article. Mann's Case, (1867) 3 Ct. Cl. 410.

Amounts due for war vessel.—The secretary of the navy has authority to settle the amounts due under a contract for the building of a war vessel and demands for extra work agreed upon and expenses incurred because of the department's action of which the government has received the benefit. Myerle v. U. S., (1896) 31 Ct. Cl. 126.

Recovery for services or property received under unauthorized contract.—Where the proper officers of the government receive services or property under a contract made by one who was not an authorized agent of the government and use such services or property for a lawful purpose, so that the government derives a lawful benefit therefrom, the contractor may recover the actual value of the property sold or service rendered. Fremont Contract Cases, (1866) 2 Ct. Cl. 1; Livingston's Case, (1867) 3 Ct. Cl. 135.

Sec. 3715. [Contracts for army subsistence.] Contracts for subsistence supplies for the Army, made by the Commissary-General, on public notice, shall provide for a complete delivery of such articles, on inspection, at such places as shall be stipulated. [R. S.]

Act of April 14, 1818, ch. 61, 3 Stat. L. 427; Act of March 3, 1835, ch. 49, 4 Stat. L. 780; Act of March 2, 1861, ch. 84, 12 Stat. L. 220.

Approval of contracts by commissary-general.—Prior to the passage of this Act, it was held, in Floyd's Case, (1866) 2 Ct. Cl. 429, that where there is no legal necessity for the approval of a contract by the commissary-general of subsistence it need not be transmitted to him, and though it be made in terms subject to his approval yet his approval may be inferred from his letters and acts and need not be indorsed formally on the contract.

Slaughter and packing of pork.—In Floyd's Case, (1866) 2 Ct. Cl. 429, it was held, under the acts prior to this section, that the commissary department was authorized to contract for the slaughter and packing of pork for the use of the army.

[Exceptional articles of subsistence stores.] * * * And hereafter exceptional articles of subsistence stores for officers and enlisted men, which are to be paid for by them, regardless of condition upon arrival at posts, may, under regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of War, be obtained by open purchase without advertising. * * * [28 Stat. L. 658.]

This is from the Army Appropriation Act of Feb. 12, 1895, ch. 83, under the appropriation for "subsistence of the army."

Sec. 3716. [Advertisements for supplies for Quartermaster's Department.] The Quartermaster's Department of the Army, in obtaining supplies for the military service, shall state in all advertisements for bids for contracts that a preference shall be given to articles of domestic production and manufacture, conditions of price and quality being equal, and that such preference shall be given to articles of American production and manufacture produced on the Pacific coast, to the extent of the consumption required by the public service there. In advertising for Army supplies the Quartermaster's Department shall require all articles which are to be used in the States and Territories of the Pacific coast to be delivered and inspected at points designated in those States and Territories; and the advertisements for such supplies shall be published in newspapers of the cities of San Francisco, in California, and Portland, in Oregon. [R. S.]

Act of July 13, 1866, ch. 176, 14 Stat. L. 92.

[Purchase of supplies by Quartermaster's and Commissary Departments—transportation of stores.] * * * That hereafter all purchases of regular and miscellaneous supplies for the Army furnished by the Quartermaster's Department and by the Commissary Department for immediate use shall be made by the officers of such Department, under direction of the Secretary of War, at the places nearest the points where they are needed, the conditions of cost and quality being equal: Provided also, That all purchases of said supplies, except in cases of emergency, which must be at once reported to the Secretary of War for his approval, shall be made by contract after public notice of not less than ten days for small amounts for immediate use, and of not less than from thirty to sixty days whenever, in the opinion of the Secretary of War, the circumstances of the case and conditions of the service shall warrant such extension of time. The award in every case shall be made to the lowest responsible bidder for the best and most suitable article, the right being reserved to reject any and all bids. The Quartermaster-General and the Commissary General of Subsistence shall report promptly all purchases of supplies made by his Department, with their cost-price and place of delivery, to the Secretary of War, for transmission to Congress annually: Provided further, That in time of peace the number of draught and pack animals in the Quartermaster's Department of the Army shall not exceed six thousand, and that all transportation of stores by private parties for the Army shall be done by contract, after due legal advertisement, except in cases of emergency, which must be at once reported to the Secretary of War for his approval. [23 Stat. L. 109.]

This and the two following sections are from the Army Appropriation Act of July 5, 1884, ch. 217.

Partial repeal.—The provisions in this and subsequent sections of this Act as to the report of purchases were directly repealed by the Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 177, sec. 1, given in ESTIMATES, APPROPRIATIONS, AND REPORTS, vol. 2, p. 925. The provision as to the number of draught and pack animals was superseded by the Act of Sept. 22, 1888, ch. 1027, sec. 1, infra, p. 104.

When emergency may arise.—An emergency may arise not only before the required public notice can be given, but after it has once been given, in consequence of the failure to receive any bids or proposals; in either case, the purchase thereupon would be an emergency purchase and come under the requirement of the statute for an immediate report to the secretary of war for his approval. (1886) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 349.

Machinery, stores, and patented articles.—

When parts of machinery or of stoves or ranges or patented articles are needed, these supplies are required by the statute to be purchased in the same way as other quartermaster's supplies, i. e., by contract, after public notice, except in cases of emergency in which cases the purchase should be reported to the secretary of war for his approval. (1886) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 349.

Slaughter, etc., of pork.—The war department, by its proper officers, may make a valid contract for the slaughtering, curing, and packing of pork, when that is the most expedient mode of securing army supplies of that kind. U. S. v. Speed, (1868) 8 Wall. (U. S.) 77, affirming (1866) 2 Ct. Cl. 429.

Contract with citizen of rebellious state.—“An express contract made in behalf of the United States during the rebellion, with a citizen and resident of an insurrectionary state, for quartermaster's supplies, if the officer making it acted under competent authority, is valid.” (1870) 13 Op. Atty.-Gen. 314.

[Purchase of horses for cavalry, artillery, and Indian scouts.] * * * That hereafter all purchases of horses under appropriations for horses for the cavalry and artillery and for the Indian scouts shall be made by contract, after legal advertisement, by the Quartermaster's Department, under instructions of the Secretary of War, the horses to be inspected under the orders of the General commanding the Army; and no horse shall be received and paid for until duly inspected. The Quartermaster-General shall report to the Secretary of War promptly, for transmission to Congress annually, all purchases and contracts for horses, mules, and military supplies for the Army made by his Department. * * * [23 Stat. L. 109.]

See note to preceding section.

Repeal of the provision requiring a report of all purchases and contracts, see note to preceding section.

The Army Appropriation Act of March 2, 1889, ch. 372, 25 Stat. L. 830, contains the following provision:

"For the purchase of horses for the cavalry and artillery, and for the Indian scouts, and for such infantry as may be mounted, and the expenses incident thereto, * * * dollars: Provided, That hereafter the number of horses purchased under this appropriation, added to the number on hand, shall not at any time exceed the number of enlisted men and Indian scouts in the mounted service; and that no part of this appropriation shall be paid out for horses not purchased by contract, after competition duly invited by the Quartermaster's Department, and an inspection by such Department, all under the direction and authority of the Secretary of War." * * * [25 Stat. L. 830.]

This provision, except the word "hereafter," has annually appeared in the army appropriation acts since Act of June 30, 1886, ch. 574, 24 Stat. L. 97, and is repeated also without the word "hereafter" in the Acts down to March 15, 1898, ch. 69, 30 Stat. L. 323, with some slight changes. The insertion of the word "hereafter" indicates an intention of making the provision permanent. Frequent instances are found in the Statutes at Large, in which a provision is repeated annually in appropriation acts until, by the insertion of the word "hereafter," permanence is given and the provision is not subsequently repeated. In this instance and in several others the provision subsequently appears, contrary to the usual rule. We know of no decision as to the permanency of the provision under such circumstances.

The Act of March 15, 1898, ch. 69, 30 Stat. L. 323, contains a provision as follows:

"HORSES FOR CAVALRY AND ARTILLERY:

For the purchase of horses for the cavalry and artillery, and for the Indian scouts, and for such infantry and members of the Hospital Corps in field campaigns as may be required to be mounted, and the expenses incident thereto, * * * dollars: Provided, That the number of horses purchased under this appropriation, added to the number on hand, shall not at any time exceed the number of enlisted men and Indian scouts in the mounted service, and that no part of this appropriation shall be paid out for horses not purchased by contract after competition duly invited by the Quartermaster's Department, and an inspection by such department, all under the direction and authority of the Secretary of War." [30 Stat. L. 323.]

These provisions were suspended by the Act of June 7, 1898, ch. 392, as amended by the Acts of March 3, 1899, ch. 436, and Feb. 24, 1900, ch. 24, with other provisions of the same Act as stated in a note under the provision relating to "Printing for Quartermaster's Department," infra, p. 104.

The provisions of the Army Appropriation Act of June 30, 1902, ch. 1328, on this subject are as follows:

"HORSES FOR CAVALRY AND ARTILLERY: For the purchase of horses for the cavalry and artillery, and for the Indian scouts, and for such infantry and members of the Hospital Corps in field campaigns as may be required to be mounted, and the expenses incident thereto, * * * dollars: Provided, That the number of horses purchased under this appropriation, added to the number now on hand, shall be limited to the actual needs of the mounted service, and unless otherwise ordered by the Secretary of War, no part of this appropriation shall be paid out for horses not purchased by contract after competition duly invited by the Quartermaster's Department, and an inspection under the direction and authority of the Secretary of War." [32 Stat. L. 515.]

[Purchase of means of transportation.] * * * That hereafter all purchases of horses, mules, or oxen, wagons, carts, drays, ships and other seagoing vessels, also all other means of transportation, shall be made by the Quartermaster's Department, by contract, after due legal advertisement except in cases of extreme emergency; and hereafter all purchases and contracts of every kind made by the Quartermaster's Department shall be promptly reported to the Secretary of War, for transmission annually to Congress: Provided also, That hereafter the Quartermaster-General and his officers, under his instructions, wherever stationed, shall receive, transport, and be responsible for all property turned over to them, or any one of them, by the officers or agents of any Government survey, for the National Museum, or for the civil or naval departments of the Government, in Washington or elsewhere, under the regulations governing the transportation of Army supplies, the amount paid for such transportation to be refunded or paid by the Bureau to which such property or stores pertain. * * * [23 Stat. L. 110.]

See note to preceding sections.

[SEC. 1.] [Limit of draught and pack animals.] * * * Army transportation: For transportation of the Army, including * * * the purchase and hire of draught and pack animals: * * * Provided, That hereafter no part of this appropriation shall be expended in the purchase for the Army of draught animals until the number on hand shall be reduced to five thousand, and thereafter shall only be expended for the purchase of a number sufficient to keep the supply up to five thousand. * * * [25 Stat. L. 486.]

This is from the Army Appropriation Act of Sept. 22, 1898, ch. 1027.

The provisions of this Act were suspended together with provisions of the Act of March 15, 1898, ch. 69, as set forth in note thereto under the following text.

[Printing for Quartermaster's Department.] * * * That hereafter no part of the appropriations for the Quartermaster's Department shall be expended on printing unless the same shall be done by contract, after due notice and competition, except in such cases as the emergency will not admit of the giving notice for competition: * * * [30 Stat. L. 322.]

This is from the Act of March 15, 1898, ch. 69, entitled "An Act making appropriations for the support of the army for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine." It is a repetition of a similar provision occurring in the annual appropriation acts of Feb. 12, 1895, ch. 83, 28 Stat. L. 658; March 16, 1896, ch. 58, 29 Stat. L. 64; March 2, 1897, ch. 362, 29 Stat. L. 613.

The provisions of the above section were, by the Act of June 7, 1898, ch. 392, 30 Stat. L. 433, "suspended in the discretion of the secretary of war during the existing war."

This was amended by the Act of March 3, 1899, ch. 436, 30 Stat. L. 1350, to read "suspended for such further time as, in the discretion of the Secretary of War, may be found necessary, or until otherwise provided by Congress, not longer, however, than March first, nineteen hundred." The latter provision was amended by Act of Feb. 24, 1900, ch. 24, 31 Stat. L. 32, to read "suspended for such further time as, in the discretion of the Secretary of War, may be found necessary, or until otherwise authorized by Congress, not longer, however, than June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and one."

[Printing for Quartermaster's Department.] * * * That no part of the appropriations for the Quartermaster's Department shall be expended on printing, unless the same shall be done by contract after due notice and competition, except in such cases as the emergency will not admit of the giving notice of competition; and in cases where it is impracticable to have the necessary printing done by contract the same may be done, with the approval of the Secretary of War, by the hire of the necessary labor for the purpose: * * * [32 Stat. L. 514.]

This and the following section are from the Army Appropriation Act of June 30, 1902, ch. 1328.

A similar provision was contained in the Act of March 2, 1901, ch. 803, 31 Stat. L. 905.

[Supplies for departments and posts of the Army.] * * * That hereafter, except in cases of emergency or where it is impracticable to secure competition, the purchase of all supplies for the use of the various departments and posts of the Army and of the branches of the Army service shall only be made after advertisement, and shall be purchased where the same can be purchased the cheapest, quality and cost of transportation and the interests of the Government considered; but every open-market emergency purchase made in the manner common among business men which exceeds in amount two hundred dollars shall be reported for approval to the Secretary of War under such regulations as he may prescribe. [32 Stat. L. 514.]

This is from the Army Appropriation Act of June 30, 1902, ch. 1328, immediately following the provision in the preceding text. A similar provision was contained in the Act of March 2, 1901, ch. 803, 31 Stat. L. 905.

The Army Appropriation Act of March 15, 1888, ch. 69, 30 Stat. L. 322, contained a provision as follows: " * * * That after advertisement all the supplies for the use of the various departments and posts of the Army and of the branches of the Army service shall hereafter be purchased where the same can be purchased the cheapest, in the markets of the United States, quality and cost of transportation and the interest of the Government considered, except that purchases may be made in open market, in the manner common among business men, when the aggregate amount required does not exceed two hundred dollars, but every such purchase shall be immediately reported to the Secretary of War." * * * [30 Stat. L. 322.]

This provision down to the words "except that" has appeared in every army appropriation act since Act of Sept. 22, 1888, ch. 1027, 25 Stat. L. 481. The balance of the section has appeared since Act of Aug. 6, 1894, ch. 228, 28 Stat. L. 238, except that "in the markets of the United States" was first added by Act of March 2, 1897, ch. 362, 29 Stat. L. 613. The provision as it appears in the above note was suspended by the Act of June 7, 1898, ch. 392, and its amendments as set forth supra, p. 104, in note. It is now superseded by the provisions in the text.

[Technical and scientific supplies for Military Academy.] * * * That all technical and scientific supplies for the departments of instruction of the Military Academy shall be purchased by contract or otherwise, as the Secretary of War may deem best. [25 Stat. L. 12.]

This is from the Military Academy Appropriation Act of May 1, 1888, ch. 212. The same provision has been repeated in the subsequent appropriation acts of Feb. 12, 1889, ch. 137, 25 Stat. L. 666; March 2, 1889, ch. 372, 25 Stat. L. 829; June 20, 1890, ch. 437, 26 Stat. L. 168; March 2, 1891, ch. 495, 26 Stat. L. 821; July 14, 1892, ch. 172, 27 Stat. L. 172; March 1, 1893, ch. 186, 27 Stat. L.

[Expenditures on buildings, military posts, or grounds.] * * * That hereafter no expenditures exceeding five hundred dollars shall be made upon any building or military post, or grounds about the same, without the approval of the Secretary of War for the same, upon detailed estimates by the Quartermaster's Department; and the erection, construction, and repair of all buildings and other public structures in the Quartermaster's Department shall, as far as may be practicable, be made by contract, after due legal advertisement: * * * [27 Stat. L. 484.]

"This provision, without the word 'hereafter,' but otherwise without important change, has occurred in every army appropriation Act since 1884. See 23 Stat. L. 111, 360; 24 Stat. L. 97, 399; 25 Stat. L. 487, 830; 26 Stat. L. 155, 776; 27 Stat. L. 180, 484." Compilers' note, 2 Supp. R. S. 94.

"A claim for extras may not be allowed until the conditions precedent have been complied with. Therefore the payment of a claim for extras where no contract therefor is made in writing and where the expenditures amounting to over five hundred dollars were not submitted to the secretary of war for approval may not be allowed under R. S. secs. 3714, 3744, construed with the Act of April 10, 1878, ch. 58, 20 Stat. 36; Act of Feb. 27, 1893, ch. 168, 27 Stat. 484, and supplemented by par. 825 of the army regulations." Churchyard v. U. S., (1900) 100 Fed. Rep. 920.

[Construction of quarters for hospital stewards.] * * * For construction of quarters for hospital stewards at military posts already established and occupied, * * * dollars: Provided, That hereafter the posts at which such quarters shall be constructed shall be designated by the Secretary of War, and such quarters shall be built by contract, after legal advertisement, whenever the same is practicable. [27 Stat. L. 484.]

See note to prior section.

"This provision, without the word 'hereafter,' has appeared in every army appropriation Act since 1886. See 24 Stat. L. 98, 399; 25 Stat. L. 486, 831; 26 Stat. L. 154, 777; 27 Stat. L. 181, 484." Compilers' note, 2 Supp. R. 8. 94.

[Advertisement not required for medicines and medical supplies.] * * * That hereafter so much of section thirty-seven hundred and nine, Revised Statutes, as requires advertisement before purchase shall not apply to the purchase of medicines and medical supplies. * * * [27 Stat. L. 485.]

This is from the Army Appropriation Act of Feb. 27, 1893, ch. 168, under the provisions for appropriations for "medical department." The same provision, without the word "hereafter," appeared in the Army Appropriation Act of July 16, 1892, ch. 195, 27 Stat. L. 181. R. S. sec. 3709 is given supra, p. 93.

"It has not yet been decided whether this provision is permanent or limited only to the appropriation contained in this Act. It is repeated from 1896, June 6, ch. 338, 29 Stat. L. 257, except that the price is reduced from twenty-four to twenty-three cents per pound." Compilers' note, 2 Supp. R. S. 596.

[Ordnance and ordnance stores and supplies.] * * * Purchase of ordnance and ordnance stores and supplies may be made by the Ordnance Department in open market, in the manner common among business men, when the aggregate of the amount required does not exceed two hundred dollars, but every such purchase shall be immediately reported to the Secretary of War. * * * [28 Stat. L. 242.]

vision superseded a similar provision of Act of July 16, 1892, ch. 195, 27 Stat. L. 182.

Sec. 3717. [Separate proposals required for works, etc.] Whenever the Secretary of War invites proposals for any works, or for any material or labor for any works, there shall be separate proposals and separate contracts for each work, and also for each class of material or labor for each work. An act to authorize the Secretary of War to prescribe rules and regulations to be observed in the preparation, submission, and opening of bids for contracts under the War Department.

[Secretary of War to make rules as to bids for contracts, require bonds, etc.] That the Secretary of War is hereby authorized to prescribe rules and regulations to be observed in the preparation and submission and opening of bids for contracts under the War Department. And he may require every bid to be accompanied by a written guarantee, signed by one or more responsible persons, to the effect that he or they undertake that the bidder, if his bid is accepted, will, at such time as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War or the officer authorized to make a contract in the premises, give bond, with good and sufficient sureties, to furnish the supplies proposed or to perform the service required. If after the acceptance of a bid and a notification thereof to the bidder he fails within the time prescribed by the Secretary of War or other duly authorized officer to enter into a contract and furnish a bond with good and sufficient security for the proper fulfillment of its terms, the Secretary or other authorized officer shall proceed to contract with some other person to furnish the supplies or perform the service required, and shall forthwith cause the difference between the amount specified by the bidder in default in the proposal and the amount for which he may have contracted with another party to furnish the supplies or perform the service for the whole period of the proposal to be charged up against the bidder and his guarantor or guarantors, and the sum may be immediately recovered by the United States for the use of the War Department in an action of debt against either or all of such persons. [20 Stat. L. 36, 22 Stat. L. 487.]

This Act was amended by the Act of March 3, 1883, ch. 120, 22 Stat. L. 487, by striking out all provisions following the words "War Department" first appearing therein and inserting the provisions as they appear above. The provision stricken out was as follows:

"And he may require any bid to be accompanied by a bond in such penal sum as he may deem advisable, with good and sufficient security, conditioned that the bidder will enter into a contract agreeably to the terms of his bid, if the same be awarded to him within sixty days from the date of the opening of the bids, or otherwise pay the penalty. No bid shall be withdrawn by the bidder within the said period of sixty days."

Amending other acts.—In Churchyard v. U. S., (1900) 100 Fed. Rep. 920, this Act was cited as an amendment to R. S. secs. 3714, 3744.

Formal defects.—In specific cases the secretary of war is authorized to waive formal defects in bids and bonds in order to secure the public advantage resulting from competitive bidding. (1897) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 469.

Insertion of dates.—A bond accompanying a bid to build certain public works, duly signed, sealed, and delivered, the separate proposals constituting the bid and the bond being on printed blanks bound together and consecutively paged in print, is not sufficiently defective as to be regarded as invalid because the dates of the bid and bond are not inserted in the blanks left for that purpose in printing the instrument. (1897) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 469.

SEC. 2. [Secretary of War to give preference to domestic materials and labor.] That in all contracts for material for any public improvement, the Secretary of War shall give preference to American material; and all labor thereon shall be performed within the jurisdiction of the United States. [18 Stat. L. 455.]

This is from the Army Appropriation Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 133.

Sec. 3718. [Naval supplies to be furnished by contract.] All provisions, clothing, hemp, and other materials of every name and nature, for the use of the Navy, and the transportation thereof, when time will permit, shall be furnished by contract, by the lowest bidder, as follows: In the case of provisions, clothing, hemp, and other materials, the Secretary of the Navy shall advertise, twice a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, or once a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy, in one or more of the principal papers published in the place where such articles are to be furnished, for sealed proposals for furnishing the same, or the whole of any particular class thereof, specifying the classes of materials and referring bidders to the several chiefs of Bureaus, who will furnish them with printed schedules, giving a full description of each and every article, with dates of delivery, and so forth. In the case of transportation of such articles, he shall advertise for a period of not less than five days. All such proposals shall be kept sealed until the day specified in such advertisement for opening the same, when they shall be opened by or under the direction of the officer making such advertisement, in the presence of at least two persons. The person offering to furnish any class of such articles, and giving satisfactory security for the performance thereof, under a forfeiture not exceeding twice the contract price in case of failure, shall receive a contract for furnishing the same. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of March 3, 1893, ch. 212, 27 Stat. L. 724. It was first amended by the Act of June 30, 1890, ch. 640, 26 Stat. L. 197, by striking out the words "once a week, for at least four weeks," originally appearing therein, and inserting in lieu thereof the words "twice a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy."

It was again amended by the Act of July 19, 1892, ch. 206, 27 Stat. L. 243, so as to read "twice a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, or once a week for four weeks, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy."

It was again amended by the Act of March 3, 1893, ch. 212, 27 Stat. L. 724, so as to read "twice a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, or once a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy," as given in the text.

Substantial compliance sufficient.—The controlling purpose of these provisions and

R. S. sec. 3719 plainly is to secure the contract to the lowest bidder who will honestly perform it. The directions of the statutes as to the manner of advertising for and receiving proposals, and as to the form of the proposals themselves, are intended to accomplish this purpose, and a failure by the lowest bidder to comply with them ought not to exclude his proposal from consideration, unless it be such an omission as will deprive the government of the requisite security against loss by violation or nonperformance of the contract. If the proposal exhibit a substantial compliance with the provision of the law as to its form, and if it be the lowest bid, its rejection for an immaterial informality would be in disregard of the meaning of Congress. (1861) 10 Op. Atty.-Gen. 140.

Purpose of articles included.—As provisions, clothing, and hemp, for the use of the navy, were specifically mentioned, Congress was merely providing for the current and necessary expenses of that branch of the service. The general phraseology, "and other materials of every name and nature," was designed to include the other articles demanded for the same purpose. (1849) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 89.

Award to the lowest bidder.—The secretary of the navy is obliged to give contracts for supplies to the lowest bidder who fills the requirements as to security, etc., but he is the person charged with the duty of ascertaining the facts in this regard, and his decision is not reviewable in any court. (1894) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 56.

Modification of terms of contract.—The navy department has not the right in awarding the contract to the lowest bidder to modify its terms in regard to the time of delivery, or any other of its material elements. (1844) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 334.

Contract with patentee.—"If the article needed be one for which the secretary of the navy may negotiate without advertising for proposals, it would seem that the secretary may contract with a patentee of the article to furnish the needed supply." (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 407.

Patentee lowest bidder.—If the patentee of an article is the lowest bidder for furnishing that article the secretary of the navy may accept his proposal and make a contract with him. (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 407.

Contracts entered into by infants with the officers of the government are valid and obligatory, notwithstanding such infancy, unless the infants themselves take measures to avoid them. (1844) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 333.

Contracts for hemp.—The secretary of the navy in contracting for water-rotted hemp, for the use of the navy, is restricted in the manner of purchase by this Act, which requires him to advertise for the article, to receive bids, and to award the contract for it to the lowest bidder. (1846) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 475.

Renewal of contract.—In (1843) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 283, it was held that since the Act of March 3, 1843, the secretary of the navy is not competent to renew a contract which has expired without advertising as is required by the first section of that Act.

[Gun steel and armor for Navy.] * * * That no contract for the purchase of gun steel or armor for the Navy shall hereafter be made until the subject-matter of the same shall have been submitted to public competition by the Department by advertisement. [27 Stat. L. 732.]

March 2, 1891, ch. 494, 26 Stat. L. 815, and July 19, 1892, ch. 206, 27 Stat. L. 251.

[Classification, etc., and issue of naval supplies.] * * * For expenses of arranging, classifying, consolidating, and cataloguing supplies for the Navy, herein provided for and now on hand, ten thousand dollars; and all supplies purchased with moneys appropriated by this act shall be deemed to be purchased for the Navy and not for any bureau thereof, and these supplies, together with all supplies now on hand, shall be arranged, classified, consolidated, and catalogued, and issued for consumption or use, under such regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, without regard to the bureau for which they were purchased. [26 Stat. L. 205.]

This is from the Naval Appropriation Act of June 30, 1890, ch. 640.

[Naval supplies, how purchased and issued.] * * * All supplies hereafter purchased with moneys appropriated for any branch of the naval estab-

ishment shall be purchased, classified, and issued for consumption or use subject to the provisions contained in the act making appropriations for the naval service, approved June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety, in reference to supplies therein provided for and on hand. * * * [26 Stat. L. 807.]

This is from the Naval Appropriation Act of March 2, 1891, ch. 494.

ch. 640, referred to in the text, are set forth supra, p. 109.

The provisions of the Act of June 30, 1890,

Sec. 3719. [Guarantee of bid or certified check as security.] Every proposal for naval supplies invited by the Secretary of the Navy, under the preceding section, shall be accompanied by a written guarantee, signed by one or more responsible persons, to the effect that he or they undertake that the bidder, if his bid is accepted, will, at such time as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Navy, give bond, with good and sufficient sureties, to furnish the supplies proposed; and no proposal shall be considered, unless accompanied by such guarantee. If, after the acceptance of a proposal, and a notification thereof to the bidder, he fails to give such bond within the time prescribed by the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary shall proceed to contract with some other person for furnishing the supplies; and shall forthwith cause the difference between the amount contained in the proposal so guaranteed and the amount for which he may have contracted for furnishing the supplies, for the whole period of the proposal, to be charged up against the bidder and his guarantor; and the same may be immediately recovered by the United States, for the use of the Navy Department, in an action of debt against either or all of such persons. Provided, That the Secretary of the Navy may, in his discretion, accept, in lieu of the written guaranty required to accompany a proposal for naval supplies, and in lieu of the bond required for the faithful performance of a contract for furnishing such supplies, a certified check, payable to the order of the Secretary of the Navy, for the full amount of such proposal or contract, the check to be held by the Secretary of the Navy until the requirements of the proposal or contract shall be complied with and as a guaranty for compliance with the same. [R. S.]

Act of Aug. 10, 1846, ch. 176, 9 Stat. L. 101.

This section was amended by the Act of May 25, 1896, ch. 239, 29 Stat. L. 136, by adding the final proviso reading, "Provided, That the Secretary of the Navy," etc.

The "preceding section" mentioned in the text is R. S. sec. 3718, supra, p. 108.

Discretion of secretary.—The time within which contracts for supplies shall be completed, depending as it does on the exigencies of the service, must necessarily be left to the discretion of the secretary of the navy. (1861) 10 Op. Atty-Gen. 140.

Determination of time.—The time within which the contract is to be made is not fixed by law, but is to be prescribed by the secretary of the navy. If the secretary be satisfied that the offer, being the lowest, is, under all the circumstances, the most advantageous to the government, it is certainly within his power to accept it, even if it propose a longer time for entering into the contract. (1861) 10 Op. Atty-Gen. 140.

Proposal to complete contract later than advertised time.—Where the secretary of the navy has advertised for proposals to furnish naval supplies, he may consider the proposal of the lowest bidder where the bid is in substantial compliance with the law, although it names a time for the completion of the contract five days beyond that fixed in the advertisement. (1861) 10 Op. Atty-Gen. 140.

Withdrawal of bid.—Strictly construed this statute does not prevent a withdrawal of the bid before its acceptance, but liberally construed it may fairly be held that it binds the bidder to stand by his bid at least after the hour of opening. (1894) 21 Op. Atty-Gen. 56.

Award after failure of lowest bidder.—Where the lowest bidder has failed to perform the requisite conditions after his bid is accepted, it is not necessarily the duty of the secretary of the navy to award the contract to the next lowest bidder. (1894) 21 Op. Atty-Gen. 56.

Effect of extension.—The extension of the contract, so far as a forfeiture is concerned, is for the benefit of the contractor, to enable him to do that the omission of which has exposed him to sacrifice, and is nothing more than a conditional waiver, to which effect can be given only by the full compliance by the contractor with his renewed engagements within the period of the extension. (1843) 4 Op. Atty-Gen. 283.

Failure to perform joint contract.—Where moneys are due to several joint contractors, the navy department cannot deduct from those moneys the amount of the forfeiture due to the United States under an unfulfilled contract between the government and one of the said contractors. (1864) 11 Op. Atty.-Gen. 120.

Deduction on one contract for failure to perform another.—Where a contractor has entered into two contracts with the navy department and has fulfilled one of them, but failed to perform the other, the department in settling with the contractor may lawfully deduct from the moneys due, on the first or executed contract, the amount of the forfeiture stipulated to be paid in the second contract in the event of a failure on the part of the contractor to perform it. (1864) 11 Op. Atty.-Gen. 120.

The sureties to a contract made by an infant are clearly bound for his faithful performance of the contract; for, though the infant may excuse himself on the ground of his nonage the privilege is personal to himself and cannot be made available as a defense by them. (1844) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 333.

Sec. 3720. [Record of bid and report to Congress.] All such proposals for naval supplies shall be preserved and recorded, and reported by the Secretary of the Navy to Congress at the commencement of every regular session. The report shall contain a schedule embracing the offers by classes, indicating such as have been accepted. In case of a failure to supply the articles or to perform the work by the person entering into such contract, he and his sureties shall be liable for the forfeiture specified in such contract, as liquidated damages, to be sued for in the name of the United States. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1843, ch. 83, 5 Stat. L. 617.

Sec. 3721. [Purchases without advertisements.] The provisions which require that supplies shall be purchased by the Secretary of the Navy from the lowest bidder, after advertisement, shall not apply to ordnance, gunpowder, or medicines, or the supplies which it may be necessary to purchase out of the United States for vessels on foreign stations, or bunting delivered for the use of the Navy, or tobacco, or butter or cheese destined for the use of the Navy, or things contraband of war. Contracts for butter and cheese for the use of the Navy may be made for periods longer than one year, if, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Navy, economy and the quality of the ration will be promoted thereby. The Secretary of the Navy may enter into contracts for tobacco, from time to time, as the service requires, for a period not exceeding four years; and in making such contracts he shall not be restricted to the lowest bidder, unless, in his opinion, economy and the best interests of the service will be thereby promoted. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1845, ch. 77, 5 Stat. L. 794; Act of March 3, 1847, ch. 48, 9 Stat. L. 172; Act of Aug. 3, 1848, ch. 121, 9 Stat. L. 272; Act of March 2, 1865, ch. 74, 13 Stat. L. 467.

The provisions of Act of Aug. 5, 1882, ch. 391, sec. 1, 22 Stat. L. 288, defining the words "ordnance" and "gunpowder," as used in this section, were expressly repealed by the Act of July 5, 1884, ch. 235, sec. 4, 23 Stat. L. 159.

Purchase of patent from naval officer.—The question of the right of the secretary of navy to contract with an officer of the navy for the purchase of patent rights and improvements in ordnance for use in the navy is determined under the provisions of this section, and not under the provisions of R. S. sec. 3718. (1892) 20 Op. Atty.-Gen. 329.

"The secretary of the navy may lawfully contract with an ensign of the navy for the purchase of patent rights and improvements in 'B. L. R. ordnance' for use in the navy when the ensign was not employed to make experiments, paid himself the expenses of obtaining letters patent, and when no expense was authorized or facility furnished by the bureau of ordnance to aid him in making or perfecting his invention." (1892) 20 Op. Atty.-Gen. 329.

A contract with a gun company for the manufacture and delivery to the navy department of a number of guns, the manufacture of materials to be subject to the inspection and approval of the department, supplemented by an agreement providing for the manufacture of the guns at a particular place, and for keeping an account of the cost of labor involved, in order to arrive at the remuneration ultimately to be paid to said gun company, is a contract for supplies to the navy department, and not for services, and a contract with another company for the manufacture of any of said guns may be made by the navy department as a contract for ordnance without submitting the subject-matter thereof to competition by public advertisement. (1897) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 577.

Joint resolution to allow the Secretary of the Navy to purchase plate iron and other material used in the construction of steamboilers for the United States Navy.

[Materials for steam boilers for Navy.] That on and after the passage of this act, the Secretary of the Navy be, and he is hereby authorized to purchase at the lowest market price, such plate iron and other material as may enter into the construction of steam boilers for the Navy without advertising for bids to furnish the same: Provided, That he shall cause to be sent to the principal dealers and manufacturers of iron and such other materials as may be required specifications of the quality description and character of such iron and materials so required: And provided further, That such plate iron and materials shall be subjected to the same tests and inspection as now provided for and which inspection and tests shall be made publicly and in presence of such bidders or their authorized agents as may choose to attend at the making thereof. [20 Stat. L. 253.]

[Tobacco for the Navy.] * * * And the Secretary of the Navy is hereby authorized and directed to cause advertisement to be made for tobacco for the use of the Navy, as the needs of the service may require, in the manner prescribed by law for other supplies. Bidders shall submit with their proposals a sample of the tobacco which they propose to furnish, and the contract shall, in the discretion of the Department, be awarded to the bidder whose sample is found by a board of officers to be best adapted for use in the Navy. * * * [29 Stat. L. 370.]

This is from the Naval Appropriation Act of June 10, 1896, ch. 399. It superseded the provisions of the Act of March 3, 1881, ch. 147, 21 Stat. L. 509, entitled "An act to regulate the mode of purchasing tobacco for the United States Navy," as follows:

"That the Secretary of the Navy be, and he is hereby, directed to cause all purchases of tobacco for the use of the Navy to be made in the city of Washington, and as follows: In the month of February or March of each year the Secretary of the Navy shall cause proposals for bids for supplying the Navy with tobacco during the next year to be advertised thirty days in one daily newspaper in each of the cities of New York, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, Baltimore, Richmond, Raleigh, North Carolina, Saint Louis, Louisville, Nashville, Hartford, Connecticut, Detroit, Cairo, Illinois, and Chicago; said tobacco to be manufactured during the months of June, July, August, and September; the bids to be accompanied by samples of the tobacco which each bidder may propose to furnish. The lowest bid for furnishing tobacco equal to the United States Navy standard now in use shall be accepted." [21 Stat. L. 509.]

Sec. 3722. [What bids may be rejected — opening bids.] The chief of any Bureau of the Navy Department, in contracting for naval supplies, shall be at liberty to reject the offer of any person who, as principal or surety, has been a defaulter in any previous contract with the Navy Department. Parties who have made default as principals or sureties in any former contract shall not be received as sureties on other contracts; nor shall the copartners of any firm be received as sureties for such firm or for each other; nor, in contracts with the same Bureau, shall one contractor be received as surety for another. Every contract shall require the delivery of a specified quantity, and no bids having nominal or fictitious prices shall be considered. If more than one bid be offered by any one party, by or in the name of his or their clerk, partner, or other person, all such bids may be rejected; and no person shall be received as a contractor who is not a manufacturer of, or regular dealer in, the articles which he offers to supply. All persons offering bids shall have the right to be present when the bids are opened and inspect the same. [R. S.]

Res. No. 32, of March 3, 1863, 12 Stat. L. 828.

Sec. 3723. [Contracts for foreign supplies for the Navy.] No chief of a Bureau shall make any contract for supplies for the Navy, to be executed in a foreign country, except it be on first advertising for at least thirty days in two daily newspapers of the city of New York, inviting sealed bids for furnishing the supplies desired; which bids shall be opened in the presence of the Secretary of the Navy and the heads of two Bureaus; and contracts shall in all cases be awarded to the lowest bidder; and paymasters for the Navy on foreign stations shall render, when practicable, with their accounts, an official certificate from the resident consul, or commercial or consular agent of the United States, if there be one, to be furnished gratuitously, vouching that all purchases and expenditures made by the paymasters were made at the ruling market-prices of the place at the time of purchase or expenditure. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1871, ch. 117, 16 Stat. L. 535.

Sec. 3724. [Rejection of excessive bids.] Where articles are advertised and bid for in classes, and in the judgment of the Secretary of the Navy any one or more articles appear to be bid for at excessive or unreasonable prices, exceeding ten per centum above their fair market-value, he shall be authorized to reject such bid. [R. S.]

Act of July 4, 1864, ch. 252, 13 Stat. L. 394.

Sec. 3725. [Hemp.] All hemp, or preparations of hemp, used for naval purposes by the Government of the United States, shall be of American growth or manufacture, when the same can be obtained of as good quality and at as low a price as foreign hemp. [R. S.]

Act of July 14, 1862, ch. 163, 12 Stat. L. 554.

Sec. 3726. [Preserved meats, etc.] The Secretary of the Navy is authorized to procure the preserved meats, pickles, butter, and desiccated vegetables, in such manner and under such restrictions and guarantees as in his opinion will best insure the good quality of said articles. [R. S.]

Act of July 18, 1861, ch. 7, 12 Stat. L. 265.

Sec. 3727. [Flour and bread.] The Secretary of the Navy is authorized to purchase, in such manner as he shall deem most advantageous to the Government, the flour required for naval use; and to have the bread for the Navy baked from this flour by special contract under naval inspection. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1863, ch. 118, 12 Stat. L. 818.

Sec. 3728. [Home manufactures to be preferred.] The Secretary of the Navy, in making contracts and purchases of articles for naval purposes, shall give the preference, all other things, including price and quality, being equal, to articles of the growth, production, and manufacture of the United States. In purchasing fuel for the Navy, or for naval stations and yards, the Secretary of the Navy shall have power to discriminate and purchase, in such manner as he may deem proper, that kind of fuel which is best adapted to the purpose for which it is to be used. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 80, 9 Stat. L. 513, 515.

Sec. 3729. [Bunting.] The Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of the Treasury may enter into contract, in open market, for bunting of American manufacture, as their respective services require, for a period not exceeding one year, and at a price not exceeding that at which an article of equal quality can be imported. [R. S.]

Act of March 2, 1865, ch. 74, 13 Stat. L. 467.

Sec. 3730. [Relinquishment of reservations on deliveries.] The Secretary of the Navy may relinquish and pay all reservations of the ten per centum upon deliveries made under contracts with the Navy Department, where these reservations have arisen and the contracts have been afterward extended, or where the contracts have been completed after the time of delivery, by and with the consent of the Department, or where the contracts have been dissolved by the like consent, or have been terminated, or an extension thereof has been prevented by operation of law, where no injury has been sustained by the public service. [R. S.]

Act of June 17, 1844, ch. 107, 5 Stat. L. 703.

Payment of reserved percentage.—It is not competent for the department to pay to the contractors upon forfeited contracts the ten per cent. reserved as collateral security, whether the same has been reserved on original or renewed contracts. (1843) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 283.

Sec. 3731. [Name of contractor to appear on supplies.] Every person who shall furnish supplies of any kind to the Army or Navy shall be required to mark and distinguish the same with the name of the contractor furnishing such supplies, in such manner as the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy may, respectively, direct; and no supplies of any kind shall be received, unless so marked and distinguished. [R. S.]

Act of July 17, 1862, ch. 209, 12 Stat. L. 596.

SEC. 9. [Bidders for supplies, etc., for Indian service — certified checks to accompany bids.] That hereafter all bidders under any advertisement published by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs for proposals for goods, supplies, transportation, and so forth, for and on account of the Indian service, whenever the value of the goods, supplies, and so forth, to be furnished, or the transportation to be performed, shall exceed the sum of five thousand dollars, shall accompany their bids with a certified check, or draft payable to the order of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, upon some United States depository or some one of such solvent national banks as the Secretary of the Interior may designate, which check or draft shall be five per centum on the amount of the goods, supplies, transportation, and so forth, as aforesaid; and in case any such bidder, on being awarded a contract, shall fail to execute the same with good and sufficient sureties according to the terms on which such bid was made and accepted, such bidder shall forfeit the amount so deposited to the United States, and the same shall forthwith be paid into the Treasury of the United States; but if such contract shall be duly executed, as aforesaid, such draft or check so deposited shall be returned to the bidder. [18 Stat. L. 450.]

This is from the Indian Department Appropriation Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 132. A provision similar to the above, except in the use of the words "or solvent national bank" in place of the words "or some one of such solvent national banks as the secretary of the interior may designate," as used here, was contained in the Act of June 22, 1874, ch. 389, sec. 6, 18 Stat. L. 176.

[Transportation of Indian supplies.] * * * That hereafter contracts involving an expenditure of more than two thousand dollars shall be advertised and let to the lowest responsible bidder. * * * [19 Stat. L. 291.]

This is from the Indian Department Appropriation Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 101, under the appropriation for "transportation." The clause immediately preceding the above is as follows: "And whenever practicable wagon transportation may be performed by Indian labor; and whenever it is so performed the Commissioner of Indian Affairs is hereby authorized to hire a storehouse at any railroad whenever necessary, and to employ a storekeeper therefor, and to furnish in advance the Indians who will do the transportation with wagons and harness, all the expenses incurred under this provision, to be paid out of this appropriation: Provided,"

[SEC. 1.] [Transportation of Indian supplies.] * * * That from and after the passage of this Act, Indian goods and supplies shall be transported under contract as provided in the Act of March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, or in open market by common carriers, as the Secretary of the Interior in his discretion shall determine. [30 Stat. L. 676.]

This is from the Deficiencies Appropriation Act of July 7, 1898, ch. 571. The provision referred to in the text is set out in the preceding section.

Sec. 4667. [Contracts for erection of light-houses must be upon advertisement for proposals.] No contract for the erection of any light-house shall be made except after public advertisement for proposals in such form and manner as to secure general notice thereof, and the same shall only be made with the lowest bidder therefor, upon security deemed sufficient in the judgment of the Secretary of the Treasury. [R. S.]

Act of March 2, 1867, ch. 149, 14 Stat. L. 425.

[Heating apparatus for public buildings.] * * * That contracts shall be made by the Secretary of the Treasury for furnishing and putting in heating apparatus for public buildings, upon advertisements in some leading newspaper in the State where each building is situated, containing specifications of the kind of heating apparatus required, and such contracts shall be made with the lowest responsible bidder therefor. * * * [24 Stat. L. 512.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 362.

[Transportation of moneys, bullion, securities, etc.] * * * Hereafter whenever it is practicable contracts for the transportation of moneys, bullion, coin, notes, bonds, and other securities of the United States, and paper shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder therefor, after notice to all parties having means of transportation. * * * [23 Stat. L. 204.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 7, 1884, ch. 332.

SEC. 25. [Cartage of merchandise in custody of Government.] That public cartage of merchandise in the custody of the Government shall be let after not less than thirty days' notice of such letting to the lowest responsible bidder giving sufficient security, and shall be subject to regulations approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. [18 Stat. L. 191.]

This is from the Act of June 22, 1874, ch. 391, entitled "An Act to amend the customs-revenue laws and to repeal moieties."

Government cartage only.—This Act applies only to such cartage as is paid for by the government and not to cartage the expense of which is paid by the individual importer. (1891) 20 Op. Atty.-Gen. 35.

Baggage for barge office.—It is within the power of the secretary of the treasury to make a contract for the transportation of the baggage of passengers from foreign ports from the landing to the barge office for examination by the customs officers. Starin v. U. S., (1896) 31 Ct. Cl. 65.

Sec. 3732. [Unauthorized contracts prohibited.] No contract or purchase on behalf of the United States shall be made, unless the same is authorized by law or is under an appropriation adequate to its fulfillment, except in the War and Navy Departments, for clothing, subsistence, forage, fuel, quarters, or transportation, which, however, shall not exceed the necessities of the current year. [R. S.]

No expenditures beyond appropriations.—See R. S. sec. 3679, in ESTIMATES, APPROPRIATIONS, AND REPORTS, vol. 2, p. 898.

Authority to contract necessary.—In order that a contract should be authorized by law, it must appear either that express authority was given to make such contract or that it was necessarily to be inferred from some duty imposed upon or from some authority given to the person assuming to contract on behalf of the United States. (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 235.

When contracts are authorized.—The first clause of this section applies to direct authority to contract granted by statute; the second clause covers an implied authority arising out of the appropriation of means to fulfil. The two clauses are to be construed together. If public moneys are involved, an appropriation may give power to contract. If public moneys are not involved, the department is prohibited from making the contract "unless the same is authorized by law." (1890) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 650.

"Two classes of contracts are authorized by this section: one where the contract is authorized and an appropriation sufficient for its fulfilment is provided for; the other where no appropriation sufficient to the completion of the contract is made." (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 235.

Authority of executive officers to contract.—"The executive officers of the government have no power to bind it by contract, unless there be statutes expressly or by clear implication authorizing them to do so." Chase v. U. S., (1890) 44 Fed. Rep. 732.

Application to other acts.—The exception contained in this section in favor of contracts or purchases in the war and navy departments for clothing, subsistence, forage, fuel, etc., withdraws such contracts or purchases from the operation of the prohibition in R. S. sec. 3679. (1876) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 124; (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 209; Floyd Acceptances, (1868) 7 Wall. (U. S.) 684.

Effect of special provisions.—The prohibition of this section and that of R. S. sec. 3679 apply to the public service in general and must yield to special provisions relating to a particular department. New York Cent., etc., R. Co. v. U. S. (1886) 21 Ct. Cl. 468.

Affirmative right to contract for clothing, etc.—Although exceptional and negative in its form this provision in regard to contracts for clothing, etc., is to be deemed affirmative in its character. Floyd Acceptances, (1868) 7 Wall. (U. S.) 684; (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 209.

Contract wholly dependent upon appropriation.—Where the authority to enter into a contract for a particular work in behalf of the United States depends wholly upon the appropriation made for that purpose, no officer of the government has power to create a liability therefor beyond the amount appropriated and the contractor cannot recover more than the amount appropriated, whatever may be the extent of the work. Shipman v. U. S., (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 138.

Contract not exceeding amount of exhausted appropriation.—If a contract dependent upon an appropriation for its validity does not exceed the appropriation, it will be deemed valid although the appropriation be exhausted. New York Cent., etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1886) 21 Ct. Cl. 468.

Authority under annual appropriations.—"The annual appropriations which are made by Congress to defray the expenses of the executive departments do not authorize heads of those departments to bind the government by contract beyond the time for which such appropriations are made applicable." Chase v. U. S., (1890) 44 Fed. Rep. 732.

Contract limited by appropriation.—Where by Act of Congress the secretary of war was authorized and directed to contract with a company for the purchase of a certain article without advertising, and in the same Act a specific sum of money was appropriated for the purpose of procuring such articles and no express or implied authority was given by the Act to bind the government beyond the amount appropriated, the secretary of war, by making the contract for the full amount appropriated, exhausted his authority and could not make a supplemental contract binding the government for further expenditures. (1897) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 495.

Contract conditional upon future appropriation.—A contract for postal car facilities which makes the liability of the government conditional upon future appropriation is valid and becomes operative if the appropriation be subsequently made. New York Cent., etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1886) 21 Ct. Cl. 468.

Work authorized according to specific plans.—When Congress authorizes a work to be done according to specific plans, it is a law authorizing a contract within the meaning of this section, even though the contract slightly exceeds the appropriation made for that purpose. Fowler's Case, (1867) 3 Ct. Cl. 43.

Cost of authorized work not limited.—If an officer is clothed with authority to do a piece of work without any limitation of cost the contracts made by him therefor are binding on the government whether an appropriation is made for that purpose or not. Shipman v. U. S., (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 138.

Authority to finish structure by appropriation of certain amount.—“When all that is done is the appropriation of a certain sum to be expended on a certain structure, the plan of which has been determined on, the authority to contract for the completion of the whole structure cannot be inferred. The contract is good to the extent of the appropriation made and just so far as such appropriation is adequate to its fulfillment. So far as it undertakes to do more than this, it is invalid. Nor can such a contract be binding so as to affix itself to future appropriations even if it is subject to the contingency that such appropriations shall be made.” (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 235.

Supplies for navy and war departments.—Contracts and purchases in the war and navy departments for clothing, subsistence, etc., may be made, though there is no appropriation adequate to the fulfillment of the contract or purchase, provided such contracts and purchases do not exceed the necessities of the current year. (1876) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 124.

Transportation and subsistence at Ellis Island.—The secretary of the treasury is authorized to procure transportation facilities to and from Ellis Island, and to provide for the subsistence of emigrants and others upon the island, and in any manner not prohibited by law that he shall deem best. This section and R. S. sec. 3679 do not interfere with this freedom of action, because no appropriation will be required to be made by Congress on account of either of such contracts. (1891) 20 Op. Atty.-Gen. 217.

Contracts for information.—The secretary of the navy is, impliedly, authorized to contract for compensating persons furnishing information of frauds practiced upon the government in the supplying of equipment which was not according to contract. (1893) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 1.

Purchase of patent under appropriation for material and labor.—The secretary of the navy cannot legally contract with the patentee for the purchase of his patent or for a license to use it under an appropriation limited to the purchase of material and the employment of labor in the manufacture of such article out of it. (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 407.

Use of telegraph in postal service.—The post-office department has no power, under existing laws, to make contracts for the transmission of intelligence by telegraph, for the general public, as a part or branch of the postal service. (1890) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 650.

Architect's claim for plans.—Where Congress has asserted that an academy under its control should be placed in a certain city, and has made an appropriation for that purpose, an architect's claim for services ordered by the navy department in furnishing plans for a new building for that academy in the designated city is not barred by the provisions of this section, that the contract must be authorized by law or under an appropriation adequate to its fulfillment. Mason's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 495.

The commissioner-general of the Paris exposition has no authority to let a contract for the printing and publication of a catalogue of the United States exhibit, etc., in which the contractor is to receive no money from the United States, but is to derive his compensation therefor from the proceeds of the sale of the catalogue and the insertion of advertisements therein. (1899) 22 Op. Atty.-Gen. 388.

Lease for years.—Provisions of this section clearly limit the liability of the government by the appropriation made for each fiscal year, and a lease of a building is included thereunder, and, although for a term of years, is binding on the government only until the end of the fiscal year in which it is made, with a future option from year to year until the end of the term. Smoot v. U. S., (1903) 38 Ct. Cl. 427.

Lease or purchase of post-office building.—“The general authority ‘to establish post offices,’ does not itself, or without more, necessarily imply authority to bind the United States by a contract to lease or purchase a post-office building, although an appropriation of money to pay for the rent of a post-office building at a named place, might give authority to the postmaster-general to lease such building in that locality as he deemed proper for the service, always keeping within the amount so appropriated.” Chase v. U. S., (1894) 155 U. S. 489.

Authority of postmaster-general to lease or purchase.—“While the postmaster-general, under the power to establish post offices, may designate the places—that is, the localities—at which the mails are to be received, he cannot bind the United States by any lease or purchase of a building to be used for the purposes of a post office, unless the power to do so is derived from a statute which either expressly or by necessary implication authorizes him to make such lease or purchase.” Chase v. U. S., (1894) 155 U. S. 489.

Lease for term beyond appropriation.—Under this section the postmaster-general

"And he may require any bid to be accompanied by a bond in such penal sum as he may deem advisable, with good and sufficient security, conditioned that the bidder will enter into a contract agreeably to the terms of his bid, if the same be awarded to him within sixty days from the date of the opening of the bids, or otherwise pay the penalty. No bid shall be withdrawn by the bidder within the said period of sixty days."

Amending other acts.—In Churchyard v. U. S., (1900) 100 Fed. Rep. 920, this Act was cited as an amendment to R. S. secs. 3714, 3744.

Formal defects.—In specific cases the secretary of war is authorized to waive formal defects in bids and bonds in order to secure the public advantage resulting from competitive bidding. (1897) 21 Op. Atty-Gen. 469.

Insertion of dates.—A bond accompanying a bid to build certain public works, duly signed, sealed, and delivered, the separate proposals constituting the bid and the bond being on printed blanks bound together and consecutively paged in print, is not sufficiently defective as to be regarded as invalid because the dates of the bid and bond are not inserted in the blanks left for that purpose in printing the instrument. (1897) 21 Op. Atty-Gen. 469.

SEC. 2. [Secretary of War to give preference to domestic materials and labor.] That in all contracts for material for any public improvement, the Secretary of War shall give preference to American material; and all labor thereon shall be performed within the jurisdiction of the United States. [18 Stat. L. 455.]

This is from the Army Appropriation Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 133.

Sec. 3718. [Naval supplies to be furnished by contract.] All provisions, clothing, hemp, and other materials of every name and nature, for the use of the Navy, and the transportation thereof, when time will permit, shall be furnished by contract, by the lowest bidder, as follows: In the case of provisions, clothing, hemp, and other materials, the Secretary of the Navy shall advertise, twice a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, or once a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy, in one or more of the principal papers published in the place where such articles are to be furnished, for sealed proposals for furnishing the same, or the whole of any particular class thereof, specifying the classes of materials and referring bidders to the several chiefs of Bureaus, who will furnish them with printed schedules, giving a full description of each and every article, with dates of delivery, and so forth. In the case of transportation of such articles, he shall advertise for a period of not less than five days. All such proposals shall be kept sealed until the day specified in such advertisement for opening the same, when they shall be opened by or under the direction of the officer making such advertisement, in the presence of at least two persons. The person offering to furnish any class of such articles, and giving satisfactory security for the performance thereof, under a forfeiture not exceeding twice the contract price in case of failure, shall receive a contract for furnishing the same. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of March 3, 1893, ch. 212, 27 Stat. L. 724. It was first amended by the Act of June 30, 1890, ch. 640, 26 Stat. L. 197, by striking out the words "once a week, for at least four weeks," originally appearing therein, and inserting in lieu thereof the words "twice a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy."

It was again amended by the Act of July 19, 1892, ch. 206, 27 Stat. L. 243, so as to read "twice a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, or once a week for four weeks, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy."

It was again amended by the Act of March 3, 1893, ch. 212, 27 Stat. L. 724, so as to read "twice a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, or once a week for two weeks or longer, not to exceed four weeks, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy," as given in the text.

Substantial compliance sufficient.—The controlling purpose of these provisions and

R. S. sec. 3719 plainly is to secure the contract to the lowest bidder who will honestly perform it. The directions of the statutes as to the manner of advertising for and receiving proposals, and as to the form of the proposals themselves, are intended to accomplish this purpose, and a failure by the lowest bidder to comply with them ought not to exclude his proposal from consideration, unless it be such an omission as will deprive the government of the requisite security against loss by violation or nonperformance of the contract. If the proposal exhibit a substantial compliance with the provision of the law as to its form, and if it be the lowest bid, its rejection for an immaterial informality would be in disregard of the meaning of Congress. (1861) 10 Op. Atty.-Gen. 140.

Purpose of articles included.—As provisions, clothing, and hemp, for the use of the navy, were specifically mentioned, Congress was merely providing for the current and necessary expenses of that branch of the service. The general phraseology, "and other materials of every name and nature," was designed to include the other articles demanded for the same purpose. (1849) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 89.

Award to the lowest bidder.—The secretary of the navy is obliged to give contracts for supplies to the lowest bidder who fills the requirements as to security, etc., but he is the person charged with the duty of ascertaining the facts in this regard, and his decision is not reviewable in any court. (1894) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 56.

Modification of terms of contract.—The navy department has not the right in awarding the contract to the lowest bidder to modify its terms in regard to the time of delivery, or any other of its material elements. (1844) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 334.

Contract with patentee.— "If the article needed be one for which the secretary of the navy may negotiate without advertising for proposals, it would seem that the secretary may contract with a patentee of the article to furnish the needed supply." (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 407.

Patentee lowest bidder.— If the patentee of an article is the lowest bidder for furnishing that article the secretary of the navy may accept his proposal and make a contract with him. (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 407.

Contracts entered into by infants with the officers of the government are valid and obligatory, notwithstanding such infancy, unless the infants themselves take measures to avoid them. (1844) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 333.

Contracts for hemp.—The secretary of the navy in contracting for water-rotted hemp, for the use of the navy, is restricted in the manner of purchase by this Act, which requires him to advertise for the article, to receive bids, and to award the contract for it to the lowest bidder. (1846) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 475.

Renewal of contract.—In (1843) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 283, it was held that since the Act of March 3, 1843, the secretary of the navy is not competent to renew a contract which has expired without advertising as is required by the first section of that Act.

[Gun steel and armor for Navy.] * * * That no contract for the purchase of gun steel or armor for the Navy shall hereafter be made until the subject-matter of the same shall have been submitted to public competition by the Department by advertisement. [27 Stat. L. 732.]

March 2, 1891, ch. 494, 26 Stat. L. 815, and July 19, 1892, ch. 206, 27 Stat. L. 251.

[Classification, etc., and issue of naval supplies.] * * * For expenses of arranging, classifying, consolidating, and cataloguing supplies for the Navy, herein provided for and now on hand, ten thousand dollars; and all supplies purchased with moneys appropriated by this act shall be deemed to be purchased for the Navy and not for any bureau thereof, and these supplies, together with all supplies now on hand, shall be arranged, classified, consolidated, and catalogued, and issued for consumption or use, under such regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, without regard to the bureau for which they were purchased. [26 Stat. L. 205.]

This is from the Naval Appropriation Act of June 30, 1890, ch. 640.

5503, R. S., from continuing the employment of the contractors. If further appropriations are made, there must be a new contract for their expenditure. (1895) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 244; (1857) 9 Op. Atty.-Gen. 18.

Notice of restricted cost.—A contractor doing all the work under a statute authorizing the construction of the building but limiting the cost to a fixed amount is chargeable with notice of the restriction and cannot set up a breach of contract, which will in effect do away with the restriction. Trenton Co.'s Case, (1876) 12 Ct. Cl. 147.

Sec. 5503. [Officer of the Government contracting beyond specific appropriation — penalty.] Every officer of the Government who knowingly contracts for the erection, repair, or furnishing of any public building, or for any public improvement, to pay a larger amount than the specific sum appropriated for such purpose, shall be punished by imprisonment not less than six months nor more than two years, and shall pay a fine of two thousand dollars. [R. S.]

Act of July 25, 1868, ch. 233, 15 Stat. L. 177.

[SEC. 1.] [Restrictions on contracts for sites for public buildings.] * * * And hereafter no money shall be paid nor contract made for payment for any site for a public building in excess of the amount specifically appropriated therefor. * * * [18 Stat. L. 395.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 130.

[Contracts for rent in District of Columbia.] * * * Hereafter no contract shall be made for the rent of any building, or part of any building, to be used for the purposes of the Government in the District of Columbia, until an appropriation therefor shall have been made in terms by Congress, and that this clause be regarded as notice to all contractors or lessors of any such building or any part of building. [19 Stat. L. 370.]

This is from the Deficiencies Appropriation Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 106. A substantially similar provision was contained in the Act of June 22, 1874, ch. 388, 18 Stat. L. 144.

"For exceptions as to Washington city post office and branches, see 1888, March 26, ch. 43 (25 Stat. L. 46), and 1890, June 30, ch. 641 (26 Stat. L. 207), both omitted from this volume as of local application only." Compilers' note, 1 Supp. R. S. 137.

Intent of Act.—The legislative power has most strongly indicated its intention that no building should be rented, not actually in use by the government, until an appropriation therefor shall have been made in terms. (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 275.

Express contracts.—These provisions undoubtedly apply to express contracts, and prohibit the making of such contracts except as therein provided. Semmes v. U. S., (1891) 26 Ct. Cl. 119.

Implied contracts by authorized officers.—This Act has no application to that class of implied contracts which arise from the acts of public officers in the performance of their duties in carrying on the business of the government intrusted to them by law in their respective spheres. Rives v. U. S., (1893) 28 Ct. Cl. 249, following Semmes v. U. S., (1891) 26 Ct. Cl. 119.

Appropriation not in terms for rent.—The appropriation made under chapter 235 of the Act of June 16, 1880, "for the expense of the geological survey," etc., not being "in terms" for the rent of a building or part thereof in the District of Columbia, to be used by such geological survey, and no provision having been made elsewhere therefor, a lease of a building for an office of such survey is void as forbidden by this Act. (1881) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 87.

Rent of post offices.—The postmaster-general being authorized by law to establish post offices may procure buildings for them, and while he cannot bind the government by an express contract, his action will render it liable to the owner for just compensation. Semmes v. U. S., (1891) 26 Ct. Cl. 119; Rives v. U. S., (1893) 28 Ct. Cl. 249.

Building rented by officer in charge of construction.—The renting of a building intended to be used as an office by an officer to whom has been assigned the duty of taking charge of the construction of the state, war, and navy department building, etc., violates this Act prohibiting the renting of any building or part thereof for governmental purposes in the District of Columbia, "until an appropriation therefor shall have been made in terms by Congress." (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 274.

Sec. 3734. [Restrictions on commencement of new buildings. See PUBLIC PROPERTY, BUILDINGS, AND GROUNDS.]

Sec. 3735. [Contracts limited to one year.] It shall not be lawful for any of the Executive Departments to make contracts for stationery or other supplies for a longer term than one year from the time the contract is made. [R. S.]

Act of Jan. 31, 1868, Res. 8, 15 Stat. L. 246.
See the following sections.

Locks and seals for transportation in bond.
—It is unlawful for the head of an executive department to make a contract for locks and seals used to secure packages while being transported in bond, for a longer term than one year from the time the contract was made. (1896) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 304.

Ferry service and subsistence at Ellis Island.—The inhibition contained in this section is inapplicable to contracts made by the secretary of the treasury for ferry service to and from Ellis Island, and for furnishing of subsistence to emigrants and others upon said island. (1891) 20 Op. Atty.-Gen. 217.

Joint resolution explanatory of resolution approved January 31, 1868, entitled "A resolution limiting contracts for stationery and other supplies in the executive departments to one year."

[Contracts for mail bags, locks, postal cards, etc., excepted.] That the resolution approved January thirty-first, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, entitled "A resolution limiting contracts for stationery and other supplies in the Executive Departments to one year," shall not be held, or construed, to apply to, or include mail-bags, mail locks and keys, postal cards, postage stamps, newspaper wrappers, or stamped envelopes. [18 Stat. L. 286.]

The resolution here referred to is incorporated into Revised Statutes as section 3735.
For other contracts in postal service, see POSTAL SERVICE, vol. 5, p. 780.

[SEC. 1.] [Supplies for free delivery service.] * * * That the Postmaster General may, when if [sic] in his judgment the good of the service so requires make contract for necessary supplies for the free-delivery service for a period not exceeding four years. * * * [25 Stat. L. 844.]

This is from the Postal Service Appropriation Act of March 2, 1889, ch. 374.

[SEC. 1.] [Post-route maps.] * * * And the Postmaster-General may, in his discretion, cause the contract for printing post-route maps to be let for a term of four years; * * * [28 Stat. L. 803.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of March 2, 1896, ch. 177.

[SEC. 1.] [Postal Guide.] * * * And the Postmaster-General may, in his discretion, cause the contract for furnishing the Official Postal Guide to be let for a term of four years. * * * [29 Stat. L. 176.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of May 28, 1896, ch. 252.

Necessity of advertisement.—A contract for furnishing the post-office department with copies of the Postal Guide, under an appropriation for "publication of copies" thereof, does not come within the provision of R. S. sec. 3709, and the postmaster-general is not required to advertise for proposals previously to make such a contract. (1881) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 84.

The design of R. S. sec. 3709, in requiring advertisements for proposals before making purchases and contracts for supplies, is to invite competition among bidders, and it contemplates only those purchases and contracts where competition as to the article needed is possible. The Official Postal Guide being a copyrighted publication, edited, printed, and owned by a particular firm, it is manifestly not an article for the furnishing of which there could be any competition between that firm and other persons. (1881) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 84.

[SEC. 1.] [Supplies for post-office department.] * * * And hereafter the Postmaster-General is authorized to contract for a term not exceeding four years, for the supply of any or all articles enumerated under the head of "Supply Division," when, in his judgment, it shall appear to be for the best interests of the service. * * * [32 Stat. L. 114.]

This is from the Postal Service Appropriation Act of April 21, 1902, ch. 563, under the appropriation for "supply division."

Sec. 3736. [Restriction on purchases of land.] No land shall be purchased on account of the United States, except under a law authorizing such purchase. [R. S.]

Act of May 1, 1820, ch. 52, 3 Stat. L. 568.

Necessity of express power.—The general effect of the Act is to render the exercise by an executive department of a power to purchase land on account of the United States, illegal unless the intention of Congress that such a power should be exercised has been so clearly expressed in the law which is invoked as containing the authority, that the power may be said to be an express one under the words of the law. (1865) 11 Op. Atty.-Gen. 201.

Cession from state or purchase from individual necessary.—This section negatives any idea that Congress claims power to take to the government of the United States dry lands, or soil covered by water, for the purpose of commerce or navigation, or naval or military purposes, or for the construction of any kind of public buildings or public improvements without a cession from the state, or a purchase from an individual who may have title to the property desired for the site of the public works intended by the United States. (1853) 6 Op. Atty.-Gen. 172.

Land received in payment of debt.—The United States having the power to make a contract as incident to its sovereignty may compromise a suit and receive real and other property in discharge of the debt in trust and sell the same, and such procedure does not come under any authority to purchase lands. U. S. v. Lane, (1844) 3 McLean (U. S.) 365, 26 Fed. Cas. No. 15,559.

Land taken as security for debt.—This Act does not prevent the acquisition of the legal title to land by the United States, when taken as security for a debt by the proper officer, though not specially required or authorized by any particular Act of Congress. Neilson v. Lagow, (1851) 12 How. (U. S.) 98.

Mortgages of real estate to secure debts.—The United States have the capacity within the sphere of their constitutional powers, and through the instrumentality of the proper department, to take mortgages of real estate to secure the payment of debts due to them, notwithstanding Congress has enacted that "no land shall be purchased on account of the United States except under a law authorizing such purchase." Van Brocklin v. Tennessee, (1886) 117 U. S. 151.

Purchase of land under appropriation for defenses.—An Act of Congress appropriating a sum of money for permanent defenses at a certain place will not authorize the purchase on account of the United States of a tract of land as a site for a proposed fort at the place mentioned in the statute. (1865) 11 Op. Atty.-Gen. 201.

Under appropriation for armory improvements.—An appropriation for repairs, improvements, and new machinery at an armory, cannot, nor can any portion of it, be applied to the purchase of the lands described in the estimate made at the ordnance office, although a portion of the appropriation was asked for with a view to the purchase of lands, if Congress saw fit to specify the purposes for which it granted it, among which the purchase of lands is not included. (1846) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 533.

Under appropriation for wharves.—When Congress has made an appropriation, and one of the objects for which the appropriation is to be used, specially designated in the Act, is the construction of wharves, it necessarily follows that the right to purchase land upon which to build such wharves is implied. (1899) 22 Op. Atty.-Gen. 665.

Under appropriation for monuments.—An appropriation for the erection of monuments or memorial tablets is not applicable to the purchase of land for the sites of such monuments or tablets. (1887) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 79.

Sec. 3737. [No transfer of contract.] No contract or order, or any interest therein, shall be transferred by the party to whom such contract or order is given to any other party, and any such transfer shall cause the annulment of the contract or order transferred, so far as the United States are concerned. All rights of action, however, for any breach of such contract by the contracting parties, are reserved to the United States. [R. S.]

Act of July 17, 1862, ch. 200, 12 Stat. L. 596.

Purpose of section.—Sections 3477, 3737, "were passed for the protection of the government. They were passed in order that the government might not be harassed by multiplying the number of persons with whom it had to deal and might always know with whom it was dealing until the contract was completed and a settlement made. Their purpose was not to dictate to the contractor what he should do with the money received on his contract after the contract had been performed." Hobbs v. McLean, (1886) 117 U. S. 567.

Personal service of contractor.—The obvious reason for this enactment was to secure to the United States the personal attention and services of the contractor, and to render him liable to punishment for fraud or neglect of duty. Francis's Case, (1875) 11 Ct. Cl. 638.

Prevention of bids by agents.—One of the purposes of the law was to secure integrity in bidding for contracts, by preventing a bidder or contractor from making several bids, one by himself and others by his friends and employees, to be afterwards consummated by assignments of the contract by them to the real bidder for whom they all acted. (1888) 19 Op. Atty-Gen. 186.

Bids for speculation.—Another purpose was to prevent those who bid for and obtain contracts for mere speculation, and who have neither the intent nor ability to perform them, from selling the contracts at a profit to bona fide bidders or contractors. (1888) 19 Op. Atty-Gen. 186.

This statute was passed to secure government contracts to bona fide contractors who intend to perform the duties as well as to assume the liabilities thereof, and to prevent parties from acquiring mere speculative interests. Francis's Case, (1875) 11 Ct. Cl. 638.

Capacity to fulfil contract.—Contracts are to be performed by those who make them, and are not to be the subjects of traffic or transfer. It is, therefore, necessary that they should be made with those who from their capacity are competent to render the service to be performed or from their business are able to furnish from its resources that which they contract to supply. (1877) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 226.

Effect of transfer.—The transfer of a contract is not by this section declared null and void. Dulaney v. Scudder, (C. C. A. 1899) 94 Fed. Rep. 6.

Right to recognize assignment.—Under this section the government is free to treat a transferred contract as annulled or to recognize the assignment. Dulaney v. Scudder, (C. C. A. 1899) 94 Fed. Rep. 6.

Privilege of annulment merely.—The statute is intended only for the benefit of the United States; and while it is said that such transfer shall cause the annulment of the contract or order transferred, it is intended only that it shall do so in case the United States declines to recognize such transfer. While, therefore, the United States may avail itself of such transfer to annul the contract, it is not compelled to do so. (1879) 16 Op. Atty-Gen. 277; (1877) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 235.

But in (1863) 10 Op. Atty-Gen. 523, it was said that a contract transferred by the parties in violation of this section is absolutely annulled so far as the United States are concerned.

Transfer of any nature included.—It is sufficient to annul a contract if the facts disclose a substantial transfer of an interest therein by whatever means attempted or however much disguised. Francis's Case, (1875) 11 Ct. Cl. 638.

What constitutes assignment of an interest.—Where a contractor with the government enters into an agreement with a third party, by which it is stipulated that a part of the money, material, or labor necessary for the execution of the contract shall be furnished by the third party, and that the profits or the loss resulting from the contract shall be borne or shared in by the contractor and the third party in proportion to the amounts contributed by each, such agreement is an assignment of an interest in the contract within the meaning of the provisions of this section. (1879) 16 Op. Atty-Gen. 277.

Approval of assignment by officer.—There is no authority given by the statute, nor to be inferred from it, that any officer of the United States can, in advance, either approve or recognize any proposed assignment thus forbidden. (1888) 19 Op. Atty-Gen. 186.

Articles of partnership which do not transfer a contract with the United States, or any interest therein, are not forbidden by this section. Hobbs v. McLean, (1886) 117 U. S. 567.

The fact that a partnership is entered into by contractors having United States contracts does not necessarily violate this section. North Pacific Lumber Co. v. Spore, (Oregon 1904) 75 Pac. Rep. 890, following Hobbs v. McLean, (1886) 117 U. S. 567.

Partnership prior to contract.—A partnership which may be fairly construed to be the personal contract of one by which, in consideration of money to be advanced, and services to be performed by his partners, he agreed to divide with them a fund which he expected to receive from the United States on a contract which he had not yet entered into, does not constitute a transfer of the contract such as would be a violation of this statute. Hobbs v. McLean, (1886) 117 U. S. 567.

An agreement amounting to a partnership arrangement entered into before the execution of contracts with the government, made in good faith and not for the purpose of influencing bidding or in any way otherwise to prejudice the United States, is not a transfer of a contract such as will annul the contract under the provisions of this section. Field's Case, (1880) 16 Ct. Cl. 434.

Preliminary arrangements to secure capital.—The provisions of this section do not apply to a preliminary arrangement for the honest purpose of uniting capital to obtain the necessary means to fulfil a public contract, there being no intent to influence bidding or to evade the duties and responsibilities of a public contractor. Field's Case, (1880) 16 Ct. Cl. 434.

Funds furnished by surety.—A contract with the government is not annulled by the fact that the contractor makes an agreement with one of the sureties on his bond to the government by which the surety furnishes the moneys necessary for the completion of the work under the contract and receives a part of the profits to be derived from it. Bowe v. U. S., (1890) 42 Fed. Rep. 761.

Power of attorney.—Where one having a contract awarded him by the state department gives a power of attorney to another, coupled with an interest in the performance of the contract, by which power the second party is to sign and receipt for all moneys due under the contract, it constitutes a transfer of the contract within the meaning of this section. (1877) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 235.

Where a contractor made a power of attorney authorizing another to receive and collect the vouchers, and to receive and receipt for payments, and the nominal agent performed and subsequently procured an assignment of the nominal contractor's claim with authority to bring suit in his name, the contract was thereby annulled and no suit could be maintained thereon. Francis's Case, (1875) 11 Ct. Cl. 638.

Power of attorney to collect.—A power of attorney which authorizes the attorney to collect moneys which might be then due, or thereafter become due, to a contractor with the United States, and which does not profess to give the attorney any interest in the contract, does not cause an annulment of the contract under this section. (1879) 16 Op. Atty-Gen. 261.

Transfer by decree of court.—The transfer of the legal title of real property by virtue of a decree of a court of equity, carrying with it the right to rents accrued, is not an assignment of a claim under a contract within the prohibition of this section. Mills v. U. S., (1864) 19 Ct. Cl. 79.

Foreclosure of mortgage on railroad.—A contract made with a railroad company for carrying the mails is annulled by the provision of this section, upon a foreclosure of a mortgage of all the assets of such railroad company and the sale thereunder to a new company, and such new company cannot maintain an action thereon against the United States. St. Paul, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1885) 112 U. S. 733, affirming (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 406.

A contract for transporting the mails cannot be transferred or assigned, in whole or in part, without the consent of the postmaster-general, and such transfer being illegal it is not a valid consideration to support a promise to pay for a half interest in such contract. Nix v. Bell, (1881) 66 Ga. 665.

Assignment of a lease.—“Whatever may be the scope and effect of section 3737 it does not embrace a lease of real estate to be used for public purposes, under which the lessor is not required to perform any service for the government, and has nothing to do in respect to the lease except to receive from time to time the rent agreed to be paid. The assignment of such a lease is not within the mischief which Congress intended to prevent.” Freedman's Sav., etc., Co. v. Shepherd, (1888) 127 U. S. 494.

Assignment of money due on contract.—A contractor cannot assign and transfer the money coming to him from the United States under his contract so as to affect any one but himself, and a mere disbursing agent of the United States has no authority to do anything but to pay over the money when it is due. His acceptance of orders on the fund which he expects to disburse is of no validity. Greenville Sav. Bank v. Lawrence, (C. C. A. 1896) 76 Fed. Rep. 545.

Contracts with third parties for materials.—A contract with the United States to erect a public building, or to construct wing dams on a river, is not annulled by the fact that the contractor enters into a contract with third parties for the materials needed to enable him to carry out his contract with the government. U. S. v. Farley, (1899) 91 Fed. Rep. 474.

Effect of assignment on title.—The assignment of a government contract is void and passes no title, legal or equitable. McCord's Case, (1873) 9 Ct. Cl. 156.

Liability of original contractor.—“The prohibition found in section 3737 is intended to prevent such assignments of public contracts as would relieve the original contractor from the obligation of the contract with the government.” U. S. v. Farley, (1899) 91 Fed. Rep. 474.

The contract may still be treated by the government as obligatory upon the contractor notwithstanding the transfer. (1884) 18 Op. Atty-Gen. 88.

Rights of parties to assignment.—The parties to an assignment may suffer damage, but can derive no benefit from an assignment of a government contract. (1888) 19 Op. Atty-Gen. 186.

Liability of United States to assignee.—The transfer of a contract so as to enable the assignee to perform the service and claim the compensation stipulated for is forbidden by this section, and the United States cannot be held liable by the assignee of a contract for carrying mail. St. Paul, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1885) 112 U. S. 733, affirming (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 406.

Between contractor and assignee.—“The express declaration that, so far as the United States are concerned, a transfer shall work an annulment of the contract carries, by clear implication, the declaration that it shall have no such effect as between the contractor and his transferee." Burck v. Taylor, (1894) 152 U. S. 634.

Suit for breach of transferred contract.—A suit cannot be maintained for damages for the breach by the United States of a transferred contract, but where there has been a delivery of goods under the contract duly accepted by the United States, an action may be maintained by the contractors for the use of the assignee in quantum meruit. Wheeler's Case, (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 504.

Recovery on implied contract.—Where an express contract is void, the person who has delivered his goods to the government, the government having used them, may recover on the implied contract in quantum meruit. Heathfield's Case, (1872) 8 Ct. Cl. 215.

Transfer as defense to suit on implied contract.—Where a claimant sues on an implied contract arising from the impressment of his wagon train by the United States, the government cannot set up that he was a sub-contractor and the contract void under this statute. Mason's Case, (1878) 14 Ct. Cl. 59.

Suit by assignee of contract for similar goods.—Where a party brings an action in his own name, and upon the implied contract arising from the taking of his own property for public use, it is no defense that he had been acting as assignee of a contract for the sale of similar goods, and that the transfer of such contracts renders them void. If the assignee of a public contract can be held to the liabilities of the original contractor he must nevertheless be put in default by proper notice. Hersch's Case, (1879) 15 Ct. Cl. 385.

Objection after contract performed.—Where the government treats a person as a contractor, and responsible as such, all through the work, and until its completion, and accepts the entire work as satisfactory and makes a final settlement with him, it may not make the objection that he was not a lawful contractor on the ground of a transfer by the contractor to one of his sureties of an interest in the contract. Bowe v. U. S., (1890) 42 Fed. Rep. 761.

Attempted assignment as defense to suit for services performed.—An attempted assignment which the parties do not set up or claim under cannot, after a full performance, be set up by the government to prevent a recovery for service performed. The provisions of this section do not apply to such a case. Dougherty v. U. S., (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 496.

An act for the protection of persons furnishing materials and labor for the construction of public works.

[SEC. 1.] [Contractors for public buildings or work to give bond to pay for labor and material — suit on such bond.] That hereafter any person or persons entering into a formal contract with the United States for the construction of any public building, or the prosecution and completion of any public work or for repairs upon any public building or public work, shall be required before commencing such work to execute the usual penal bond, with good and sufficient sureties, with the additional obligations that such contractor or contractors shall promptly make payments to all persons supplying him or them labor and materials in the prosecution of the work provided for in such contract; and any person or persons making application therefor, and furnishing affidavit to the Department under the direction of which said work is being, or has been, prosecuted, that labor or materials for the prosecution of such work has been supplied by him or them, and payment for which has not been made, shall be furnished with a certified copy of said contract and bond, upon which said person or persons supplying such labor and materials shall have a right of action, and shall be authorized to bring suit in the name of the United States for his or their use and benefit against said contractor and sureties and to prosecute the same to final judgment and execution: Provided, That such action and its prosecutions shall involve the United States in no expense. [28 Stat. L. 278.]

The object of the Act was to afford a better method for enforcing against the contractor the claims of laborers and material-men who had done work or furnished material upon property actually belonging to the United States, such as public buildings — which could only be erected upon land to which the United States had acquired a complete title — fortifications, river and harbor improvements, and such other things as are commonly understood under the designation of "public works." (1900) 23 Op. Atty.-Gen. 174.

Not retroactive.— "The Act of Congress applies only to bonds executed from and after its passage, and was not intended to apply retroactively to bonds previously executed." Sears v. Mahoney, (1895) 66 Fed. Rep. 860.

No lien created.—The Act does not seem to have intended to create a lien. It seems merely to give a personal action on the bond "for labor and materials." Sears v. Mahoney, (1895) 66 Fed. Rep. 860.

Relation to state lien statutes.—This statute does not have the same aspect as the ordinary lien statutes in various states giving liens on buildings and other property, real and personal, for labor and material, and it is susceptible of and should receive a more liberal construction than such lien statutes. The court is not concluded by decisions with reference to the ordinary state statutory liens and can apply them only in a general way, and is not restricted by them so as to require a construction inconsistent with the remedial purposes of this statute. American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co., (1901) 110 Fed. Rep. 717.

"The usual bond" means evidently such an obligation for the government's own protection, as it had long been in the habit of exacting from those with whom contracts were made for the doing of public work. U. S. v. National Surety Co., (C. C. A. 1899) 92 Fed. Rep. 549.

Purpose of bond.—"The bond which is provided for by the Act was intended to perform a double function,—in the first place to secure to the government, as before, the faithful performance of all obligations which a contractor might assume towards it; and in the second place to protect third persons from whom the contractor obtained materials or labor." U. S. v. National Surety Co., (C. C. A. 1899) 92 Fed. Rep. 549; U. S. v. Rundle, (C. C. A. 1900) 100 Fed. Rep. 400.

Waiver of bond.—Where the advertisement calls for a bond and none is subsequently given or asked, the acceptance of the material under the contract will be regarded as a waiver of the bond. Friedenstein v. U. S., (1899) 35 Ct. Cl. 6.

For whose benefit.—This additional obligation provided for in this statute was prescribed for the benefit of the persons supplying labor and material, and it contains nothing to suggest that their claims under such bonds were to be secondary or subordinate to those of the government. U. S. v. Heaton, (C. C. A. 1904) 128 Fed. Rep. 416, affirming (1903) 124 Fed. Rep. 699.

Protection to subcontractors.—Subcontractors who supply labor and materials in the prosecution of the work under a contract between the government and the contractor are protected by this statute. Such subcontractors are those who are in the same relation to the contractor as he is to the government. U. S. v. Jack, (1900) 124 Mich. 210.

What labor protected.—"The labor which Congress intended to protect is evidently labor used directly upon the public work, claims for which would be made by the laborers primarily against the work." U. S. v. Hyatt, (C. C. A. 1899) 92 Fed. Rep. 442.

Rights of government under bond for materials.—The fact that the sureties on a contractor's bond covenant for the payment of labor and material furnished to the contractor guarantees nothing to the principal obligee, the government, although the latter permits an action on the bond for the benefit of the subcontractor. U. S. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Golden Pressed, etc., Brick Co., (1903) 191 U. S. 416.

Rights of carriers.—In an action brought in the Circuit Court for the district of Maine by the sureties on the bond of a government contractor asking the aid of the court by a bill in equity in ascertaining to whom and what payments should be made, it was said by Putman, J., that "the carrier ordinarily has a lien for his freight, which is a sufficient protection to him. Therefore, in cases of transportation by a carrier from distant points, or, indeed, from another port than the port at which the contractor's work is being done, the carrier would not ordinarily be protected by the statutory bond for two reasons: first, transportation for considerable distances in the regular course, by the ordinary lines, of either steam, sail, or rail, cannot easily be brought within the words of the statute, 'supplying labor or materials;' and, second, inasmuch as carriage of that character, especially under an ordinary bill of lading, or its equivalent, creates a well-recognized lien for freight, the equitable rule would apply that a carrier, under such circumstances, cannot give up his cargo and enforce his claim against a mere surety after he has so placed himself that the surety cannot be subrogated to the security which the law gave. The first objection, however, does not necessarily apply to truckmen who are moving materials from a place of landing to the exact locality of the work under contract, although the distance may be somewhat considerable, nor to water-borne transportation carried on by the servants of the contractor, or for short distances without the aid of steam or a fully equipped vessel. The second objection, moreover, must not be carried to an extreme, otherwise it would defeat the practical operation of the statute. Every person selling materials for cash holds a lien for the purchase money until he voluntarily waives it by delivery; and every person engaged in transportation who is not the mere servant of the owner of the merchandise transported, holds a carrier's lien even though the carriage is of miscellaneous parcels, over short distances in the immediate locality and at frequent irregular intervals. Nevertheless with reference to each such liens are not ordinarily insisted upon, and it would be an unreasonable construction of the statute to hold that it intended to interfere with the convenience of minor dealings in such methods as the usual practices establish. Therefore, as already stated with reference to either class, to insist on the fact that the lien is waived, and short credit given, would defeat the beneficial purpose of the statute and the practical ends which it is intended to accomplish." American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co., (1901) 110 Fed. Rep. 717.

What contracts included.—The contracts here referred to relate to the construction of public buildings and the prosecution and completion of public works. (1900) 23 Op. Atty.-Gen. 174.

Contracts for naval vessels.—The Act does not refer to contracts for the construction of naval vessels. (1900) 23 Op. Atty.-Gen. 174.

Materials actually entering into work, only.—Where one has furnished materials to a contractor having a contract with the United States, he may recover from the surety on the contractor's bond a fair price for all such materials which he furnished and which actually entered into the construction of the work, and the expense in transporting such materials to the place where they were to be used under the contract, but he may not recover for tools and appliances to be used by the contractor for his own convenience and advantage in the execution of his contract. U. S. v. Morgan, (1900) 111 Fed. Rep. 474.

Contractor's plant and repairs thereto.—In connection with this statute a discrimination should be made between labor and materials consumed in the work or in connection therewith, and labor and materials made use of in furnishing the so-called contractor's plant and available not only for this but for other work. The statute, however, has no necessary relation to repairs of an incidental and comparatively inexpensive character, made on the plant during the progress of the work, representing only the ordinary wear and tear or the equivalent thereof. Such repairs, under some circumstances, are within the purview of the statute and are not always excluded by any rules of construction necessarily applicable to it. American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co., (1901) 110 Fed. Rep. 717, approving U. S. v. Morgan, (1900) 111 Fed. Rep. 474.

Materials furnished to subcontractor.—Although a surety is liable for materials furnished to a contractor, this liability does not extend to materials for which his principal is not liable, such as materials furnished to a subcontractor. American Surety Co. v. U. S., (1899) 127 Ala. 349.

Movable articles owned by contractor until acceptance.—This Act does not apply to cases of the construction of a specific article not attached to soil, the title of which is in the United States, but which is a mere movable article, the whole title to which remains in the contractor until its completion and acceptance by the government. (1900) 23 Op. Atty.-Gen. 174.

Barges furnished to third parties.—A company may not recover on a contractor's bond for the use of barges furnished to third parties and charged to them, where it is not shown that the barges were furnished to the contractor. U. S. v. Simon, (C. C. A. 1899) 98 Fed. Rep. 73.

Board supplied to workmen.—The fact that one supplied board for workmen engaged on the government work under an agreement with the contractor is not sufficient to entitle such a one to maintain an action on the contractor's bond for labor or materials supplied. U. S. v. Kimpland, (1899) 93 Fed. Rep. 403.

Money loaned to pay for materials, etc.—“The protection afforded by the bond was to such only as might supply the contractor with labor and materials in the prosecution of his work. It did not extend to a bank which might lend money for the purpose of paying for such work and materials.” U. S. v. Rundle, (C. C. A. 1901) 107 Fed. Rep. 227.

Freight and demurrage upon timber furnished to a contractor may be included as a part of the cost of the materials and properly chargeable against the surety on a contractor's bond under the provisions of this section. U. S. v. Hegeman, (1903) 204 Pa. St. 438.

The carrying of stone by a railroad company is not supplying labor under this section, the labor of loading and unloading being performed by the contractors, and it cannot maintain an action therefor on the contractor's bond given under this section. U. S. v. Hyatt, (C. C. A. 1899) 92 Fed. Rep. 443.

Materials furnished to indemnitor of surety finishing contract.—Where a contractor and obligator on a bond given under this section gave up the work, and with the consent of all concerned an indemnitor of the surety to the bond took up the completion of the work for the contractor, under the contract with the government, and where a company kept on and furnished materials and labor to those taking up such contracts, under their contract with the original contractor with the government, such furnishing of materials and labor is covered by the bond of the contractor and such company comes within the description of “all persons supplying him labor and materials in the prosecution of the work.” Mullin v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1901) 109 Fed. Rep. 817.

Effect of changes in contract.—“The sureties in a bond executed under this Act cannot claim exemption from liability to persons who have supplied labor or material to their principal to enable him to execute his contract with the United States, simply because the government and the contractor without the surety's knowledge have made some changes in the contract subsequent to the execution of the bond given to secure its performance, which do not alter the general character of the work contemplated by the contract or the general character of the materials which are necessary for its execution. When the government has executed the contract and taken and approved the bond, it ceases to be the agent of third parties whom the contractor employs in the execution of the work, or from whom he obtains materials, and the rights of such persons under the bond are unaffected by subsequent transactions between the government and the contractor.” U. S. v. National Surety Co., (C. C. A. 1899) 92 Fed. Rep. 549.

Cost of completing contract immaterial.—“The liability created by the bond was in no respect affected by what it cost to complete the work in accordance with the contract whether completed by the contractor himself or his sureties. Full performance of its terms and conditions was what the contract called for, and to secure which the bond was exacted and executed. The United States having received such full performance, received all that it was entitled to, and therefore had no cause of action upon the bond; but it received nothing more than it was entitled to, however much it may have cost the contractor or his sureties to completely perform the contract." U. S. v. Rundle, (C. C. A. 1900) 100 Fed. Rep. 400.

Completion of contract at loss by sureties.—The fact that the completion of the work under a contract with the government, left unfinished by the contractor, was undertaken by the sureties on his bond and was done at a loss of more than the penal sum of the bond, will not relieve them of their liability under the bond. Griffith v. Rundle, (1900) 23 Wash. 453.

An extension of time for payment made by materialmen by their taking promissory notes for such payment does not discharge the surety from liability where no damage results thereby to the surety or where such extension is not unreasonable. U. S. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Golden Pressed, etc., Brick Co., (1903) 191 U. S. 416.

Extension of time beyond final settlement.—Looking to the opportunity for protecting himself which the surety has, if the debt for the materials is due when the final payment is made by the government, and if the materialman designedly extends the payment beyond that time, he should be held to have released the surety and to have elected to look solely to the debtor. U. S. v. American Bonding, etc., Co., (1898) 89 Fed. Rep. 921.

United States as trustee.—"The United States by the force of the statute voluntarily make themselves trustee, alike for their own interest and for the interests of the individuals intended to be protected; and having thus voluntarily created and accepted a trust they are barred by equitable principles from asserting for themselves any advantage over other beneficiaries." American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co., (1899) 96 Fed. Rep. 25.

"The equitable rule of pro rata distribution exists not only between the United States and individual claimants, but also as between individual claimants themselves." American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co., (1899) 96 Fed. Rep. 25.

Who may sue.—"The right of action created by the bond in favor of laborers and materialmen is exclusively vested in them by statute. They alone are authorized to bring the suit and to prosecute the same to final judgment and execution. The United States have no interest, either directly or indirectly, in the controversy; nor can they be made liable for costs. The United States, as sole plaintiffs, could not maintain a suit in their own name upon the bond for the recovery of the value of labor or materials supplied to the contractor in the prosecution of the work." U. S. v. Henderlong, (1900) 102 Fed. Rep. 2.

Suit by United States.—"The Act does not authorize the United States to bring suits of its own motion against the obligors in such bonds as are therein provided for, to recover what is due to laborers and materialmen. It is not empowered to act in their behalf in that respect, but such actions can only be brought at the instance of persons who furnish labor and materials, who are authorized, without previous leave being obtained from any executive department, to sue in the name of the United States, and control the litigation precisely as they might control it if the suits were brought in their own name." U. S. v. National Surety Co., (C. C. A. 1899) 92 Fed. Rep. 549.

In name of United States.—This statute provides for a suit in the name of the United States only in cases where the person or persons for whose use and benefit the suit is brought have supplied the contractor "labor and materials in the prosecution of the work provided for in such contract." U. S. v. American Surety Co., (1903) 127 Fed. Rep. 490.

"The statute merely delegates authority to the laborer or materialman to use the name of the United States for his use and benefit in any court having jurisdiction of the subject-matter and the parties." U. S. v. Henderlong, (1900) 102 Fed. Rep. 2.

In the absence of statutory regulation, the overwhelming weight of authority makes it certain that the laborer or materialman could maintain an action in his own name against the principal and sureties in the bond for the recovery of the value of the labor or material supplied in the prosecution of the work." U. S. v. Henderlong, (1900) 102 Fed. Rep. 2.

Assignment of rights of laborers and materialmen.—"The obligation is not limited to the laborers and materialmen personally, and their rights in respect to it may pass by assignment." U. S. v. Rundle, (C. C. A. 1900) 100 Fed. Rep. 400.

Requisites for jurisdiction of federal courts.—"The courts of the United States should not take cognizance of the suits of laborers and materialmen unless the citizenship of the parties, and the amount involved in the controversy, are such as would give jurisdiction as in the case of other suitors." U. S. v. Henderlong, (1900) 102 Fed. Rep. 2.

Suit in what district.—It was held in U. S. v. O'Brien, (1903), 120 Fed. Rep. 446, that even if a suit brought against a surety on the bond of a government contractor under this Act was a suit brought by the United States, within the meaning of the Judiciary Act of 1887, yet it could not be maintained in a district of which the defendant was not an inhabitant.

Action in state court.—"As the statute does not prescribe the court in which the suit shall be brought, there would seem to be no doubt that it may be brought in the name of the United States for the use of the laborer or materialman in any proper state court." U. S. v. Henderlong, (1900) 102 Fed. Rep. 2. See to same effect U. S. v. Rundle, (1901) 27 Wash. 7.

Allegations necessary.—In an action under this section for labor and materials the complaint must allege that the labor and materials were supplied in the prosecution of the work provided for in the contract and that the contractor covenanted in the bond to make prompt payment "to all persons supplying," etc.; and the contract and the bond must be made a part of the complaint.

U. S. v. American Surety Co., (1903) 127 Fed. Rep. 490.

Want of immediate payment as defense. — The word "promptly" does not mean that the want of immediate payment should be set up as a defense by the surety. U. S. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Golden Pressed, etc., Brick Co., (1903) 191 U. S. 416.

SEC. 2. [Security for costs.] Provided that in such case the court in which such action is brought is authorized to require proper security for costs in case judgment is for the defendant. [28 Stat. L. 278.]

SEC. 21. [Provisions in contracts for liquidated damages for delay.] That in all contracts entered into with the United States, after the date of the approval of this Act, for the construction or repair of any public building or public work under the control of the Treasury Department, a stipulation shall be inserted for liquidated damages for delay; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and empowered to remit the whole or any part of such damages as in his discretion may be just and equitable; and in all suits hereafter commenced on any such contracts or on any bond given in connection therewith it shall not be necessary for the United States, whether plaintiff or defendant, to prove actual or specific damages sustained by the Government by reason of delays, but such stipulation for liquidated damages shall be conclusive and binding upon all parties. [32 Stat. L. 326.]

This is from the Act of June 6, 1902, ch. 1036, "An Act to increase the limit of cost of certain public buildings, to authorize the purchase of sites for public buildings, to authorize the erection and completion of public buildings, and for other purposes."

Sec. 3738. [Eight hours to be a day's work. See LABOR, vol. 4, p. 778.]

Sec. 3739. [Members of Congress not to be interested in contracts.] No member of or Delegate to Congress shall directly or indirectly, himself, or by any other person in trust for him, or for his use or benefit, or on his account, undertake, execute, hold, or enjoy, in whole or in part, any contract or agreement made or entered into in behalf of the United States, by any officer or person authorized to make contracts on behalf of the United States. Every person who violates this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined three thousand dollars. All contracts or agreements made in violation of this section shall be void; and whenever any sum of money is advanced on the part of the United States, in consideration of any such contract or agreement, it shall be forthwith repaid; and in case of refusal or delay to repay the same, when demanded, by the proper officer of the Department under whose authority such contract or agreement shall have been made or entered into, every person so refusing or delaying, together with his surety or sureties, shall be forthwith prosecuted at law for the recovery of any such sum of money so advanced. [R. S.]

Act of April 21, 1808, ch. 48, 2 Stat. L. 484. See further PUBLIC OFFICERS.

The object of the statute is only to prevent jobbing between members of the legislature and executive for the pecuniary advantage of the former. (1842) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 47.

How construed. — This is a highly penal law; and, besides, is in derogation of common right; on both accounts, therefore, if not to be interpreted strictly, at least not to be extended by any latitude of inference and construction. (1842) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 47.

The word "void" in this Act is used in the sense of "null," or of no effect from the beginning, and not admitting of ratification. U. S. v. Dietrich, (1904) 126 Fed. Rep. 671.

When or how members of Congress become parties immaterial. — Members of Congress and delegates are prohibited from holding or enjoying any contract or agreement with the United States irrespective of when or how they became parties to it. U. S. v. Dietrich, (1904) 126 Fed. Rep. 671.

Nature of interest necessary to disqualify. — The interest to disqualify a member from taking, or an officer from offering, a contract must be an immediate (however indirect) personal interest in its benefits. That he may ultimately profit by his contract — e. g., as heir, devisee, etc. — is not enough. Neither is it enough that his nearest friends or relatives may profit by it. (1842) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 47.

Member of Congress in partnership. — A partnership of which a member of Congress is a member cannot enter into a contract with the government; but, if he withdraw from it, the contract may be concluded with the other partners. (1842) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 47.

Member of Congress as bondsman. — Signing a contractor's bond would not give the surety any immediate personal interest in its benefits. He is not a contractor with the government, nor does he under any circumstances become so under the statute; therefore, a member of, or delegate to, Congress may be lawfully accepted as a bondsman on a contract with the government. (1885) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 286.

Delegate elected but not sworn in. — The provisions of this section, and R. S. sec. 3741, do not apply to a contract with one who was, after the making of the contract, elected a delegate to Congress but had not yet been sworn in, nor had there been any session of Congress since his election. Such person would not become a "member of, or delegate to, Congress" until Congress had accepted him and he had accepted the duties of the office and taken the appropriate oath. Until these events have occurred this legislation has no application to him. (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 280.

Applicable to all contracts. — A prohibition of this section extends to any contract or agreement no matter how fairly obtained or held, how reasonable in its terms or how advantageous to the United States. U. S. v. Dietrich, (1904) 126 Fed. Rep. 671.

Services included. — The policy of the law is to prevent the exercise of executive influence over the members of Congress by means of contracts; and whether the contract be for the services of a lawyer, a physician, a mail carrier, or a surveyor, it is equally within the mischief to be prevented. (1826) 2 Op. Atty.-Gen. 38.

Members of Congress as counsel to district attorney. — Although the employment of members of Congress as assistant counsel to the district attorney of the United States was not within the view of Congress, this statute forbids all contracts between officers of the government and members of Congress. (1826) 2 Op. Atty.-Gen. 38.

Lawful partial performance. — It is not necessary to invalidate from the beginning a contract lawfully entered into when during its life the individual with whom it was made becomes "a member of, or delegate to, Congress." The contract should be terminated in so far as it is executory, but without extinguishing or avoiding, even if that were permissible, the rights of either party acquired by its lawful performance or by its breach up to that time. U. S. v. Dietrich, (1904) 126 Fed. Rep. 671, disapproving (1809) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 697.

Invalidating contract transferred to member of Congress. — Where a contract valid when made is subsequently attempted to be assigned or transferred to "a member of, or delegate to, Congress," it is not necessary, if permissible, to invalidate it from the very beginning. The purpose of the statute is accomplished by invalidating only the assignment or transfer, and by leaving the individual with whom the contract was originally made charged with the full performance of his obligations thereunder. U. S. v. Dietrich, (1904) 126 Fed. Rep. 671.

Sec. 3740. [What interest members of Congress may have.] Nothing contained in the preceding section shall extend, or be construed to extend, to any contract or agreement, made or entered into, or accepted, by any incorporated company, where such contract or agreement is made for the general benefit of such incorporation or company; nor to the purchase or sale of bills of exchange or other property by any member of or delegate to Congress, where the same are ready for delivery, and payment therefor is made, at the time of making or entering into the contract or agreement. [R. S.]

Act of April 21, 1808, ch. 48, 2 Stat. L. 484. This section was amended by the Act of Feb. 27, 1877, ch. 69, 19 Stat. L. 249, by adding after the words "by any member of" the words "or delegate to," as given above.

Contracts for carrying the mail made with railroad corporations are excepted by this statute from the operation of the provisions of R. S. sec. 3739. (1885) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 112.

Sec. 3741. [Stipulation that no member of Congress has an interest.] In every such contract or agreement to be made or entered into, or accepted by or on behalf of the United States, there shall be inserted an express condition that no member of or delegate to Congress shall be admitted to any share or part of such contract or agreement, or to any benefit to arise thereupon. [R. S.]

Act of April 21, 1808, ch. 48, 2 Stat. L. 484.

This section was amended by the Act of Feb. 27, 1877, ch. 69, 19 Stat. L. 249, by adding after the words "that no member of" the words "or delegate to," as given above.

Insertion of condition in mail contracts. — The express condition mentioned in this section need not be inserted in contracts for carrying the mail made with railroad corporations. (1885) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 112.

Sec. 3742. [Penalty against officer for making contract with a member of Congress.] Every officer who, on behalf of the United States, directly or indirectly makes or enters into any contract, bargain, or agreement in writing or otherwise, other than such as are hereinbefore excepted, with any member of or delegate to Congress, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined three thousand dollars. [R. S.]

Act of April 21, 1808, ch. 48, 2 Stat. L. 484.

This section was amended by the Act of Feb. 27, 1877, ch. 69, 19 Stat. L. 249, by adding after the words "with any member of" the words "or delegate to," as given above.

SEC. 10. [Employees, etc., of United States not to be interested in Indian contracts, etc. — penalty for violation.] That no agent or employee of the United States Government, or of any of the Departments thereof, while in the service of the Government, shall have any interest, directly or indirectly, contingent or absolute, near or remote, in any contract made, or under negotiation, with the Government, or with the Indians, for the purchase or transportation or delivery of goods or supplies for the Indians, or for the removal of the Indians; nor shall any such agent or employee collude with any person who may attempt to obtain any such contract for the purpose of enabling such person to obtain the same. The violation of any of the provisions of this section shall be a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and by removal from office; and, in addition thereto, the court shall, in its discretion, have the power to punish by imprisonment of not more than six months. * * * [18 Stat. L. 177.]

This is from the Indian Appropriation Act of June 22, 1874, ch. 389.

Sec. 3743. [Deposit of contracts.] All contracts to be made, by virtue of any law, and requiring the advance of money, or in any manner connected with the settlement of public accounts, shall be deposited promptly in the offices of the Auditors of the Treasury, according to the nature of the contracts: Provided, That this section shall not apply to the existing laws in regard to the contingent funds of Congress. [R. S.]

This section was amended "to read as" above by the Act of July 31, 1894, ch. 174, sec. 18, 28 Stat. L. 210. The section originally read as follows:

"Sec. 3743. All contracts to be made, by virtue of any law, and requiring the advance of money, or in any manner connected with the settlement of public accounts, shall be deposited in the office of the First Comptroller of the Treasury of the United States, within ninety days after their respective dates." Act of July 16, 1798, ch. 85, 1 Stat. L. 610.

It was first amended by the Act of Feb. 27, 1877, ch. 69, 19 Stat. L. 249, by adding after the words "Treasury of the United States" the words "the Second Comptroller of the Treasury of the United States, or the Commissioner of Customs, respectively, according to the nature thereof."

It was again amended as stated above to read as set out in the text.

Under the Act of July 16, 1798, it was held in (1832) 2 Op. Atty.-Gen. 518, that contracts for bricks and masonry at Fort Monroe ought to have been deposited with the comptroller, and accounts arising therefrom ought to be adjusted at the treasury department; until that shall be done the secretary of war cannot be called on to order payment.

SEC. 7. [Copies of contracts for Indian service to be furnished Second Auditor.] * * * That copies of all contracts made by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, or any other officer of the Government, for the Indian service, shall be furnished to the Second Auditor of the Treasury before any payment shall be made thereon. [18 Stat. L. 450.]

This is from the Indian Appropriation Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 132.

SEC. 3. [Proposals, etc., for contracts in Indian service to be filed and preserved — abstracts to be filed with contracts.] That in all lettings of contracts in connection with the Indian service, the proposals or bids received shall be filed and preserved; and in the annual report of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, there shall be embodied a detailed and tabular statement of all bids and proposals received for any services, supplies, or annuity-goods for the Indian service, together with a detailed statement of all awards of contracts made for any such services, supplies, and annuity-goods for which said bids or proposals were received; and an abstract of all bids or proposals received for the supplies or services embraced in any contract shall be attached to, and filed with, the said contract when the same is filed in the office of the Second Comptroller of the Treasury. [19 Stat. L. 176.]

This is from the Indian Appropriation Act of Aug. 15, 1876, ch. 289.

Sec. 3744. [Contracts to be in writing.] It shall be the duty of the Secretary of War, of the Secretary of the Navy, and of the Secretary of the Interior, to cause and require every contract made by them severally on behalf of the Government, or by their officers under them appointed to make such contracts, to be reduced to writing, and signed by the contracting parties with their names at the end thereof; a copy of which shall be filed by the officer making and signing the contract in the Returns Office of the Department of the Interior, as soon after the contract is made as possible, and within thirty days, together with all bids, offers, and proposals to him made by persons to obtain the same, and with a copy of any advertisement he may have published inviting bids, offers, or proposals for the same. All the copies and papers in relation to each contract shall be attached together by a ribbon and seal, and marked by numbers in regular order, according to the number of papers composing the whole return. [R. S.]

Act of June 2, 1862, ch. 93, 12 Stat. L. 411.

Nature of statute. — This statute is mandatory and imperative in its requirements and not merely directory to the parties. Henderson's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 75. See also Steele v. U. S., (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 181; Neuchatel Co.'s Case, (1881) 17 Ct. Cl. 386; (1898) 22 Op. Atty-Gen. 98.

The Act is mandatory and in effect prohibits and renders unlawful any other mode of making the contract. Clark v. U. S., (1877) 95 U. S. 539.

Statute of frauds. — This statute is as between the government and its contractor a statute of frauds. It does not prohibit contracts, but regulates the manner of making them. Lindsley's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 360; Danold's Case, (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 68.

This Act is a statute to prevent frauds and perjuries and its language is mandatory.

Calvary Cathedral v. U. S., (1894) 29 Ct. Cl. 269.

Relation to English law. — "Section 3744 is a statute of frauds more stringent and restricted than the English statute and others based upon it, in that part performance does not take a case out of the statute." (1898) 22 Op. Atty-Gen. 98, citing Jones's Case, (1875) 11 Ct. Cl. 733; South Boston Iron Co. v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cl. 165, affirmed (1886) 118 U. S. 37; Barnes v. District of Columbia, (1887) 22 Ct. Cl. 366.

Extent of section. — This statute extends not merely to quartermasters and ordinary purchasing agents, but to all officers in the war, navy, and interior departments, and to the secretaries of those departments themselves, and embraces every contract made by them. Danold's Case, (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 68.

Since the Acts of June 2, 1862, and July 17, 1862, every contract made by the secretaries of war, navy, or interior, or by the officers under them, must be reduced to writing and signed or, as executory contracts, they will be void. Danold's Case, (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 68.

Prohibition of other modes.—The statute was intended to operate to prevent reckless engagements and frauds, and it makes it unlawful for contracting officers to make contracts in any other way than by writing signed by the parties. This is equivalent to prohibiting any other mode of making contracts. (1892) 20 Op. Atty-Gen. 496.

Upon whom mandatory.—This Act is mandatory and obligatory as to the provision for a written contract not only upon the officer of the United States entering into the contract but also upon the contractor. Danold's Case, (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 68.

Whose duty to reduce to writing.—It is as much the duty of the contractor as of the officer of the United States to see that the contract is reduced to writing as provided in this section. Henderson's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 75.

A party who makes a contract with an officer without having it reduced to writing is knowingly accessory to a violation of duty on his part. Such a party aids in the violation of the law. The contract itself is affected, and must conform to the requirements of the statute until it passes from the observation and control of the parties who enter into it. After that, if the officer fails to follow the further directions of the Act with regard to affixing his affidavit and returning a copy of the contract to the proper officer, the party is not responsible for this neglect. Clark v. U. S., (1877) 95 U. S. 539.

Ignorance of contractor.—The fact that the officers of the government neglected their statutory duty, and that the contractor, being ignorant of the law, relied upon them and complied with their demands in the belief that he was legally bound to do so, when he was not, does not take the case out of the statute. St. Louis Hay, etc., Co. v. U. S., (1902) 37 Ct. Cl. 283.

Penalty for failure to reduce to writing.—There is no express penalty for the failure to reduce a contract to writing as provided by this section. Henderson's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 75.

Verification and return by whom.—The provisions of this section as to verification and the return to the returns office of a contract are mandatory upon the officers alone, and the omission to perform such acts, while subjecting the officer making the contract to the penalty provided in R. S. sec. 3746, has no effect upon the contractor. Henderson's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 75.

Necessity to show filing.—Where a contract has been signed, filed, etc., as required by this section, it is not necessary that a contractor claiming thereunder should show that it has been filed in the returns office of the interior department by the officer signing the same. Power v. U. S., (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 263.

Effect of failure to make return.—A contract reduced to writing and executed with all the formalities and solemnity that the law required will not be invalidated by the failure of the officer to make his proper return of the same. Henderson's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 75.

When contracts become valid.—Contracts contemplated by this section do not become valid until executed in accordance with its requirements. South Boston Iron Co. v. U. S., (1886) 118 U. S. 38; Clark v. U. S., (1877) 95 U. S. 542; (1892) 20 Op. Atty-Gen. 445.

"It is the final written instrument that the statute contemplates shall be executed and signed by the parties and which shall contain and be the proof of their obligations and rights." Monroe v. U. S., (1902) 184 U. S. 527.

Preliminary memoranda.—To bind the United States contracts by the navy department must be in writing and signed by the contracting parties. The preliminary memoranda made by the parties for use in preparing a contract for execution in form required by law are not sufficient. South Boston Iron Co. v. U. S., (1886) 118 U. S. 42; Clark v. U. S., (1877) 95 U. S. 539; (1892) 20 Op. Atty-Gen. 496.

The negotiations, correspondence, proposals, acceptance, etc., in writing, signed in part by one party, and in part by the other, do not constitute sufficient compliance with the provisions of this section to constitute a valid contract. South Boston Iron Co. v. U. S., (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 165, affirmed (1886) 118 U. S. 38.

Preliminary negotiations after execution of contract.—The preliminary advertisements, specifications, and proposals, and acceptance of proposals, must be viewed as becoming a part of the statutory contract when the contract was executed as required by this statute, but until then only as a part of the negotiations looking to a formal contract. McLaughlin v. U. S., (1901) 36 Ct. Cl. 177.

When contract becomes binding.—In Adams's Case, (1865) 1 Ct. Cl. 195, however, it was held that where a party furnishes sureties for the performance of his bid, if accepted, the contract becomes mutual and binding from the moment of its acceptance, although a formal written contract is to be subsequently executed.

Contracts made in an emergency without advertisement are subject to the provisions of this section. Cobb v. U. S., (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 515, overruling (1871) 7 Ct. Cl. 470.

During war of rebellion.—This Act during the war of the rebellion was suspended with regard to contracts for army supplies in an emergency by the Act of July 4, 1864, 13 Stat. L. 394. Cobb's Case, (1871) 7 Ct. Cl. 470; Thompson's Case, (1873) 9 Ct. Cl. 187; Cobb's Case, (1873) 9 Ct. Cl. 294.

An agreement on the behalf of the post-office department need not be in writing. The provisions of this section apply only to the war, navy, and interior departments. Little v. U. S., (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 272.

While it has been held generally under the statutes applicable to contracts of the post-office department that proposals duly accepted without formal agreement may constitute a contract complete and binding on the government, this is not the case with contracts for public works and other contracts under this section. (1898) 22 Op. Atty-Gen. 98.

A contract for the sale of sand to be taken from time to time from the owner's sand bed by the United States is void when not in writing, and if the owner can recover in any event he must show the value of the sand taken. Lindsley's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 360; Salomon's Case, (1871) 7 Ct. Cl. 486.

Construction and repair of vessel.—An oral contract made by the chief of the bureau of construction and repair for work to be done on a vessel is void under the provisions of this statute. Steele v. U. S., (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 181.

Damages to vessel hired on parol contract.—A recovery may not be had for damages to a vessel hired by a quartermaster on a parol contract in which he agreed to return the same in as good condition as when hired. The prohibition of this section forbids such recovery. Lender's Case, (1871) 7 Ct. Cl. 530.

Substitution of supplies.—An oral agreement to accept one kind of grain instead of another, under a written contract, is void under the provisions of this section, but for such grain actually delivered and used the claimant is entitled to payment at a fair and reasonable value upon an implied assumpsit independently of a written contract. Mitchell v. U. S., (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 39.

Performed contract.—The invalidity of a contract by reason of the provisions of this section is immaterial if the contract has been performed. St. Louis Hay, etc., Co. v. U. S., (1903) 191 U. S. 159.

Extension of time of performance.—This Act is not infringed if the proper officer accepts the delivery of supplies after the day stipulated; nor is a verbal agreement to extend the time of performance invalid. Salomon v. U. S., (1873) 19 Wall. (U. S.) 17, reversing (1871) 7 Ct. Cl. 482.

When, under a written contract, made by a person to deliver such supplies as corn at one time fixed, the quartermaster in charge receives part of the corn from such person for the government, and then at a later date, no objection being made to the delay, receives the rest, and gives a receipt and voucher for the amount and the price, and the government uses such part of it as it wants, and suffers the remainder to decay by exposure and neglect, there is an implied contract to pay the value of such corn, which value may, in the absence of other testimony, be presumed to be the price fixed in the voucher by the quartermaster. Salomon v. U. S., (1873) 19 Wall. (U. S.) 17, reversing (1871) 7 Ct. Cl. 482.

Time of the essence of contract.—As this is a statute of frauds it necessarily excludes an unwritten alteration or substitution; therefore, where time is of the essence of the contract the time of delivery cannot be extended unless the extension be evidenced in the manner prescribed in this section. Jones's Case, (1875) 11 Ct. Cl. 733, affirmed (1877) 96 U. S. 24.

Executory parol contract.—A parol agreement while a contract is executory is not obligatory on the government. (1898) 22 Op. Atty-Gen. 98.

Effect of performance of parol contract.—Where, however, a parol contract has been wholly or partly executed on one side, the party performing will be entitled to recover the fair value of his property or service as upon an implied contract for a quantum meruit. Clark v. U. S., (1877) 95 U. S. 539.

Performance by one side and acceptance on the other of the conditions of a contract not in writing are sufficient to a certain extent to take a case out of the prohibition of the statute and to leave it within the equitable rules of implied contracts. Ratification of such a contract may be made by the acts of the parties. Danold's Case, (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 68.

A parol agreement enlarging the quantity of work required by a written contract, is not obligatory upon the government where the contract is by law required to be in writing. But compensation for work actually done thereunder may be recovered on an implied assumpsit. Wilson v. U. S., (1888) 23 Ct. Cl. 77.

Implied contract for extra material and of work required by a written contract is not into by the war department for a building, and full specifications are given and the cost is limited, and it is provided in the contract that no extra charge shall be made for any modification or alteration in the plans, unless an agreement with regard to the same be made in writing, and where an appropriation is made agreeing with the contract price, if the officer of the government in charge of the work orders a change to be made, and extra materials and labor to be furnished, and the building thereby is rendered more valuable and useful, and the government accepts and uses the building, it is liable for a fair and reasonable value of the materials and labor so supplied on an implied contract notwithstanding the fact that the cost exceeds the appropriation, as forbidden by R. S. sec. 3733, and notwithstanding the fact that such extra materials and labor were not contracted for in accordance with the provisions of this section. Grant's Case, (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 72.

Responsibility of officer ordering extra work.—Where additional work not called for in the contract is ordered by a subordinate officer it will be deemed voluntary service by the contractor for which no recovery may be had. But where it is ordered by a responsible officer with authority recovery may be had on an implied contract to the extent of the benefit of the government. Barlow v. U. S., (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 514.

Recovery for goods actually purchased and used.—A written contract is not necessary to sustain a recovery where goods have been delivered to and used by the government. There is a distinction between an action on an executory contract to recover damages for nonperformance and an action on the implied obligation to pay for articles actually purchased and used by the government. Burchiel's Case, (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 549; Dougherty v. U. S., (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 496.

Purchase according to practice or custom. — Where a statute directs judgment, if it appears that the purchase of certain horses was made according to "the practice or custom" of the quartermaster's department, and the practice at the time was to purchase horses, payable on delivery, without written contracts, the case is taken out of this statute. Finn v. U. S., (1891) 26 Ct. Cl. 436.

Action for breach. — Where contracts must be in writing no action can be maintained for a breach unless the requirements of the statute have been complied with. St. Louis Hay, etc., Co. v. U. S., (1902) 37 Ct. Cl. 283.

Action by principal on contract by agent. — Since the enactment of this section the doctrine that an action may be brought by the principal, though the contract was in the name of the agent, is not applicable to contracts made with the war, navy, and interior departments. Calvary Cathedral v. U. S., (1894) 29 Ct. Cl. 269.

Sec. 3745. [Oath to contract.] It shall be the further duty of the officer, before making his return, according to the preceding section, to affix to the same his affidavit in the following form, sworn to before some magistrate having authority to administer oaths: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that the copy of contract hereto annexed is an exact copy of a contract made by me personally with ———; that I made the same fairly without any benefit or advantage to myself, or allowing any such benefit or advantage corruptly to the said ———, or any other person; and that the papers accompanying include all those relating to the said contract, as required by the statute in such case made and provided." [R. S.]

Sec. 3746. [Penalty for omitting returns.] Every officer who makes any contract, and fails or neglects to make return of the same, according to the provisions of the two preceding sections, unless from unavoidable accident or causes not within his control, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred, and imprisoned not more than six months. [R. S.]

Act of June 2, 1862, ch. 93, 12 Stat. L. 411.

Sec. 3747. [Instructions.] It shall be the duty of the Secretary of War, of the Secretary of the Navy, and of the Secretary of the Interior to furnish every officer appointed by them with authority to make contracts on behalf of the Government with a printed letter of instructions, setting forth the duties of such officer, under the two preceding sections, and also to furnish therewith forms, printed in blank, of contracts to be made, and the affidavit of returns required to be affixed thereto, so that all the instruments may be as nearly uniform as possible. [R. S.]

Act of June 2, 1862, ch. 93, 12 Stat. L. 411.

Sec. 512. [Returns office.] The Secretary of the Interior shall from time to time provide a proper apartment, to be called the Returns Office, in which he shall cause to be filed the returns of contracts made by the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of the Interior, and shall appoint a clerk of the first class to attend to the same. [R. S.]

Act of June 2, 1862, ch. 93, 12 Stat. L. 412.
Secs. 512-515 constitute ch. 8 (entitled
"The Returns Office") of title 11 (entitled

"The Department of the Interior") of the Revised Statutes.

Sec. 513. [Clerk to file returns.] The clerk of the Returns Office shall file all returns made to the Office, so that the same may be of easy access, keeping all returns made by the same officer in the same place, and numbering them in the order in which they are made. [R. S.]

Act of June 2, 1862, ch. 93, 12 Stat. L. 412.

Sec. 514. [Indexes.] The clerk of the Returns Office shall provide and keep an index-book, with the names of the contracting parties, and the number of each contract opposite to the names; and shall submit the index-book and returns to any person desiring to inspect it. [R. S.]

Act of June 2, 1862, ch. 93, 12 Stat. L. 412.

Sec. 515. [Copies of returns.] The clerk of the Returns Office shall furnish copies of such returns to any person paying therefor at the rate of five cents for every one hundred words, to which copies certificates shall be appended in every case by the clerk making the same, attesting their correctness, and that each copy so certified is a full and complete copy of the return. Sec. 3693. [Payment in coin.] The faith of the United States is solemnly pledged to the payment in coin or its equivalent of all the obligations of the United States not bearing interest, known as United States notes, and of all the interest-bearing obligations of the United States, except in cases where the law authorizing the issue of any such obligations has expressly provided that the same may be paid in lawful money or other currency than gold and silver. But none of the interest-bearing obligations not already due shall be redeemed or paid before maturity, unless at such time United States notes are convertible into coin at the option of the holder, or unless at such time bonds of the United States bearing a lower rate of interest than the bonds to be redeemed can be sold at par in coin. The faith of the United States is also solemnly pledged to make provisions at the earliest practicable period for the redemption of the United States notes in coin. [R. S.]

Act of March 18, 1869, ch. 1, 16 Stat. L. 1.
Secs. 3693-3708 constitute title 42 of the Revised Statutes, entitled "The Public Debt."

Compromised claim.—Parties having claims against the United States which are disputed by the officers authorized to adjust the same, may compromise the claim, and may accept payment in a different medium from that promised, or may accept a smaller sum than that claimed; and where it appears that the claimant voluntarily entered into a compromise and accepted payment in full in a different medium from that promised, or accepted a smaller sum than that claimed and executed a discharge in full for the whole claim, or voluntarily surrendered to the proper officer the evidences of the claim for cancellation, he cannot subsequently sue the United States and recover in the Court of Claims for any part of the claim voluntarily relinquished in the compromise. Savage's Case, (1861) 11 Ct. Cl. 215, citing Sweeney v. U. S., (1872) 17 Wall. (U. S.) 77;

U. S. v. Child, (1870) 12 Wall. (U. S.) 244; U. S. v. Justice, (1871) 14 Wall. (U. S.) 549.

Payment in different medium or by smaller sum.—The unconditional acceptance of a medium of payment different from that promised by the United States, or absolute acceptance of a smaller sum from the secretary of the treasury than the one claimed from the United States, even in a case where the amount relinquished is large, does not leave the United States open to further claim on the ground of duress, if the acceptance of the different medium or the smaller sum is voluntary, and without intimidation, and with a full knowledge of the circumstances; nor is the case changed if it appears that the claimant was induced to accept the different medium or the smaller sum in full as a means to secure an earlier payment of the claim than he could otherwise hope to procure. Savage's Case, 11 Ct. Cl. 215, citing Mason v. U. S., (1872) 17 Wall. (U. S.) 74.

Sec. 3694. [Application of coin paid for duties.] The coin paid for duties on imported goods shall be set apart as a special fund, and shall be applied as follows:

First. [Payment of interest on public debt.] To the payment in coin of the interest on the bonds and notes of the United States.

Second. [Sinking-fund.] To the purchase or payment of one per centum of the entire debt of the United States, to be made within each fiscal year, which is to be set apart as a sinking-fund, and the interest of which shall in like manner be applied to the purchase or payment of the public debt, as the Secretary of the Treasury shall from time to time direct.

Third. [Residue.] The residue to be paid into the Treasury. [R. S.]

SEC. 32. [Loans — certificates of indebtedness — counterfeiting.] That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to borrow from time to time, at a rate of interest not exceeding three per centum per annum, such sum or sums as, in his judgment, may be necessary to meet public expenditures, and to issue therefor certificates of indebtedness in such form as he may prescribe and in denominations of fifty dollars or some multiple of that sum; and each certificate so issued shall be payable, with the interest accrued thereon, at such time, not exceeding one year from the date of its issue, as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe: Provided, That the amount of such certificates outstanding shall at no time exceed one hundred millions of dollars; and the provisions of existing law respecting counterfeiting and other fraudulent practices are hereby extended to the bonds and certificates of indebtedness authorized by this Act. [30 Stat. L. 467.]

This and sec. 33 following are from the Act of June 13, 1898, ch. 448, "An Act to provide ways and means to meet war expenditures, and for other purposes."

Counterfeiting.—See COUNTERFEITING AND FORGING, vol. 2, p. 297.

SEC. 33. [Issue of bonds to secure loans.] That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to borrow on the credit of the United States from time to time as the proceeds may be required to defray expenditures authorized on account of the existing war (such proceeds when received to be used only for the purpose of meeting such war expenditures) the sum of four hundred million dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, and to prepare and issue therefor, coupon or registered bonds of the United States in such form as he may prescribe, and in denominations of twenty dollars or some multiple of that sum, redeemable in coin at the pleasure of the United States after ten years from the date of their issue, and payable twenty years from such date, and bearing interest payable quarterly in coin at the rate of three per centum per annum; and the bonds herein authorized shall be exempt from all taxes or duties of the United States, as well as from taxation in any form by or under State, municipal, or local authority: Provided, That the bonds authorized by this section shall be first offered at par as a popular loan under such regulations, prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, as will give opportunity to the citizens of the United States to participate in the subscriptions to such loan, and in allotting said bonds the several subscriptions of individuals shall be first accepted, and the subscriptions for the lowest amounts shall be first allotted: Provided further, That any portion of any issue of said bonds not subscribed for as above provided may be disposed of by the Secretary of the Treasury at not less than par, under such regulations as he may prescribe, but no commissions shall be allowed or paid thereon; and a sum not exceeding one-tenth of one per centum of the amount of the bonds and certificates herein authorized is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to pay the expense of preparing, advertising, and issuing the same. [30 Stat. L. 467.]

See note to section 32, supra.

Sec. 3695. [Cancellation of bonds redeemed or paid.] All bonds applied to the sinking-fund, and all other United States bonds redeemed or paid by the United States, shall be canceled and destroyed. A detailed record of the bonds so canceled and destroyed shall be first made in the books of the Treasury Department. The amount of the bonds of each class that have been canceled and destroyed shall be deducted respectively from the amount of each class of the outstanding debt of the United States. [R. S.]

Act of July 14, 1870, ch. 256, 16 Stat. L. 273.

Sec. 3696. [Addition to sinking-fund.] In addition to other amounts that may be applied to the redemption or payment of the public debt, an amount equal to the interest on all bonds belonging to the sinking-fund shall be applied, as the Secretary of the Treasury shall from time to time direct, to the payment of the public debt. [R. S.]

Act of July 14, 1870, ch. 256, 16 Stat. L. 273.

Sec. 3697. [Redemption of six per cent. bonds.] The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized, with any coin in the Treasury which he may lawfully apply to such purpose, or which may be derived from the sale of any of the bonds which he may be authorized to dispose of for that purpose, to pay at par and cancel any six per centum bonds of the United States of the kind known as five-twenty bonds, which have become or shall hereafter become redeemable by the terms of their issue. But the particular bonds so to be paid and canceled shall in all cases be indicated and specified by class, date, and number, in the order of their numbers and issue, beginning with the first numbered and issued, in a public notice to be given by the Secretary of the Treasury, and, in three months after the date of such public notice, the interest on the bonds so selected and advertised to be paid shall cease. [R. S.]

Act of July 14, 1870, ch. 256, 16 Stat. L. 273.

Nature of Act.—This is merely an Act providing for redemption in contradistinction from a payment. Morgan v. U. S., (1885) 113 U. S. 476; Stewart v. Henry County, (1895) 66 Fed. Rep. 131.

Negotiability of bonds.—"The Acts of Congress under which these and similar bonds of the United States were authorized and issued, do not in terms attach to them the legal quality of negotiable securities; but they are such in form and fact and obviously for the purpose of giving them the highest credit and the widest and most unfettered currency by passing by delivery, with a title unimpeachable in the hands of bona fide purchasers for value." Morgan v. U. S., (1885) 113 U. S. 476.

Legal effect of call for redemption.—"The bond becomes, after the maturity of a call for redemption, payable at the option of the holder on demand, but without future interest, at any time prior to the day fixed for ultimate payment, when it becomes unconditionally due. The construction which, after the maturity of such a call, reads the contract as if the day when interest is to cease had been originally inserted as the day of ultimate payment, confounds and obliterates the express distinction made in the law itself between redeemability and payability, and rewrites the contract upon a different basis. The legal effect of the call undoubtedly is to entitle the holder to demand payment at its maturity, and, even though not demanded, to exonerate the government from liability for interest accruing after that date; but, consistently with the terms of the statutes, and the obvious purposes in view in the original creation and issue of the securities in the form adopted, it cannot be that the legal effect of such a call for the purpose of redemption is the same as if the bond had been originally framed as an obligation to pay absolutely on a day previously fixed." Morgan v. U. S., (1885) 113 U. S. 476, Rev. (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 386.

Value of bonds on call for redemption.—

By calling in the five-twenty bonds for redemption they are made equal in value as money to par and interest then due. Morgan v. U. S., (1885) 113 U. S. 476.

Effect of call on negotiability.—After a bill or note is due, it comes disgraced to the indorsee. No such presumption arises to affect the title of a holder of the bonds of the United States acquired by a bona fide purchaser for value prior to the date fixed in the bonds themselves for their ultimate payment; the only change in the original effect of the contract by the exercise of the right of earlier redemption is to stop the obligation to pay future interest. And as against one choosing for any purpose of his own to retain his bond as a continuing security for the value it always presents, having impressed upon it by the law of its creation the faculty of passing from hand to hand as money and therefore just as useful in the pursuits of trade and the exchanges of commerce and banking as so much money in the form of coin or bank notes, and more convenient because more portable, no such presumption can be entertained on the ground that its continued circulation is not in the due course of business, that it has fully performed all its intended functions and that it has been in any sense dishonored by a refusal on the part of the obligor to fulfil its obligation. Morgan v. U. S., (1885) 113 U. S. 476, reversing (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 386.

Effect of call on interest and maturity.—"That law gives to the holder three months after the date of the call for redemption within which to present his bonds for payment or exchange with interest to the date of redemption; but the only penalty it prescribes, if the holder chooses to retain his original security, is the loss of future interest. In no other respect does it alter the original contract. It seeks to impose upon it no other disability, nor take from it any other immunity. It stands, therefore, upon its statutory basis as a bond redeemable at the treasury on demand, without interest after the maturity of the call, payable according to its original terms and not overdue in the commercial sense till after the day of unconditional payment." Morgan v. U. S., (1885) 113 U. S. 476, reversing (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 386.

Effect of stopping interest.—"The fact that interest was to cease to accrue three months after the date of call had no tendency to discredit the bonds or affect the title of a bona fide purchaser for value in the due course of trade." Morgan v. U. S., (1885) 113 U. S. 476, reversing (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 386.

How long bond may be held.—"Any holder had a right without prejudice, except as to loss of interest, to wait without demand for the whole period, at the expiration of which the bond was unconditionally payable." Morgan v. U. S., (1885) 113 U. S. 476.

"The method of giving such public notice by the department is by advertisement in newspapers selected by it." Stewart v. Henry County, (1895) 66 Fed. Rep. 131.

SEC. 2. [Application of surplus moneys to redemption of bonds.] That the Secretary of the Treasury may at any time apply the surplus money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as he may consider proper, to the purchase or redemption of United States bonds: Provided, That the bonds so purchased or redeemed shall constitute no part of the sinking fund, but shall be canceled. * * * [21 Stat. L. 457.]

By whom made.—"The purchases are to be made by the secretary. He is to do this directly through the proper officers of the government and is not authorized by law to pay any commissions to private parties to purchase for the government. He is only authorized to apply the surplus money to the purchase of bonds and not to the payment of salaries or commissions." (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 279.

Amount to be purchased.—"The only express limitation to the exercise of the power to purchase conferred by this section is that the amount to be applied in the purchase or redemption of the bonds shall not at any time or in any event exceed the surplus in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. Within this maximum amount it confers on the secretary an official discretion to purchase or redeem from time to time whatever amounts may to him seem to be for the best interests of the United States." (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 279.

Cash purchases only.—"The power conferred by the statute does not extend to the making of contracts for future delivery, but is limited to actual cash purchases." (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 279.

Price to be paid.—Except when special and emergent general financial necessities demand relief, it is the intention of law that only the market price at the time of purchase should be paid, and no commissions in addition to the par value of the bond and the premium thereon can be lawfully paid. (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 279.

Discretion of secretary.—"The intent of the law is that the exercise of the discretion should generally be dependent upon the state of the market as a chief element. Keeping this in view, the discretion was not intended to be so rigorously limited as to prevent purchases even though the market price by reason of such purchases or other natural cause might rise, or even in special emergencies, when a general financial crisis could be avoided or stayed by a moderate advance above the then market values. But the policy of the government generally applicable in its purchases is to buy in a free and open market where all sellers of the commodity can readily compete and where the government can have the benefit of such competition. This policy should be recognized in the exercise of the power." (1889) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 279.

SEC. 11. [Three and a half per cent. bonds received in exchange for three per cent. registered bonds.] That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to receive at the Treasury any bonds of the United States bearing three and a half per centum interest, and to issue in exchange therefor an equal amount of registered bonds of the United States of the denominations of fifty, one hundred, five hundred, one thousand, and ten thousand dollars, of such form as he may prescribe, bearing interest at the rate of three per centum per annum, payable quarterly at the Treasury of the United States. Such bonds shall be exempt from all taxation by or under State authority, and be payable at the pleasure of the United States: Provided, That the bonds herein authorized shall not be called in and paid so long as any bonds of the United States heretofore issued bearing a higher rate of interest than three per centum, and which shall be redeemable at the pleasure of the United States, shall be outstanding and uncalled. The last of the said bonds originally issued under this act, and their substitutes, shall be first called in, and this order of payment shall be followed until all shall have been paid. [22 Stat. L. 165.]

ence, and for other purposes." For the other sections of the Act see NATIONAL BANKS, vol. 5, pp. 90, 93.

SEC. 11. [Five, four, and three per cent. bonds received in exchange for two per cent. bonds.] That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to receive at the Treasury any of the outstanding bonds of the United States bearing interest at five per centum per annum, payable February first, nineteen hundred and four, and any bonds of the United States bearing interest at four per centum per annum, payable July first, nineteen hundred and seven, and any bonds of the United States bearing interest at three per centum per annum, payable August first, nineteen hundred and eight, and to issue in exchange therefor an equal amount of coupon or registered bonds of the United States in such form as he may prescribe, in denominations of fifty dollars or any multiple thereof, bearing interest at the rate of two per centum per annum, payable quarterly, such bonds to be payable at the pleasure of the United States after thirty years from the date of their issue, and said bonds to be payable, principal and interest, in gold coin of the present standard value, and to be exempt from the payment of all taxes or duties of the United States, as well as from taxation in any form by or under State, municipal, or local authority: Provided, That such outstanding bonds may be received in exchange at a valuation not greater than their present worth to yield an income of two and one-quarter per centum per annum; and in consideration of the reduction of interest effected, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to pay to the holders of the outstanding bonds surrendered for exchange, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, a sum not greater than the difference between their present worth, computed as aforesaid, and their par value, and the payments to be made hereunder shall be held to be payments on account of the sinking fund created by section thirty-six hundred and ninety-four of the Revised Statutes: And provided further, That the two per centum bonds to be issued under the provisions of this Act shall be issued at not less than par, and they shall be numbered consecutively in the order of their issue, and when payment is made the last numbers issued shall be first paid, and this order shall be followed until all the bonds are paid, and whenever any of the outstanding bonds are called for payment interest thereon shall cease three months after such call; and there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to effect the exchanges of bonds provided for in this Act, a sum not exceeding one-fifteenth of one per centum of the face value of said bonds, to pay the expense of preparing and issuing the same and other expenses incident thereto. [31 Stat. L. 48.]

This is from the Act of March 14, 1900, ch. 41, "An Act to define and fix the standard of value, to maintain the parity of all forms of money issued or coined by the United States, to refund the public debt, and for other purposes," for a full reference to which see COINAGE, MINTS, AND ASSAY OFFICES, vol. 2, p. 131.

R. S. sec. 3694 above mentioned, is given supra, p. 138.

Sec. 3698. [Payment of interest.] The Secretary of the Treasury shall cause to be paid, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, any interest falling due, or accruing, on any portion of the public debt authorized by law. [R. S.]

Act of Feb. 9, 1847, ch. 7, 9 Stat. L. 123.

Sec. 3699. [Anticipation of interest.] The Secretary of the Treasury may anticipate the payment of interest on the public debt, by a period not exceeding one year, from time to time, either with or without a rebate of interest upon the coupons, as to him may seem expedient; and he is authorized to dispose of any gold in the Treasury of the United States, not necessary for the payment of interest of the public debt. The obligation to create the sinking-fund shall not, however, be impaired thereby. [R. S.]

Res. No. 20 of March 17, 1864, 13 Stat. L. 404.

Extent of authority granted.—"The authority given by this section is full and ample to dispose of the gold not needed for the payment of interest on the public debt in any manner that the secretary of the treasury may deem most for the public interests. No limitation is prescribed as to notice to be given by him, or as to the amount which he may sell, other than the one indicated." (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 413.

Authority to fix price of gold.—The secretary of the treasury has authority under this section to fix a currency price for disposing of gold within a limited period, subject to his power at any time to terminate the period for which the limit was made or to change such price so as to conform to the market rate. (1877) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 413.

Sec. 3700. [Purchase of coin.] The Secretary of the Treasury may purchase coin with any of the bonds or notes of the United States, authorized by law, at such rates and upon such terms as he may deem most advantageous to the public interest. [R. S.]

Act of March 17, 1862, ch. 45, 12 Stat. L. 370.

Sec. 3701. [Exemption from taxation.] All stocks, bonds, Treasury notes, and other obligations of the United States, shall be exempt from taxation by or under State or municipal or local authority. [R. S.]

Taxation of national bank notes and United States treasury notes, see Act of Aug. 13, 1864, ch. 281, title CURRENCY, vol. 2, p. 371.

"The principle of exemption is that the states cannot control the national government within the sphere of its constitutional powers—for there it is supreme—and cannot tax its obligations for payment of money issued for purposes within that range of powers, because such taxation necessarily implies the assertion of the right to exercise such control." Banks v. New York, (1868) 7 Wall. (U. S.) 16.

Nature of tax on government stock.—"The tax on government stock is thought by this court to be a tax on the contract, a tax on the power to borrow money on the credit of the United States, and consequently to be repugnant to the Constitution." Weston v. Charleston, (1829) 2 Pet. (U. S.) 449.

Constitutionality of state tax.—A state tax on the loans of the federal government is a restriction upon the constitutional powers of the United States to borrow money, and if the states had such a right, being in its nature unlimited, it might be so used as to defeat the federal power altogether. People v. Tax Com'rs, (1862) 2 Black (U. S.) 620. See to same effect Weston v. Charleston, (1829) 2 Pet. (U. S.) 449.

A state law for that purpose is unconstitutional, whether it imposes the tax on United States stock eo nomine, or includes it in the aggregate of the taxpayer's property, to be valued, like the rest, at its worth. People v. Tax Com'rs, (1862) 2 Black (U. S.) 620.

The words "and other obligations" read in connection with the context "stocks, bonds, treasury notes" include only obligations of the government similar in character to those specifically named and given under the general power to borrow money on the credit of the United States, and to issue and return therefor obligations in any appropriate form, and they do not include checks given in payment of such obligations. Hibernia Sav., etc., Soc. v. San Francisco, (1903) 139 Cal. 206.

A tax laid by a state on banks, "on a valuation equal to the amount of their capital stock paid in, or secured to be paid in," is a tax on the property of the institution; and when that property consists of stocks of the federal government the law laying the tax is void. Bank Tax Case, (1864) 2 Wall. (U. S.) 200.

Bank capital invested in stocks of U. S.—That portion of its capital which a New York bank has invested in the stocks, bonds, or other securities of the United States is not liable to taxation by the state. People v. Tax Com'rs, (1862) 2 Black (U. S.) 620.

Tax on stock of bank owning United States securities.—It is not a violation of this section to assess the shares of stock of a banking corporation, although the property of such corporation may consist partly of non-taxable United States securities. Cleveland Trust Co. v. Lander, (1902) 184 U. S. 111, affirming (1900) 62 Ohio St. 268.

A tax on stock of the United States held by an individual citizen of a state is a tax on the power to borrow money on the credit of the United States, and cannot be levied by or under the authority of a state consistently with the Constitution. Weston v. Charleston, (1829) 2 Pet. (U. S.) 449.

Checks or orders of the treasurer of the United States payable on demand are not within the reason and scope of the rule forbidding such taxation by the states as may tend to destroy the powers of the national government or impair their efficiency. Hibernia Sav., etc., Soc. v. San Francisco, (1903) 139 Cal. 206.

Notes under loan and currency acts of 1862-3.—In State Bank v. New York County, (1868) 7 Wall. (U. S.) 26, it was held, prior to the passage of this Act, that the United States notes issued under the Loan and Currency Acts of 1862 and 1863, intended to circulate as money and actually constituting with the national bank notes the ordinary circulating medium of the country, are the obligations of the national government and exempt from state taxation.

Certificates of indebtedness.—“We fail to perceive,” said Chief Justice Chase, “either that there is a solid distinction between certificates of indebtedness issued for money borrowed and given to creditors and certificates of indebtedness issued directly to creditors in payment of their demands; or that such certificates, issued as a means of executing constitutional powers of the government other than of borrowing money, are not as much beyond control and limitation by the states through taxation as bonds or other obligations issued for loans of money.” Banks v. New York, (1868) 7 Wall. (U. S.) 16.

Certificates of debts for war supplies.—Certificates of indebtedness issued by the United States to creditors of the government for supplies furnished to it in carrying on the war for integrity of the Union, and by which the government promised to pay the sums of money specified in them with interest at a time named, are beyond the taxing power of the states. Banks v. New York, (1868) 7 Wall. (U. S.) 16.

The premium on, or excess above par value of, United States government bonds is not taxable by the state nor under any municipal or local authority. Such premium is only an incident of the bond and cannot exist apart therefrom. The exemption by statute is not based on the value of the bonds but on the bonds themselves. R. I. Hospital Trust Co. v. Armington, (1898) 21 R. I. 33.

Converting bank account into greenbacks to evade taxation.—There is no principle which forbids a state from taking a whole period of a business year already passed as the best means of ascertaining how much the taxpayer shall be required to pay on property which is admitted to be taxable, and how much he shall deduct for the non-taxable securities of the United States; therefore, when a state statute provides that upon a certain day the monthly average amount or value of the property or goods of taxpayers shall be ascertained as a basis for the assessment for taxation and includes the time of holding or controlling moneys, etc., invested in or converted into nontaxable securities, a taxpayer may not escape his liability for taxes by converting, a few days before the assessment, all moneys to his general account in the bank into greenbacks for the purpose of evading taxation, such greenbacks being shortly thereafter redeposited to his general account in the bank. Shotwell v. Moore, (1889) 129 U. S. 590, affirming (1888) 45 Ohio St. 632.

Sec. 3702. [Duplicate for bonds destroyed.] Whenever it appears to the Secretary of the Treasury, by clear and unequivocal proof, that any interest-bearing bond of the United States has, without bad faith upon the part of the owner, been destroyed, wholly or in part, or so defaced as to impair its value to the owner, and such bond is identified by number and description, the Secretary of the Treasury shall, under such regulations and with such restrictions as to time and retention for security or otherwise as he may prescribe, issue a duplicate thereof, having the same time to run, bearing like interest as the bond so proved to have been destroyed or defaced, and so marked as to show the original number of the bond destroyed and the date thereof. But when such destroyed or defaced bonds appear to have been of such a class or series as has been or may, before such application, be called in for redemption, instead of issuing duplicates thereof, they shall be paid, with such interest only as would have been paid if they had been presented in accordance with such call. [R. S.]

Act of June 1, 1872, ch. 254, 17 Stat. L. 196.

Practice prior to Act.—For a long time it was the practice to pass special Acts of Congress authorizing the secretary of the treasury of the United States to issue, upon the conditions prescribed in the Acts, duplicate United States bonds destroyed by fire or otherwise. Examples of such Acts are: Act Feb. 13, 1862 (12 Stat. 901); Act Jan. 19, 1861 (12 Stat. 878); Act March 28, 1864 (13 Stat. 577); Act July 23, 1866 (14 Stat. 599); Act April 25, 1868 (14 Stat. 584); Act March 1, 1869 (15 Stat. 464). Finally Congress passed a general law on the subject to cover all cases of the loss or destruction of the United States bonds, which is embodied in secs. 3702-3705, Rev. Stat. Without express authority to that effect conferred by an Act of Congress, the secretary of the treasury of the United States never presumed to issue duplicate United States bonds to take the place of bonds lost or destroyed, no matter how clear or satisfactory the proof of loss might be. Farmers Nat. Bank v. Jones, (1900) 105 Fed. Rep. 459.

The difference between sections 3702 and 3704 is that lost registered bonds are to be replaced by duplicates whether they have been called in for redemption or not. Section 3704 does not draw the distinction which appears in section 3702 and is based upon the circumstance that a lost bond has been called in. (1878) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 468.

Authority limited. — The language of the first clause limits the authority thereby conferred to the mere issuing of duplicate bonds in the cases mentioned. (1878) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 438.

The second clause is not more comprehensive than the other, but has precisely the same scope in respect to the subject-matter of relief, in other words, it extends solely to destroyed or defaced interest-bearing bonds. The mode of relief only is varied thereby in cases where such bonds are of a class or series already called in for redemption. (1878) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 438.

Statutory method only. — While the provisions of this section were enacted with a view to enable persons who may sustain loss by the destruction or damage of government securities to obtain relief without resorting to Congress for special legislation, the authority conferred upon the secretary of the treasury by that section to afford relief must nevertheless be exercised in strict conformity with those provisions. He is not at liberty to give relief in the modes which do not fairly come within the terms of the statute. (1878) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 438.

When coupons are part of bond. — "So long as coupons remain attached to the bonds with which they were issued they must be deemed to constitute parts thereof; and, therefore, if one or more coupons, whilst attached to a bond of the above description, become destroyed or defaced, this would be a case of partial destruction or defacement of the bond and fall within the statute. But after the severance of the coupons from the bonds they can no longer be regarded as forming parts thereof. They then cease to be incidents even of the bonds and become, in fact, independent claims possessing the essential attributes of commercial paper." (1878) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 438.

Detached coupons. — "Should coupons, after having been detached by the holder of the bonds, be transferred to another person, in whose hands they afterwards become destroyed or defaced, the latter would clearly have no right to any relief which the secretary is by the said clause authorized to give, since the authority of the secretary, except in cases falling within the second or last clause of section 3702, is confined to the issuing of duplicate bonds, which the detached coupons thus destroyed or defaced are not. * * * The result would be the same should such detached coupons not be transferred by the holder of the bonds, but become destroyed or defaced while both they and the bonds are still owned by him, as it is by the severance of the coupons from the bonds that the former cease to be parts of the latter, not by any change of ownership which may subsequently ensue." (1878) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 438.

Sec. 3703. [Indemnity for destroyed bond.] The owner of such destroyed or defaced bond shall surrender the same, or so much thereof as may remain, and shall file in the Treasury a bond in a penal sum of double the amount of the destroyed or defaced bond, and the interest which would accrue thereon until the principal becomes due and payable, with two good and sufficient sureties, residents of the United States, to be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, with condition to indemnify and save harmless the United States from any claim upon such destroyed or defaced bond. [R. S.]

Act of June 1, 1872, ch. 254, 17 Stat. L. 196.

Sec. 3704. [Duplicate of lost registered bond may be issued.] Whenever it is proved to the Secretary of the Treasury, by clear and satisfactory evidence, that any duly registered bond of the United States, bearing interest, issued for valuable consideration in pursuance of law, has been lost or destroyed, so that the same is not held by any person as his own property, the Secretary shall issue a duplicate of such registered bond, of like amount, and bearing like interest and marked in the like manner as the bond so proved to be lost or destroyed. [R. S.]

Res. No. 49 of March 3, 1871, 16 Stat. L. 600.

The phrase "bearing interest" designates the class to which the paper must belong and does not mean that interest is actually accruing at the time of application by the owner. (1878) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 468.

Sec. 3705. [Indemnity for missing bond.] The owner of such missing bond shall first file in the Treasury a bond in a penal sum equal to the amount of such missing bond, and the interest which would accrue thereon, until the principal thereof becomes due and payable, with two good and sufficient sureties, residents of the United States, to be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, with condition to indemnify and save harmless the United States from any claim because of the lost or destroyed bond. [R. S.]

Res. No. 49 of March 3, 1871, 16 Stat. L. 600.

Where satisfactory proof is furnished that a registered bond called in for redemption has been lost, payment thereof may be made upon a bond of indemnity being given by the owner in conformity with the requirements of this section. (1878) 15 Op. Atty.-Gen. 468.

Sec. 3706. [Exchange of registered for coupon bonds.] The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to issue, upon such terms and under such regulations as he may from time to time prescribe, registered bonds in exchange for and in lieu of any coupon-bonds which have been or may be lawfully issued; such registered bonds to be similar in all respects to the registered bonds issued under the acts authorizing the issue of the coupon-bonds offered for exchange. [R. S.]

Act of June 30, 1864, ch. 172, 13 Stat. L. 220.

Sec. 3707. [Credit to officers for stolen notes.] When any officer or agent duly authorized to receive, redeem, or cancel any Treasury notes issued by authority of law, shall receive, or pay, any Treasury note which has been previously received or redeemed by any officer or agent having authority to receive or redeem such note, and which has subsequently thereto been purloined and put into circulation, the Secretary of the Treasury, upon full and satisfactory proof that the same has been received or paid in good faith, and in the exercise of ordinary prudence, may allow a credit for the amount of such note, to the officer or agent so receiving or paying the same. [R. S.]

Act of Aug. 10, 1846, ch. 180, 9 Stat. L. 107.

Sec. 3708. [Imitating United States securities, or printing business cards, etc., on them — penalty.] It shall not be lawful to design, engrave, print, or in any manner make or execute, or to utter, issue, distribute, circulate, or use, any business or professional card, notice, placard, circular, handbill, or advertisement, in the likeness or similitude of any bond, certificate of indebtedness, certificate of deposit, coupon, United States note, Treasury note, fractional note, or other obligation or security of the United States which has been or may be issued under or authorized by any act of Congress heretofore passed or which may hereafter be passed; or to write, print, or otherwise impress upon any such instrument, obligation, or security, any business or professional card, notice, or advertisement, or any notice or advertisement of any matter or thing whatever. Any person violating this section shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars, recoverable one-half to the use of the informer. [R. S.]

These sections constituted chapter 7 (entitled "The Superintendent of Public Documents") of title 11 (entitled "The Department of the Interior") of the Revised Statutes. They were superseded by the provisions of the Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, infra, p. 156.

These sections were as follows:

"SEC. 497. [Custody and distribution of public documents.] The Secretary of the Interior is charged with receiving, arranging, and safe-keeping for distribution, and of distributing to the persons entitled by law to receive the same, all printed journals of the two Houses of Congress, and all other books and documents of every nature whatever, already or hereafter directed by law to be printed or purchased for the use of the Government, except such as are directed to be printed or purchased for the particular use of Congress, or of either House thereof, or for the particular use of the Executive or of any of the Departments, and any person whose duty it shall be by law to deliver any of the same, shall deliver them at the rooms assigned by the Secretary of the Interior therefor." Act of Feb. 5, 1859, ch. 22, 11 Stat. L. 379, 380.

See Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 64, infra, p. 161.

"SEC. 498. [Statutes and reports of Supreme Court.] See STATUTES."

"SEC. 499. [Register of publications received.] A register of all publications received at the Department of the Interior for safe-keeping and distribution shall be kept, under the direction of the Secretary, showing the quantity and kind at any time received by him; and he shall cause to be entered in such register, at the proper time, the time when, the place where, and the person to whom any of such publications have been distributed or delivered." Act of Feb. 5, 1859, ch. 22, 11 Stat. L. 380.

"SEC. 500. [Manner of delivery.] The publications received by the Secretary of the Interior for distribution shall be delivered out only on the written requisition of the heads of Departments, Secretary of the Senate, Clerk of the House of Representatives, Librarian of Congress, and other officers and persons who are by law authorized to receive the same, except where by law the Secretary of the Interior is required, without such requisition, to cause the same to be sent and delivered; and in either of such cases it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to cause the same to be sent and delivered, the expenses thereof, except when otherwise directed, to be charged on the contingent fund of the Department." Act of Feb. 5, 1859, ch. 22, 11 Stat. L. 380.

"SEC. 501. [Distribution of copies of journals, books, etc.] The copies of journals, books, and public documents which are or may be authorized to be distributed to incorporated bodies, institutions, and associations within the States and Territories, shall be distributed to such bodies as shall be designated to the Secretary of the Interior by each of the Senators from the several States respectively, and by the Representatives in Congress from each congressional district, and by the Delegate from each Territory. The distribution shall be made in such manner that the quantity distributed to each congressional district and Territory shall be equal; except that whenever the number of copies of any publication is insufficient to supply therewith one institution, upon the designation of each member of the Senate and House of Representatives, the copies at the disposal of the Secretary may be distributed to such incorporated colleges, public libraries, atheneums, literary and scientific institutions, boards of trade, or public associations, as he may select." Res. No. 5 of Jan. 28, 1857, 11 Stat. L. 253; Act of Feb. 5, 1859, ch. 22, 11 Stat. L. 380; Act of March 2, 1861, ch. 87, 12 Stat. L. 244.

"SEC. 502. [Same subject.] The selection of an institution to receive the documents or dered to be published or procured at the first session of any Congress shall control the documents of the entire Congress, unless another designation be made before any distribution has taken place under the selection first made. Where the same work is printed by order both of the Senate and House of Representatives, the duplicates may be sent to different institutions, if so desired, by the member whose right it is to direct the distribution. And the public documents to be distributed by the Secretary of the Interior shall be sent to the institutions already designated, unless he shall be satisfied that any such institution is no longer a suitable depository of the same. Congressional journals and public documents, authorized to be distributed to institutions on the designation of members of Congress, shall be sent to such libraries and institutions only as shall signify a willingness to pay the cost of their transportation." Act of March 2, 1861, ch. 87, 12 Stat. L. 245.

Duplication provided against. See Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 53, under PUBLIC PRINTING.

"SEC. 503. [Distribution of journals of Senate and House.] So many copies of the public journals of the Senate, and of the House of Representatives, shall be transmitted by the Secretary of the Interior to the executives of the several States and Territories, as shall be sufficient to furnish one copy to each executive, one copy to each branch of every State and territorial legislature, one copy to each university and college in each State, and one copy to the Historical Society incorporated, or which shall be incorporated, in each State. Fifty copies of the documents ordered by Congress to be printed shall be used for the purpose of exchange in foreign countries; the residue of the copies shall be deposited in the Library of the United States, subject to the future disposition of Congress." Res. of Dec. 27, 1813, No. 1, 3 Stat. L. 140; Res. of July 20, 1840, No. 5, 5 Stat. L. 409.

"SEC. 504. [Distribution to legations and consulates.] Only such of the books published by the Government, and usually known by the name of 'public documents,' shall hereafter be supplied to any legation or consulate of the United States as are first designated by the Secretary of State, by an order to be recorded in the State Department, as suitable for and required by such legation and consulate." Act of May 22, 1872, ch. 194, 17 Stat. L. 144.

"SEC. 505. [Distribution of surplus volumes, etc.] Whenever there are in the custody of the Department of the Interior any sets of the documents of any session of Congress, or other documents or odd volumes, not necessary to supply deficiencies or losses that may happen in the Library of Congress, or in that of either of the Executive Departments, or in State or territorial libraries, the Secretary of the Interior shall distribute the same as equally as practicable to the several Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress, for distribution to public libraries and other literary institutions in their re-

"SEC. 506. [Books, etc., not to be removed from proper offices.] All such books and documents, when received at the proper offices, libraries, and other depositories, as provided by law, shall be kept there and not removed from such places." Act of Feb. 5, 1859, ch. 22, 11 Stat. L. 381.

"SEC. 507. [Superintendent of public documents.] There shall be in the Department of the Interior a superintendent of public documents, who shall be appointed by the Secretary, and shall be entitled to receive a salary of twenty-five hundred dollars a year." Act of March 3, 1869, ch. 121, 15 Stat. L. 292.

This section was amended by Act of June 19, 1878, ch. 329, 20 Stat. L. 198, by changing the salary to $1,900. It is superseded by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 61, infra, p. 159.

"SEC. 508. [Duties of the superintendent of public documents.] The superintendent of public documents shall be charged, subject to the general direction of the Secretary of the Interior, with the duty of collecting, arranging, preserving, packing, and distributing the publications received at the Department of the Interior for distribution; and with the duty of compiling and supervising the Biennial Register." Act of March 3, 1869, ch. 121, 15 Stat. L. 283, 292.

"SEC. 509. [Rooms for public documents.] Suitable rooms in the Department of the Interior shall be from time to time assigned by the Secretary for the journals, books, and documents." Act of March 3, 1869, ch. 121, 15 Stat. L. 283, 292.

"SEC. 510. [Preparation of biennial register.] As soon as practicable after the last day of September in each year in which a new Congress is to assemble, a register shall be compiled and printed under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, of which seven hundred and fifty copies shall be published, and which shall contain the following lists, made up to such last day of September:

"1. Correct lists of all the officers, clerks, employés, and agents, civil, military, and naval, in the service of the United States, including cadets and midshipmen, which lists shall exhibit the amount of compensation, pay, and emoluments allowed to each, the State or country in which he was born, the State or Territory from which he was appointed to office, and where employed.

"2. A list of the names, force, and condition of all the ships and vessels belonging to the United States, and when and where built.

"3. Lists of all printers of the laws of the United States, and of all printers employed by Congress or by any Department or officer of the Government, during the two years preceding the last day of September up to which such list is required to be made, with the compensation allowed to each, and designating the Department or officer causing the printing to be executed.

"4. A statement of all allowances made by the Postmaster-General, within the same period of two years, to each contractor on contracts for carrying the mail, discriminating the sum paid as stipulated by the original contract and the sums paid as additional allowance." Res. of April 27, 1816, No. 6, 3 Stat. L. 342; Res. of July 14, 1832, No. 11, 4 Stat. L. 608; Act of March 3, 1851, ch. 32, 9 Stat. L. 600; Act of March 6, 1861, ch. 87, 12 Stat. L. 245.

This subject is now covered by section 73 of the Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, infra, p. 162, and by section 43 of that Act given under the title PUBLIC PRINTING.

"SEC. 511. [Distribution of biennial register.] On the first Monday in January, in each year when a new Congress is assembled, there shall be delivered to the President, the Vice-President each head of a Department, each member of the Senate and House of Representatives, one copy of the Biennial Register; to the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives, ten copies each, for the use of the respective Houses; to the Library of Congress, twenty-five copies; and to the secretary of state of each State, one copy; and the residue of the copies shall be disposed of as Congress shall, from time to time, direct." Res. of April 27, 1816, No. 6, 3 Stat. L. 342; Act of March 3, 1851, ch. 32, 9 Stat. L. 600.

See paragraph following section 510, supra.

Sec. 198. [Biennial lists of employees to be filed in Interior Department.] [Superseded.]

This section was as follows:

"SEC. 198. The head of each Department shall, as soon as practicable after the last day in September in each year in which a new Congress is to assemble, cause to be filed in the Department of the Interior a full and complete list of all officers, agents, clerks, and employés employed in his Department, or in any of the offices or Bureaus connected therewith. He shall include in such list all the statistics peculiar to his Department required to enable the Secretary of the Interior to prepare the Biennial Register." Res. of April 27, 1816, No. 6, 3 Stat. L. 342; Act of March 3, 1851, ch. 32, 9 Stat. L. 600; Res. of July 14, 1832, No. 11, 4 Stat. L. 608.

It was superseded by the Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, infra, p. 162.

Sec. 227. [Surplus maps and publications of signal office of War Department.] The Chief Signal-Officer may cause to be sold any surplus maps or publications of the Signal-Office, the money received therefor to be applied toward defraying the expenses of the signal-service; and an account of the same shall be rendered in each annual report of the Chief of the Signal-Service. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1873, ch. 227, 17 Stat. L. 527.

Sec. 386. [Distribution of statutes and reports to judges.] The Department of Justice shall be charged with the distribution to the various judges and courts of the statutes, reports, and other judicial documents provided by law. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1873, ch. 238, 17 Stat. L. 578.

See for further provisions, titles REPORTS (LAW); STATUTES.

Repeal in part.—See Act of Feb. 12, 1889, ch. 135, sec. 2, under the title REPORTS (LAW).

Sec. 387. [Register of statutes and reports distributed.] A register of the statutes of the United States and reports of the Supreme Court shall be kept, under the authority of the head of the Department of Justice, showing the quantity of each kind received by him from the Secretary of the Interior; and it shall be his duty to cause to be entered in such register, and at the proper time, when, where, and to whom the same, or any part of them, have been distributed and delivered, and to report the same to Congress in his annual report. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1873, ch. 238, 17 Stat. L. 578.

For further provisions on this subject, see REPORTS; STATUTES.

Sec. 1332. [Congressional documents to library of military academy.] The Secretary of the Senate shall furnish annually to the library of the Academy one copy of each document published, during the preceding year, by the Senate. [R. S.]

Act of April 23, 1856, ch. 19, 11 Stat. L. 5.

See further Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 98, infra, p. 175, making the library of the academy a designated depository of government publications.

Secs. 3791–3793. [Superseded.]

These sections were superseded by the Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23. They are set forth below with a note as to the superseding section.

"SEC. 3791. [Bills and joint resolutions.] There shall be printed seven hundred and fifty copies of every bill or joint resolution ordered by either House of Congress, or required by any rule thereof to be printed, unless a different number shall be specifically ordered." Res. of Feb. 3, 1864, No. 11, 13 Stat. L. 402.

This section was superseded by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 55, infra, p. 158.

"SEC. 3792. [Documents, usual number.] Fifteen hundred and fifty copies of any document ordered by Congress shall be printed, and that number shall be known as the usual number. No greater number shall be printed unless ordered by either House, or as hereinafter provided." Act of March 3, 1859, ch. 80, 11 Stat. L. 422; Res. of July 25, 1868, No. 72, 15 Stat. L. 260.

This section was superseded by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 54, infra, p. 157.

"SEC. 3793. [Extra copies, motion to print.] All motions to print extra copies of any bill, report, or other public document, shall be referred to the Committee on Printing of the House in which such motion is made." Act of Aug. 26, 1852, ch. 91, 10 Stat. L. 35.

This section was superseded by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 59, infra, p. 159.

Sec. 3794. [Notice of order to print.] The House first ordering a document to be printed shall immediately notify the other House of such order. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1859, ch. 80, 11 Stat. L. 422.

Sec. 3795. [Extra copies costing more than five hundred dollars.] [Superseded.]

This section was as follows:

"SEC. 3795. All propositions in either House of Congress for printing extra copies of documents, the cost of which exceeds five hundred dollars, shall be by concurrent resolution, which shall, upon its transmission from either House, be immediately referred to the Committee on Printing of the House to which it is sent." Act of July 12, 1870, ch. 251, 16 Stat. L. 230.

This section was superseded by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 59, infra, p. 159.

Sec. 3796. [Extra copies for the Library of Congress.] The Congressional Printer shall, when so directed by the Joint Committee on the Library, print, in addition to the usual number, either fifty or one hundred copies, as he may be directed, of all documents printed by order of either House of Congress, or of any Department or Bureau of the Government. [R. S.]

Res. of July 25, 1868, No. 72, 15 Stat. L. 260.

See further Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, secs. 57, 73, infra, pp. 158, 162, and Res. of March 2, 1901, No. 16, infra, p. 184, and notes thereunder.

Sec. 3798. [Number of copies of certain documents to be printed and bound.] [Superseded.]

This section was as follows:

"SEC. 3798. Of the documents named in this section there shall be printed and bound, in addition to the usual number for Congress, the following numbers of copies, namely:

"First. Of the documents accompanying the annual reports of the Executive Departments, one thousand copies for the use of the members of the Senate, and two thousand copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives." Act of June 25, 1864, ch. 155, 13 Stat. L. 184.

"Second. Of the President's message, the annual reports of the Executive Departments, and the abridgment of accompanying documents, unless otherwise ordered by either House, ten thousand copies for the use of the members of the Senate, and twenty-five thousand copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives." Act of June 25, 1864, ch. 155, 13 Stat. L. 185.

"Third. Of papers relating to foreign affairs, accompanying the annual message of the President, two thousand copies for the use of the members of the Senate and four thousand copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives." Act of July 27, 1866, ch. 287, 14 Stat. L. 305.

"Fourth. Of the 'Commercial Relations,' annually prepared under the directions of the State Department, two thousand copies for the use of the members of the Senate, and three thousand copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives." Act of June 25, 1864, ch. 154, 13 Stat. L. 185.

"Fifth. Of the annual report on the statistics of commerce and navigation, exports and imports, merchandise in transit, manufactures, and registered and enrolled vessels, prepared by the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, two thousand copies for the use of the members of the Senate, and six thousand one hundred and fifty copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives." Res. of March 3, 1863, No. 27, 12 Stat. L. 826.

The words "Chief of the Bureau of Statistics" were inserted in place of the words "Special Commissioner of the Revenue," by Act of Feb. 18, 1875, ch. 80, 18 Stat. L. 319.

"Sixth. Of the public journals of the Senate and of the House of Representatives, fifteen hundred and fifty copies." Res. of Dec. 27, 1813, No. 1, 3 Stat. L. 140; Res. of April 30, 1844, No. 5, 5 Stat. L. 717; Res. of Jan. 28, 1857, No. 5, 11 Stat. L. 253.

This section was superseded by the provisions of Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, infra, p. 162.

Sec. 3799. [Documents for foreign exchange.] Of the documents printed by order of either House, there shall be printed and bound fifty additional copies for the purpose of exchange in foreign countries. [R. S.]

Res. of July 20, 1840, No. 5, 5 Stat. L. 409.
But see Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec.

73, and Res. of March 2, 1901, No. 16, infra, pp. 162, 184.

Secs. 3800, 3801. [Superseded.]

These sections were as follows:

"SEC. 3800. [Biennial Register.] Of the Biennial Register, compiled under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, there shall be printed and bound seven hundred and fifty copies." Res. of April 27, 1816, No. 6, 3 Stat. L. 342; Act of March 2, 1861, ch. 87, 12 Stat. L. 245.

This section is superseded by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, infra, p. 162.

"SEC. 3801. [Congressional Directory.] The first edition of the Congressional Directory for each session shall be printed and ready for distribution within one week after the commencement thereof." Res. of Feb. 14, 1865 No. 15, 13 Stat. L. 568.

This section is superseded by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, infra, p. 162.

Sec. 3809. [Superseded.]

This section was as follows:

"SEC. 3809. [Extra copies of any document, how sold.] If any person desiring extra copies of any document printed at the Government Printing Office by authority of law shall, previous to its being put to press, notify the Congressional Printer of the number of copies wanted, and shall pay to him, in advance, the estimated cost thereof, and ten per centum thereon, the Congressional Printer may, under the direction of the Joint Committee on Public Printing, furnish the same." Act of June 25, 1864, ch. 155, 13 Stat. L. 186; Act of March 3, 1871, ch. 113, 16 Stat. L. 478.

This section is superseded by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 42, infra, p. 156.

Sec. 4691. [Superseded.]

This section was as follows:

"SEC. 4691. [Disposal of maps and charts.] The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to dispose of the maps and charts of the survey of the coast of the United States at such prices and under such regulations as may from time to time be fixed by him; and a number of copies of each sheet, not to exceed three hundred, shall be distributed among foreign governments, and Departments of our own Government, and literary and scientific associations as may be designated by the Secretary of the Treasury." Act of June 3, 1844, ch. 37, 5 Stat. L. 660.

This section was superseded by the Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 76, infra, p. 173.

Sec. 4837. [Documents to be furnished homes for disabled volunteers, including state homes, etc.] That the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives shall cause to be sent to the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Dayton, Ohio, and to the branches at Togus in Maine, Milwaukee in Wisconsin, Hampton in Virginia, Marion in Indiana, Leavenworth in Kansas, Santa Monica in California, and to the homes for the widows and orphans of soldiers and sailors established and maintained by any State or Territory, and all soldiers and sailors' homes established by the authority of any State or Territory receiving aid from the United States under legislation of Congress, each, one copy each of the following documents: The session laws of Congress; the annual messages of the President, with accompanying documents in the abridgment thereof; the daily Congressional Record; and the Public Printer is hereby authorized and directed to furnish to the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives the documents referred to in this section. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by its repeal and re-enactment by Act of July 26, 1894, ch. 168, 28 Stat. L. 159. Originally it read as follows:

"Sec. 4837. [Documents to be furnished to certain homes.] The Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives shall cause to be sent to the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, at Dayton in Ohio, and to the branches at Augusta in Maine, and Milwaukee in Wisconsin, at Hampton, Virginia, and the Soldiers' Home at Knightstown Springs, near Knightstown in Indiana, each, one copy of each of the following documents: The Journals of each House of Congress at each and every session; all laws of Congress; the annual messages of the President, with accompanying documents; and all other documents or books which may be printed and bound by order of either House of Congress, including the Congressional Record." Res. of June 8, 1868, No. 32, 15 Stat. L. 253; Act of Jan. 23, 1873, ch. 51, 17 Stat. L. 417.

It was "repealed and re-enacted" by Act of Feb. 8, 1891, ch. 35, 21 Stat. L. 322, to read as follows:

"The Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives shall cause to be sent to the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Dayton, in Ohio, and to the branches at Augusta, in Maine, Milwaukee, in Wisconsin, Hampton, in Virginia, and the Soldiers' Home at Knightstown Springs, near Knightstown, in Indiana, each, one copy of each of the following documents: The journals of each House of Congress at each and every session; all laws of Congress; the annual messages of the President, with accompanying documents; the daily Congressional Record, and all other documents or books which may be printed and bound by order of either House of Congress; and the Public Printer is hereby authorized and directed to furnish to the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives the documents referred to in this section."

It was again repealed and re-enacted as stated above to read as given in the text.

Distribution of Congressional Record to soldiers' and sailors' homes is now provided for by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, infra, p. 162.

SEC. 24. [Congressional Record to be furnished to members of Congress and to committees.] There shall be reserved by the Public Printer from the quota of each member of Congress and Delegate one copy of the Congressional Record in unstitched form, to be delivered to each member or Delegate; and there shall be furnished to each standing committee of Congress one copy, which copies for members and committees shall be bound promptly in paper when each semimonthly index shall be issued and shall be delivered without delay. [28 Stat. L. 604.]

This and the following secs. 40, 42, 54-79, 92, 95, 98 are from the Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, entitled "An act providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents." A full reference to this Act is given under PUBLIC PRINTING.

SEC. 40. [Congressional Directory and Record — printing for sale — proceeds of sale.] The Public Printer, under the direction of the Joint Committee, may print for sale, at a price sufficient to reimburse the expense of such printing, the current Congressional Directory and the current numbers and bound sets of the Congressional Record. The money derived from such sales shall be paid into the Treasury and accounted for in his annual report to Congress, and no sales shall be made on credit. [28 Stat. L. 607.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 42. [Extra copies of documents.] The Public Printer shall furnish to all applicants giving notice before the matter is put to press, not exceeding two hundred and fifty to any one applicant, copies of bills, reports, and documents, said applicants paying in advance the cost of such printing with ten per centum added: Provided, That the printing of such work for private parties shall not interfere with the printing for the Government. [28 Stat. L. 607.]

See note to section 24, supra.

This section superseded Res. of May 8, 1880, No. 31, "Joint resolution authorizing the Public Printer to print additional copies of bills and other public documents," as follows:

"That the Public Printer be and he is hereby directed to furnish to all applicants copies of bills and reports and other public documents hereafter printed by order of Congress and distributed from the Document Rooms of the Senate and House on said applicants paying the cost of such printing with ten per centum added, and giving the notice required by section thirty-eight hundred and nine of Title forty-five of the Revised Statutes." [21 Stat. L. 306.]

SEC. 54. [Documents and reports — "usual number" — style and distribution — reserved sets.] Whenever any document or report shall be ordered printed by Congress, such order to print shall signify the "usual number" of copies for binding and distribution among those entitled to receive them. No greater number shall be printed unless ordered by either House, or as hereinafter provided. When a special number of a document or report is ordered printed, the usual number shall also be printed, unless already ordered. The usual number of documents and reports shall be one thousand six hundred and eighty-two copies, which shall be distributed as follows:

OF THE HOUSE DOCUMENTS AND REPORTS, UNBOUND. — To the Senate document room, one hundred and fifty copies; to the office of the Secretary of the Senate, ten copies; to the House document room, four hundred and twenty copies; to the Clerk's office of the House, twenty copies.

OF THE SENATE DOCUMENTS AND REPORTS, UNBOUND. — To the Senate document room, two hundred and twenty copies; office of the Secretary of the Senate, ten copies; to the House document room, three hundred and sixty copies; to the Clerk's office of the House, ten copies.

That of the number printed, the Public Printer shall bind one thousand and eighty-two copies, which shall be distributed as follows:

OF THE HOUSE DOCUMENTS AND REPORTS, BOUND. — To the Senate Library, fifteen copies; to the Library of Congress, two copies, and fifty additional copies for foreign exchanges; to the House Library, fifteen copies; to the superintendent of documents, five hundred copies, for distribution to the State and Territorial libraries and designated depositories.

OF THE SENATE DOCUMENTS AND REPORTS, BOUND. — To the Senate Library, fifteen copies; to the Library of Congress, two copies, and fifty copies additional for foreign exchanges; to House Library, fifteen copies; to the superintendent of documents, five hundred copies, for distribution to State and Territorial libraries and designated depositories.

These documents shall be bound in full sheep, and in binding documents the Public Printer shall give precedence to those that are to be distributed to libraries and to designated depositories: Provided, That any State or Territorial library or designated depository entitled to documents that may prefer to have its documents in unbound form, may do so by notifying the superintendent of documents to that effect prior to the convening of each Congress.

The remainder of said documents and reports shall be reserved by the Public Printer in unstitched form, and shall be held subject to be bound in the number provided by law, upon orders from the Vice-President, Senators, Representatives, Delegates, Secretary of the Senate, and Clerk of the House, in such binding as they shall select, except full morocco or calf; and when not called for and delivered within two years after printing shall be delivered in unbound form to the superintendent of documents for distribution. All of the "usual number" shall be printed at one time. [28 Stat. L. 608.]

See note to section 24, supra.

This section supersedes the provisions of Res. of July 7, 1882, No. 43, "Joint resolution to provide for the printing of public documents for binding and distribution to those entitled to receive them," as follows:

"That whenever any document or report shall be ordered printed by Congress, there shall be printed, in addition to the number in each case stated, the 'usual number' of copies for binding and distribution among those entitled to receive them; and this shall apply to all unexecuted orders now in the office of the Public Printer." [22 Stat. L. 387.]

Binding and distribution of reserved sets. — See amendment, Res. of June 30, 1902, No. 36, infra, p. 175.

To what documents applicable. — Prior to the passage of this Act, it was held by Acting Attorney-General S. F. Phillips, in (1884) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 51, that the word "document" in the resolution of July 7, 1882, had a general application to everything that was a document, no matter by what kind of legislation ordered, so that such legislation did not forbid the printing of the "usual number" of the document on which it operated.

Number authorized under general order to print. — Under this section a general order to print a document or report, not stating the number of copies, authorizes the printing of the "usual number" of 1,682 copies. (1903) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 663.

Order for stated number of copies. — Where Congress directs the printing of a stated number of copies this carries with it the order to print the "usual number," or 1,682 copies, in addition, unless the usual number has been already ordered. (1903) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 663.

Documents in addition to the usual number. — "In case any other number were expressly ordered to be printed for a different destination, a reasonable construction would hold such other number to be additional to the 'usual number,' to wit, so many under the special order for one purpose and so many more under the general provisions of sec. 3792 or any amendment thereof, for another and standing purpose." (1884) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 51.

SEC. 55. [Bills and resolutions — number and distribution — private bills defined.] There shall be printed of each Senate and House public bill and joint, concurrent, and simple resolution six hundred and twenty-five copies, which shall be distributed as follows: To Senate document room, two hundred and twenty-five copies; office of Secretary of Senate, fifteen copies; House document room, three hundred and eighty-five copies. There shall be printed of each Senate and House private bill two hundred and fifty copies, which shall be distributed as follows: To Senate document room, one hundred and thirty-five copies; to Secretary of Senate, fifteen copies; House document room, one hundred copies. The term private bill shall be construed to mean all bills for the relief of private parties, bills granting pensions, and bills removing political disabilities. All bills and resolutions shall be printed in bill form and unless specially ordered by either House shall only be printed when referred to a committee, when favorably reported back, and after their passage by either House. [28 Stat. L. 609.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 56. [Laws, postal conventions, and treaties — number and distribution.] There shall be printed in slip form one thousand eight hundred and ten copies of public and four hundred and sixty of private laws, postal conventions, and treaties, which shall be distributed as follows: To the House document room, one thousand copies of public and one hundred copies of private laws; to the Senate document room, five hundred and fifty copies of public and one hundred copies of private laws; to the Department of State, five hundred copies of all laws; and to the Treasury Department, sixty of all laws. Postal conventions and treaties shall be distributed as private laws. [28 Stat. L. 609.]

See note to section 24, supra.

Number of copies of private laws authorized. — Under the provisions of this section, the public printer should print in slip form and distribute 760 copies of private laws, postal conventions, and treaties. (1896) 21 Op. Atty.-Gen. 405.

SEC. 57. [Journals of Congress — number and distribution.] There shall be printed of the Journals of the Senate and House of Representatives seven hundred and twenty copies, which shall be distributed as follows: To the Senate document room, ninety copies for distribution to Senators, and twenty-five additional copies; to the Senate Library, ten copies; to the House document room, three hundred and sixty copies for distribution to members, and twenty-five additional copies; to the Department of State, four copies; to the superintendent of documents, one hundred and forty-four copies to be distributed to three libraries in each of the States and Territories to be designated by the superintendent of documents; to the Library of Congress, twenty-five copies; to the Court of Claims, two copies, and to the Library of the House of Representatives, ten copies. The remaining number of the Journals of the Senate and House of Representatives, consisting of twenty-five copies, shall be furnished to the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives, respectively, as the necessities of their respective offices may require, as rapidly as signatures are completed for such distribution. [28 Stat. L. 609.]

See note to section 24, supra.

This section superseded Act of Oct. 19, 1888, ch. 1213, 25 Stat. L. 610, which provided for the printing of 1,055 copies of the Senate Journals and 1,174 copies of the House Journals, and the distribution of the same.

SEC. 58. [Departmental, etc., publications — distribution.] Whenever printing not bearing a Congressional number shall be done for any department or officer of the Government, except confidential matter, blank forms, and circular letters not of a public character, or shall be done for use of Congressional committees, not of a confidential character, two copies shall be sent, unless withheld by order of the committee, by the Public Printer to the Senate and House Libraries, respectively, and one copy each to the document rooms of the Senate and House, for reference; and these copies shall not be removed; and of all publications of the Executive Departments not intended for their especial use, but made for distribution, five hundred copies shall be at once delivered to the superintendent of documents for distribution to designated depositories and State and Territorial libraries. [28 Stat. L. 610.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 59. [Resolutions for printing extra copies.] Orders for printing extra copies shall be by simple, concurrent, or joint resolution. Either House may print extra copies to the amount of five hundred dollars by simple resolution; if the cost exceeds that sum, the printing shall be ordered by concurrent resolution, except when the resolution is self-appropriating, when it shall be by joint resolution. Such resolutions, when presented to either House, shall be referred immediately to the Committee on Printing, who, in making their report, shall give the probable cost of the proposed printing upon the estimate of the Public Printer; and no extra copies shall be printed before such committee has reported. [28 Stat. L. 610.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 60. [Document rooms, Senate and House — superintendent, etc., how appointed. See CONGRESS, vol. 2, p. 229.]

SEC. 61. [Superintendent of documents — sale of documents — accounts and reports — custody of documents.] The Public Printer shall appoint a competent person to act as superintendent of documents, and shall fix his salary. The superintendent of documents so designated and appointed is hereby authorized to sell at cost any public document in his charge, the distribution of which is not herein specifically directed, said cost to be estimated by the Public Printer and based upon printing from stereotyped plates; but only one copy of any document shall be sold to the same person, excepting libraries or schools by which additional copies are desired for separate departments thereof, and members of Congress; and whenever any officer of the Government having in his charge documents published for sale shall desire to be relieved of the same, he is hereby authorized to turn them over to the superintendent of documents, who shall receive and sell them under the provisions of this section. All moneys received from the sale of documents shall be returned to the Public Printer on the first day of each month and be by him covered into the Treasury monthly, and the superintendent of documents shall report annually the number of copies of each and every document sold by him, and the price of the same. He shall also report monthly to the Public Printer the number of documents received by him and the disposition made of the same. He shall have general supervision of the distribution of all public documents, and to his custody shall be committed all documents subject to distribution, excepting those printed for the special official use of the Executive Departments, which shall be delivered to said Departments, and those printed for the use of the two Houses of Congress, which shall be delivered to the folding rooms of said Houses and distributed or delivered ready for distribution to Members and Delegates upon their order by the superintendents of the folding rooms of the Senate and House of Representatives. [28 Stat. L. 610.]

See note to section 24, supra.
As to statutes, see STATUTES.

SEC. 62. [Index of documents, how made, number and distribution.] The superintendent of documents shall, at the close of each regular session of Congress, prepare and publish a comprehensive index of public documents, beginning with the Fifty-third Congress, upon such plan as shall be approved by the Joint Committee on Printing; and the Public Printer shall, immediately upon its publication, deliver to him a copy of each and every document printed by the Government Printing Office; and the head of each of the Executive Departments, bureaus, and offices of the Government shall deliver to him a copy of each and every document issued or published by such Department, bureau, or office not confidential in its character. He shall also prepare and print in one volume a consolidated index of Congressional documents, and shall index such single volumes of documents as the Joint Committee on Printing shall direct. Of the comprehensive index and of the consolidated index two thousand copies each shall be printed and bound in addition to the usual number, two hundred copies for the use of the Senate, eight hundred copies for the use of the House, and one thousand copies for distribution by the superintendent of documents. [28 Stat. L. 610.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 63. [Disposal of documents on hand at the Capitol.] The Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate and the Clerk and Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives shall cause an invoice to be made of all public documents stored in and about the Capitol, other than those belonging to the quota of members of the present Congress, to the Library of Congress and the Senate and House Libraries and document rooms, and all such documents shall by the superintendents, respectively, of the Senate and House folding rooms be put to the credit of Senators, Representatives, and Delegates of the present Congress, in quantities equal in the number of volumes and as nearly as possible in value, to each member of Congress, and said documents shall be distributed upon the orders of Senators, Representatives, and Delegates, each of whom shall be supplied by the superintendents of the folding rooms with a list of the number and character of the publications thus put to his credit: Provided, That before said apportionment is made copies of any of these documents desired for the use of committees of the Senate or House shall be delivered to the chairmen of such committees: And provided further, That four copies of each and all leather-bound documents shall be reserved and carefully stored, to be used hereafter in supplying deficiencies in the Senate and House Libraries caused by wear or loss, and a similar invoice shall be prepared and distribution made as above provided at the convening in regular session of each successive Congress. [28 Stat. L. 611.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 64. [Office of superintendent of documents in Interior Department abolished — eleventh census distribution.] Upon the appointment of the superintendent of documents, as hereinbefore provided, the office of the superintendent of documents in the Department of the Interior shall be, and is hereby, abolished, and all laws now in force providing for the delivery to the Department of the Interior of public documents for distribution, other than such as are for the use of that Department, shall be, and the same are hereby, repealed: Provided, That the distribution of the reports of the Eleventh Census shall be continued and completed by the superintendent of documents, under existing laws and regulations. [28 Stat. L. 611.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 65. [Free mail and franking privileges of superintendent of documents. See POSTAL SERVICE, vol. 5, p. 785.]

SEC. 66. [Assistants, printing, office, storage, etc., for superintendent of documents.] The Public Printer is hereby authorized and directed, upon the requisition of the superintendent of documents, to appoint such assistants as may be necessary, and furnish such blanks and to do such printing and binding as are required by his office, the cost of the same to be charged against the appropriation for printing and binding for Congress, and the Public Printer shall provide convenient office, storage, and distributing rooms for the use of the superintendent of documents. [28 Stat. L. 611.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 67. [Delivery of documents in departments, etc., to superintendent of documents.] All documents at present remaining in charge of the several Executive Departments, bureaus, and offices of the Government not required for official use shall be delivered to the superintendent of documents, and hereafter all public documents accumulating in said Departments, bureaus, and offices not needed for official use shall be annually turned over to the superintendent of documents for distribution or sale. [28 Stat. L. 611.]

See note to section 24, supra.

This section supersedes Res. of March 3, 1887, No. 13, "Joint resolution providing for the sale of public documents," as follows:

[SEC. 1.] "That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized to sell, at cost-price, to any party wishing to purchase the same, any public document of which copies available for this purpose, not required for official use, remain: Provided,

That only one copy of any document be sold to any one person." [24 Stat. L. 647.]

"SEC. 2. That the Secretary of the Interior shall have kept a detailed statement of each and every public document sold, with the name of the purchaser and date of the purchase, and that he shall annually publish, among the documents accompanying his annual report, a statement showing the number of each public document sold during the fiscal year, and the price thereof." [24 Stat. L. 647.]

SEC. 68. [Distribution of Congressional documents.] Whenever in the division among Senators, Representatives, and Delegates of documents printed for the use of Congress there shall be an apportionment to each or either House in round numbers, the Public Printer shall not deliver the full number so accredited at the respective folding rooms, but only the largest multiple of the number constituting the full membership of each or either House, including the Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate and Clerk and Doorkeeper of the House, which shall be contained in the round numbers thus accredited to each or either House, so that the number delivered shall divide evenly and without remainder among the members of the House to which they are delivered; and the remainder of all documents thus resulting shall be turned over to the superintendent of documents, to be distributed by him, first, to public and school libraries for the purpose of completing broken sets; second, to public and school libraries that have not been supplied with any portion of such sets; and, lastly, by sale to other persons; said libraries to be named to him by Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress; and in this distribution the superintendent of documents shall see that as far as practicable an equal allowance is made to each Senator, Representative, and Delegate. [28 Stat. L. 612.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 69. [Catalogue of publications — contents and number.] A catalogue of Government publications shall be prepared by the superintendent of documents on the first day of each month, which shall show the documents printed during the preceding month, where obtainable, and the price thereof. Two thousand copies of such catalogue shall be printed in pamphlet form for distribution. [28 Stat. L. 612.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 70. [Investigation of libraries as depositories.] The superintendent of documents shall thoroughly investigate the condition of all libraries that are now designated depositories, and whenever he shall ascertain that the number of books in any such library, other than college libraries, is below one thousand, other than Government publications, or it has ceased to be maintained as a public library, he shall strike the same from the list, and the Senator, Representative, or Delegate shall designate another depository that shall meet the conditions herein required. [28 Stat. L. 612.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 71. [Folding rooms, Senate and House — superintendent — distribution. See CONGRESS, vol. 2, p. 230.]

SEC. 72. [Documents not drawn by retiring members of Congress.] Any Senator, Representative, or Delegate having public documents to his credit at the expiration of his term of office shall take the same prior to the convening of the next succeeding Congress, and if he shall not do so within such period he shall forfeit them to his successor in office. [28 Stat. L. 612.]

See note to section 24, supra.

Re-elected members. — See Act of June 4, 1897, ch. 2, sec. 1, infra, p. 176.

SEC. 73. [Extra copies of documents — binding — number and allotment.] Extra copies of documents and reports shall be printed promptly when the same shall be ready for publication, and shall be bound in paper or cloth as directed by the Joint Committee on Printing, and shall be of the number following in addition to the usual number: [28 Stat. L. 612.]

[Report of Secretary of Agriculture.] The Annual Report of the Secretary of Agriculture shall hereafter be submitted and printed in two parts, as follows:

Part one, which shall contain purely business and executive matter which it is necessary for the Secretary to submit to the President and Congress; part two, which shall contain such reports from the different bureaus and divisions, and such papers prepared by their special agents, accompanied by suitable illustrations as shall, in the opinion of the Secretary, be specially suited to interest and instruct the farmers of the country, and to include a general report of the operations of the Department for their information. There shall be printed of part one, one thousand copies for the Senate, two thousand copies for the House, and three thousand copies for the Department of Agriculture; and of part two, one hundred and ten thousand copies for the use of the Senate, three hundred and sixty thousand copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and thirty thousand copies for the use of the Department of Agriculture, the illustrations for the same to be executed under the supervision of the Public Printer, in accordance with directions of the Joint Committee on Printing, said illustrations to be subject to the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture; and the title of each of the said parts shall be such as to show that such part is complete in itself: Provided, That one edition of seventy-five thousand copies of the Special Report on Diseases of the Horse be printed, of which fifty thousand copies shall be for the use of the House of Representatives, and twenty-five thousand copies for the use of the Senate. [28 Stat. L. 612.]

Report on field operations of the division of soils.—See Res. of Feb. 23, 1901, No. 8, infra, p. 176.

[Report of Bureau of Animal Industry.] Of the Report of the Bureau of Animal Industry, thirty thousand copies, of which seven thousand shall be for the Senate, fourteen thousand for the House, and nine thousand for distribution by the Agricultural Department. [28 Stat. L. 613.]

[Report of Chief of Weather Bureau.] Of the Annual Report of the Chief of the Weather Bureau, four thousand copies; one thousand copies for the Senate, two thousand copies for the House, and one thousand copies for the Bureau. [28 Stat. L. 613.]

[Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac.] Of the Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac and of the papers supplementary thereto, one thousand five hundred copies; one hundred copies for the Senate, four hundred for the House, and one thousand for distribution or sale by the Navy Department. The five hundred copies printed for Congress and the usual number shall be for the calendar year next following, and those for the Navy Department for the third year following. The Secretary of the Navy is also authorized to cause additional copies of the Ephemeris, and of the Nautical Almanacs extracted therefrom, to be printed for the public service and for sale to navigators and others: Provided, That all moneys received from sales of the Ephemeris and of the Nautical Almanacs shall be deposited in the Treasury and placed to the credit of the general fund for public printing. [28 Stat. L. 613.]

See amendment by Res. of May 13, 1902, No. 20, and Act of July 1, 1902, ch. 1368, infra, pp. 177, 178, and notes under latter Act.

The former provision for the printing of the Ephemeris and Almanac was contained in Joint Res. No. 10, of Feb. 11, 1880, 21 Stat. L. 301, which is superseded by the provisions in the text.

Nature of publications explained.—It was said by Attorney-General Knox, in (1903) 24 Op. Atty-Gen. 683: "It appears that, of its publications, the navy department has, for many years, published two books; * * * one, and the larger, bound in cloth, called 'The American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac,' and the other, bound in paper, called 'The American Nautical Almanac.' The former is intended chiefly for the navy, and for sale or free distribution to observatories, astronomers, colleges, libraries, etc., and of which the department disposes annually about 1,000 copies. The other contains in a condensed form much of that which is in the former, and is intended chiefly for the use of navigation, and is adapted to the meridian of Greenwich, of which the department disposes annually about 2,300 copies. Your department publishes also what, in your note and in the Acts referred to, are called 'the papers supplementary thereto,' that is, supplementary to the one first above referred to; and I am asked how many copies of each of the three are now authorized to be printed."

See further as to the construction of this and the subsequent Acts on this subject Res. of May 13, 1902, No. 20, and Act of July 1, 1902, ch. 1368, infra, pp. 177, 178, and notes thereunder.

What additional copies authorized. — The secretary of the navy may still cause to be printed additional copies of the American Nautical Almanac under the provisions of this section and as herein provided; but this authority does not authorize additional copies of the papers supplementary to the Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac. (1903) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 663.

The secretary of the navy is authorized, under existing law, to cause to be printed 2,500 copies of the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac and 3,182 copies of "the papers supplementary thereto," and of the American Nautical Almanac such "additional" copies thereof as he may deem necessary "for the public service and for sale to navigators and others." (1903) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 663.

[Observations of Naval Observatory.] Of the Observations of the Naval Observatory, one thousand eight hundred copies; three hundred for the Senate, seven hundred for the House, and eight hundred for distribution by the Naval Observatory, and of the astronomical appendixes to the above observations, one thousand two hundred separate copies, and of the meteorological and magnetic observations one thousand separate copies for distribution by the Naval Observatory. [28 Stat. L. 613.]

[Report of Superintendent of Coast and Geodetic Survey.] Of the Report of the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, two thousand eight hundred copies in quarto form, bound in one volume, two hundred for the Senate, six hundred for the House, and two thousand for distribution by the Coast and Geodetic Survey. [28 Stat. L. 613, 29 Stat. L. 471.]

This paragraph was amended to read as above by the Res. of April 20, 1896, No. 46, 29 Stat. L. 471, "Joint Resolution Authorizing the Public Printer to print the Annual Report of the Superintendent of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey in quarto form and to bind it in one volume." The paragraph, as originally enacted, provided "one thousand five hundred copies of part one; two hundred copies for the Senate, six hundred copies for the House, and seven hundred copies for distribution by the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and two thousand eight hundred copies of part two; two hundred for the Senate, six hundred for the House, and two thousand for distribution by the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey."

The Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 177, 28 Stat. L. 806, provided as follows:

"The Commissioner of Labor is hereby authorized to prepare and publish a bulletin of the Department of Labor, as to the condition of labor in this and other countries, condensations of State and foreign labor reports, facts as to conditions of employment, and such other facts as may be deemed of value to the industrial interests of the country, and there shall be printed one edition of not exceeding ten thousand copies of each issue of said bulletin for distribution by the Department of Labor."

The Act of June 4, 1897, ch. 2, 30 Stat. L. 61, provided as follows:

"There shall be printed fifteen thousand copies of each issue of the bulletin of the Department of Labor, authorized March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-five."

[Report of Interstate Commerce Commission.] Of the Annual Report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, three thousand copies; one thousand for the Senate, two thousand for the House, and for the use of the Commission there may be printed such number of said report and other documents incident to interstate commerce for distribution by them as they may deem expedient. [28 Stat. L. 614.]

[Revised Statutes and Supplements — pamphlet copies of Statutes — Statutes at Large — force as evidence — contents. See STATUTES.]

[President's Message.] The message of the President without the accompanying documents and reports shall be printed, immediately upon its receipt by Congress, in pamphlet form. Fifteen thousand shall be printed, of which five thousand shall be for the Senate, and ten thousand for the House. [28 Stat. L. 615.]

[President's Message and accompanying documents and reports of Departments.] Of the President's Message and accompanying documents and of the annual reports of the Departments to Congress there shall be printed one thousand copies for the Senate and two thousand for the House: Provided, That of the reports of the Chief of Engineers of the Army, the Commissioner of Patents, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the report of the Chief Signal Officer of the War Department, and of the Chief of Ordnance, the usual number only shall be printed. [28 Stat. L. 615.]

[Certain departmental reports not to be printed.] The following reports required by law to be made to Congress shall not be printed unless the printing be recommended by the head of the Department making the same, and ordered by concurrent resolution of Congress, namely: Report of contracts for conveying the mails, report of fines and deductions in the Post-Office Department, the report of the Treasurer of accounts by him from time to time rendered to and settled with the First Comptroller, and the report of the proceedings of the annual meetings of the Board of Supervising Inspectors of Steam Vessels. [Report of American Historical Association.] Of the Report of the American Historical Association, three thousand copies; five hundred for the Senate, one thousand for the House, and one thousand five hundred for distribution by the association and the Smithsonian Institution. [28 Stat. L. 616.]

Additional copies. — See Res. of May 25, 1900, No. 27. infra, p. 182.

[Army and Navy Registers.] Of the Registers of the Army and Navy, fifteen hundred copies of each; five hundred for the Senate and one thousand for the House. [28 Stat. L. 616.]

[Report of Smithsonian Institution.] Of the Report of the Smithsonian Institution, ten thousand copies; one thousand for the Senate, two thousand for the House, five thousand for distribution by the Smithsonian Institution, and two thousand for distribution by the National Museum. [28 Stat. L. 616.]

This section supersedes the Joint Resolution of March 3, 1885, No. 19, "To provide for printing the annual reports of the Smithsonian Institution," as follows:

"That the annual reports of the Smithsonian Institution shall be hereafter printed at the Government Printing Office, in the same manner as the annual reports of the heads of Departments are now printed, for submission in print to the two Houses of Congress." [28 Stat. L. 520.]

[Reports of Consular Officers.] Of the Reports of Consular Officers, one thousand five hundred copies; five hundred for the Senate, one thousand for the House. [28 Stat. L. 616.]

The number has been raised to 10,000. See Act of March 9, 1898, ch. 55, infra, p. 182.

[28 Stat. L. 616.]

[Report of Government Directors of Union Pacific Railways.] Of the Report of the Government Directors of the Union Pacific Railways, one thousand five hundred copies; five hundred for the Senate and one thousand for the House. [28 Stat. L. 616.]

[Eulogies — engraving.] There shall be printed of eulogies of deceased Senators, Representatives, and Delegates eight thousand copies, of which number fifty copies, bound in full morocco, with gilt edges, shall be delivered to the family of the deceased, and one thousand nine hundred and fifty copies in cloth binding shall be delivered to the Senators, Representatives, or Delegates of the State or Territory represented by the deceased. The remaining number, also in cloth binding, shall be distributed in the proportion of two thousand to the Senate and four thousand to the House. The engraving for such eulogies shall be done at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and paid for out of the appropriation for that Bureau. Of the "usual number" the bound volume shall contain in one volume for each House all eulogies during the session of Congress upon Senators and Representatives respectively. [28 Stat. L. 616.]

[Manuals, Senate and House.] Of the Senate Manual and of the Digest and Manual of the House of Representatives, each House shall print as many copies as it shall desire, even though the cost exceed five hundred dollars. [28 Stat. L. 617.]

[Congressional Directory — official correspondence free.] There shall be prepared under the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing a Congressional Directory, of which there shall be three editions during each long session and two editions during each short session of Congress. The first edition shall be distributed to Senators, Representatives, Delegates, the principal officers of Congress, and heads of Departments on the first day of the session, and shall be ready for distribution to others within one week thereafter. The number and distribution of such Directory shall be under the control of the Joint Committee on Printing. Official correspondence concerning the Directory may be had in penalty envelopes under the direction of the Joint Committee. [28 Stat. L. 617.]

[Abridgment of President's messages and accompanying documents — preparation.] The Joint Committee on Printing shall appoint a competent person, who shall edit such portion of the reports and documents accompanying the annual message of the President or made directly to Congress as they may deem suitable for popular distribution, and prepare an alphabetical index thereto. The Public Printer shall furnish to the person so designated copies of all the said reports and documents as soon as printed; and the abridgement of the message and documents shall be prepared for the Printer by the first day of January, or as soon thereafter as practicable, of each year, and shall be printed by the Public Printer as soon as copy is furnished him. There shall be printed of such abridgement twelve thousand copies, of which four thousand shall be for the Senate and eight thousand for the House. [28 Stat. L. 617.]

[Congressional Record — gratuitous distribution and subscriptions.] The Public Printer shall furnish the Congressional Record as follows and shall furnish gratuitously no others in addition thereto: To the Vice-President and each Senator, forty-four copies; and to the Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, each twenty copies, and to the Secretary for office use ten copies; to each Representative and Delegate, thirty copies, and to the Clerk and Doorkeeper of the House, each twenty copies, and to the Clerk, for office use, ten copies; to be supplied daily as originally published or in the revised and permanent form bound only in half Russia, or part in each form, as each may elect.

To the Vice-President and each Senator, Representative, and Delegate there shall be furnished two copies of the daily Record, one to be delivered at his residence and one at the Capitol.

To the President, for use of the Executive Office, four copies of the daily and one bound copy.

To the Chief Justice and each of the associate justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, the marshal and clerk of the said court, one daily and one bound copy.

To the governor of each State and Territory, one copy of the daily and one bound copy of the Record.

To the Official Reporter of the Senate and each of his assistant reporters, and to the official reporters of the House, each two copies of the daily and one copy of the bound Record.

To the superintendent of the Senate and House document rooms, each one copy of the daily and one bound copy.

To the Library of Congress, forty-five bound copies.

To the Senate and House libraries, ten bound copies to each.

See amendment noted below.

To the library of each of the eight Executive Departments, and to the Naval Observatory, Smithsonian Institution and the United States National Museum, one bound copy.

To the Soldiers' Home, and to each of the national homes for disabled volunteer soldiers, and to each of the State Soldiers' Homes established for either Federal or Confederate soldiers, one copy of the daily.

To the superintendent of documents, five hundred bound copies for distribution to depositories of public documents.

To each of our legations abroad, one copy of the daily Record, to be sent through the Secretary of State.

To each foreign legation in Washington whose government extends a like courtesy to our legations abroad, one copy of the daily Record, to be sent through the Secretary of State and furnished upon his requisition.

The Public Printer is authorized to furnish to subscribers the daily Record at eight dollars for the long and four dollars for the short session, or one dollar and fifty cents per month, payable in advance. The "usual number" of the Congressional Record shall not be printed. The daily and the permanent Record shall bear the same date which shall be of the actual day's proceedings reported therein. [28 Stat. L. 617.]

Amendment.—This section was amended by the Joint Resolution of March 19, 1896, No. 31, entitled "Joint Resolution Directing the Public Printer to supply the Senate and House Libraries each with ten additional copies of the Congressional Record," as follows:

"Whereas the number of copies of the Congressional Record provided for the Senate Library by section seventy-three of the Act in regard to public printing, approved January twelfth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, has proved insufficient to supply the needs of the Senate: Therefore, Resolved, dc., That section seventy-three of the Act of January twelfth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents, which reads: 'To the Senate and House Libraries, ten copies each,' be so amended as to read: 'To the Senate and House Libraries twenty copies each.'" [29 Stat. L. 468.]

The amendment has not been inserted in the text because of the obvious error in the statement as above given.

The paragraph was again amended by Act of June 11, 1896, ch. 420, sec. 1, 29 Stat. L. 454, by striking out after the words "to each Representative and Delegate, thirty copies," the words "of which number eight copies shall be sent by the Superintendent of Documents, one each to such public or school libraries other than designated depositories as shall be designated for this purpose by each Representative and Delegate in Congress," appearing in the section as originally enacted.

Superseded acts.—The provisions in the text superseded the following Acts:

Res. of Jan. 27, 1881, No. 3, "Joint resolution in reference to the distribution of the Congressional Record.

"That the Public Printer be authorized to furnish the Chief Justice and each of the associate justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, and the clerk and marshal of the court with a current copy of the Daily Congressional Record, and at the end of each session a bound copy of the proceedings of Congress for such session. And the Public Printer shall also furnish to the Official Reporter of the Senate five bound copies of the Congressional Record for each session." [21 Stat. L. 515.]

Res. of Aug. 2, 1882, No. 61, "Joint resolution to furnish the Congressional Record to each State and Territorial library.

"That the Public Printer be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to forward, free of charge to the State and Territorial libraries of each State and Territory having or that shall hereafter have and maintain a State and Territorial library, one bound copy of the Congressional Record of each session of Congress or special session of the Senate, beginning with the Forty-Seventh Congress; and the Public Printer is directed to print fifty additional copies of the same to meet the requirements of this joint resolution." [22 Stat. L. 390.]

Res. of March 3, 1883, No. 24, "Joint resolution authorizing the sale of the Congressional Directory and the current numbers of the Congressional Record.

"That it shall be lawful for the Public Printer, under the direction of the Joint Committee of the Senate and House of Representatives on Printing, to print for sale, at a price sufficient to reimburse the expenses of such printing, the current Congressional Directory and the current numbers of the Congressional Record. The money derived from such sales shall be paid into the Treasury monthly to the credit of the appropriation for public printing, and no sale shall be made on credit." [22 Stat. L. 642.]

Res. of July 28, 1886, No. 26, "Joint resolution directing the Public Printer to forward the Congressional Record to our legations abroad.

"That the Public Printer be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to forward, free of charge, through the Department of State, one copy of the daily Congressional Record to each of our legations abroad, commencing at the beginning of the present session." [24 Stat. L. 345.]

Library of Congress.—See Res. of Jan. 28, 1899, No. 12, infra, p. 184; Res. of March 2, 1901, No. 16, infra, p. 184.

[Official records of the Rebellion.] The Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a complete set of the Official Records of the Union and Confederate Armies to each Senator and Member of the present Congress not already entitled by law to receive the same; and he is further authorized to use for this purpose such incomplete sets, not including any to the credit of Senators, as remain on hand uncalled for by beneficiaries designated to receive them under the authority contained in the Acts approved August seventh, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and March tenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight; and the Secretary of War will call upon the Public Printer to print and bind such volumes or parts of volumes as will enable him to fill out the incomplete sets hereinbefore referred to. [28 Stat. L. 618.]

The "publication of the official records of the war of the rebellion, both of the Union and of the Confederate armies, * * * properly arranged in chronological order" was authorized by the Act of June 23, 1874, ch. 455, sec. 1, 18 Stat. L. 222. Their distribution and sale were provided for by Act of Aug. 7, 1882, ch. 433, sec. 1, 22 Stat. L. 320. It was provided by Act of July 31, 1886, ch. 827, 24 Stat. L. 195, that "hereafter the records prepared for publication * * * shall contain only the records of the war of the rebellion covering contemporaneous events, arranged chronologically." Further provisions for distribution were made by Res. of March 10, 1888, No. 6, 25 Stat. L. 618. It was provided by Act of Oct. 2, 1888, ch. 1069, 25 Stat.

L. 539, "That hereafter, before publication of any volume of said records, the manuscript copy shall be submitted to the Secretary of War, and revised by him, and shall not be published until he shall certify that it only contains the contemporaneous official records of the war of the rebellion, as provided for by the 'act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, and for other purposes,' approved July thirty-first, eighteen hundred and eighty-six."

For further provisions, see Act of March 2, 1889, ch. 411, 25 Stat. L. 971, and Act of June 6, 1900, ch. 791, infra, pp. 184, 185.

[Report of public printer — right of printer to documents.] There shall be printed of the Annual Report of the Public Printer one thousand copies, to be distributed under his direction, and he may retain out of all documents, bills, and resolutions printed the number of copies absolutely needful for the official use of the Government Printing Office, not exceeding five of each. [28 Stat. L. 618.]

[Official register — preparation, contents, and distribution.] To enable the officer charged with the duty of preparing the Official Register of the United States to publish the same, the Secretary of the Senate, the Clerk of the House of Representatives, the head of each Executive Department of the Government, and the chief of each and every bureau, office, commission, or institution not embraced in an Executive Department, in connection with which salaries are paid from the Treasury of the United States, shall, on the first day of July in each year in which a new Congress is to assemble, cause to be filed with the Secretary of the Interior a full and complete list of all officers, agents, clerks, and other employees of said Department, bureau, office, commission, or institution connected with the legislative, executive, or judicial service of the Government, or paid from the United States Treasury, including military and naval officers of the United States, cadets, and midshipmen.

Said lists shall exhibit the salary, compensation, and emoluments allowed to each of said officers, agents, clerks, and other employees, the State or country in which he was born, the State or Territory and Congressional district and county of which he is a resident and from which he was appointed to office, and where employed.

A list of the names, force, and condition of all ships and vessels belonging to the United States, and when and where built, shall also be filed with the Secretary of the Interior by the heads of the Departments having supervision of such ships and vessels, for incorporation in the Official Register.

The Postmaster-General shall furnish a statement of all allowances made, during the period of two years next preceding said first day of July above mentioned, to each contractor on contracts for carrying the mails, discriminating the sum paid as stipulated by the original contract, and the sums paid as additional allowances.

The Secretary of the Interior shall cause the Official Register to be edited, indexed, and published by the chief clerk of the Interior Department, on the first day of December following the first day of July above mentioned.

Of the Official Register three thousand copies shall be printed and bound, which shall be distributed as follows: To the President of the United States, four copies, one copy of which shall be for the library of the Executive Mansion; to the Vice-President of the United States, two copies; to each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress, one copy; to the Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, to the Clerk and Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, one copy each; to the library of the Senate, ten copies; to the library of the House of Representatives, ten copies; to the Library of Congress, twenty-five copies; to the Department of State, one hundred copies; to the Treasury Department, one hundred and fifty copies; to the War Department, fifty copies; to the Navy Department, twenty copies; to the Department of Justice, twenty copies; to the Department of the Interior, two hundred copies; to the Post-Office Department, one hundred copies; to the Department of Agriculture, fifteen copies; to the Smithsonian Institution, four copies; to the Department of Labor, four copies; to the Government Printing Office, four copies; to the Interstate Commerce Commission, two copies; to the Civil Service Commission, four copies; to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, two copies; to the Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries, two copies; and the remaining copies shall be delivered to the superintendent of documents, who is hereby authorized to send one copy to each designated depository and to such public college or school library not a depository of public documents, and one copy to such other person as shall be designated by each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress, and shall hold the remainder for sale under the provisions of this law. The usual number of the Official Register shall not be printed. [28 Stat. L. 618.]

This paragraph superseded all prior provisions as to the preparation, contents, printing and distribution of the Biennial Register contained in R. S. secs. 510, 511, 3800, and Act of Jan. 23, 1874, ch. 15, 18 Stat. L. 5; Act of Dec. 15, 1877, ch. 4, 20 Stat. L. 13; Act of June 16, 1880, ch. 235, 21 Stat. L. 275; Res. of March 3, 1887, No. 20, 24 Stat. L. 649, and Act of March 3, 1893, ch. 11, 27 Stat. L. 708, which latter Act provided as follows:

"That hereafter the Official Register of the United States shall contain a statement which will show, by Departments or offices, the number of officers and employees in the several Executive Departments, the Department of Labor, the Government Printing Office, and the offices of the government of the District of Columbia, appointed from each State and Territory and the District of Columbia, and the aggregate amount of their salaries or compensation."

Further provisions as to furnishing lists are given in Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 594, sec. 1, infra, p. 185.

[Patent Office printing.] The Commissioner of Patents, upon the requisition of the Secretary of the Interior, is authorized to continue the printing of the following: [28 Stat. L. 619.]

[Patents issued.] First. The patents for inventions and designs issued by the Patent Office, including grants, specifications, and drawings, together with copies of the same, and of patents already issued, in such number as may be needed for the business of the office. [28 Stat. L. 619.]

[Trade marks and labels.] Second. The certificates of trade-marks and labels registered in the Patent Office, including descriptions and drawings, together with copies of the same, and of trade-marks and labels heretofore registered, in such numbers as may be needed for the business of the office. [28 Stat. L. 619.]

[Official Gazette.] Third. The Official Gazette of the United States Patent Office in numbers sufficient to supply all who shall subscribe therefor at five dollars per annum; also to exchange for other scientific publications desirable for the use of the Patent Office; also to supply one copy to each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress; also to supply one copy to eight such public libraries having over one thousand volumes, exclusive of Government publications, as shall be designated by each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress, with one hundred additional copies, together with bimonthly and annual indexes for all the same; of the Official Gazette the usual number shall not be printed. [28 Stat. L. 619.]

[Report of Commissioner of Patents.] Fourth. The Report of the Commissioner of Patents for the fiscal year, not exceeding five hundred in number, for distribution by him; the Annual Report of the Commissioner of Patents to Congress, without the list of patents, not exceeding one thousand five hundred in number, for distribution by him; and of the Annual Report of the Commissioner of Patents to Congress, with the list of patents, five hundred copies for sale by him, if needed, and in addition thereto the usual number only shall be printed. [28 Stat. L. 619.]

[Specifications and drawings of patents.] Fifth. Copies of the specifications and drawings of each patent issued, bound in monthly volumes, one copy for each of the Executive Departments of the Government, one copy to be placed for free public inspection in each capitol of every State and Territory, one for the like purpose in the clerk's office of the district court of each judicial district of the United States, except when such offices are located in State or Territorial capitols, and one in the Library of Congress, which copies shall be certified under the hand of the Commissioner and seal of the Patent Office, and shall not be taken from the depositories for any other purpose than to be used as evidence; also one hundred additional copies of the same, for sale by him at a price to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior. The "usual number" shall not be printed. [28 Stat. L. 620.]

[Rules of practice — copies of laws — circulars.] Sixth. Pamphlet copies of the rules of practice, pamphlet copies of the patent laws, and pamphlet copies of the laws and rules relating to trade-marks and labels, and circulars relating to the business of the office, all in such numbers as may be needed for the business of the office. The usual number shall not be printed. [28 Stat. L. 620.]

[Decisions.] Seventh. Annual volumes of the decisions of the Commissioner of Patents and of the United States courts in patent cases, not exceeding one thousand five hundred in number, of which the usual number shall be printed, and for this purpose a copy of each shall be transmitted to Congress promptly when prepared. [28 Stat. L. 620.]

[Indexes.] Eighth. Indexes to patents relating to electricity, and indexes to foreign patents, in such numbers as may be needed for the business of office. The usual number shall not be printed. [28 Stat. L. 620.]

[Lithographing, etc., contracts.] All printing for the Patent Office making use of lithography or photolithography, together with the plates for the same, shall be contracted for and performed under the direction of the Commissioner of Patents, under such limitations and conditions as the Joint Committee on Printing may from time to time prescribe, and all other printing for the Patent Office shall be done by the Public Printer under such limitations and conditions as the Joint Committee on Printing may from time to time prescribe: Provided, That the entire work may be done at the Government Printing Office whenever in the judgment of the Joint Committee on Printing the same would be to the interest of the Government. [28 Stat. L. 620.]

[Inserting "compliments" forbidden.] No report, document, or publication of any kind distributed by or from an Executive Department or bureau of the Government shall contain any notice that the same is sent with "the compliments" of an officer of the Government, or with any special notice that it is so sent, except that notice that it has been sent, with a request for an acknowledgment of its receipt, may be given. [28 Stat. L. 620.]

See note to section 24, supra.

This paragraph superseded the provisions of Act of May 3, 1893, ch. 208, sec. 1, as follows:

* * * "No report, document, or publication of any kind distributed by, or from an Executive Department or bureau of the Government shall hereafter contain any notice that same is sent with 'the compliments' of an officer of the Government or with any special notice that it is so sent." * * * [27 Stat. L. 612.]

This latter paragraph was in turn a substitute for a less comprehensive provision contained in the Act of Aug. 5, 1892, ch. 380, 27 Stat. L. 388.

SEC. 74. [Publications furnished officers and libraries — property in and use of.] Government publications furnished to judicial and executive officers of the United States for their official use shall not become the property of these officers, but on the expiration of their official term shall be by them delivered to their successors in office and all Government publications delivered to designated depositories or other libraries shall be for public use without charge. [28 Stat. L. 620.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 75. [Documents and reports to foreign legations.] Documents and reports may be furnished to foreign legations to the United States upon request specifying those desired and requisition made upon the Public Printer by the Secretary of State: Provided, That such gratuitous distribution shall only be made to legations whose Governments furnish to legations from the United States copies of their printed and legislative documents desired. [28 Stat. L. 620.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 76. [Coast and geodetic survey charts — distribution and sale.] The charts published by the Coast and Geodetic Survey shall be sold at cost of paper and printing as nearly as practicable; and there shall be no free distribution of such charts except to the Departments and officers of the United States requiring them for public use; and a number of copies of each sheet, not to exceed three hundred, to be presented to such foreign governments, libraries, and scientific associations, and institutions of learning as the Secretary of the Treasury may direct; but on the order of Senators, Representatives, and Delegates not to exceed ten copies to each may be distributed through the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. [28 Stat. L. 620.]

See note to section 24, supra.

This section supersedes the following Acts:

Act of June 20, 1878, ch. 359, as follows:

[SEC. 1.] * * * "That the charts published by the Coast Survey shall be sold at the office at Washington at the price of the printing and paper thereof, and elsewhere at the same price with the average cost of delivery added thereto; and hereafter there shall be no free distribution of such charts except to the departments of the United States and to the several states and officers of the United States requiring them for public use, in accordance with the Act of June third, eighteen hundred and forty four." [20 Stat. L. 216.]

Act of March 3, 1879, ch. 182, sec. 1, as follows:

"That Senators, Representatives, and Delegates to the House of Representatives shall each be entitled to not more than ten charts published by the Coast Survey, for each regular session of Congress." [20 Stat. L. 382.]

SEC. 77. [Hydrographic office charts, nautical books, etc. — publication and sale. See SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION.]

SEC. 78. [Foreign hydrographic charts — appropriations for publication. See ESTIMATES, APPROPRIATIONS, AND REPORTS, vol. 2, p. 903, note under R. S. sec. 3686.]

SEC. 79. [Geological Survey monographs and bulletins — publication and distribution.] The scientific reports known as the monographs and bulletins of the Geological Survey shall not be published until specific and detailed estimates are made therefor and specific appropriations made in pursuance of such estimates; and no engravings for the annual reports for such monographs and bulletins, or of illustrations, sections, and maps, shall be done until specific estimates are submitted therefor and specific appropriations made based on such estimates. And there shall be distributed of monographs, bulletins and reports of the United States Geological Survey, now in possession of said Survey, being publications prior to the year eighteen hundred and ninety-four, one copy of every such publication to every public library which shall be designated to the superintendent of documents, as follows: Two public libraries to be designated by each of the Senators from the States, respectively, two public libraries by the Representative in Congress from each Congressional district, and two public libraries by the Delegate from each Territory; such public libraries to be additional to those to which the said publications are distributed under existing law. [28 Stat. L. 621.]

See note to section 24, supra.

This section superseded the provisions of the Act of Aug. 4, 1886, ch. 902, 24 Stat. L. 255 (see ESTIMATES, APPROPRIATIONS, AND REPORTS, vol. 2, p. 889).

Extension of provisions of the section. See Res. of Feb. 26, 1896, No. 19, infra, p. 179.

For other provisions, see sec. 73, supra; and note, p. 165.

SEC. 92. [Departmental distribution of publications.] Government publications printed for or received by the Executive Departments, whether for official use or for distribution, shall be distributed by a competent person detailed to such duty in each Department by the head thereof. He shall keep an account in detail of all publications received and distributed by him. He shall prevent duplication, and make detailed report to the head of the Department, who shall transmit the same annually to Congress. [28 Stat. L. 623.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 95. [Exchange of documents.] Heads of Departments are authorized to exchange surplus documents for such other documents and books as may be required by them, when the same can be done to the advantage of the public service. [28 Stat. L. 623.]

See note to section 24, supra.

SEC. 98. [Documents to department, etc., libraries.] The libraries of the eight Executive Departments, of the United States Military Academy, and United States Naval Academy are hereby constituted designated depositories of Government publications, and the superintendent of documents shall supply one copy of said publications, in the same form as supplied to other depositories, to each of said libraries. [28 Stat. L. 624.]

See note to section 24, supra.

Joint Resolution Providing for the binding and distribution of public documents held in the custody of the Superintendent of Documents, unbound, upon orders of Senators, Representatives, Delegates, and officers of Congress, when such documents are not called for within two years after printing.

[Res. No. 36, of June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. L. 746.]

[Binding and distribution of reserved sets of documents.] That hereafter the documents reserved for binding upon orders of Senators, Representatives, Delegates, and officers of Congress, as provided in paragraph six, section fifty-four, of an Act approved January twelfth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents, if not called for and delivered within two years after printing, shall be bound in first grades of cloth and delivered to the Superintendent of Documents for distribution to libraries; and the Public Printer is hereby authorized and directed to bind in cloth all such documents heretofore delivered to the Superintendent of Documents for like distribution. [32 Stat. L. 746.]

The section mentioned in the text is given supra, p. 157.

[SEC. 1.] [Statement of appropriations — usual number to be printed.]

* * * Statement of appropriations: For preparation, under the direction of the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and House of Representatives, of the statements showing appropriations made, new offices created, offices the salaries of which have been omitted, increased, or reduced, together with a chronological history of the regular appropriation bills passed during the third session of the Fifty-third Congress, as required by the Act approved October nineteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, one thousand two hundred dollars, to be paid to the persons designated by the chairmen of said committees to do said work. And of the statements required to be prepared by said Act of October nineteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, there shall be printed, after the close of each regular session of Congress, the usual number of copies.
* * * [28 Stat. L. 958.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 189. The provisions of the Act of Oct. 19, 1888, ch. 1210, referred to in the text are set out in ESTIMATES, APPROPRIATIONS, AND REPORTS, vol. 2, p. 915.

Joint resolution to supply the Department of State with copies of bills and other documents.

[Res. No. 10, of April 5, 1898, 25 Stat. L. 620.]

[Copies of bills, resolutions, and documents to Department of State.] That the Public Printer be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to furnish the Department of State, out of the usual number, with ten copies of each bill and joint resolution, and twenty copies of each executive document, miscellaneous document, and report of committee of either House of Congress. [25 Stat. L. 620.]

See the following text.

Joint Resolution To supply the Department of State with documents.

[Res. No. 14, of Feb. 7, 1896, 29 Stat. L. 463.]

[Documents to Department of State.] That the Public Printer be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to print, in addition to the usual number, and furnish the Department of State with twenty copies of each Senate and House of Representatives document and report. [29 Stat. L. 463.]

The "usual number" here referred to is provided for by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 54, supra, p. 157.

[SEC. 1.] [Time for distributing documents extended—members re-elected.] * * * That the time allowed Members of the Fifty-fourth Congress to distribute public documents to their credit, or the credit of their respective districts in the Interior or other Departments and Bureaus, and in the Government Printing Office, on March first, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, and to present the names of libraries, public institutions, and individuals to receive such documents, be, and the same is hereby, extended to December first, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, and hereafter the time for such distribution by Members of Congress reelected shall continue during their successive terms and until their right to frank documents shall end. * * * [30 Stat. L. 62.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of June 4, 1897, ch. 2, and amends Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 72, supra, p. 162.

This same provision with but slight verbal difference constitutes Res. of March 25, 1897, No. 4, 30 Stat. L. 217.

Joint Resolution Providing for the printing annually of the Report on Field Operations of the Division of Soils, Department of Agriculture.

[Res. No. 8, of Feb. 23, 1901, 31 Stat. L. 1462.]

[Report on Field Operations of Division of Soils, Department of Agriculture.] That there be printed seventeen thousand copies of the Report on Field Operations of the Division of Soils, Department of Agriculture, for nineteen hundred, of which three thousand copies shall be for the use of the Senate, six thousand copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and eight thousand copies for the use of the Department of Agriculture; and that annually hereafter a similar report shall be prepared and printed, the edition to be the same as for the report herein provided. [31 Stat. L. 1462.]

Other provisions in relation to reports of agricultural department. See following text, and Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, supra, p. 162.

[Index of agricultural literature.] * * * And the Secretary of Agriculture is hereby authorized to furnish to such institutions or individuals as may care to buy them copies of the card index of agricultural literature prepared by the Office of Experiment Stations, and charge for the same a price covering the additional expense involved in the preparation of these copies, and he is hereby authorized to apply the moneys received toward the expense of the preparation of the index. * * * [32 Stat. L. 302.]

This is from the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act of June 3, 1902, ch. 985.

The same provision has appeared in the Appropriation Acts of April 23, 1897, ch. 1, sec. 1, 30 Stat. L. 6; March 22, 1898, ch. 85, 30 Stat. L. 335; March 1, 1899, ch. 325, 30 Stat. L. 953; May 25, 1900, ch. 555, 31 Stat. L. 199; March 2, 1901, ch. 805, 31 Stat. L. 935.

[SEC. 1.] [United States National Herbarium contributions — printing and sale.] * * * For printing and publishing the contributions from the United States National Herbarium, the editions of which shall not be less than three thousand copies, including the preparation of necessary illustrations, proof reading, bibliographical work, and special editorial work, * * * dollars: Provided, That one-half of said copies shall be placed on sale at an advance of ten per centum over their cost. * * * [32 Stat. Joint Resolution Providing for the printing of the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac.

[Res. No. 20, of May 13, 1902, 32 Stat. L. 740.]

[American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac — number and distribution.] That hereafter the "usual number" of copies of the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac shall not be printed. In lieu thereof there shall be printed and bound one thousand one hundred copies of the same, uniform with the editions printed for the Navy Department, as provided in section seventy-three, paragraph five, of an Act approved January twelfth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, providing for the public printing, binding, and distribution of public documents; one hundred copies for the Senate, four hundred for the House, and six hundred for the Superintendent of Documents for distribution to State and Territorial libraries and designated depositories. [32 Stat. L. 740.]

See, however, following Act and note thereunder.

Application of resolution.—This resolution does not apply to the American Nautical Almanac, and the papers supplementary thereto. (1903) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 663.

Effect of other acts.—The provision for printing the "usual number" of copies, abrogated by this resolution, is not revived by the provisions of the Act of July 1, 1902 (see following text). (1903) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 663.

American Nautical Almanac and supplementary papers.—This Act and the Act of July 1, 1902 (see following text), refer only to the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac, and do not fix the number of copies to be printed of either the American Nautical Almanac or the papers supplementary thereto, but as to these leave the number unchanged. (1903) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 663.

Additional copies forbidden.—This provision and the provisions of the Act of July 1, 1902 (see following text), annulled that portion of sec. 73 of the Act of Jan. 12, 1895, which gave to the secretary of the navy authority to cause to be printed additional copies of the Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac for the public service and for sale to navigators and others. The additional copies there mentioned were copies in addition to the 1,500 extra copies provided for in that section. (1903) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 663.

[American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac — number and distribution.] Publication of the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac: Hereafter there shall be published of the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac two thousand five hundred copies, five hundred of which shall be for the use of the Senate, one thousand for the use of the House of Representatives, and one thousand for distribution or sale by the Navy Department. [32 Stat. L. 678.]

Prior acts on same subject. See preceding text and Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, secs. 73, 79, supra, pp. 163, 174.

To what publications applicable. — This Act does not apply to the American Nautical Almanac and papers supplementary thereto, and the number of copies thereof to be printed is determined under the provisions of the Act of Jan. 12, 1895, sec. 73, supra, p. 163. (1903) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 663.

Number authorized. — The law now authorizes the printing of 2,500 copies of the Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac and no more. (1903) 24 Op. Atty.-Gen. 663.

Joint resolution to distribute copies of special memoirs and reports of the United States Geological Survey.

[Res. No. 16, of March 3, 1887, 24 Stat. L. 647.]

[Geological Survey memoirs and reports — distribution to libraries.] That there shall be distributed from the number of special memoirs and reports of the United States Geological Survey now authorized by law one copy of every such publication to every public library which shall be designated to the Secretary of the Interior as follows: Two public libraries to be designated by each of the Senators from the States, respectively, two public libraries by the Representative in Congress from every Congressional district, and two public libraries by the Delegate from every Territory; such public libraries to be additional to those to which the said publications are distributed under existing law. [24 Stat. L. 647.]

See, however, for other provisions, Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, secs. 73, 79, supra, pp. 165, 174.

[SEC. 1.] [Geological Survey — report of mineral resources — printing — pamphlet edition — economic papers — cost.] That hereafter the report of the mineral resources of the United States shall be issued as a part of the report of the Director of the Geological Survey, and printed for each preceding calendar year as soon as compiled and transmitted for publication, and that the separate chapters on any given mineral product, such as iron, coal, building stone, and so forth, shall be printed as rapidly as transmitted for publication; that a pamphlet edition of any chapter shall be printed for distribution on the request of the Director of the Geological Survey, approved by Secretary of the Interior, the size of the edition to be controlled by the importance of the mineral treated; that hereafter papers for the Director's annual report that are of a strictly economic character shall be issued in pamphlet form, in the same manner as prescribed above for the report on the mineral resources; that the entire cost of paper, printing, and binding of said pamphlets shall hereafter not exceed three thousand five hundred dollars. * * * [28 Stat. L. 960, 30 Stat. L. 61.]

This and the following paragraph are from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 189, sec. 1.

The last clause of the paragraph, which originally read "that the entire cost of paper, printing, and binding of all of the above provided for pamphlets shall not exceed two thousand dollars," was amended by the Act of June 4, 1897, ch. 2, 30 Stat. L. 61, in the following paragraph:

"In the sundry civil Act approved March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, under the head of engraving the illustrations necessary for the report of the Director, and for printing advance copies of papers on economic resources, that provision which restricts the amount to be expended for the paper, printing, and binding of the pamphlets therein mentioned, in the following words: 'Shall not exceed two thousand dollars,' is hereby amended by striking out 'two thousand dollars' and inserting 'three thousand five hundred dollars,' so that the clause shall read: 'The entire cost of paper, printing, and binding of said pamphlets shall hereafter not exceed three thousand five hundred dollars.'"

See Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, secs. 73, 79, supra, pp. 165, 174, and the provisions hereinafter following.

[Geological Survey — monographs and bulletins.] * * * That hereafter three thousand copies of the monographs and bulletins of the Geological Survey shall be published for scientific exchanges and for sale at the cost of paper, printing, and binding, and ten per centum thereof added.
* * * [28 Stat. L. 960.]

See note to prior paragraph.

Joint Resolution Extending the provisions of section seventy-nine of "An Act providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents," approved January twelfth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, so as to include monographs, bulletins, and reports of the Geological Survey published in eighteen hundred and ninety-four and succeeding years.

[Res. No. 19, of Feb. 26, 1896, 29 Stat. L. 465.]

[Geological Survey — extension of distribution of publications.] That the provisions of section seventy-nine of "An Act providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents," approved January twelfth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, which section reads as follows:

"There shall be distributed of monographs, bulletins, and reports of the United States Geological Survey, now in possession of said Survey, being publications prior to the year eighteen hundred and ninety-four, one copy of every such publication to every public library which shall be designated to the superintendent of documents, as follows: Two public libraries to be designated by each of the Senators from the States, respectively, two public libraries by the Representative in Congress from each Congressional district, and two public libraries by the Delegate from each Territory; such public libraries to be additional to those to which said publications are distributed under existing law," shall be extended to the monographs, bulletins, and reports of the Geological Survey which were published during the year eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and to those which have been published since that year, and to those which may be published in the future: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to interfere with the distribution of memoirs and reports, so far as the same is provided for by the joint resolution "To distribute copies of special memoirs and reports of the United States Geological Survey," approved March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven. [29 Stat. L. 465.]

The provisions of the section mentioned in the text are set out supra, p. 174.

[SEC. 1.] [Geological Survey — reports as to gauging streams.] * * * That hereafter the reports of the Geological Survey in relation to the gauging of streams and to the methods of utilizing the water resources may be printed in octavo form, not to exceed one hundred pages in length and five thousand copies in number; one thousand copies of which shall be for the official use of the Geological Survey, one thousand five hundred copies shall be delivered to the Senate, and two thousand five hundred copies shall be delivered to the House of Representatives, for distribution * * * [29 Stat. L. 453.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of June 11, 1896, ch. 420.

Repeal.—The provisions restricting the Joint Resolution Providing for the distribution of the maps and atlases of the United States Geological Survey.

[Res. No. 13, of Feb. 13, 1897, 29 Stat. L. 701.]

[SEC. 1.] [Geological Survey — maps and atlases — sale and distribution.] That the Director of the Geological Survey be, and is hereby, authorized and directed, on the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, to dispose of the topographic and geologic maps and atlases of the United States, made and published by the Geological Survey, at such prices and under such regulations as may from time to time be fixed by him and approved by the Secretary of the Interior; and that a number of copies of each map or atlas, not exceeding five hundred, shall be distributed gratuitously among foreign governments and Departments of our own Government, to literary and scientific associations, and to such educational institutions or libraries as may be designated by the Director of the Survey and approved by the Secretary of the Interior. [29 Stat. L. 701.]

This section superseded the provisions of the Act of June 11, 1896, ch. 420, as follows: and hereafter the Director of the Geological Survey, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, is authorized to sell copies of topographical maps with text at cost and ten per centum added;" [29 Stat. L. 436.]

SEC. 2. [Copies for members of Congress.] That one copy of each map and atlas shall be sent to each Senator and each Representative and Delegate in Congress, if published within his term; and that a second copy shall be placed at the disposal of each such Senator, Representative, and Delegate. [29 Stat. L. 701.]

Joint Resolution Concerning printing of additional copies of the Annual Report of the Geological Survey.

[Res. No. 17, of March 3, 1901, 31 Stat. L. 1465.]

[Geological Survey — additional copies of parts of reports.] That of the volumes or parts of the Annual Report of the Geological Survey which relate to hydrography, forestry, and mining and mineral resources there shall hereafter be published one thousand copies in addition to the number now published, for distribution by the Geological Survey. [31 Stat. L. 1465.]

Joint Resolution Relating to publications of the Geological Survey.

[Res. No. 22, of May 16, 1902, 32 Stat. L. 741.]

[Geological Survey publications — what to consist of — number and distribution.] That hereafter the publications of the Geological Survey shall consist of the annual report of the Director, which shall be confined to one volume of royal octavo size; monographs, of quarto size; professional papers, of quarto size; bulletins, of ordinary octavo size; mineral resources, of ordinary octavo size; water-supply and irrigation papers, of ordinary octavo size; and such maps, folios, and atlases as may be required by existing law.

That hereafter the reports of the Geological Survey, except the annual report of the Director, shall be published in editions as recommended in each case by the Director and approved by the Secretary of the Interior, but not to exceed ten thousand copies.

That whenever the edition of any of the reports of the Survey shall have become exhausted, and the demand for it continues, there shall be published, on the requisition of the Secretary of the Interior, as many additional copies of the report as the Director of the Survey shall state will, in his judgment, be necessary to meet the demand.

That the bulletins and professional papers shall be distributed gratuitously, and not sold; and that of the number published one thousand copies shall be delivered to the Senate and two thousand copies shall be delivered to the House of Representatives for distribution.

That the provision of law approved June eleventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, restricting the water-supply papers to one hundred pages and to editions of five thousand copies shall be, and hereby is, rescinded.

That the Director of the Survey shall transmit to the Library of Congress two copies of every report of the Bureau as soon as the first delivery to the Survey is made, such copies to be additional to those received by the Library of Congress under existing law. [32 Stat. L. 741.]

See further Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, secs. 73, 79, supra, pp. 162, 174, and provisions immediately preceding those in the text.

[SEC. 1.] [Labor bulletins — number authorized.] * * * The Commissioner of Labor is hereby authorized to prepare and publish a bulletin of the Department of Labor, as to the condition of labor in this and other countries, condensations of State and foreign labor reports, facts as to conditions of employment, and such other facts as may be deemed of value to the industrial interests of the country, and there shall be printed one edition of not exceeding ten thousand copies of each issue of said bulletin for distribution by the Department of Labor. * * * [28 Stat. L. 805.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 177.

Amendment. — See following text.

[SEC. 1.] [Labor bulletins — number increased.] * * * There shall be printed fifteen thousand copies of each issue of the bulletin of the Department of Labor, authorized March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. * * * [30 Stat. L. 61.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of April 23, 1897, ch. 2. The provision referred to in this section is given in the preceding text.

[SEC. 1.] [Labor bulletins — number increased.] * * * The Public Printer is hereby authorized to print such number of extra copies of the bi-monthly Bulletin of the Department of Labor, not to exceed twenty thousand of any single issue, when in the opinion of the Commissioner of Labor the demand for the Bulletin makes an extra edition necessary. * * * [31 Stat. L. 644.]

[Publication of commercial information.] The Secretary of State shall publish official notifications, from time to time, of such commercial information communicated to him by diplomatic and consular officers, as he may deem important to the public interests, in such newspapers, not to exceed three in number, as he may select. [R. S.]

Act of Aug. 18, 1856, ch. 127, 11 Stat. L. 60.

[Consular and other commercial reports — sale.] * * * For printing and distributing more frequently the publications by the Department of State of the consular and other commercial reports, including circular letters to chambers of commerce, * * * That such publication may be sold at such rates as may be fixed by said department, and the proceeds of all sales to be paid into the Treasury; * * * [21 Stat. L. 271.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of June 16, 1880, ch. 235. A similar provision was contained in the Act of March 3, 1881, ch. 130, 21 Stat. L. 391.

[Such reports not to discuss politics, religion, etc.] * * * For printing and distributing the publications by the Department of State of the consular and other commercial reports, including circular letters to chambers of commerce, * * * Provided, That no part of such reports discussing partisan political, religious, or moral questions shall be published. * * * [23 Stat. L. 235.]

This is from the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation Act of July 7, 1884, ch. 333. A similar provision appears in the Act of Feb. 25, 1885, ch. 150, 23 Stat. L. 324.

[Terms of measure, weight, and money in such reports — number.] * * * Preparation, printing, publication, and distribution by the Department of State of the diplomatic, consular, and other commercial reports, * * * That all terms of measure, weight, and money shall be reduced to and expressed in terms of measure, weight, and coin of the United States, as well as in the foreign terms; that each issue of diplomatic, consular, and other commercial reports shall not exceed ten thousand copies. * * * [30 Stat. L. 272.]

This is from the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation Act of March 9, 1898, ch. 55. This provision has been repealed in the Acts of Feb. 9, 1899, ch. 128, 30 Stat. L. 833; April

The number of consular reports was limited to 1500 by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, supra, p. 162). The number was limited to 7,000 by Act of Feb. 20, 1897, ch. 268, 29 Stat. L. 590. The provisions in the text raised the limit to 10,000, and superseded the provision of Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 189, as follows:

"That hereafter the Secretary of State be, and he is hereby, authorized to print of each issue of consular reports an edition not exceeding seven thousand copies." [28 Stat. L. 959.]

Joint Resolution Providing for the printing of the Monthly Summary Statement of Imports and Exports of the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department.

[Res. No. 1, of Dec. 18, 1895, 29 Stat. L. 495.]

[Summary of imports and exports and statistical information.] That there shall be printed monthly by the Public Printer thirty-five hundred copies of the Monthly Summary Statement of Imports and Exports and other statistical information prepared by the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department, five hundred copies of which shall be for the use of the Senate, one thousand copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and two thousand copies for use of the Treasury Department. [29 Stat. L. 459.]

Statistical abstract. — See Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, supra, p. 162.

This is from the Deficiencies Appropriation Act of July 1, 1902, ch. 1351.

[Res. No. 12, of Feb. 17, 1897, 29 Stat. L. 700.]

[Congressional Record — to be furnished newspaper correspondents.] That the Public Printer be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to supply to each newspaper correspondent whose name appears in the Congressional Directory, and who makes application therefor, for his personal use and that of the paper or papers he represents, one copy of the daily Congressional Record, and one copy of the bound Congressional Record, the same to be sent to the office address of each member of the press, or elsewhere in the city of Washington, as he may direct. [29 Stat. L. 700.]

This provision was amended by the joint resolution of March 26, 1900, No. 15, 31 Stat. L. 713, by the addition of the words "and one copy of the bound Congressional Record" and other slight changes to read as given above.

Manner of distributing Congressional Record. See Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, supra, p. 162, and the provisions hereinafter following.

[Sec. 1.] [Congressional Record to Department of Labor.] * * * And hereafter one bound copy of the Congressional Record shall be furnished gratuitously to the Department of Labor. * * * [30 Stat. L. 648.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 1, 1898, ch. 546.

Joint Resolution To furnish the Congressional Record to the Library of Congress.

[Res. No. 12, of Jan. 28, 1899, 30 Stat. L. 1388.]

[Congressional Record to Library of Congress.] That the Public Printer be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to supply to the Library of Congress six copies of the daily Congressional Record, for use in the following departments: Librarian's office, reading room, Senators' reading room, Representatives' reading room. [30 Stat. L. 1388.]

Provision for distribution of the Congressional Record is made by Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, supra, p. 162, and provisions preceding and following the provision in the text.

Joint Resolution To regulate the distribution of public documents to the Library of Congress for its own use and for international exchange.

[SEC. 1.] [Distribution of public documents to Library of Congress.] That of the publications described in this section the number of copies which shall be printed and distributed by the Public Printer to the Library of Congress for its own use and for international exchange in lieu of the number now provided by law shall be sixty-two, except as such number shall be enlarged to not exceeding one hundred copies by request of the Librarian of Congress, to wit: The House documents and reports, bound; the Senate documents and reports, bound; the House Journals, bound; the Senate Journals, bound; all other documents bearing a Congressional number and all documents not bearing a Congressional number printed by order of either House of Congress, or by order of any Department, bureau, commission, or officer of the Government, except confidential matter, blank forms, and circular letters not of a public character; the Revised Statutes, bound; the Statutes at Large, bound; the Congressional Record, bound; the Official Register of the United States, bound. [31 Stat. L. 1464.]

Other provisions for documents to library of Congress. See provisions immediately preceding and following the above text, and R. S. 3796, supra, p. 154; Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, secs. 57, 73, supra, pp. 158, 162; R. S. secs. 97, 98, LIBRARY OF CONGRESS, vol. 4, p. 803.

SEC. 2. [Unbound copies to Library of Congress.] That in addition to the foregoing the Public Printer shall supply to the Library of Congress for its own use two copies of each of the above-described publications, unbound, as published; five copies of all bills and resolutions; ten copies of the daily Congressional Record; and two copies of all documents printed for the use of Congressional committees not of a confidential character. [31 Stat. L. 1464.]

SEC. 3. [Government publications not printed at Government Printing Office to Library of Congress.] That of any publication printed at the Government expense by direction of any Department, commission, bureau, or officer of the Government elsewhere than at the Government Printing Office there shall be supplied to the Library of Congress for its own use and for international exchange sixty-two copies, except as such number shall be enlarged to not exceeding one hundred copies by request of the Joint Committee on the Library. [31 Stat. L. 1465.]

[SEC. 1.] [Records of the rebellion accessible to the public.] * * *
And from and after the passage of this act the records which have been, or which may hereafter be, selected for publication shall be accessible to the public, under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe, but in no case shall such regulations permit the removal of the original records from the Department building. * * * [25 Stat. L. 971.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 2, 1889, ch. 411. The provision of the Act immediately preceding that in the text is as follows: "That hereafter the preparation and publication of said records shall be conducted, under the Secretary of War, by a board of three persons, one of whom shall be an officer of the Army, to be selected by the Secretary of War, and two civilian experts, to be appointed by the Secretary of War, the compensation for said civilian experts to be fixed by the Secretary of War and to be paid from this appropriation; and the whole work of preparation and publication shall be completed within five years." [25 Stat. L. 970.]

[SEC. 1.] [Printing and distribution of official records of the rebellion.]

* * * That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to furnish one complete set of the Official Records of the Union and Confederate Armies to each Senator, Representative, and Delegate of the Fifty-sixth Congress not now entitled by law to receive the same; and in addition thereto he is also authorized and directed to furnish two complete sets of said work to each Senator, Representative and Delegate of the same Congress, irrespective of his having been already supplied, using for this purpose, as far as possible, those now stored in the War Department and remaining unsold or unclaimed by beneficiaries designated to receive them under the several Acts of Congress providing for the distribution and sale of this publication: Provided, That the Secretary of War may call upon the Public Printer to print and bind such number or copies of certain volumes or parts as may be found necessary to complete the sets referred to. * * * [31 Stat. L. 632.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of June 6, 1900, ch. 791.

A similar provision relating to the Fifty-third Congress is contained in Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, supra, p. 162, and see notes thereunder.

[SEC. 1.] [Biennial register — no extra pay for compiling.] * * *

That hereafter no extra compensation shall be allowed any officer or clerk of the Interior Department for compiling the Biennial Register. * * * [22 Stat. L. 274.]

This is from the Deficiencies Appropriation Act of Aug. 5, 1882, ch. 390.

[SEC. 1.] [List of employees to be furnished for Official Register.] * * *

That for the fiscal year of nineteen hundred and two and thereafter, a full and complete list of all officers, agents, clerks, and other employees of the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, including bank examiners, receivers and attorneys for receivers, and clerks employed by such examiners and receivers, or any other person connected with the work of said office in Washington or elsewhere, whose salary or compensation is paid from the Treasury of the United States or assessed against or collected from existing or failed banks under their supervision or control, shall be transmitted to the Secretary of the Interior in accordance with the provisions of an Act of Congress approved January twelfth, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, relating to the Official Register: * * * [32 Stat. L. 138.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 594.

Provisions as to the Official Register are given in Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, supra, p. 162.

[SEC. 1.] [Patent Office Official Gazette may be exchanged.] * * * United States Patent Office: * * * That hereafter the Official Gazette may be exchanged for publications of a scientific or useful character published in this or any foreign country adapted to the needs and uses of the scientific library of the Patent Office. * * * [26 Stat. L. 259.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of July 11, 1890, ch. 667.

Printing and distribution.—See Act of Jan. 12, 1895, ch. 23, sec. 73, supra, p. 162.

Joint Resolution Authorizing the printing of extra copies of the publications of the Office of Naval Intelligence, Navy Department.

[Res. No. 14, of March 21, 1900, 31 Stat. L. 713.]

[Publications of Naval Intelligence Office — extra copies.] That the Secretary of the Navy be, and is hereby, authorized to print, in excess of the one thousand copies authorized by the Act of January twelfth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, such extra copies of the publications of the Office of Naval Intelligence as may be necessary for distribution to the naval service and to meet other official demands: Provided, That in no case shall the edition of any one publication exceed two thousand copies. [31 Stat. L. 713.]

The provisions referred to in the text are given in PUBLIC PRINTING.

Joint Resolution Authorizing the printing of additional copies of the annual report upon the improvement and care of public buildings and grounds.

[Res. No. 30, of June 2, 1900, 31 Stat. L. 718.]

[Report of public buildings and grounds in District of Columbia.] That there be printed each year thereafter, in addition to the number of copies now authorized by law, two hundred additional copies of the annual report upon the improvement and care of public buildings and grounds, and the care and maintenance of the Washington Monument, in the District of Columbia, for the use of the officer in charge of public buildings and grounds. [31 Stat. L. 718.]

[SEC. 1.] [Card indexes and other publications of Library of Congress.] * * * The Librarian of Congress is hereby authorized to furnish to such institutions or individuals as may desire to buy them, such copies of the card indexes and other publications of the Library as may not be required for its ordinary transactions, and charge for the same a price which will cover their cost and ten per centum added, and all moneys received by him shall be deposited in the Treasury. * * * [32 Stat. L. 480.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of June 28, 1902, ch. 1301.

Joint resolution to print and bind two thousand extra copies each of the drill regulations for infantry, cavalry and artillery.

[Res. No. 4, of Jan. 7, 1893, 27 Stat. L. 752.]

[Drill regulations of army — extra copies for sale.] That the Public Printer be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to print from the stereotype plates and bind two thousand extra copies each of the drill regulations for infantry, cavalry and artillery, and sell the same at the cost price thereof to such persons connected with the militia or national guard of the States, and others, as may require their use. [27 Stat. L. 752.]

[Sec. 1.] [Sale of post-route maps — proceeds.] * * * And the Postmaster-General may authorize the sale of post-route maps to the public at the cost of printing and ten per centum thereof added, the proceeds of such sales to be used as a further appropriation for the preparation and publication of post-route maps. * * * [32 Stat. L. 167.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 504. A similar provision has appeared for many years in the appropriation acts.

[I. THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE.]

46. [Commissioner of the General Land Office.] There shall be in the Department of the Interior a Commissioner of the General Land-Office, to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and shall be entitled to a salary of four thousand dollars a year.

April 25, 1812, ch. 68, 2 Stat. L. 107; July 4, 1836, ch. 352, 5 Stat. L. 107; March 3, 1873, ch. 226, 17 Stat. L. 3.

446-461 constitute chapter 3 (encompassed) of title 11 (entitled "The Department of the Interior") of the Revised Statutes.

Commission.—The salary of the commissioner has been increased by later appropriations. The Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 1, 32 Stat. L. 157, appropriates four thousand dollars for salary of commissioner.

Part of interior department.—The General Land Office is one of the working divisions of the department of the interior. U. S. v. Schlierholz, (1904) 133 Fed. Cas. 10,830.

Department of office.—The Act of July 4, 1836 (5 Stat. L. 107), establishing the General Land Office, put the office in the Department of the Treasury, and placed the office under the direction of the head of that department. The Act of July 4, 1836 (5 Stat. L. 107), reorganizing the office, provided that the executive duties prescribed for the office should be under the supervision and control of the head of the Department of the Treasury.

But the office still continued to be under the direction of the President; and the President acts in matters belonging to the Department of the Treasury through their respective departments through their respective departments, the immediate supervision over the office of the commissioner remained with the secretary after, as previous to, the reorganization. The Act of July 4, 1836 (5 Stat. L. 107), repealed such provisions of the original Act as were inconsistent with the new Act. But no other provisions were repealed which were not inconsistent. The continued direction of the commissioner and supervision over him by the secretary of the treasury, acting in all other cases under the President, as prescribed by the original Act, was not inconsistent with anything in the new Act. Such was the understanding and practice of the treasury department, until the department of the interior was established in 1849, when the land office was transferred to that department, and its secretary was required to "perform all the duties of supervision and appeal" in relation to that office, which had been previously discharged by the secretary of the treasury. Patterson v. Tatum, (1874) 3 Sawy. (U. S.) 164, 18 Fed. Cas. No. 10,830. See also Snyder v. Sickles, (1878) 98 U. S. 210.

The form of the repealing clause of the Act of July 4, 1836 (5 Stat. L. 107), implied that there were some provisions contained in the former laws which were not inconsistent with that Act. The provision of the Act of 1812, which made the general land office a branch of the treasury department, and thereby subjected it to the general superintendence of the President through the head of that department, was not inconsistent with the new Act, and therefore was not repealed by it. (1836) 3 Op. Atty-Gen. 137.

1. [Assistant Commissioner of General Land Office.] * * * *
LAND OFFICE: Assistant Commissioner, to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, who shall be authorized to sign such letters, papers, and documents and to perform such duties as may be directed by the Commissioner, and shall act as Commissioner in the absence of that officer or in case of a vacancy in the office of the Commissioner, three thousand five hundred dollars; * * * [32 Stat. L. 157.]

from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 1, 32 Stat. L. 154. Substantially the same provisions have been repeated in the appropriations of July 11, 1890, ch. 667, 26 Stat. L. 107; March 3, 1891, ch. 541, 26 Stat. L. 107; July 16, 1892, ch. 196, 27 Stat. L. 213; March 3, 1893, ch. 211, 27 Stat. L. 704; July 16, 1894, ch. 174, 28 Stat. L. 193; March 2,

Sec. 447. [Recorder of General Land Office.] There shall be in the General Land-Office an officer called the Recorder of the General Land-Office, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and shall be entitled to a salary of two thousand dollars a year. [R. S.]

Act of July 4, 1836, ch. 352, 5 Stat. L. 111; Act of March 3, 1837, ch. 33, 5 Stat. L. 163, 164.

Two thousand dollars was the salary appropriated by the Act of Feb. 25, 1903, ch. 755, 32 Stat. L. 892.

Secs. 448, 449. [Repealed.]

These sections were as follows:

"SEC. 448. [Principal clerks on private and public land-claims.] There shall be in the General Land-Office a Principal Clerk of the Public Lands, and a Principal Clerk on Private Land-Claims, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and shall each be entitled to a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars a year; and they shall perform such duties as may be assigned to them by the Commissioner of the General Land-Office. And the chief-clerk of the General Land-Office shall perform the duties of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office in case of a vacancy in said office, or of the absence or sickness of the Commissioner." Act of July 4, 1836, ch. 352, 5 Stat. L. 109.

"SEC. 449. [Principal clerk of the surveys.] There shall be in the General Land-Office a Principal Clerk of the Surveys, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate; and shall be entitled to a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars a year. He shall direct and superintend the making of surveys, the returns thereof, and all matters relating thereto, which are done through the officers of the Surveyor-General, and perform such other duties as may be assigned to him by the Commissioner of the General Land-Office." Act of July 4, 1836, ch. 352, 5 Stat. L. 110.

They were directly repealed by the Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 177, sec. 3, infra, p. 218.

Sec. 450. [Secretary to the President to sign land patents.] The President is authorized to appoint, from time to time, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a secretary, at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars a year, whose duty it shall be, under the direction of the President, to sign in his name, and for him, all patents for land sold or granted under the authority of the United States. [R. S.]

Act of July 4, 1836, ch. 352, 5 Stat. L. 111. But see following text.

Engrossing clerk may sign President's name.—The Act of July 4, 1836, ch. 352, sec. 6, is sufficiently and legally complied with where the signature of the secretary is subscribed in his own proper handwriting, and the name of the President is written by the clerk who engrosses the patent. The intention of the law was to impose on the officer appointed as the Act requires the responsible duty of executing patents and of attesting their validity by his signature. The other duties in the execution of patents are purely ministerial, of which the form is prescribed by law; and whether they are performed by the clerk or by the secretary himself is immaterial. (1841) 3 Op. Atty-Gen. 623.

[SEC. 1.] [One of executive clerks to sign land patents.] * * * And the duties prescribed by section of the Revised Statutes numbered four hundred and fifty shall devolve upon and be discharged by one of the executive clerks, to be designated by the President for that purpose. * * * [20 Stat. L. 183.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of June 19, 1878, ch. 329.

Effect of Act.—The above Act substitutes for the secretary, provided for in section 450 of the Revised Statutes, one of the executive clerks in the President's office, to be designated by the President. However, section 450 of the Revised Statutes is not wholly repealed, but only as much of it as is repugnant to the Act of June 19, 1878. The provision in respect to the duty of signing, for the President, his name to patents for land, etc., is not repealed, but in respect to the officer who is to perform that duty it is repealed, as it is repugnant to the latter statute. There is no doubt that it was the intention of Congress that one of the President's clerks should perform the duties required by the secretary in section 450 of the Revised Statutes, and as the secretary's function was taken away, his office went with it. (1882) 17 Op. Atty-Gen. 305.

Sec. 451. [Assistant secretary to sign land patents.] If at any time the number of patents for lands sold or granted under the authority of the United States, is such that they cannot be signed within a reasonable time by the secretary appointed under the preceding section, the President may appoint an assistant secretary to sign the same, but such assistant shall be employed by the express direction of the President, and only for such time as may be necessary to bring up the arrears of patents which may be ready for signature. [R. S.]

Act of Jan. 26, 1848, ch. 4, 9 Stat. L. 209. The President has power to designate one of his executive clerks to sign for him, and his name, all patents for land, etc., and if patents should accumulate, and the number be so large that they cannot be signed within a reasonable time, he is authorized to appoint an assistant to aid in the performance of the duties so long as the exigency exists. Langford's Claim, (1882) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 306.

"The President may appoint a private secretary, at a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars, under the Act of 1857, a secretary to sign patents, at one thousand five hundred dollars, under the Act of 1836, and designate an assistant to the latter officer, under the Act of 1848." (1857) 9 Op. Atty.-Gen. 17.

A salaried clerk in the general land office is not entitled to additional compensation as assistant secretary to sign land patents by appointment of the President under the above Act, even though the patents were signed outside of the time which by the regulations of the department the appointee was required to devote to his duties as clerk. White's Case, (1863) 10 Op. Atty.-Gen. 442.

Sec. 452. [Restriction upon officers, clerks, and employees.] The officers, clerks, and employes in the General Land-Office are prohibited from directly or indirectly purchasing or becoming interested in the purchase of any of the public land; and any person who violates this section shall forthwith be removed from his office. [R. S.]

Act of April 25, 1812, ch. 68, 2 Stat. L. 17; Act of July 4, 1836, ch. 352, 5 Stat. L. 12.

Operation of Act on subsequent legislation.—Subsequent to the enactment of the above section, section 2319 of the Revised Statutes of the United States was passed, which provided that "all valuable mineral deposits in lands belonging to the United States, both surveyed and unsurveyed, are hereby declared to be free and open to exploration and purchase, and the lands in which they are found to occupation and purchase, by citizens of the United States, and those who have declared their intention to become such." Section 452 of the Revised Statutes has been retained in all of the provisions of the Revised Statutes made since its enactment. These sections are therefore pari materia, and must be construed together, and, if possible, made to harmonize and not to violate the general public policy which it is evident the former was enacted to prevent. The presumption is that Congress, when the latter Act was passed, was aware of the existence of the former, and acted in view of that fact. As the former section has not in terms been repealed, but has been retained in each of the revised editions of the United States statutes, it must be presumed that Congress intended it to remain in full force, notwithstanding the provisions of the latter section; or, in other words, it was the intention of Congress to prohibit, on the ground of public policy, the officers, clerks, and employees in the general land office from acquiring, directly or indirectly, an interest in the purchase from the government of any of the public lands of the United States. Lavagnino v. Uhlig, (1903) 26 Utah 1.

Sec. 453. [Duties of Commissioner.] The Commissioner of the General Land-Office shall perform, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, all executive duties appertaining to the surveying and sale of the public lands of the United States, or in anywise respecting such public lands, and, also, such as relate to private claims of land, and the issuing of patents for all grants of land under the authority of the Government. [R. S.]

This section was amended by the Act of Feb. 18, 1875, ch. 80, 18 Stat. L. 317, by inserting after the words "patents for all" the word "grants" in place of the word "agents" appearing in the section as originally enacted.

Jurisdiction of commissioner in general.—"In the absence of some specific provision to the contrary in respect to any particular grant of public land, its administration falls wholly and absolutely within the jurisdiction of the commissioner of the general land office, under the supervision of the secretary of the interior. It is not necessary that with each grant there shall go a direction that its administration shall be under the authority of the land department. It falls there unless there is express direction to the contrary." Catholic Bishop v. Gibbon, (1895) 158 U. S. 153.

Power to correct errors.—The commissioner of the general land office exercises a general superintendence over the subordinate officers of his department, and is clothed with liberal powers of control, to be exercised for the purposes of justice, and to prevent the consequences of inadvertence, irregularity, mistake, and fraud in the important and extensive operations of that officer for the disposal of the public domain. He has the power to correct a clerical mistake, the existence of which is shown plainly by the record. This is a necessary power in the administration of every department. Bell v. Hearne, (1856) 19 How. (U. S.) 252.

Seizure and sale of timber unlawfully cut.—The officers of the land department have authority to make seizure of timber unlawfully cut on the public lands. Authority to exercise this remedy in behalf of the United States must be deemed to belong to the commissioner of the general land office, under the supervision of the secretary of the interior, as a power included in the general duties respecting the public lands which are devolved upon him by the above section. Such authority has long been asserted and frequently exercised by the land department through its officers and agents, the latter acting under the instructions issued by the commissioner with the sanction of the secretary of the interior. As to the authority of the commissioner to dispose of such timber by public or private sale, where the same has been seized by duly authorized agents of the land department and remains in their custody, it is apprehended that this power exists subject to the general supervision and direction of the secretary of the interior. There being no statutory provision governing a case of that kind or regulating the disposal of the property, it must be regarded as a subject left to the land department to be dealt with in such manner as in the judgment of that department will best protect the interests of the government. As the property is perishable, and its custody may involve expense, it is not only within the power, but it is the duty of the department, for the avoidance of loss to the government, to convert the same into money; and whether this is done by public or private sale, is a matter entirely discretionary with it. While, ordinarily, the public interests (which are always to be kept in view) will be best subserved by a public sale after advertisement, yet there seems to be no objection, legal or other, to a private sale either with or without previous advertisement, where this mode of disposal is advantageous to the government, but as a general rule a public sale should be had. (1886) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 434. See also (1890) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 710.

General supervisory authority of secretary of interior.—The phrase, "under the direction of the secretary of the interior," as used in the above section and other sections of the Revised Statutes, was intended as an expression in general terms of the power of the secretary of the interior to supervise and control the extensive operations of the land department of which he is the head. It means that, in the important matters relating to the sale and disposition of the public domain, the surveying of private land claims and the issuing of patents thereon, and the administration of trusts devolving upon the government by reason of the laws of Congress or under treaty stipulations, respecting the public domain, the secretary of the interior is the supervising agent of the government to do justice to all claimants and preserve the rights of the people of the United States. The general words of the above section and other sections of the Revised Statutes concerning the powers of the secretary of the interior are not supposed to particularize every minute duty devolving upon the secretary of the interior and every special power bestowed upon him. There must be some latitude for construction. The power of supervision and control exercised by the secretary of the interior over all matters relating to the disposition and sale of the public lands, under section 453 of the Revised Statutes, is substantially the same as his power over the bureau of pensions, under section 471. There is nowhere any express power given to the secretary of the interior to hear and determine appeals from the commissioner of pensions; and yet the power is exercised daily without question. The same remarks apply to the powers of the secretary of the interior, under a similarly worded section of the Revised Statutes (section 463), to supervise and control the management of the bureau of Indian affairs, which powers are not questioned. But even if there is any doubt of the existence of such power in the secretary of the interior, as an original proposition, still the exercise of it for so long a period—going back to the organization of that department—without question ought to be considered as conclusive as to the existence of the power. Knight v. U. S. Land Assoc., (1891) 142 U. S. 161. See also Hawley v. Diller, (1900) 178 U. S. 476; Warner Valley Stock Co. v. Smith, (1897) 165 U. S. 28; Stoneroad v. Stoneroad, (1895) 158 U. S. 240; Orchard v. Alexander, (1895) 157 U. S. 372; Hays v. Steiger, (1888) 76 Cal. 555; Altschul v. Clark, (1901) 39 Oregon 315; Lawrence v. Potter, (1900) 22 Wash. 32; McCord v. Hill, (1901) 111 Wis. 499.

The power of supervision and control granted by the Act of July 4, 1836, although in terms extending only to executive duties, includes the right to review a decision of the local land officers as to the matter of settlement and improvement, Harkness v. Underhill, (1861) 1 Black (U. S.) 316; Orchard v. Alexander, (1895) 157 U. S. 372; especially in cases in which the proof before those officers is by ex parte affidavits, the approval or disapproval of the evidence offered in respect to the settlement and improvement being quasi-judicial only. Barnard v. Ashley, (1855) 18 How. (U. S.) 43, distinguishing and explaining Wilcox v. Jackson, (1839) 13 Pet. (U. S.) 511; Lytle v. Arkansas, (1860) 9 How. (U. S.) 314.

Status of secretary of interior.—The secretary of the interior is the guardian of the people of the United States over the public lands. The obligations of his oath of office oblige him to see that the law is carried out, and that none of the public domain is wasted or disposed of to a party not entitled to it. He represents the government, which is a party in interest in every case involving the surveying and disposal of the public lands. Knight v. U. S. Land Assoc., (1891) 142 U. S. 101.

As the commissioner is under the direction of the secretary of the interior, the first comptroller does not possess the power in every case where in his opinion further delay would be injurious to the United States, to direct the commissioner of the general land office forthwith to audit and settle any particular account which the commissioner may be authorized to audit and settle. (1886) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 450.

Extent of authority and mode of execution.—The supervision of the secretary of the interior may be exercised by direct orders or review on appeals. The mode in which the supervision shall be exercised in the absence of statutory direction may be prescribed by such rules and regulations as the secretary may adopt when proceedings affecting the titles to lands are before the department. The power of supervision may be exercised by the secretary whether these proceedings are called to his attention by formal notice or appeal. It is sufficient that they are brought to his notice. The secretary of the interior may not only review his own decision prior to the passing of the legal title to the land in controversy, but may review a decision of his predecessor and set it aside if he is convinced that an error has been committed. An application for a rehearing may be made to a succeeding secretary, provided it could have been made to his predecessor who made the original decision, had he remained in office. Beley v. Naphtaly, (1898) 169 U. S. 353; Gage v. Gunther, (1902) 136 Cal. 338; Warner Valley Stock Co. v. Smith, (1896) 9 App. Cas. (D. C.) 187, reversed for lack of necessary parties, (1897) 165 U. S. 28; Brown v. Bliss, (1898) 13 App. Cas. (D. C.) 279. See also the cases in the preceding notes.

Power supervisory rather than appellate.—Both the secretary of the interior and the commissioner, in revising the acts of the subordinate officials of the land department, exercise supervisory rather than appellate power, in the sense in which the term appellate is employed in defining the powers of courts of justice. The secretary of the interior, in the exercise of such authority, may approve, modify, or annul the acts, proceedings, and decisions of the commissioners. If, however, this power is to be regarded as appellate power, in a legal sense, it will be observed that the statute has not provided the machinery for the taking of an appeal, and consequently that matter is subject to such rules and regulations as the department may prescribe. Heatres v. Brennan (1875) 50 Cal. 211.

Power to review his own decisions.—The supervisory authority thus given to the secretary of the interior is not lost by the fact that he has erred in a former decision or that he has repeated the error once or many times by denying a motion to set it aside or to re-examine his action. Gage v. Gunther, (1902) 136 Cal. 346.

Rules may not divest supervisory power.—The authority of the secretary of the interior to review or set aside decisions cannot be taken away by any rule of procedure which he may formulate. There is no statutory inhibition against his granting a rehearing or a review, or the number of times a motion therefor may be made, or any provision relating to the time within which a rehearing may be granted, or within which the former decision may be set aside. Congress has imposed this supervisory duty upon him, and he cannot divest himself of it by any rule of his own creation. Gage v. Gunther, (1902) 136 Cal. 347.

Power to disregard rules.—Whether the circumstances in any particular case are such as to justify the secretary of the interior in disregarding the rules, or in refusing to disregard them, is a question of fact to be determined by him, and his determination thereon, like his decision of other questions of fact, is conclusive upon other tribunals. This rule is, however, subject to the qualification that the land department may not by such disregard of its rules deprive a party of an opportunity for a hearing upon the question before it. If, however, upon such subsequent hearing a full opportunity is afforded the parties for presenting the facts of their case, they cannot complain that by granting a review or rehearing of the case there was any misconstruction of the law by which they were deprived of any right. Gage v. Gunther, (1902) 136 Cal. 346.

Vested rights may not be revoked.—The review of a decision after the passing of the legal title to land is unauthorized. Noble v. Union River Logging R. Co., (1893) 147 U. S. 175; Stimson Land Co. v. Rawson (1894) 62 Fed. Rep. 429. See also Moore v. Robbins, (1877) 96 U. S. 530; Emblen v. Lincoln Land Co., (1899) 94 Fed. Rep. 710 affirmed (C. C. A. 1900) 102 Fed. Rep. 559 (1902) 184 U. S. 660.

Land department constitutes special tribunal—jurisdiction.—The land department of the United States, including in that term the secretary of the interior, the commissioner of the general land office, and their subordinate officers, constitutes a special tribunal, vested with judicial power to hear and determine the claims of all parties to the public lands which it is authorized to dispose of, and with power to execute its judgments by conveyances to the parties entitled to them. A patent of land within its jurisdiction, issued by the land department is the judgment of that tribunal, and a conveyance of the legal title to the land to the patentee in execution of the judgment. When such a patent to land within the jurisdiction of the department is issued, it is, like the judgments of other judicial tribunals, impervious to collateral attack. The test of the jurisdiction of this tribunal is the true answer to the question, had the department the power to hear and determine the claims of the applicants of the land and to dispose of it in accordance with its decision? If that question can be answered in the affirmative, the land department had jurisdiction of the case, and the patent which evidences its decision conveys the legal title, and is impervious to collateral attack. If it must be answered in the negative, then its conveyance is void, and is as vulnerable in a collateral action at law as in a direct proceeding in equity to avoid it. King v. McAndrews, (C. C. A. 1901) 111 Fed. Rep. 860. See also Germania Iron Co. v. James, (C. C. A. 1898) 89 Fed. Rep. 811; U. S. v. Winona, etc., R. Co., (C. C. A. 1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 948, affirmed (1897) 165 U. S. 463.

The land department is vested with jurisdiction to determine all questions of fact that may arise in any controversy respecting rights claimed by any person under the laws of the United States to receive a patent for any of the public lands. As a necessary result therefrom, the determination of this tribunal of any question of fact is conclusive upon all tribunals wherever such questions may be presented. The character of the land, whether it is subject to entry under the laws invoked therefor, the qualifications of the entryman, the extent of the improvement or reclamation made by him, whether such improvement is a sufficient compliance with the statutory provisions for entitling him to a patent, or whether it has been made within the time prescribed by statute, or, if not, whether the reasons offered by him are sufficient to condone such failure, or any default on his part, whether he has been guilty of laches, or exercised sufficient diligence,—are questions of fact to be submitted to and determined by the land department, and the issuance of a patent for the land is a final determination of that tribunal of the existence of all facts depending upon testimony which are necessary to entitle him to the patent, and, in the absence of fraud, mistake, or imposition, such facts are not subject to a re-examination in any other tribunal. If, however, in making such determination of facts, that tribunal has disregarded the law applicable thereto, or has erred in its construction of the law, or by reason of mistake has issued to one person a patent for the land which upon undisputed facts should have been issued to another who has contested his claim and has shown himself entitled to the patent, the person in whose favor the patent was issued will be held to hold the land for the benefit of the one to whom it should have issued. Proceedings for this purpose, are, however, to be taken in a court of equity, and are to be governed by the rules of equity procedure. Gage v. Gunther, (1902) 136 Cal. 338. See also Carr v. Fife, (1895) 156 U. S. 494; Acers v. Snyder, (1899) 8 Okla. 659.

Conclusiveness of survey confirmed by land department.—By the above section, full jurisdiction over the survey and sale of the public lands of the United States, and also in respect to private claims of land, is vested in the commissioner of the general land office, subject to the direction of the secretary of the interior. A survey made by the proper officers of the United States, and confirmed by the land department, is not open to challenge by any collateral attack in the courts. Russell v. Maxwell Land Grant Co., (1895) 158 U. S. 253. See also Cragin v. Powell, (1888) 128 U. S. 691.

Matters of procedure before the land department—such as the regularity of its sittings, whether a paper was filed in accordance with its rules, whether a proper or sufficient notice of hearing upon any motion was given, whether the evidence before the tribunal was competent or proper to be considered—are questions of fact which, like the weight of the evidence, or the credibility of the witnesses before it, cannot, in the absence of fraud, be reviewed in any other forum. Gage v. Gunther, (1902) 136 Cal. 347.

Notice of a motion for the review of a decision of the secretary of the interior before that officer need not be served on the attorney of record of the adverse party. Service of notice upon the party himself is sufficient. The proceedings before the secretary in matters pertaining to the disposal of the public lands are not void by reason of failure to give notice to interested parties. The secretary has power to determine all such matters on his own motion, and mere irregularities will not render such proceedings void. Acers v. Snyder, (1899) 8 Okla. 659.

Power of land department to make rules and regulations.—By virtue of the above section and sections 441 and 2478 of the Revised Statutes, the land department has the power to adopt rules and regulations, including rules and regulations for the administration of the Forest Reserve Act, and the courts will take judicial notice of the rules and regulations made by the land department regarding the sale and exchange of public lands. Cosmos Exploration Co. v. Gray Eagle Oil Co., (1903) 190 U. S. 301.

Sec. 454. [Custody of seal, books, records, etc.] The Commissioner of the General Land-Office shall retain the charge of the seal heretofore adopted for the office, which may continue to be used, and of the records, books, papers, and other property appertaining to the office. [R. S.]

Act of April 25, 1812, ch. 68, 2 Stat. L. 717.

Sec. 455. [Plats of lands surveyed.] The Commissioner of the General Land-Office shall, when required by the President or either House of Congress, give a plat of any land surveyed under the authority of the United States, and give such information respecting the public lands and concerning the business of his office as shall be directed. [R. S.]

Act of April 25, 1812, ch. 68, 2 Stat. L. 717.

Sec. 456. [Returns relative to lands.] All returns relative to the public lands shall be made to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of July 31, 1894, ch. 174, § 28 Stat. L. 207.

This section originally read as follows:

SEC. 456. [Returns and accounts relative to lands.] All returns relative to the public lands shall be made to the Commissioner of the General Land-Office; and he shall have power to audit and settle all public accounts relative to the public lands; and upon the settlement of any such account, he shall certify the balance, and transmit the account with the vouchers and certificate to the First Comptroller of the Treasury, for his examination and decision thereon." Act of April 25, 1812, ch. 68, 2 Stat. L. 717.

Provisions for the auditing and settlement of accounts are contained in other provisions of the amendatory Act above noted given under the title TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Sec. 457. [Warrants for military lands.] In all cases in which land has heretofore or shall hereafter be given by the United States for military services, warrants shall be granted to the parties entitled to such land by the Secretary of the Interior; and such warrants shall be recorded in the General Land-Office, in books to be kept for the purpose, and shall be located as is or may be provided by law; and patents shall afterwards be issued accordingly. [R. S.]

Act of April 25, 1812, ch. 68, 2 Stat. L. 717.

Sec. 458. [Issue of patents for lands.] All patents issuing from the General Land-Office shall be issued in the name of the United States, and be signed by the President, and countersigned by the Recorder of the General Land-Office; and shall be recorded in the Office, in books to be kept for the purpose. [R. S.]

Act of April 25, 1812, ch. 68, 2 Stat. L. 717; Act of March 3, 1841, ch. 26, 5 Stat. L. 417.

Compliance with statute is imperative.—The second section of the Act of March 3, 1841, the duty of countersigning patents was transferred from the commissioner of the general land office to the recorder. A patent for lands must be signed in the name of the President, either by himself or by his appointed secretary, sealed with the seal of the general land office and countersigned by the recorder. Until all these things have been done, the United States has not issued a patent for a grant of lands. Each of every one of the integral parts of the instrument is essential to the perfection of the patent. They are of equal importance under the law, and one cannot be dispensed with more than the other. Neither is directory, but all are mandatory. Neither the signing nor the sealing nor the countersigning can be omitted. If either of the requisites for the due execution of a patent may be considered as directory, the countersigning by the recorder should not be permitted to occupy that position. The President may sign as secretary, but the recorder must sign as recorder. He countersigns, that is to say, he attests, opposite to and after the President, by his seal, of authentication. It is peculiarly appropriate that his attestation should be the last act to be performed in the perfection of the instrument, and that he should do it personally. McGarrahan v. New Idria Min. Co., (1877) 96 U. S. 316.

Presumed compliance with statute.—In McLeod v. Lloyd, (1903) 43 Oregon 260, it was held, under a statute which authorized the presumption of the performance of official duty, that where a patent is shown to have been recorded by an abstract of title, even if it is not countersigned by the recorder of the general land office, it may be presumed that it was countersigned in accordance with the above section.

The record of the patent is evidence of the grant, but not the grant itself. It is evidence of equal dignity with the patent, because, like the patent, it shows that a patent containing the grant has been issued. The record called for by the Act of Congress is made by copying the patent to be issued into the book kept for that purpose. The effect of the record, therefore, is to show that an instrument such as is there copied has actually been prepared for issue from the general land office. If the instrument as recorded is sufficient on its face to pass the title, it is to be presumed that the grant has actually been made; but if it is not sufficient, no presumption arises. In short, the record, for the purposes of evidence, stands in the same position and has the same effect as the instrument of which it purports to be a copy. The same defenses can be made against the record as could be made against the instrument recorded. The public records of the executive departments of the government are not, like those kept pursuant to ordinary registration laws, intended for notice, but for the preservation of the evidence of the transactions of the department. McGarrahan v. New Idria Min. Co., (1877) 96 U. S. 316.

The failure to record the patent does not defeat the grant. — It only takes from the party one of the means of making his proof. If he can produce the patent itself, and that is executed with all the formalities required by the law, he can still maintain his rights under it. He is not, therefore, necessarily deprived of his title because of a defective record. He is in no worse condition with the signatures omitted than he would have been if the description of his land had been erroneously copied, or other mistakes had been made which rendered the record useless for the purposes of evidence. A perfect record of a perfect patent proves the grant; but a perfect record of an imperfect patent, or an imperfect record of a perfect patent, has no such effect. In such a case, if a perfect patent has in fact issued, it must be proved in some other way than by the record. It is undoubtedly true that, when a right to a patent is complete and the last formalities of the law in respect to its execution and issue have been complied with by the officers of the government charged with that duty, the record will be treated as presumptive evidence of its delivery to and acceptance by the grantee. But until the patent is complete, it cannot properly be recorded, and consequently an incomplete record raises no such presumption. McGarrahan v. New Idria Min. Co., (1877) 96 U. S. 316.

Sec. 459. [Duties of Recorder.] It shall be the duty of the Recorder of the General Land-Office, in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner, to certify and affix the seal of the Office to all patents for public lands, and to attend to the correct engrossing, recording, and transmission of such patents. He shall prepare alphabetical indexes of the names of patentees, and of persons entitled to patents; and he shall prepare such copies and exemplifications of matters on file or recorded in the General Land-Office as the Commissioner may from time to time direct. Whenever the office of Recorder shall become vacant, or in case of his sickness or absence, the duties of his office shall be performed ad interim by the principal clerk on private land-claims. [R. S.]

Act of April 25, 1812, ch. 68, 2 Stat. L. 717; Act of July 4, 1836, ch. 352, 5 Stat. L. 111. See, however, provisions in the following text.

Sufficiency of acting recorder's signature.

— Where the record in a case showed an instrument in the form of a patent signed in the name of the President and sealed, and it appeared that the place for the signature of the acting recorder was left blank and that the name of the President was signed by his secretary, a claim that the secretary also countersigned as acting recorder was not sustained by the evidence, as the secretary's signature appeared only as secretary and there was nothing whatever to indicate that he attempted to act as recorder. The court said: "It certainly is not to be presumed that the same person will hold at the same time the offices of secretary to the President for signing patents, and of principal clerk on private land claims. And if it were, his signature as secretary will not be treated as his signature as recorder ad interim or acting recorder. He must sign both as secretary and as recorder." McGarrahan v. New Idria Min. Co., (1877) 96 U. S. 316.

Exclusive authority of recorder. — The duty and power of attesting and sealing patents for public lands belong exclusively to the recorder of the general land office. They form so material a part of his functions that the provision of the former law which devolved them on the commissioner is inconsistent with the new law, and therefore repealed. (1836) 3 Op. Atty.-Gen. 140.

All patents issuing from the general land office, whether of land sold, or of lands in respect to which private claims are recognized by Acts of Congress as valid, or other lands, must be certified or countersigned by the recorder of the general land office. Attorney-General Butler said: "It is true that the fourth section of the Act of the 4th of July last, reorganizing the general land office, which prescribes the duties of the recorder, speaks, only of patents for 'public lands;' and it is therefore with much doubt and considerable hesitation that I have come to the above conclusion. But, after looking at the question on several different occasions, and reflecting very maturely upon it, I am obliged to say that, in my judgment, the phrase 'public lands,' as used in the fourth section, must be regarded as a comprehensive generic phrase, designed to include all lands the title to which is so circumstanced as to require for its complete transmission a patent from the United States. The words may well enough admit of this enlarged construction; and, unless we adopt it, the most important duties of the recorder, as prescribed by the Act, will be confined to those lands which are strictly 'public lands.'" (1836) 3 Op. Atty.-Gen. 167.

Sec. 3. [Engrossing and recording of patents — duplication of returns to prevented — principal clerks abolished — duties of Assistant Commissioner reports of cases abolished.] The engrossing and recording of patents for public lands may be done by means of typewriters or other machines, under regulations to be made by the Secretary of the Interior and approved by the President.

The duplication of reports and returns of registers and receivers to the General Land Office shall be prevented by such regulations as the Commissioner of the General Land Office, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, may make.

Sections four hundred and forty-eight and four hundred and forty-nine of the Revised Statutes are repealed. Appropriations heretofore made for the salaries of the officers hereby abolished shall be available during the remainder of the fiscal year eighteen hundred and ninety-five for the pay of three chiefs of divisions, with such duties as the Commissioner of the General Land Office may assign to them. The duties imposed on the principal clerk of private land claims by section four hundred and fifty-nine of the Revised Statutes shall hereafter be performed by the Assistant Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Section twenty-four hundred and fifty-two of the Revised Statutes is repealed. [28 Stat. L. 807.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of March 2, 1895, 177.

R. S. sec. 448, 449, above repealed, are set forth in the notes, supra, p. 211.

R. S. sec. 2452, above repealed, is set forth in the notes, infra, p. 524.

Sec. 460. [Copies of papers filed in the Department.] Whenever any person claiming to be interested in or entitled to land, under any grant or patent from the United States, applies to the Department of the Interior for copies of papers filed and remaining therein, in anywise affecting the title to such land, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to cause such copies to be made out and authenticated, under his hand and the seal of the General Land Office, for the person so applying. Act of Jan. 23, 1823, ch. 6, 3 Stat. L. 721; Act of July 4, 1836, ch. 352, 5 Stat. L. 111.

Sec. 461. [Fees for exemplifications of patents, etc.] All exemplifications of patents or papers on file or of record in the General Land Office which may be required by parties interested shall be furnished by the Commissioner upon payment by such parties at the rate of fifteen cents per hundred words, and twenty cents each for photolithographed copies of township plats or diagrams, verified, not to exceed ten copies to any one person, and twenty-five cents for all copies in excess of ten, with an additional sum of one dollar for the Commissioner's certificate of verification, with the General Land Office seal; and one of the employees of the office shall be designated by the Commissioner as the receiving clerk, and the amount so received shall, under the direction of the Commissioner, be paid into the Treasury; but fees shall not be demanded for such authenticated copies as may be required by the officers of any branch of the Government, nor for such unverified copies as the Commissioner, in his discretion, may deem proper to furnish. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of April 2, 1888, ch. 54, 25 Stat. 76, entitled "An Act to amend section four hundred and sixty-one of the Revised Statutes, regulating fees for exemplifications of land patents, and for other purposes."

The section originally read as follows:
"Sec. 461. All exemplifications of patents or papers on file or of record in the General Land Office, which may be required by parties interested, shall be furnished by the Commissioner upon the payment by such parties at the rate of fifteen cents per hundred words, and two dollars for copies of township plats or diagrams, with an additional sum of one dollar for the Commissioner's certificate of verification with the General Land-Office seal; and one of the employés of the Office shall be designated by the Commissioner as the receiving clerk, and the amount so received shall, under the direction of the Commissioner, be paid into the Treasury; but fees shall not be demanded for such authenticated copies as may be required by the officers of any branch of the Government, nor for such unverified copies as the Commissioner in his discretion may deem proper to furnish." Act of July 2, 1864, ch. 224, 13 Stat. L. 375.

An act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to sell township maps or plats remaining on hand in his office.

[Act of Oct. 12, 1888, ch. 1098, 25 Stat. L. 557.]

[Sale of plats or maps.] That from and after the passage of this act the Secretary of the Interior, through the Commissioner of Public Lands, be, and he is hereby, authorized to sell the photolithographic township plats or maps of the States and Territories now remaining on hand in that Department to citizens of the United States at the following prices: Authenticated copies, fifty cents per copy; unauthenticated copies, twenty-five cents per copy; the proceeds of said sales to be covered into the Treasury of the United States by the Secretary of the Interior. [25 Stat. L. 557.]

[II. SURVEYORS AND DEPUTY SURVEYORS.]

Sec. 2207. [Surveyors-general, how and where appointed.] There shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a surveyor-general for the States and Territories herein named, embracing, respectively, one surveying district, namely: Louisiana, Florida, Minnesota, Kansas, California, Nevada, Oregon, Nebraska and Iowa, Dakota, Colorado, New Mexico, Idaho, Washington, Montana, Utah, Wyoming, Arizona. An act to create the offices of surveyor-general in the States of North Dakota and South Dakota.

[SEC. 1.] [Surveyors-general for North Dakota and South Dakota.]
That there shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a surveyor-general each for the States of North Dakota and South Dakota, embracing, respectively, one surveying district. [26 Stat. L. 53.]

SEC. 2. [Salaries.] That the surveyors-general of North Dakota and South Dakota shall each receive a salary at the rate of two thousand dollars per annum. [26 Stat. L. 53.]

[SEC. 1.] [Consolidation of offices of surveyors-general.] * * * That hereafter the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed, whenever practicable, to consolidate the offices of two or more surveyor-generals into one office, and in cases of such consolidation, in the discretion of the Secretary, the surveyor-general appointed in charge of a consolidated office may be paid a salary not exceeding two thousand five hundred dollars per annum, from the sums appropriated respectively for the salaries of the surveyors-general whose offices may be consolidated hereunder. [27 Stat. L. 709.]

The offices of surveyor-general of Kansas, Nebraska, and Iowa are abolished, and the appointment of and salaries for surveyors-general for North Dakota and South Dakota provided for by acts set out above.

Salaries of the surveyors-general have varied under the appropriation acts. The Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of April 28, 1902, ch. 594, 32

Stat. L. 162, provides for salaries of surveyors-general, as follows: Alaska, $4,000;
Arizona, $2,000; California, $2,000; Colorado, $2,000; Florida, $1,800; Idaho, $2,000; Louisiana, $1,800; Minnesota, $1,800; Montana, $2,000; Nevada, $1,800; New Mexico,
$2,000; North Dakota, $2,000; Oregon,
$2,000; South Dakota, $2,000; Utah, $2,000;
Washington, $2,000; Wyoming, $2,000.

Salaries.—See note under R. S. sec. 2208.

Sec. 2212. [Offices, number and location of.] There shall be but one office of surveyor-general in each surveyor-general's district; and such office shall be located as the President, in view of the public convenience, may from time to time direct, except as provided in the following section. [R. S.]

Act of July 2, 1864, ch. 210, 13 Stat. L. 352.

Sec. 2213. [Offices, location of, in Minnesota, Idaho, Nebraska, and Iowa.] The surveyor-general's office for Minnesota district shall continue to be located at the city of Saint Paul; that for Idaho Territory, at Boise City; and that for the district of Nebraska and Iowa, at Plattsmouth, in Nebraska. [R. S.]

Office abolished in Nebraska and Iowa. See Act of Oct. 2, 1888, ch. 1069, supra, p. 220.

Sec. 2214. [Residence of surveyor-general.] Every surveyor-general, while in the discharge of the duties of his office, shall reside in the district for which he is appointed. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1843, ch. 100, 5 Stat. L. 637.

Sec. 2215. [Bond of surveyor-general.] Every surveyor-general shall, before entering on the duties of his office, execute and deliver to the Secretary of the Interior a bond, with good and sufficient security, for the penal sum of thirty thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful disbursement, according to law, of all public money placed in his hands, and for the faithful performance of the duties of his office. [R. S.]

Act of May 7, 1822, ch. 118, 3 Stat. L. 697.

The form of the bond required is impliedly left by Congress to be regulated or fixed by the officer by whom it is to be approved. (1885) 18 Op. Atty.-Gen. 275.

The omission of one condition, where the conditions are cumulative, cannot invalidate the bond. Farrar v. U. S., (1831) 5 Pet. (U. S.) 372, followed in U. S. v. Bradley, (1836) 10 Pet. (U. S.) 343.

Conditions precedent to holding of office.—

"The person appointed to the office of surveyor-general is required to give a bond and take an oath before he can possess the office. These acts constitute conditions precedent to the holding of the office." People v. Whitman, (1858) 10 Cal. 38, following U. S. v. Le Baron, (1856) 19 How. (U. S.) 73.

general."—The Act of May 7, 1822, ch. 118, sec. 3, requiring the surveyor-general to give bond, applied to a surveyor appointed under the Act of April 29, 1816, ch. 151, notwithstanding the fact that under a literal construction of the laws then in force there was only one surveyor-general, as Congress had repeatedly used the terms interchangeably. Farrar v. U. S., (1831) 5 Pet. (U. S.) 372. On the question of identity, see also U. S. v. Lytle, (1849) 5 McLean (U. S.) 9, 26 Fed. Cas. 15,652.

Surety's liability when principal's district enlarged.—The treasury department cannot enlarge the district of a surveyor-general, but where such district depends upon the construction of various Acts of Congress, and those acts have been uniformly construed one way, and such construction has been repeatedly sanctioned by legislative action, it must be considered as conclusive on the judiciary. And where such construction had been fixed for years, a security to a surveyor-general's bond cannot set up in defense, as a bar to a suit on the bond, that the duties as performed were beyond the proper limits of the surveyor-general's district. U. S. v. Lytle, (1849) 5 McLean (U. S.) 9.

Sec. 2216. [New bond of, and additional security.] The President is authorized, whenever he may deem it expedient, to require any surveyor-general to give a new bond and additional security, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, for the faithful disbursement, according to law, of all money placed in his hands. [R. S.]

Act of May 7, 1822, ch. 118, 3 Stat. L. 697.

Sec. 2217. [Duration of office.] The commission of every surveyor-general now in office, and of every surveyor-general hereafter appointed, shall cease and expire, unless sooner vacated by death, resignation, or removal from office, in four years from the date of the commission. [R. S.]

Act of May 7, 1822, ch. 118, 3 Stat. L. 697.

Sec. 2218. [Completion of surveys, delivery of field-notes, etc.] The Secretary of the Interior shall take all the necessary measures for the completion of the surveys in the several surveying-districts for which surveyors-general have been, or may be, appointed, at the earliest periods compatible with the purposes contemplated by law; and whenever the surveys and records of any such district are completed, the surveyor-general thereof shall be required to deliver over to the secretary of state of the respective States, including such surveys, or to such other officer as may be authorized to receive them, all the field-notes, maps, records, and other papers appertaining to land titles within the same; and the office of surveyor-general in every such district shall thereafter cease and be discontinued. [R. S.]

Act of June 12, 1840, ch. 36, 5 Stat. L. 384.

Sec. 2219. [Devolution of surveyor-general's powers upon Commissioner of Land Office, when.] In all cases where, as provided in the preceding section, the field-notes, maps, records, and other papers appertaining to land-titles in any State are turned over to the authorities of such State, the same authority, powers, and duties in relation to the survey, resurvey, or subdivision of the lands therein, and all matters and things connected therewith, as previously exercised by the surveyor-general, whose district included such State, shall be vested in, and devolved upon, the Commissioner of the General Land-Office. [R. S.]

Act of Jan. 22, 1853, ch. 24, 10 Stat. L. 152.

Sec. 2220. [Free access to field-notes, etc., delivered to States.] Under the authority and direction of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, any deputy surveyor or other agent of the United States shall have free access to any such field-notes, maps, records, and other papers, for the purpose of taking extracts therefrom, or making copies thereof, without charge of any kind. [R. S.]

Act of Jan. 22, 1853, ch. 24, 10 Stat. L. 152.

Sec. 2221. [Conditions of delivery of field-notes to the States.] The field-notes, maps, records, and other papers mentioned in section twenty-two hundred and nineteen, shall in no case be turned over to the authorities of any State, until such State has provided by law for the reception and safe-keeping of the same as public records, and for the allowance of free access to the same by the authorities of the United States. [R. S.]

Act of Jan. 22, 1853, ch. 24, 10 Stat. L. 152.

[Transfer to Nebraska and Iowa of records of land surveys — safe keeping of, and access to, records.] * * * That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, authorized to transfer to the Secretary of state of the States of Nebraska and Iowa, or to such officers as may be entitled to receive them, the field-notes, maps, records, and other papers appertaining to land surveys in said States which are now stored in the district land-office at Lincoln, Nebraska; and the office of surveyor-general for the district of Nebraska and Iowa is hereby abolished: Provided, That the aforesaid field-notes, maps, records, and other papers pertaining to the State of Nebraska shall not be delivered to the proper authorities until said State shall have provided by law for the safe keeping of the same as public records, and for the allowance of free access to field-notes, maps, records, and other papers by the authorities of the United States, as provided by section twenty-two hundred and twenty-one of the Revised Statutes of the United States, the State of Iowa having heretofore enacted the requisite legislation. * * * [25 Stat. L. 525.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of Oct. 2, 1888, ch. 1069.

Sec. 2222. [Continuance of duties after expiration of commission.] Every surveyor-general, register, and receiver, except where the President sees cause otherwise to determine, is authorized to continue in the uninterrupted discharge of his regular official duties, after the day of expiration of his commission, and until a new commission is issued to him for the same office, or until the day when a successor enters upon the duties of such office; and the existing official bond of any officer so acting shall be deemed good and sufficient, and in force, until the date of the approval of a new bond to be given by him, if recommissioned, or otherwise, for the additional time he may so continue officially to act, pursuant to the authority of this section. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 145, 10 Stat. L. 247.

Sec. 2223. [General duties of surveyors-general.] Every surveyor-general shall engage a sufficient number of skillful surveyors as his deputies, to whom he is authorized to administer the necessary oaths upon their appointments. He shall have authority to frame regulations for their direction, not inconsistent with law or the instructions of the General Land-Office, and to remove them for negligence or misconduct in office.

Second. He shall cause to be surveyed, measured, and marked, without delay, all base and meridian lines through such points and perpetuated by such monuments, and such other correction parallels and meridians as may be prescribed by law or by instructions from the General Land-Office, in respect to the public lands within his surveying-district, to which the Indian title has been or may be hereafter extinguished.

Third. He shall cause to be surveyed all private land-claims within his district after they have been confirmed by authority of Congress, so far as may be necessary to complete the survey of the public lands.

Fourth. He shall transmit to the register of the respective land-offices within his district general and particular plats of all lands surveyed by him for each land-district; and he shall forward copies of such plats to the Commissioner of the General Land-Office.

Fifth. He shall, so far as is compatible with the desk-duties of his office, occasionally inspect the surveying operations while in progress in the field, sufficiently to satisfy himself of the fidelity of the execution of the work according to contract, and the actual and necessary expenses incurred by him while so engaged shall be allowed; and where it is incompatible with his other duties for a surveyor-general to devote the time necessary to make a personal inspection of the work in progress, then he is authorized to depute a confidential agent to make such examination; and the actual and necessary expenses of such person shall be allowed and paid for that service, and five dollars a day during the examination in the field; but such examination shall not be protracted beyond thirty days; and in no case longer than is actually necessary; and when a surveyor-general, or any person employed in his office at a regular salary, is engaged in such special service, he shall receive only his necessary expenses in addition to his regular salary. [R. S.]

Act of May 18, 1796, ch. 29, 1 Stat. L. 464; Act of April 29, 1816, ch. 151, 3 Stat. L. 325; Act of March 3, 1831, ch. 116, 4 Stat. L. 492; Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 145, 10 Stat. L. 245, 247.

Basis of United States system of surveys. — "The Act of May 18, 1796, the first to authorize a sale of the domain ceded by Virginia, is the basis of our present rectangular system of surveys. That Act required every surveyor to note in his field-book the true situation of all mines, salt licks, and salt springs, and reserves for the future disposal of the United States a well-known salt spring on the Scioto river, and every other salt spring which should be discovered." Morton v. Nebraska, (1874) 21 Wall. (U. S.) 660.

The rule of conduct for all surveyors-general and their deputies, prescribed by the Act of May 8, 1796, ch. 29, is continued in all the subsequent statutes on the subject. Morton v. Nebraska, (1874) 21 Wall. (U. S.) 660.

Power to appoint deputies. — Prior to the Act of May 30, 1862, sec. 86, the surveyor-general had by law general authority to contract with his deputies, and it was not necessary that the instructions of his superior, the commissioner of the general land office, should be made a part of the contract or that the contract should be approved by the commissioner. McKee's Case, (1865) 1 Ct. Cl. 336.

And the surveyor had the power to fix the compensation of his deputies by contract with them, provided that the whole expense of surveying did not exceed three dollars per mile. While the law made it the duty of the surveyor to fix the compensation of the deputy surveyors, chaincarriers, and axemen, the government sanctioned an arrangement whereby the surveyor made a contract with the deputy for the entire work, permitting the latter to choose his chaincarriers and axemen. (1824) 1 Op. Atty.-Gen. 661.

Conclusiveness of survey. — There is nothing in the statute that requires the approval of the commissioner of the general land office before a surveyor-general's survey of public land becomes final and the plats made by him authoritative. When the survey is correct, it becomes final and effective when it is filed in the local land office by the surveyor. Fraser v. O'Connor, (1885) 115 U. S. 102; Tubbs v. Wilhoit, (1891) 138 U. S. 134.

Survey necessary to sever land from public domain. — Land pre-empted is not severed from the public domain until the surveyor-general files the plat and notice with the recorder of land titles; and this is true though the pre-emptor has done everything required of him by law, and is without legal means to compel the surveyor-general to perform the duty imposed on him by statute. Hot Springs Cases, (1874) 10 Ct. Cl. 289, 373.

"Lands subject to equitable claims within the territory acquired by the United States from Spain under the treaty of 1819, requiring survey and confirmation by the United States, are, until the approved survey, confirmation, or patent issued, part of the public domain." Perkins v. Vincent, (1895) 47 La. Ann. 579.

Surveyor-general's approval of plats. — The surveyor-general's approval of plats of land surveyed is a sufficient authentication of both the survey and the plats. No indispensable form of approval has been prescribed. The substance and spirit of the whole policy in respect to approvals is that the surveyor shall not only cause the land to be surveyed and platted, but shall see to it and satisfy himself that the plats correspond with the field notes, and when satisfied transmit the plats to the proper offices. (1841) 3 Op. Atty.-Gen. 697.

Survey beyond surveyor's jurisdiction.—Under the provisions of the Act of March 3, 1831, ordering the appointment of a surveyor-general of the state of Louisiana, on whom should devolve the duties in that state formerly imposed on the surveyor of lands south of Tennessee, it was held that a survey approved by the latter official, after the termination of his authority, was invalid as against a survey made by the new official. Jourdan v. Barrett, (1846) 4 How. (U. S.) 169.

Survey of land in Louisiana Purchase.—Congress, in providing for the confirmation of the title to land included in the Louisiana Purchase and held by claimants under valid French or Spanish grants, also provided that the limits of each grant should be definitely ascertained before final confirmation; and it was within the scope of the duties of the surveyor-general to make the necessary surveys for such purpose. Menard v. Massey, (1850) 8 How. (U. S.) 293; West v. Cochran, (1854) 17 How. (U. S.) 403; Maguire v. Tyler, (1869) 8 Wall. (U. S.) 650.

Resurvey by "confidential agent."—When the land department sets aside a survey because it does not conform to the decree of confirmation, and orders the surveyor-general to cause a new survey to be made, it seems that he may, under the provisions of Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 145, sec. 10, depute a "confidential agent" to make a personal examination of the land, and report upon the correctness of the survey and its conformity with the calls mentioned in the decree. U. S. v. Hancock, (1887) 30 Fed. Rep. 855.

Sec. 2224. [Seals of surveyors-general of California, Oregon, and Louisiana; transcripts from records of.] The official seals heretofore authorized to be provided for the offices of the surveyors-general of Oregon, California, and Louisiana shall continue to be used; and any copy of or extract from the plats, field-notes, records, or other papers on file in those offices, respectively, when authenticated by the seal and signature of the proper surveyor-general, shall be evidence in all cases in which the original would be evidence. [R. S.]

Authentication of records in register's office.—The records which the surveyor-general may authenticate for evidential purposes are only those on file in his office. Hence, when the register is custodian of a map, he, and not the surveyor-general, is the proper official to give a certified copy thereof. Goodwin v. McCabe, (1888) 75 Cal. 584.

Sec. 2225. [Transcripts from records of Louisiana.] Any copy of a plat of survey, or transcript from the records of the office of surveyor-general of Louisiana, duly certified by him, shall be admitted as evidence in all the courts of the United States and the Territories thereof. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1831, ch. 116, 4 Stat. L. 493.

Sec. 2226. [Clerk-hire, allowance of, to surveyors-general.] There shall be allowed for the offices of the several surveyors-general, for clerk-hire therein, such sums as may be appropriated for the purpose by Congress from year to year. [R. S.]

Sec. 2227. [Office-rent, allowance of, to surveyors-general.] There shall be allowed for office-rent, fuel, books, stationery, and other incidental expenses of the several offices of surveyors-general such sums as may be appropriated for the purpose by Congress, from year to year. [R. S.]

[SEC. 1.] [Fund available for stationery, rent, etc.] * * * That the stationery and drafting instruments hereafter purchased for exclusive use in the offices of the surveyors-general in the preparation of plats and field notes of mineral surveys, as also the rent of additional quarters that may be necessary for the execution of such work, shall be paid for out of the fund created by deposits made by individuals to the credit of the United States to cover the cost of office work on such mineral surveys. * * * [31 Stat. L. 1003.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of March 3, 1901, ch. 830.

Sec. 2228. [Duties of register and receiver performed by surveyor-general.] The President is authorized, in any case where he thinks the public interest may require it, to transfer the duties of register and receiver in any district to the surveyor-general of the surveying-district in which such land-district is located. [R. S.]

Act of May 30, 1862, ch. 86, 12 Stat. L. 410.

Sec. 2229. [Official papers, etc., in office of surveyor-general of California; copies thereof.] All official books, papers, instruments of writing, documents, archives, official seals, stamps, or dies, which have been heretofore authorized by law to be collected and deposited in the surveyor-general's office in California, shall be safely and securely kept by such surveyor-general in the archives of his office; and copies thereof, authenticated by the surveyor-general under his seal of office, shall be evidence in all cases where the originals would be evidence. [R. S.]

Act of May 18, 1858, ch. 39, 11 Stat. L. 289.

Sec. 2230. [Bond of deputy surveyor.] Every deputy-surveyor shall enter into bond, with sufficient security, for the faithful performance of all surveying contracts confided to him; and the penalty of the bond, in each case, shall be double the estimated amount of money accruing under such contracts, at the rate per mile stipulated to be paid therein. The sufficiency of the sureties to all such bonds shall be approved and certified by the proper surveyor-general. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1831, ch. 116, 4 Stat. L. 493; Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 145, 10 Stat. L. 247.

Sec. 2231. [Oath of deputy surveyor.] The surveyors-general, in addition to the oath now authorized by law to be administered to deputies on their appointment to office, shall require each of their deputies, on the return of his surveys, to take and subscribe an oath that those surveys have been faithfully and correctly executed, according to law and the instructions of the surveyor-general. [R. S.]

Act of Aug. 8, 1846, ch. 106, 9 Stat. L. 79.

Sec. 2232. [Suit on bond of deputy surveyor—lien of.] The district attorney of the United States, in whose district any false, erroneous, or fraudulent surveys have been executed, shall, upon the application of the proper surveyor-general, immediately institute suit upon the bond of such deputy; and the institution of such suit shall act as a lien upon any property owned or held by such deputy, or his sureties, at the time such suit was instituted. [R. S.]

Act of Aug. 8, 1846, ch. 106, 9 Stat. L. 79.

Sec. 2233. [Penalty for default of deputy.] In the event of the failure of a deputy in Louisiana to comply with the terms of his contract, unless such failure be satisfactorily shown by him to have arisen from causes beyond his control, he shall forfeit the penalty of his bond on due process of law, and ever afterward be debarred from receiving a contract for surveying public lands. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1831, ch. 116, 4 Stat. L. 493.

[III. REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS.]

Sec. 2234. [Appointment of registers and receivers — their duties — liability on bond.] There shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a register of the land office and a receiver of public moneys for each land district established by law, who shall have charge of and attend to the sale of public and Indian lands within their respective districts, as provided by law and official regulations, and receivers shall be accountable under their official bonds for the proceeds of such sales, and for all fees, commissions, or other moneys received by them under any provision of law or official regulation. [R. S.]

See all Acts establishing land districts.

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of Jan. 27, 1898, ch. 10, 30 Stat. L. 234. The amendment consists in the addition of all matter after the words "for each land district established by law."

"The House committee in reporting the bill, said (H. R. Rep. 132): 'Under the recent decision of the United States courts it has been held that the sureties on receivers' bonds are not liable or responsible to the United States if their principals fail to pay over or account for the proceeds of sales of Indian lands. By the passage of this bill the provisions of such bonds must cover such funds or proceeds of sales of such lands.'"

Compilers' note, 2 Supp. R. S. 725.
Sections 2234-2247 constitute chapter 2 (entitled as above) of title 32 of the Revised Statutes.

Appointment of receivers.—See further, special acts creating land districts, infra, div. IV.

When register may act by deputy.—A mere ministerial or clerical duty of a register may, as in the case of public officers generally, be performed by a deputy, but a judicial act may not. Hunter v. Hemphill, 6 Mo. 106.

Obligors strictly accountable.—The obligors on an official bond of a receiver of public moneys should be held to a strict accountability. Meads v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1897) 81 Fed. Rep. 684.

The liability of a surety is not to be extended by implication beyond the terms of his contract. His undertaking is to receive a strict interpretation and is not to extend beyond the fair scope of its terms. U. S. v. Boyd, (1841) 15 Pet. (U. S.) 187.

Departmental regulations affecting liability.—Regulations duly promulgated by the land department have the force of law, in a limited sense, especially when authorized or approved by Congress; but after a receiver has given his official bond, it is not competent to enlarge or restrict by such regulations the rights or obligations arising from the bond as determined by law at the time of its execution. Meads v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1897) 81 Fed. Rep. 684.

Liability for money collected by agent.—"If a public officer sees fit to allow the money of the government to be paid, during his absence from his office, into the hands of his agent, it is a good payment to him, and the risk is with him and his sureties and not with the government." Hence it is no defense to an action on a receiver's official bond that the moneys were paid, not to him, but to his assistant or cashier. Potter v. U. S., (1882) 107 U. S. 126.

Bond covers military bounty-land warrants.—It is the duty of a register of a land office to receive the register's fees from the locators of military bounty-land warrants, upon their being located on the public lands subject to private entry by such warrants. If the register receives such fees, his neglect and refusal to pay over to the United States the surplus beyond the compensation to which he is entitled by law is a breach of the condition of his official bond, both as respects himself and the securities on the bond, and the United States is under no necessity of proceeding against the principal on the bond by an action for money had and received, but may proceed directly on the bond. U. S. v. Bab-bitt, (1877) 95 U. S. 334.

Bond covers moneys paid by pre-emptors.—Potter v. U. S., (1882) 107 U. S. 126.

Bond covers money deposited by entrymen.—The official bond of a receiver of public moneys covers money paid to the receiver by an entryman before the final determination of his case, as money so paid is paid to the receiver as a public officer of the United States, and not as the agent of the entryman. Smith v. U. S., (1898) 170 U. S. 372; Meads v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1897) 81 Fed. Rep. 684.

Validity of bond not under seal.—Where a person, after being appointed receiver of public moneys and becoming entitled to the emoluments of that office, executed a written obligation which purported to be a bond for the faithful performance of his duties, but was without seal, it was held that the obligation was not a bond within the Act of Congress, but that it was a valid contract at common law, as it was supported by a good consideration,—the consideration being not the mere appointment to office, but the emoluments and benefits resulting from the appointment; and that inasmuch as the statute did not prescribe any precise form of bond, the instrument executed was valid and binding on the obligors. U. S. v. Linn, (1841) 15 Pet. (U. S.) 290.

Effect of prior fraud on validity of bond.

— Where the condition of the bond is prospective, the instrument is not rendered null and void in its prospective operation by fraud in respect to past transactions—such as the concealment of a former defalcation by the principal from the sureties until they had executed the bond. U. S. v. Boyd, (1847) 5 How. (U. S.) 29.

Default after expiration of term.—Under the provisions of a statute extending the tenure of office of registers and receivers, and continuing the liability of the sureties on their official bonds during the extended terms, the sureties on the bond of a receiver and register are liable for a default of their principal occurring after the expiration of his original term and before the qualification of his successor. U. S. v. Jameson, (1882) 3 McCrary (U. S.) 620.

Breach of bond after removal from office.—“There may have been no breach of the bond at the time of his removal from office, but the liability of the receiver to account remained, and the bond continued in force until he had fully accounted and thus had fulfilled all the conditions of his bond.” Smith v. U. S., (1898) 170 U. S. 372.

Conclusiveness of receiver's returns.—The returns of the receiver to the treasury department are not conclusive evidence in an action by the government against the sureties upon the receiver's official bond. If the returns show that certain sums of money were in the receiver's hands the sureties may show that such was not the case, as they cannot be concluded by a fabricated account of their principal with his creditors. U. S. v. Boyd, (1847) 5 How. (U. S.) 29.

Retrospective effect of bond.—The official bond of a receiver is prospective and not retrospective. Hence, when the bond is executed some time after the appointment of the receiver and his entry upon the discharge of his duties, the sureties can only be held accountable for moneys in the receiver's hands at the date of the bond, held by him in his official capacity in trust for the government, and not for moneys previously appropriated to his own use, notwithstanding the fact that the bond contains a recital of the date of his appointment to office. But the sureties are liable for the misappropriation of a sum of money which the receiver held in trust for the United States at the time of the execution of the bond. In such case it matters not at what time the moneys were received if after the receiver's appointment they were held by him in trust for the United States, and continued to be so held at and after the date of the bond. U. S. v. Boyd, (1841) 15 Pet. (U. S.) 187, approved in U. S. v. Boyd, (1847) 5 How. (U. S.) 29.

Liability for money seized by public enemy.—Where the condition of a receiver's bond was broken by his failure to pay into the treasury, at the time prescribed by law, the moneys collected by him, it was held that it was no defense to an action on his official bond that the money was subsequently seized by the confederate government. Bevans v. U. S., (1871) 13 Wall. (U. S.) 56.

An act for the relief of certain settlers on the public lands of the United States and to authorize the taking and filing of final proofs in certain cases.

[SEC. 1.] [Relates to pending cases.]

SEC. 2. [Vacancy in office of register or receiver—taking final proofs.] That hereafter, when a vacancy shall occur in any of the land offices of the United States by reason of the death, resignation, or removal of either the register or receiver, and the time set for taking final proof falls within the vacancy thus caused, the remaining officer may proceed to take said final proofs, in the absence of any contest or protest, reduce the same to writing, and place it on file in the office to be considered and passed upon when the vacancy is filled. [26 Stat. L. 657.]

An act relating to the disqualification of registers and receivers of the United States land offices, and making provision in case of such disqualification.

[SEC. 1.] [Disqualification of register or receiver.] That no register or receiver shall receive evidence in, hear or determine any cause pending in any district land office in which cause he is interested directly or indirectly, or has been of counsel, or where he is related to any of the parties in interest by consanguinity or affinity within the fourth degree, computing by the rules adopted by the common law. [28 Stat. L. 26.]

SEC. 2. [Duty to report disqualification — designation and powers of other officer.] That it shall be the duty of every register or receiver so disqualified to report the fact of his disqualification to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, as soon as he shall ascertain it, and before the hearing of such cause, who thereupon, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, shall designate some other register, receiver, or special agent of the Land Department to act in the place of the disqualified officer, and the same authority is conferred on the officer so designated which such register or receiver would otherwise have possessed to act in such case. [28 Stat. L. 26.]

Sec. 2235. [Residence of register and receiver.] Every register and receiver shall reside at the place where the land-office for which he is appointed is directed by law to be kept. [R. S.]

See all Acts establishing land districts.

Sec. 2236. [Bond of register and receiver.] Every register and receiver shall, before entering on the duties of his office, give bond in the penal sum of ten thousand dollars, with approved security, for the faithful discharge of his trust. [R. S.]

Act of May 10, 1800, ch. 53, 2 Stat. L. 73, 75; Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 145, 10 Stat. L. 245.

Liability on bond.—See R. S. sec. 2234, supra.

Sec. 2237. [Salaries of register and receiver.] Every register and receiver shall be allowed an annual salary of five hundred dollars. [R. S.]

Act of April 20, 1818, ch. 123, 3 Stat. L. 466; Act of May 30, 1862, ch. 86, 12 Stat. L. 409.

Implied contract to pay necessary expenses.—It was held that an implied contract existed on the part of the government to reimburse the register the amount expended by him for office rent, where it appeared that the land district was established by law, that an office within the district was required for the transaction of the business thereof and also for the keeping of the necessary papers and files, and that the amount paid for the rent was reasonable and proper. U. S. v. Swiggett, (C. C. A. 1897) 83 Fed. Rep. 97, affirming (1896) 78 Fed. Rep. 456. And see infra, R. S. 2255.

And this implied agreement to reimburse the register has been held to apply not only to money expended for office rent, but also to money expended for fuel and for janitor's services. Luse v. U. S., (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 164.

Sec. 2238. [Fees and commissions of register and receiver.] Registers and receivers, in addition to their salaries, shall be allowed each the following fees and commissions, namely:

First. A fee of one dollar for each declaratory statement filed and for services in acting on pre-emption claims.

Act of Sept. 4, 1841, ch. 16, 5 Stat. L. 456; Act of March 21, 1864, ch. 38, 13 Stat. L. 35.

Fees of ex-officio register.—Under the "Alaska Territorial Act" May 17, 1884 (23 Stat. L., p. 24, sec. 9), providing that each of the commissioners created thereunder should perform the duties of a United States commissioner, of a notary, of a justice, of a recorder of deeds, and of a register of the land office, and further providing that each commissioner should be paid commissioner's fees, justice's fees, recording fees, and a salary, it was held that it was the intention of Congress that a commissioner should not receive fees for services as register of the land office, but that the salary provided should be sufficient compensation for such services. Jewett v. U. S., (1892) 27 Ct. Cl. 519.

Second. A commission of one per centum on all moneys received at each receiver's office.

Act of April 20, 1818, ch. 123, 3 Stat. L. 466.

Third. A commission to be paid by the homestead applicant, at the time of entry, of one per centum on the cash price, as fixed by law, of the land applied for; and a like commission when the claim is finally established, and the certificate therefor issued as the basis of a patent.

Act of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, 12 Stat. L. 393; Act of March 21, 1864, ch. 38, 13 Stat. L. 35; Act of July 15, 1870, ch. 294, 16 Stat. L. 320.

Fourth. The same commission on lands entered under any law to encourage the growth of timber on western prairies, as allowed when the like quantity of land is entered with money.

Act of March 3, 1873, ch. 277, 17 Stat. L. 606.

Fifth. For locating military bounty-land warrants, issued since the eleventh day of February, eighteen hundred and forty-seven, and for locating agricultural-college land-scrip, the same commission, to be paid by the holder or assignee of each warrant or scrip, as is allowed for sales of the public lands for cash, at the rate of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.

Act of March 22, 1852, ch. 19, 10 Stat. L. 4; Act of July 2, 1862, ch. 130, 12 Stat. L. 505.

Sixth. A fee in donation cases of two dollars and fifty cents for each final certificate for one hundred and sixty acres of land, five dollars for three hundred and twenty acres, and seven dollars and fifty cents for six hundred and forty acres.

This paragraph was amended to read as above by the Act of Dec. 17, 1880, ch. 2, 21 Stat. L. 311.

It originally read as follows:

"Sixth. A fee, in donation cases, of five dollars for each final certificate for one hundred and sixty acres of land, ten dollars for three hundred and twenty acres, and fifteen dollars for six hundred and forty acres." Act of May 30, 1862, ch. 86, 12 Stat. L. 409.

Seventh. In the location of lands by States and corporations under grants from Congress for railroads and other purposes, (except for agricultural colleges,) a fee of one dollar for each final location of one hundred and sixty acres; to be paid by the State or corporation making such location.

Act of July 1, 1864, ch. 196, 13 Stat. L. 335.

Eighth. A fee of five dollars per diem for superintending public-land sales at their respective offices; and, to each receiver, mileage in going to and returning from depositing the public moneys received by him.

Act of April 24, 1820, ch. 51, 3 Stat. L. 567.

district attorneys, and clerks. See PUBLIC OFFICERS.

Mileage abolished, except as to marshals,

Ninth. A fee of five dollars for filing and acting upon each application for patent or adverse claim filed for mineral lands, to be paid by the respective parties.

Act of May 10, 1872, ch. 152, 17 Stat. L. 95.

Tenth. Registers and receivers are allowed, jointly, at the rate of fifteen cents per hundred words for testimony reduced by them to writing for claimants, in establishing pre-emption and homestead rights.

Act of March 21, 1864, ch. 38, 13 Stat. L. 35.

Eleventh. A like fee as provided in the preceding subdivision when such writing is done in the land-office, in establishing claims for mineral lands.

Act of May 10, 1872, ch. 152, 17 Stat. L. 95.

Twelfth. Registers and receivers in California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Colorado, Idaho, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Wyoming, and Montana, are each entitled to collect and receive fifty per centum on the fees and commissions provided for in the first, third, and tenth subdivisions of this section. [R. S.]

Act of March 21, 1864, ch. 38, 13 Stat. L. 36.

Sec. 2239. [Fees of register and receiver for consolidated land offices.]

The register for any consolidated land-district, in addition to the fees now allowed by law, shall be entitled to charge and receive for making transcripts for individuals, or furnishing any other record information respecting public lands or land-titles in his consolidated land-district, such fees as are properly authorized by the tariff existing in the local courts of his district; and the receiver shall receive his equal share of such fees, and it shall be his duty to aid the register in the preparation of the transcripts, or giving the desired record information. [R. S.]

Act of Feb. 18, 1861, ch. 38, 12 Stat. L. 131.

Sec. 2240. [Maximum of compensation for registers and receivers.] The compensation of registers and receivers, including salary, fees, and commissions, shall in no case exceed in the aggregate three thousand dollars a year, each; and no register or receiver shall receive for any one quarter or fractional quarter more than a pro-rata allowance of such maximum. [R. S.]

Act of April 20, 1818, ch. 123, 3 Stat. L. 466; Act of March 22, 1852, ch. 19, 10 Stat. L. 4; Act of Feb. 2, 1859, ch. 19, 11 Stat. L. 378; Act of Feb. 18, 1861, ch. 38, 12 Stat. L. 131; Act of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, 12 Stat. L. 393; Act of May 30, 1862, ch. 86, 12 Stat. L. 409; Act of July 2, 1862, ch. 130, 12 Stat. L. 505; Act of March 21, 1864, ch. 38, 13 Stat. L. 36; Act of July 1, 1864, ch. 196, 13 Stat. L. 335.

See, however, following text.

Compensation is for fiscal year.—The fiscal year, not the calendar year, is the basis of time for computing the compensation of a register or receiver. Hence a register cannot claim that his compensation should be calculated on the basis of the calendar year, from the date of his entry on the discharge of his duties, for the purpose of avoiding the deduction from his quarterly earnings of the excess over the pro rata allowance of maximum compensation. Sweet v. U. S., (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 377. Compare U. S. v. Dickson, (1841) 15 Pet. (U. S.) 141.

Extra compensation for clerk hire.—Under the Act of April 20, 1818, which provided that receivers of public moneys should receive an annual salary of five hundred dollars each and a commission of one per cent. on the moneys received, as compensation for clerk hire, receiving, safe-keeping, and transmitting such moneys to the treasurer of the United States, and that the whole amount which any receiver should receive for any one year should not exceed the sum of $3,000, it was held that clerk hire was a charge upon the commissions and could not be allowed as an extra charge by the commissioner of the general land office. (1846) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 467.

Compensation for services beyond scope of duty.—Where a receiver of public moneys was also appointed as special receiver to assist in the disposition of Indian trust lands, which were never public lands of the United States, it was held that he was entitled to commissions on the sale of the Indian trust lands, though such commissions increased his compensation to a sum greater than the maximum amount prescribed by law for his services as receiver, as it was no part of his official duty as receiver to sell the Indian trust lands, or receive the payments therefor. In deciding the question the court said: "The duties to be performed were of a different character and at a different place from those of the land office, and while the exact amount of compensation for this service was not fixed, it was clearly to be inferred that such compensation as the law implies where labor is performed by one at the request of another, that is to say, a reasonable compensation, would be paid." U. S. v. Brindle, (1884) 110 U. S. 688.

Fees or commissions for military bounty lands.—The fees or commissions received by a register or receiver on account of military bounty lands, ought to be included in reckoning his compensation. Hence a register or receiver is not entitled to retain such fees or commissions when so doing would make the aggregate amount of his compensation exceed the sum prescribed by the statute. U. S. v. Babbit, (1861) 1 Black (U. S.) 55, (1877) 95 U. S. 334; U. S. v. Brindle, (1884) 110 U. S. 688.

And under the Act of March 22, 1852, sec. 3 (10 Stat. L., p. 4, sec. 4), providing that registers and receivers, whether in or out of office at the date of the passage of the Act, should be entitled to receive compensation for services theretofore performed in locating military bounty land warrants, subject to the proviso, however, that no register or receiver should receive for his services during any year a greater compensation than the maximum amount allowed by law, it was held that the proviso referred to was not limited in its effect to the section where it was found, but that it was affirmed by Congress as an independent proposition and applied alike to all registers and receivers, and that therefore the limitation as to the maximum amount of compensation applied not only to the persons then in office and their predecessors, but also to their successors in office. U. S. v. Babbit, (1861) 1 Black (U. S.) 55.

As to prorating commissions, under the provisions of the Act of April 20, 1818, ch. 123, see U. S. v. Dickson, (1841) 15 Pet. (U. S.) 141; U. S. v. Edwards, (1839) 1 McLean (U. S.) 467, 25 Fed. Cas. No. 15,026; U. S. v. McCarty, (1838) 1 McLean (U. S.) 306, 26 Fed. Cas. No. 15,657.

Sec. 2241. [Excess of compensation to be paid in Treasury.] Whenever the amount of compensation received at any land-office exceeds the maximum allowed by law to any register or receiver, the excess shall be paid into the Treasury, as other public moneys. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 97, 10 Stat. L. 204; Act of Feb. 18, 1861, ch. 38, 12 Stat. L. 131.

An act in relation to certain fees allowed registers and receivers.

[SEC. 1.] [Superseded.]

This section was as follows:

"That the fees allowed registers and receivers for testimony reduced by them to writing for claimants, in establishing pre-emption and homestead rights and mineral entries, and in contested cases, shall not be considered or taken into account in determining the maximum of compensation of said officers." [22 Stat. L. 484.]

It was superseded by the provisions of the Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 362, given infra.

SEC. 2. [Plats of townships to be made for private parties and fees therefor.] That registers and receivers shall, upon application, furnish plats or diagrams of townships in their respective districts showing what lands are vacant and what lands are taken, and shall be allowed to receive compensation therefor from the party obtaining said plat or diagram at such rates as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and said officers shall, upon application by the proper State or Territorial authorities, furnish, for the purpose of taxation, a list of all lands sold in their respective districts, together with the names of the purchasers, and shall be allowed to receive compensation for the same not to exceed ten cents per entry; and the sums thus received for plats and lists shall not be considered or taken into account in determining the maximum of compensation of said officers. [22 Stat. L. 484.]

The latter portion of the section is superseded by the provisions of the following Act.

[Excess of fees over $3,000 to be covered into Treasury.] * * * And hereafter all fees collected by registers or receivers, from any source whatever, which would increase their salaries beyond three thousand dollars each a year, shall be covered into the Treasury, except only so much as may be necessary to pay the actual cost of clerical services employed exclusively in contested cases; and they shall make report quarterly, under oath, of all expenditures for such clerical services, with vouchers therefor. * * * [24 Stat. L. 526.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 362.

Sec. 2242. [Illegal fees — penalty.] No register or receiver shall receive any compensation out of the Treasury for past services who has charged or received illegal fees; and, on satisfactory proof that either of such officers has charged or received fees or other rewards not authorized by law, he shall be forthwith removed from office. [R. S.]

Act of March 22, 1852, ch. 19, 10 Stat. L. 4; Act of July 17, 1854, ch. 84, 10 Stat. L. 306.

Sec. 2243. [Compensation of registers and receivers, when to commence.] The compensation of registers and receivers, both for salary and commissions, shall commence and be calculated from the time they, respectively, enter on the discharge of their duties. [R. S.]

Act of Feb. 24, 1855, ch. 124, 10 Stat. L. 615.

Duties performed before opening of office. — "Doing that which it is necessary to do, in order that a newly created land office may be in a proper and fit condition at the time appointed for opening it for the transaction of public business, is * * * a part of the official duties of the person who is appointed to the office." Hence, a person appointed register and receiver of a newly created land office is entitled to compensation from the time he entered on the performance of such duties and not from the time of the actual opening of the office for the transaction of public business. And the right to salary may commence before it is possible for the register and receiver to earn commissions. U. S. v. Delaney, (1896) 164 U. S. 232, affirming (1895) 31 Ct. Cl. 44.

Sec. 2244. [Duration of office of registers and receivers.] All registers and receivers shall be appointed for the term of four years, but shall be removable at pleasure. [R. S.]

Act of May 15, 1820, ch. 102, 3 Stat. L. 582.

Sec. 2245. [Monthly and quarterly returns of receivers.] The receivers shall make to the Secretary of the Treasury monthly returns of the moneys received in their several offices, and pay over such money pursuant to his instructions. And they shall also make to the Commissioner of the General Land-Office like monthly returns, and transmit to him quarterly accounts-current of the debits and credits of their several offices with the United States. [R. S.]

Act of July 4, 1836, ch. 352, 5 Stat. L. 111.

Sec. 2246. [Oaths administered by registers and receivers.] The register or receiver is authorized, and it shall be their duty, to administer any oath required by law or the instructions of the General Land-Office, in connection with the entry or purchase of any tract of the public lands; but he shall not charge or receive, directly or indirectly, any compensation for administering such oath. [R. S.]

Act of June 12, 1840, ch. 35, 5 Stat. L. 384.

A prosecution for perjury may be maintained for the making of a false oath before a register or receiver, in regard to a homestead entry. Caha v. U. S., (1894) 152 U. S. 211; Peters v. U. S., (1894) 2 Okla. 116.

But it was held that perjury could not be predicated of an oath made in pursuance of a regulation, established by the commissioner of the general land office, requiring holders of land warrants to make affidavit that there was no settlement on the land intended to be located, as the regulation was inconsistent with the Act of Feb. 11, 1847, (9 U. S. Stat. at L., p. 125), authorizing the location, and was therefore void. (1852) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 609.

Sec. 2247. [Penalty for false information by register.] If any person applies to any register to enter any land whatever, and the register knowingly and falsely informs the person so applying that the same has already been entered, and refuses to permit the person so applying to enter the same, such register shall be liable therefor to the person so applying, for five dollars for each acre of land which the person so applying offered to enter, to be recovered by action of debt in any court of record having jurisdiction of the amount. [R. S.]

Act of July 4, 1836, ch. 352, 5 Stat. L. 112.

[SEC. 1.] [Authorization of expenditures.] * * * That no expenses chargeable to the Government shall be incurred by registers and receivers in the conduct of local land offices, except upon previous specific authorization by the Commissioner of the General Land Office. * * * [31 Stat. L. 613.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of June 6, 1900, ch. 791. The provision is repeated in the Acts of March 3, 1901, ch. 831, 31 Stat. L. 1036, March 3, 1901,

[IV. LAND DISTRICTS—GENERAL PROVISIONS RESPECTING CERTAIN LANDS.]

Sec. 2248. [When land office may be discontinued by Secretary of the Interior.] Whenever the quantity of public land remaining unsold in any land-district is reduced to a number of acres less than one hundred thousand, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to discontinue the land-office of such district; and if any land in any such district remains unsold at the time of the discontinuance of a land-office, the same shall be subject to sale at some one of the existing land-offices most convenient to the district in which the land-office has been discontinued, of which the Secretary of the Interior shall give notice. [R. S.]

Act of June 12, 1840, ch. 36, 5 Stat. L. 385.

Secs. 2248-2256 constitute ch. 3, entitled "Land Districts" of title 32 of the Revised Statutes.

Extension of term of office.—Where a land office was about to be discontinued because of the reduction of the quantity of unsold land to less than one hundred thousand acres, and Congress passed an Act continuing the register and receiver in office until they could perform certain duties, but the Act, while limiting the time for the performance of the duties, fixed no limit upon the term of service of the officers whose tenure was thus extended, it was held that their official existence ceased on the date limited for the performance of the duties provided for by the Act. (1855) 7 Op. Atty.-Gen. 448.

Sec. 2249. [When land office may be continued by Secretary of the Interior.] The Secretary of the Interior may continue any land-district in which is situated the seat of government of any one of the States, and may continue the land-office in such district, notwithstanding the quantity of land unsold in such district may not amount to one hundred thousand acres, when, in his opinion, such continuance is required by public convenience, or in order to close the land-system in such State. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 4, 1841, ch. 16, 5 Stat. L. 455.

Sec. 2250. [When land office may be annexed to adjacent district by the President.] Whenever the cost of collecting the revenue from the sales of the public lands in any land-district is as much as one-third of the whole amount of revenue collected in such district, it may be lawful for the President, if, in his opinion, not incompatible with the public interest, to discontinue the land-office in such district, and to annex the same to some other adjoining land-district. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 97, 10 Stat. L. 189, 194.

Sec. 2251. [Change of location of land office by the President.] The President is authorized to change the location of the land-offices in the several land-districts established by law, and to relocate the same from time to time at such point in the district as he deems expedient. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 97, 10 Stat. L. 204; Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 144, 10 Stat. L. 244.

Sec. 2252. [Discontinuance of land offices by the President.] Upon the recommendation of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, approved by the Secretary of the Interior, the President may order the discontinuance of any land-office and the transfer of any of its business and archives to any other land-office within the same State or Territory. [R. S.]

Act of May 30, 1862, ch. 86, 12 Stat. L. 409.

Sec. 2343. [Additional land districts and officers, power of the President to provide.] The President is authorized to establish additional land-districts, and to appoint the necessary officers under existing laws, wherever he may deem the same necessary for the public convenience in executing the provisions of this chapter. This section is from chapter 6, entitled

Sec. 2253. [Change of boundaries of land districts by the President.] The President is authorized to change and re-establish the boundaries of land-districts whenever, in his opinion, the public interests will be subserved thereby, without authority to increase the number of land-offices or land-districts. [R. S.]

Act of June 29, 1870, ch. 171, 16 Stat. L. 171.

Sec. 2254. [Business of original district in case of change of boundaries.] In case of the division of existing land-districts by the erection of new ones, or by a change of boundaries by the President, all business in such original districts shall be entertained and transacted without prejudice or change, until the offices in the new districts are duly opened by public announcement under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior. All sales or disposals of the public lands heretofore regularly made at any land-office, after such lands have been made part of another district by any act of Congress, or by any act of the President, are confirmed, provided the same are free from conflict with prior valid rights. [R. S.]

Act of May 31, 1872, ch. 241, 17 Stat. L. 192.

[Sec. 1.] [Consolidation of land offices.] * * * And it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to consolidate the district land offices where practicable and consistent with the public interests. * * * [27 Stat. L. 368.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of Aug. 5, 1892, ch. 380.

[Consolidation of land offices.] * * * SALARIES AND COMMISSIONS OF REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS: For salaries and commissions of registers of land offices and receivers of public moneys at district land offices, at not exceeding three thousand dollars each, five hundred and twenty thousand dollars.

And it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to consolidate the district land offices so as to bring their total compensation for the fiscal year eighteen hundred and ninety-four within this appropriation. * * * [27 Stat. L. 591.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1893, ch. 208.

Sec. 2255. [Allowance of office-rent and clerk-hire for consolidated land offices.] The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to make a reasonable allowance for office-rent for each consolidated land-office; and when satisfied of the necessity therefor, to approve the employment by the register of one or more clerks, at a reasonable per-diem compensation, for such time as such clerical force is absolutely required to keep up the current public business, which clerical force shall be paid out of the surplus fees authorized to be charged by section twenty-two hundred and thirty-nine, if any, and if no surplus exists, then out of the appropriation for incidental expenses of district land-offices; but no clerk shall be so paid unless his employment has been first sanctioned by the Secretary of the Interior. [R. S.]

Act of Feb. 18, 1861, ch. 38, 12 Stat. L. 131.
Statute directory, not mandatory. — "The language of section 2255 is merely an authority to the secretary of the interior to allow for office rent for a consolidated land office. To what extent he should exercise that authority is left for him to determine, in view of the circumstances of each case and of the state of the appropriation for incidental expenses; and no right can exist in any land officer to demand payment by the department of rent paid out by him, unless the payment of such rent had been previously authorized by the secretary." Bane v. U. S., (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 644.

[SEC. 1.] [Entry of land in states where there are no land offices.] That public lands situated in States in which there are no land offices may be entered at the General Land Office, subject to the provisions of law touching the entry of public lands; and that the necessary proofs and affidavits required in such cases may be made before some officer competent to administer oaths, whose official character shall be duly certified by the clerk of a court of record; and moneys received by the Commissioner of the General Land Office for lands entered by cash entry shall be covered into the Treasury. * * * [19 Stat. L. 315.]

This is from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 102. This paragraph is repeated in the Act of June 19, 1878, ch. 329, sec. 2, 20 Stat. L. 201.

[26 Stat. L. 61.]

[V. PRE-EMPTIONS.]

Secs. 2257-2274. [Repealed.]

Sections 2257-2288 constitute chapter 4 (entitled as above) of title 32 of the Revised Statutes. This chapter, with the exception of sections 2275, 2276, 2286, was expressly repealed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 4. Section 2288 was, however, expressly amended by such Act, and is given infra, div. XIX.

Sections 2257-2274 were as follows:

"SEC. 2257. [Lands subject to pre-emption.] All lands belonging to the United States, to which the Indian title has been or may hereafter be extinguished, shall be subject to the right of pre-emption, under the conditions, restrictions, and stipulations provided by law." "SEC. 2262. [Oath of pre-emptionist, where filed, penalty.] Before any person claiming the benefit of this chapter is allowed to enter lands, he shall make oath before the receiver or register of the land-district in which the land is situated that he has never had the benefit of any right of pre-emption under section twenty-two hundred and fifty-nine; that he is not the owner of three hundred and twenty acres of land in any State or Territory; that he has not settled upon and improved such land to sell the same on speculation, but in good faith to appropriate it to his own exclusive use; and that he has not, directly or indirectly, made any agreement or contract, in any way or manner, with any person whatsoever, by which the title which he might acquire from the Government of the United States should inure in whole or in part to the benefit of any person except himself; and if any person taking such oath swears falsely in the premises, he shall forfeit the money which he may have paid for such land, and all right and title to the same; and any grant or conveyance which he may have made, except in the hands of bona-fide purchasers, for a valuable consideration, shall be null and void, except as provided in section twenty-two hundred and eighty-eight. And it shall be the duty of the officer administering such oath to file a certificate thereof in the public land-office of such district, and to transmit a duplicate copy to the General Land-Office, either of which shall be good and sufficient evidence that such oath was administered according to law." Act of Sept. 4, 1841, ch. 16, 5 Stat. L. 456.

SEC. 4. [Pre-emption laws repealed — exceptions — saving clause.] That chapter four of title thirty-two, excepting sections twenty-two hundred and seventy-five, twenty-two hundred and seventy-six, twenty-two hundred and eighty-six, of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and all other laws allowing pre-emption of the public lands of the United States, are hereby repealed, but all bona fide claims lawfully initiated before the passage of this act, under any of said provisions of law so repealed, may be perfected upon due compliance with law, in the same manner, upon the same terms and conditions, and subject to the same limitations, forfeitures, and contests, as if this act had not been passed. [26 Stat. L. 1097.]

R. S. secs. 2257-2274, 2277-2285, 2287, 2288. Sec. 2288 is, however, amended by sec. 3 of the same Act, and is set out, infra, div. XIX.

[VI. HOMESTEADS.]

Sec. 2289. [Who may enter certain unappropriated public lands.] Every person who is the head of a family, or who has arrived at the age of twenty-one years, and is a citizen of the United States, or who has filed his declaration of intention to become such, as required by the naturalization laws, shall be entitled to enter one-quarter section, or a less quantity, of unappropriated public lands, to be located in a body in conformity to the legal subdivisions of the public lands; but no person who is the proprietor of more than one hundred and sixty acres of land in any State or Territory, shall acquire any right under the homestead law. And every person owning and residing on land may, under the provisions of this section, enter other land lying contiguous to his land, which shall not, with the land so already owned and occupied, exceed in the aggregate one hundred and sixty acres. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 5, 26 Stat. L. 1097.

The section originally was as follows:

"SEC. 2280. Every person who is the head of a family, or who has arrived at the age of twenty-one years, and is a citizen of the United States, or who has filed his declaration of intention to become such, as required by the naturalization laws, shall be entitled to enter one quarter-section or a less quantity of unappropriated public lands, upon which such person may have filed a pre-emption claim, or which may, at the time the application is made, be subject to pre-emption at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre; or eighty acres or less of such unappropriated lands, at two dollars and fifty cents per acre, to be located in a body, in conformity to the legal subdivisions of the public lands, and after the same have been surveyed. And every person owning and residing on land may, under the provisions of this section, enter other land lying contiguous to his land, which shall not, with the land so already owned and occupied, exceed in the aggregate one hundred and sixty acres." Act of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, 12 Stat. L. 392.

Sections 2289-2317 constitute chapter 5 (entitled as above) of title 32 of the Revised Statutes.

Limit of amount of lands that may be entered. See Act of Aug. 30, 1890, ch. 837, infra, p. 313.

Indians entitled to benefit of homestead laws. See R. S. sec. 2310 et seq., infra, p. 328.

Homestead entry defined.—"A 'homestead entry' is an entry under the provisions of the Act of Congress entitled 'an act to secure homesteads to actual settlers upon the public domain,' approved May 20, 1862 (12 Stat. 392, ch. 75), and the various amendments and additions thereto." Hartman v. Warren, (C. C. A. 1896) 76 Fed. Rep. 157.

"The policy of the Homestead Act, no less than the specific statement in the final oath, looks to a holding for a term of years by an actual settler with a view to acquiring a home for himself. In encouragement of such settlers and none others homesteads have been freely granted by the government." Adams v. Church, (1904) 193 U. S. 510. See also Moss v. Dowman, (1900) 176 U. S. 413.

A homestead claim is initiated by an entry of the land, which is effected by making an application at the proper land office, filing the affidavit and paying the amount required by sections 2238 and 2290 of the U. S. Revised Statutes. Sturr v. Beck, (1890) 133 U. S. 541.

The right of homestead entry is a right secured by the Constitution and laws of the United States within the meaning of U. S. R. S. 5508, providing a penalty for conspiracy to injure, prevent, or hinder citizens from enjoying rights or privileges secured to them by the Constitution or laws of the United States. Hence a conspiracy to deprive a citizen of the right to establish his claim to certain public lands under the Homestead Act is a penal offense. The right invaded by such conspiracy is not the mere right of immunity from personal violence, but is the right to remain on the land entered in order to perform the requirements of the Act of Congress and to perfect the incipient title created by the entry. U. S. v. Waddell, (1884) 112 U. S. 76. See also U. S. v. Waddell, (1883) 16 Fed. Rep. 221.

Requisites to valid entry.—"Under the Homestead Law three things are needed to be done in order to constitute an entry on public lands: First, the applicant must make an affidavit setting forth the facts which entitle him to make such an entry; second, he must make a formal application; and third, he must make payment of the money required. When these three requisites are complied with, and the certificate of entry is executed and delivered to him, the entry is made—the land is entered. If either one of these integral parts of an entry is defective, that is, if the affidavit be insufficient in its showing, or if the application itself is informal, or if the payment is not made in actual cash, the register and receiver are justified in rejecting the application. But if, notwithstanding these defects, the application is allowed by the land officers, and a certificate of entry is delivered to the applicant, and the entry is made of record, such entry may be afterwards canceled on account of these defects by the commissioner, or on appeal by the secretary of the interior; or, as is often the practice, the entry may be suspended, a hearing ordered and the party notified to show by supplemental proof a full compliance with the requirements of the department; and on failure to do so the entry may then be canceled. But these defects, whether they be of form or substance, by no means render the entry absolutely a nullity. So long as it remains a subsisting entry of record, whose legality has been passed upon by the land authorities, and their action remains unreversed, it is such an appropriation of the tract as segregates it from the public domain, and therefore precludes it from subsequent grants." Hastings, etc., R. Co. v. Whitney, (1889) 132 U. S. 357, affirming (1886) 34 Minn. 538.

It is just as essential to the issuance of a patent to a homestead or to the perfect right to demand a patent that the affidavit required by the U. S. Rev. Stat. sec. 2290 should at some time be made and that the sum of money prescribed by that section should be paid, as that the would-be entryman should comply with statutory requirements as to occupation, cultivation, and the like. Black v. Jackson, (1900) 177 U. S. 349; Higgins v. State University, (1891) 94 Ala. 380; Stewart v. Altstock, (1892) 22 Oregon 182.

Homestead is for benefit of family and not individual.—A homestead can be entered under the homestead laws of the United States only by the "head of a family," which shows that the homestead entry is for the benefit of the whole family, and not for any single individual. The homestead under such laws is virtually a gift or donation by the general government to the family; and hence, when the title to such homestead is taken in the name of any single member of the family, there should not be much consideration required to vest the title to a fair proportion thereof in another member of the family. Newkirk v. Marshall, (1886) 35 Kan. 77.

Vested rights conferred by preliminary entry.—A settler who has entered public lands of the United States under provisions of the Homestead Law, has, although no patent has been issued, an inchoate title to the land, which is property. This is a vested right which can only be defeated by his own failure to comply with the conditions of the law. If he complies with these conditions, he becomes invested with full ownership and the absolute right to a patent, which, when issued, relates back to the time of the entry, and under the Act of May 14, 1880, 21 U. S. Stat. L. 140, his right under the entry relates back to the date of the settlement. Hence, as against such a homestead entryman, a railroad company has no right of way under the provisions of a statute granting it right of way over public lands, unless such right was acquired by compliance with the provisions of the statute before the date of the entryman's settlement. Red River, etc., R. Co. v. Sture, (1884) 32 Minn. 95. See also Nelson v. Northern Pac. R. Co., (1903) 188 U. S. 108. Compare Flint, etc., R. Co. v. Gordon, (1879) 41 Mich. 420, which, while conceding that a patent when issued relates back to the time of the entry, holds that a homestead entry vests no title but merely gives the entryman a right of possession which may be perfected by continued occupancy and improvement of the land, and that a right of way perfected by a railway under R. S. sec. 2477 cannot be defeated by mere relation back from a homesteader's subsequent patent to the time of his antecedent entry on the land. The latter case, however, holds that the entryman is entitled to compensation for improvements made by him on the land appropriated by the railway.

In Norton v. Evans, (C. C. A. 1897) 82 Fed. Rep. 804, it is said that the preliminary entry creates no vested rights as against the United States and does not interfere with the power of Congress to dispose of the land by subsequent legislation. It is believed, however, that this statement is not strictly accurate and that by making a valid entry in the manner prescribed by this section, the entryman acquires a right in the land which can be defeated only by his failure to comply with the requirements of the statute, as, while the title to the land remains in the United States until the issuance of the patent, it is subject to divestiture on the making of the final proof required by the statute. In other words, the right which an entryman acquires by his entry is absolute as against third persons. As to the government such right is only conditional and inchoate, but becomes perfect when he performs all of the conditions and complies with all the requirements of the statute. Shiver v. U. S., (1895) 159 U. S. 491. And see opinion of Atty.-Gen. MacVeagh, 1 Copp. Pub. Land Laws 1882, p. 388, quoted with approval in U. S. v. Turner, (1892) 54 Fed. Rep. 228.

Who may enter homestead.—"It is not to every person indiscriminately that the privileges of the Homestead Act are extended. It is confined to any person who is the head of a family, or who has arrived at the age of twenty-one years and is a citizen of the United States, or who has filed his intention to become such as required by the naturalization laws; or he must be a person owning and residing on land who is allowed to enter other land lying contiguous to his land, which shall not, with the land so already owned and occupied, exceed in the aggregate one hundred and sixty acres." Stewart v. Altstock, (1892) 22 Oregon 182.

A corporation is not capable of making a homestead entry, as it is not a citizen of the United States within the meaning of the Homestead Law, nor can a corporation acquire public land by means of an agreement with an individual whereby the latter agrees to make the homestead entry and transfer his interest to the corporation after his title has been perfected. Pacific Livestock Co. v. Gentry, (1901) 38 Oregon 275.

Right of pre-emptor to make homestead entry.—A person who makes a pre-emption entry of eighty acres of public land and claims the same under the pre-emption law cannot, before final proof, claim another eighty acres under a homestead entry, as residence is essential under both the homestead and pre-emption law. Ard v. Brandon, (1890) 43 Kan. 425.

Waiver of alienage by United States.—"In the absence of any adverse claim, the sale of land, under section 2301 of the Revised Statutes, to one who has declared his intention to become a citizen, is a waiver of any objection on the part of the United States that the purchaser was an alien when he made his application under section 2289, and the commissioner of the general land office cannot subsequently retract that waiver and forfeit the right to the land on account of that objection." Bogan v. Edinburgh American Land Mortg. Co., (C. C. A. 1894) 63 Fed. Rep. 192.

Homestead only in land subject to pre-emption.—Before the repeal of the statutes in regard to the pre-emption of public lands, it was held that no land was subject to entry as a homestead unless it was subject to pre-emption. U. S. v. Reed, (1886) 28 Fed. Rep. 482.

Land covered by pre-emption entry is not subject to homestead entry.—Merriam v. Bachioni, (1896) 112 Cal. 191.

Lands containing known salines or mines.—No lands on which are situated any known salines or mines are subject to homestead entry. U. S. v. Reed, (1886) 28 Fed. Rep. 482.

A patent issued on a homestead entry for land on which any known salines or mines are situated, is void. Morton v. Nebraska, (1874) 21 Wall. (U. S.) 660.

And a suit in equity may be maintained by the United States to cancel such a patent. McLaughlin v. U. S., (1882) 107 U. S. 526.

Lands to which the Indian title has not been extinguished are not subject to homestead entry, as they have never become part of the public domain. U. S. v. La Chappelle, (1897) 81 Fed. Rep. 152; King v. McAndrews, (C. C. A. 1901) 111 Fed. Rep. 860, (1900) 104 Fed. Rep. 430.

The fact that land is such as might be acquired under the Timber Act (Act of June 3, 1878, 20 Stat. L. 89) ought not to preclude any person from acquiring title thereto under the Homestead Law, provided he makes his entry before any other person applies to purchase under the Timber Act. Johnson v. Bridal Veil Lumbering Co., (1893) 24 Oregon 182, citing 4 Dec. Dept. Int. 441, 6 Dec. Dept. Int. 288.

Lands appropriated to other uses by the United States are not subject to homestead entry. Stewart v. Altstock, (1892) 22 Oregon 182.

The fact that the title to land is in the United States, does not necessarily make it a part of that public domain which is subject to homestead settlement, as the statute is explicit that any lands which have been reserved by any treaty, law, or proclamation of the President, are not part of the public lands of the United States, so far as homestead entry is concerned, so long as such reservation continues. U. S. v. Payne, (1881) 8 Fed. Rep. 883.

Patent for land reserved is invalid.—"When by Act of Congress a tract of land has been reserved from homestead and pre-emption, or dedicated to any special purpose, proceedings in the land department in defiance of such reservation or dedication, although culminating in a patent, transfer no title, and may be challenged in an action at law. In other words, the action of the land department cannot override the expressed will of Congress, or convey away public lands in disregard or defiance thereof." Hence a decision of the land department of the United States that lands homesteaded were not at the time of entry within the limits of any city but were subject to homestead, is not conclusive upon the courts. Burfenning v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., (1896) 163 U. S. 321.

What is not withdrawal from entry.—Under the Act of Congress of July 2, 1864 (13 Stat. L. 365), granting public lands to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, whenever a plat of the general route of the road shall have been filed in the office of the commissioner of the general land office, section 6 of which Act provides that the lands thereby granted "shall not be liable to sale, or entry, or pre-emption before or after they are surveyed, except by said company," the Act, and the order of the commissioner of the general land office declaring that the company had duly filed such map showing its general route through certain public lands, and withdrawing from sale or entry all the odd-numbered sections falling within the forty-mile limit of the land grant along said line, does not constitute a withdrawal from sale or entry from that date so that they are not subject to homestead entry by a homestead claimant who settled on a portion thereof prior to the definite location of the line of road. Nelson v. Northern Pac. R. Co., (1903) 188 U. S. 108; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. McCormick, (1898) 89 Fed. Rep. 659. See also Oregon, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1903) 189 U. S. 103. Contra, Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Nelson, (1900) 22 Wash. 521.

The word "entry" covers homestead applications.—The Act of July 2, 1864, authorizing the withdrawal from sale or entry of certain public lands along the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad, excludes such lands from the operation of the Homestead Law, as the word "entry" covers homestead applications. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Nelson, (1900) 22 Wash. 521.

Homestead in land along line of railroad.—In fixing the ordinary price of public lands at $1.25 per acre, and the price for alternate reserved lands along the line of railroads at $2.50 per acre, and providing that only 80 acres of the alternate reserved lands might be homesteaded as against 160 acres of ordinary public lands, Congress in no manner limited the right of homestead, but simply declared that the alternate reserved lands should be considered as worth $2.50 per acre instead of $1.25, the ordinary price of public lands. All appropriations by individuals were based upon that valuation, but the right to appropriate was in no manner changed. The reason for the difference in price is that railroads ordinarily enhance the value of contiguous lands, and when Congress granted only the odd sections in aid of their construction, it believed that such construction would make the even and reserved sections of at least double value. U. S. v. Ingram, (1899) 172 U. S. 327.

Entry cannot be made on land in actual possession of another, even though the entry is accomplished without the use of force, but this rule does not apply where the first party has a mere constructive possession. Goodwin v. McCabe, (1888) 75 Cal. 584.

And an entryman who goes peaceably upon a portion of the tract entered as a homestead entry on the whole tract, notwithstanding the law has the right to make his homestead entry on the whole tract, notwithstanding the fact that the greater portion of it is in the possession of a mere naked trespasser who has placed the portion of which he holds possession within an unauthorized enclosure. Whitaker v. Pendola, (1889) 78 Cal. 296.

Quantity of land which one person may enter.—An entire section cannot be entered as a homestead by one person, the maximum quantity which one person may homestead being one hundred and sixty acres. U. S. v. Payne, (1881) 8 Fed. Rep. 883.

But the custom of the land department to allow the entry of a technical quarter section to be made under the provision of the homestead laws, regardless of its actual area, the claimant being required to purchase any excess over the one hundred and sixty acres allowed by law as a homestead, at the rate provided by law, is not erroneous. Tictin v. U. S., (1900) 36 Ct. Cl. 1.

Sufficiency of residence question of fact.—Where a landowner sought to enter certain contiguous land as a homestead, and the secretary of the interior, on appeal, decided that he had not maintained the residence on the original farm required by the statute, it was held that the question of residence was one of fact, and that the court had no jurisdiction to review the secretary's decision thereon, in the absence of a clear showing that the decision was procured by fraud or imposition; and this, too, in spite of the facts that the landowner's ownership and title of the original land were sufficient to entitle him to an additional farm homestead, and the secretary erred as a matter of law in his conclusions in regard thereto. Stewart v. McHarry, (1895) 159 U. S. 643; McHarry v. Stewart, (Cal. 1893) 35 Pac. Rep. 141.

A residence for voting purposes in another precinct than that in which the land located is situated, precludes an entryman from claiming residence at the same time on the land for homestead purposes. Small v. Rakestraw, (1903) 28 Mont. 413.

Mistake as to location of house.—Where the house in which a homestead claimant was living at the date of the homestead entry, was not on the land entered but was a short distance therefrom, but the entryman believed at the time of the entry that his house was on the land entered, and the mistake in the location thereof was corrected by him by the removal of his actual residence to the land covered by the entry as soon as its true boundaries were discovered, it was held that the original homestead entry was valid. Wormouth v. Gardner, (1894) 105 Cal. 149.

Homestead entry severs land from public domain.—A homestead entry which is prima facie valid removes the land, temporarily at least, out of the public domain and beyond the reach of other homestead entries or subsequent grant by Congress. Hastings, etc., R. Co. v. Whitney, (1889) 132 U. S. 357, affirming (1886) 34 Minn. 540; Hodges v. Colcord, (1904) 193 U. S. 192; U. S. v. Turner, (1892) 54 Fed. Rep. 228; Sproat v. Durland, (1894) 2 Okla. 24.

Though the entry is ineffectual to vest any rights in the entryman and therefore is void as to him, it is effectual to prevent the acquisition of homestead rights by another until it has been set aside. Hence, one who institutes a contest and obtains a relinquishment of the original entryman's right is entitled to a patent to the land as against another who attempts to enter on the ground that the original entry was void. Hodges v. Colcord, (1904) 193 U. S. 192.

A homestead entryman is entitled to possession of the land entered as against any one who cannot show such a standing in the land department as will entitle him to an equal right. U. S. v. Turner, (1892) 54 Fed. Rep. 228; Hastay v. Bonness, (1901) 84 Minn. 120; Reaves v. Oliver, (1895) 3 Okla. 62. See also Littlefield v. Todd, (1895) 3 Okla. 1.

Priority of first entryman.—The person who is first in point of time in the filing of a homestead entry has the right to the exclusive use of the land entered. Sproat v. Durland, (1894) 2 Okla. 24.

Entry as defense to action of ejectment.—Where the proceedings are valid, one who has made his homestead entry under the laws of the United States and has paid the sums required by the statute, has thereby connected himself as far as is possible with the government title and has done enough to enable him to defeat an action of ejectment by one who has no title but mere possession, notwithstanding the fact that the time for the issuance of the final certificate has not elapsed. Goodwin v. McCabe, (1888) 75 Cal. 584.

Settler on land entered by another is trespasser.—One who settles on land which has been segregated from the public domain by a homestead entry, made by another person, which is valid and remains of record, is a mere trespasser. Sproat v. Durland, (1894) 2 Okla. 24.

Entryman's remedy against trespasser.—One who has a valid homestead entry on public land is entitled to a mandatory injunction to protect his possession against trespassers. Sproat v. Durland, (1894) 2 Okla. 24; Reaves v. Oliver, (1895) 3 Okla. 62.

Superior right of actual settler.—“Whenever a homestead entry has been made, followed by no settlement or occupation on the part of the one making the entry, and that homestead entry has, by lapse of time or relinquishment, or otherwise, been ended, any one in actual possession as a settler and occupier of the land has a prior right to perfect title thereto.” And under the provisions of the Act of May 14, 1880, 21 U. S. Stat. L. 140, the entry of such actual settler will relate back to the date of his settlement, so as to defeat an intermediate entry made by one to whom the original entryman relinquished his rights. Moss v. Dowman, (1900) 176 U. S. 413. See also Hodges v. Colcord, (1904) 193 U. S. 192.

Rights of settler who failed to make entry.—A person who entered on a tract of land subject to entry as a homestead and cleared and cultivated a part of it and erected improvements for a residence, intending to enter it as a homestead, but who did not make the preliminary affidavit, declaration, or payment required in such cases, did not acquire such a right to the land as entitled him to demand a conveyance of the legal title from the trustees of the University of Alabama, in whom it was vested by virtue of the selection of the land by the agents of the state of Alabama under the Act of Congress "to increase the endowment of the university from the public lands in the state" (23 U. S. Stat. L. 12), and the approval of such selection by the secretary of the interior. Higgins v. State University, (1891) 94 Ala. 380.

Rights of person whose entry refused.—Where a person alleged that he had a right to enter certain land as a homestead and had tried to do so but that his application had been erroneously refused by the local land officers, and on the strength of such allegations sought to have the court declare that he stood in the position of one who had actually made a homestead entry and had acquired such a right in the land as was beyond the power of Congress to disturb by subsequent legislation, it was held that such an entry created no vested rights as against the United States and did not interfere with the power of Congress to dispose of the land by subsequent legislation. Norton v. Evans, (C. C. A. 1897) 82 Fed. Rep. 804.

Jurisdiction of state courts to determine right of entry.—The question as to whether or not a person would have the right to enter land as a homestead if the patent under which another person claims title were void, cannot be the subject of a civil action in any state court. White v. Clarke, (1896) 111 Cal. 425.

A state court may, for some purposes, deal with the right of possession of public land prior to the issuance of the patent, but it cannot by its judgment in an action between contesting claimants of the right to enter a tract of public lands, forestall the action of the land department of the United States in the contest between the claimants. Merriam v. Bachioni, (1896) 112 Cal. 191. See also Littlefield v. Todd, (1895) 3 Okla. 1.

While the title to the land remains in the United States it is for the officers of the land department to deal with questions affecting the rights of the various parties who desire to acquire title. A state court will not interfere with or attempt to determine such questions; it will deal only with the question of possession, and in order to determine such question will look into the record sufficiently to advise itself as to the true status of the parties in the land department. Whenever the facts are undisputed, the courts will apply the law to the status of the parties as justice may require. Sproat v. Durland, (1894) 2 Okla. 24; Reaves v. Oliver, (1895) 3 Okla. 62.

Sec. 2290. [Mode of procedure.] That any person applying to enter land under the preceding section shall first make and subscribe before the proper officer and file in the proper land office an affidavit that he or she is the head of a family, or is over twenty-one years of age, and that such application is honestly and in good faith made for the purpose of actual settlement and cultivation, and not for the benefit of any other person, persons or corporation, and that he or she will faithfully and honestly endeavor to comply with all the requirements of law as to settlement, residence, and cultivation necessary to acquire title to the land applied for; that he or she is not acting as agent of any person, corporation, or syndicate in making such entry, nor in collusion with any person, corporation or syndicate to give them the benefit of the land entered, or any part thereof, or the timber thereon; that he or she does not apply to enter the same for the purpose of speculation, but in good faith to obtain a home for himself, or herself, and that he or she has not directly or indirectly made, and will not make, any agreement or contract in any way or manner, with any person or persons, corporation or syndicate whatsoever, by which the title which he or she might acquire from the Government of the United States should inure, in whole or in part, to the benefit of any person, except himself, or herself, and upon filing such affidavit with the register or receiver on payment of five dollars when the entry is of not more than eighty acres, and on payment of ten dollars when the entry is for more than eighty acres, he or she shall thereupon be permitted to enter the amount of land specified. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 5, 26 Stat. L. 1098.

The section originally read as follows:

"SEC. 2290. The person applying for the benefit of the preceding section shall, upon application to the register of the land-office in which he is about to make such entry, make affidavit before the register or receiver that he is the head of a family, or is twenty-one years or more of age, or has performed service in the Army or Navy of the United States, and that such application is made for his exclusive use and benefit, and that his entry is made for the purpose of actual settlement and cultivation, and not either directly or indirectly for the use or benefit of any other person; and upon filing such affidavit with the register or receiver, on payment of five dollars when the entry is of not more than eighty acres, and on payment of ten dollars when the entry is for more than eighty acres, he shall thereupon be permitted to enter the amount of land specified." Act of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, 12 Stat. L. 392; Act of March 21, 1864, ch. 38, 13 Stat. L. 35; Act of June 21, 1866, ch. 127, 14 Stat. L. 67.

Affidavit.—See further Act of June 9, 1880, ch. 164, infra, p. 298, and note thereunder.

Homestead is for entryman's exclusive benefit.—The title to the land entered cannot inure to the benefit of any person other than the entryman, nor can trust relations legally exist between the entryman and any other person in respect to the land entered. The entryman renounces all such trust relations and obligations by the affidavit he makes on application to enter the homestead when he swears that his application is made for his own exclusive use and benefit and that it is not made directly or indirectly for the use of any other person. Shorman v. Eakin, (1886) 47 Ark. 351; Clark v. Bayley, (1874) 5 Oregon 343.

Entry for benefit of partnership.—Where a person, before or at the time of filing his application for homestead entry, agrees with his partners to file the application "under the United States homestead laws and get the title for the benefit of the partnership," the agreement is in contravention of the spirit and policy of the homestead laws and hence is illegal and void. Matter of Groome, (1892) 94 Cal. 69; Clark v. Bayley, (1874) 5 Oregon 343.

And if the entryman after acquiring title makes a parol agreement in the settlement of the accounts of the partnership that the land belongs to the partnership, such agreement is inoperative to create any trust or vest in the entryman's partners any estate in the land. Matter of Groome, (1892) 94 Cal. 69.

Entry by son for benefit of father.—Where a person qualified to enter land under the homestead laws occupied certain lands which were subject to homestead entry without making application for entry, and subsequently his son, who lived with him upon the land, made a homestead entry thereof by false and fraudulent representations, and on learning of the entry the father went to the son and demanded an explanation, stating that the entry was irregular and illegal, to which the son replied that he had made the entry for the protection and benefit of the father and to prevent any other person from securing the land, and told the father that if he would not object to or contest the entry he would secure the title to the land from the United States for the father's use and benefit, and in due time the son obtained a patent but died without fulfilling his promise, it was held that the son's entry was illegal and void and that a court of equity would not sustain a bill brought by the father to impress a trust in his favor on the land entered. Moore v. Moore, (1900) 130 Cal. 110.

Implied agreement to enter homestead for benefit of another.—Where land was entered as a homestead by an employee of a corporation, and the evidence showed that a conspiracy existed, whereby the entryman was to transfer the land to the corporation after perfecting his title, it was held that even though no express agreement to that effect had been entered into by the parties, the transaction was against public policy, and that upon the employee's repudiation of the agreement and retention of the land for his own benefit, equity would not interfere at the instance of the corporation, but would leave the parties where their own conduct had placed them. Pacific Livestock Co. v. Gentry, (1901) 38 Oregon 275.

What is not entry for benefit of another.—Where a person who believed that he would be able to obtain a valid title to certain land from a corporation to which it was supposed to belong, executed in good faith a good bond to convey such land to another person as soon as he procured the title, and it was subsequently ascertained that the title was not in the corporation, but that the United States was still the owner of the land, which was subject to homestead, and thereupon the parties to the bond agreed that the obligee should make a homestead entry of the land and procure the title thereto from the government for his own use and benefit and pay the obligor the price originally stipulated, less such sum as the obligor should recover as damages from the corporation for failure of title, but that in other respects the original contract should remain as executed, it was held that the agreement as modified was not in violation of the homestead laws, as there was no undertaking on the part of the obligee to obtain the title for the obligor, but on the other hand, there was a lawful attempt on the part of both parties to carry out the purpose of the original contract, and in pursuance of its intention to vest the title to the land in the obligee. Frink v. Hoke, (1890) 35 Oregon 17.

An agreement to allow others a right of way over his homestead does not conflict with the applicant's affidavit that the homestead is taken for his "exclusive use and benefit," as every one holds his property subject to such easements, and an applicant for a homestead has the right to make such an agreement without laying himself liable to the imputation that he is falsely entering land in his own name for the use and benefit of another. U. S. v. Reed, (1886) 28 Fed. Ren. 482.

Conveyance of water right.—The homestead law prohibits only an agreement to sell the land or any part thereof or the timber thereon, and the prohibition does not apply to a conveyance of a portion of the water flowing in a stream on the land and of a right of way to convey said water across said land, where such agreement was made prior to the homestead entry and there is nothing to show that either party had in contemplation the making of the homestead entry. Mt. Carmel Fruit Co. v. Webster, (1903) 140 Cal. 183.

Title conferred by receiver's receipt.—The receiver's receipt issued to a homestead entryman in possession claiming land under the provisions of this section constitutes ample title to enable him, as owner of the land, to maintain or defend a suit concerning it. Morrison v. Coleman, (1888) 87 Ala. 655.

Thus such receipt confers sufficient title to enable the entryman to maintain, before the expiration of five years, an action of ejectment or a statutory action in the nature thereof, Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Clark, (C. C. A. 1900) 101 Fed. Rep. 678; Case v. Edgeworth, (1888) 87 Ala. 203; or a petitory action, Broussard v. Broussard, (1891) 43 La. Ann. 921; or to defend an action of ejectment brought by one who has no title but merely possession, Goodwin v. McCabe, (1888) 75 Cal. 584.

In like manner the receipt is sufficient title as against a wrongdoer who does not connect himself with any claim or interest in the land to enable the entryman to recover from such wrongdoer the damages which he has caused to the property. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Clark, (C. C. A. 1900) 101 Fed. Rep. 678; Case v. Edgeworth, (1888) 87 Ala. 203.

False oath that land is for entryman's exclusive benefit is perjury.—The entryman is required to make affidavit that the land is entered for his own use exclusively and not directly or indirectly for the benefit of another, and he is guilty of perjury if he swears falsely in this respect for the purpose of obtaining the title. Clark v. Bayley, (1874) 5 Oregon 343.

Sec. 2291. [Certificate and patent, when given and issued.] No certificate, however, shall be given, or patent issued therefor, until the expiration of five years from the date of such entry; and if at the expiration of such time, or at any time within two years thereafter, the person making such entry; or if he be dead, his widow; or in case of her death, his heirs or devisee; or in case of a widow making such entry, her heirs or devisee, in case of her death, proves by two credible witnesses that he, she, or they have resided upon or cultivated the same for the term of five years immediately succeeding the time of filing the affidavit, and makes affidavit that no part of such land has been alienated, except as provided in section twenty-two hundred and eighty-eight, and that he, she, or they will bear true allegiance to the Government of the United States; then, in such case, he, she, or they, if at that time citizens of the United States, shall be entitled to a patent, as in other cases provided by law. [R. S.]

Act of June 21, 1866, ch. 127, 14 Stat. L. 67.

Amendment.—This section is amended by the Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 122, infra, p. 298.

Land in Oklahoma.—See infra, div. XIII.
Right to homestead vests on making final proof.—“Under the United States homestead laws, and by a compliance with them, a person entering a homestead, or in case of his death, his widow, or in case of the death of both, his heir or devisee, obtains a vested right in the homestead at the expiration of five years from the entry thereof, and upon making proper proof is entitled to a patent for the land from the United States.” Newkirk v. Marshall, (1886) 35 Kan. 77.

Cancellation of patent for insufficient residence.—A patent issued under this section will be canceled in a suit brought by the United States for that purpose, where the proof taken in the suit clearly shows that there was no actual residence by the entrywoman, nor by her heirs after her death, upon the land prior to the issuance of the patent, and the proofs taken in the land office on which the entry was allowed do not show that there was ever continuous residence for the period of five years, but only go to the extent of showing that the original entrywoman lived on the land for a period of three or four months before she was taken ill, without showing that there was any residence on the land after such time. U. S. v. Perry, (1891) 45 Fed. Rep. 759.

Devise of homestead before issuance of patent.—This section provides who shall succeed to the rights of the entryman, if he dies before his title is perfected, by a patent, and prohibits him from making any disposition of any interest he may have in the land before the issuance of patent. Hence, the will of an entryman who dies before issuance of the patent is inoperative, in so far as it attempts to pass the title to, or an interest in, the homestead. Chapman v. Price, (1884) 32 Kan. 446.

Succession of widow to inchoate homestead right.—The estate granted to a homestead settler is granted subject to certain conditions precedent, the conditions being residence for the required time, cultivation, and final proof. Until all of these conditions are complied with the law gives the settler no more than the right of possession, and his interest in the homestead will not pass on his death even to his heirs or devisees. In case of his death before the completion of the conditions his widow will have all the rights which he would have had. His right is extinguished by his death, and she, by virtue of the fact that she is his widow, is designated as the donee of the land. The homestead right will inure to the benefit of the children only in the case of the death of both father and mother before the making of final proof. Crist v. Cosby, (1902) 11 Okla. 635; McCune v. Essig, (C. C. A. 1903) 122 Fed. Rep. 588, affirming (1902) 118 Fed. Rep. 273; Jarvis v. Hoffman, (1872) 43 Cal. 314; Perry v. Ashby, (1877) 5 Neb. 291.

Where the entryman died without making final proof, and his widow made such proof and complied in all things with the provisions of this section, and her proofs were accepted as sufficient by the land officers, but by mistake the patent for the land was issued to the entryman's heirs instead of to her, it was held that upon such compliance by the widow with the law she became the equitable owner of the land, and that the patentees held the legal title in trust for her, and that a court of equity would enforce the trust. Hayes v. Carroll, (1898) 74 Minn. 134.

Parol gift by widow to child.—Where an entryman died before making final proof and left a will devising one-half of the homestead to his wife and one-half to his daughter, and the widow, soon after her husband's death, made final proof and had a patent for the homestead issued to her, after making an oral promise to the child to give her half of the homestead, and the child in pursuance of such promise entered on the land with her husband and made valuable improvements thereon, it was held that the mother was not entitled to maintain an action of ejectment to recover the half so occupied by the child and her husband, as it was only fair and just that the homestead should be equally divided between the survivors of the entryman. And it was also held that the case was taken out of the statute of frauds by the fact that the child and her husband took possession of the land under the parol agreement and made lasting and valuable improvements thereon. Newkirk v. Marshall, (1886) 35 Kan. 77.

Succession of heirs to inchoate homestead right.—If a homestead claimant dies before the issuance of the patent or before the right to demand a patent has accrued the land does not become a part of his estate. Upon his death all his right under the homestead entry ceases and his heirs become entitled to a patent, not because they have succeeded to his equitable interest but because the law gives them preference as new homesteaders and allows them the benefit of the residence of their ancestors upon the land. If there are no heirs capable as citizens of the United States to succeed to the entryman's right, the land becomes again open to settlement as a part of the public domain by any qualified homesteader. The entryman's administrator does not, as such, succeed to any rights in the homestead, nor does the law invest the administrator with any rights therein simply because there are no heirs. Gjerstadengen

v. Van Duzen, (1898) 7 N. Dak. 612; Towner v. Rodegeb, (1903) 33 Wash. 153.

The minor children of an entryman who dies leaving a will, after the death of his wife and before the issuance of the patent, are not required to make any election to take under the provisions of the will instead of as the testator's heirs, but may claim the homestead tract as their own, and also share in the estate under the will. Lewis v. Lichty, (1891) 3 Wash. 213.

Time within which minor heirs may make final proof.—Where the entryman died before final proof, but after having complied up to the time of his death with all of the requirements of the statute concerning his entry, leaving minor children but no widow, it was held that, under the provisions of R. S. secs. 2291 and 2292, the homestead right inured to the benefit of his surviving minor children, and that such right remained valid and subsisting for at least two years after his death, so that a location made by a railroad company before the expiration of the two years was ineffectual to confer any right on the company. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Pracht, (1883) 30 Kan. 66.

Alien heirs cannot perfect title.—The homestead law vests the rights in the land in the claimant himself for his exclusive benefit, and if he die before patent issues, leaving no widow, then in his heirs or devisees if they be at the time citizens of the United States. But alien heirs are incompetent to make proof and secure title to a homestead. Towner v. Rodegeb, (1903) 33 Wash. 153.

Community property in homestead.—Lands acquired under the homestead laws of the United States are community property when the title is obtained during marriage, as they are acquired by purchase within the meaning of the statutes regarding community property. And when an entryman marries between the making of final proof and the issuance of the patent, the legal title to the land vests in the community. Kromer v. Friday, (1895) 10 Wash. 621.

Where the inchoate title to the homestead had its inception during the existence of the community, the legal title conferred by the issuance of the patent to the surviving spouse, after the dissolution of the community by death, inured to the benefit of the community heirs. Ahern v. Ahern, (1903) 31 Wash. 334. Contra, Bolton v. La Camas Water Power Co., (1894) 10 Wash. 246.

The laws of the state in which the land is situated apply for the purpose of determining whether or not it is community property. Ahern v. Ahern, (1903) 31 Wash. 334, following Kromer v. Friday, (1895) 10 Wash. 621.

Though this section contains no express prohibition of alienation, and provides no forfeiture in case of alienation, the homestead right cannot be perfected after alienation, or contract of alienation, without perjury by the homesteader. Anderson v. Carkins, (1890) 135 U. S. 483.

Alienation within five years forfeits right.—Where the applicant took none of the steps required by the statute except to make the application to enter and to pay the small sum required for the filing of such application, but alienated the land within five years after the application, without having resided on the land or having improved or cultivated it, it was held that he forfeited his right to a final certificate and patent and that his conveyance transferred no title to his purchaser. Lindsey v. Veasy, (1878) 62 Ala. 421.

The same affidavits in respect to alienation are required from federal soldiers to enter homesteads, under the provisions of R. S. sec. 2304, as are required from other persons entering homesteads. Anderson v. Carkins, (1890) 135 U. S. 483.

Waiver of right of entry is alienation.—An entry of government land by a qualified person is an entry made by virtue of a government statute, though made in violation of an agreement with another person to waive the right in favor of the latter. The right of a successful contestant to enter a certain tract of land can neither be sold nor transferred, and a contract whereby the successful contestant agrees for a valuable consideration to waive his right of entry is not susceptible of specific performance. A decree based on such a contract directing a relinquishment of the entry is unenforceable, and its disobedience does not constitute contempt of court. Dameron v. Dingee, (1892) 1 Colo. App. 436.

Sale of land or interest therein.—An agreement made by a homestead entryman after application, but before completion of the entry, for the sale and conveyance of the land entered or part thereof, is void as being against public policy. Cox v. Donnelly, (1879) 34 Ark. 762. Compare Spieß v. Neuberg, (1888) 71 Wis. 279.

A contract to convey in the future, coupled with a receipt of the purchase money, is in substance, and within the spirit of the statute if not in form, as alienation. Such a contract is contrary to public policy, and a court of equity will not enforce specific performance thereof. Anderson v. Carkins, (1890) 135 U. S. 483, reversing (1887) 21 Neb. 364; McCrillis v. Copp, (1893) 31 Fla. 100; Mellison v. Allen, (1883) 30 Kan. 382; Carley v. Gitchell, (1895) 105 Mich. 38. See also Oaks v. Heaton, (1876) 44 Iowa 116; Dawson v. Merrill, 2 Neb. 119, overruled in Carkins v. Anderson, (1887) 21 Neb. 364, which was reversed in (1890) 135 U. S. 483.

And it seems that an agreement to convey after the issuance of the patent is void, though the consideration is not to be received until the conveyance is executed. Oaks v. Heaton, (1876) 44 Iowa 116; Dawson v. Merrill, 2 Neb. 119, overruled in Carkins v. Anderson, (1887) 21 Neb. 364, which was reversed in (1890) 135 U. S. 483. Contra, Townsend v. Fenton, (1883) 30 Minn. 528.

But where a person relinquished his homestead right to another person, and guaranteed such other person that he should enter into possession of the land and acquire homestead rights therein, it was held that the relinquishment and guaranty constituted a good consideration for a promissory note executed by the person to whom the guaranty was made. Moore v. McIntosh, (1870) 6 Kan. 39.

And where the entryman contracted to convey the land when title should be acquired, and the contract provided for part payment in breaking prairie land at a specified price per acre, the breaking to be paid in cash if the land was not conveyed, it was held that the alleged illegality of the contract would not defeat a recovery of the price of the breaking, whether or not it would defeat a suit for specific performance. Simmons v. Yurann, (1881) 11 Neb. 516, followed in Bateman v. Robinson, (1882) 12 Neb. 508.

Mortgage is not alienation.—An entryman may swear that no part of the land which he seeks to have conveyed to him by the United States has been alienated, though he has mortgaged his claim before final certificate in order to procure money with which to improve his land or for any other purpose, provided he seeks in good faith to acquire the land as a homestead within the meaning of this section. Fuller v. Hunt, (1878) 48 Iowa 163; Dickerson v. Bridges, (1898) 147 Mo. 235; Orr v. Ulyatt, (1896) 23 Nev. 134; Stark v. Duvall, (1898) 7 Okla. 213.

Under such circumstances the mortgagor will be estopped from denying the validity of the mortgage. Stark v. Duvall, (1898) 7 Okla. 213.

Sale after final proof but before patent.—When a person becomes entitled to a patent by reason of having made the final proof required by the statute, but the patent has not been issued, he may contract or be contracted with concerning the land, or sell or convey it, precisely the same as though the patent has already been issued. In order to protect the rights of all parties, where a patent is due and is not yet issued, equity will consider such rights precisely the same as though the patent had in fact been issued on the very first day on which it ought to have been issued. Newkirk v. Marshall, (1886) 35 Kan. 77.

In like manner the entryman may, after final proof but before issuance of the patent, make a valid dedication of a portion of the land for a public road; and after making such dedication he will be estopped to deny its validity. Rube v. Sullivan, (1888) 23 Neb. 779.

Alienation of interest in improvements.—This section is not violated by an agreement whereby the entryman, after entry but before the issuance of final certificate or patent, unites with another for the purpose of building a saw-mill on the land and dividing the profits arising from the operation of such mill, as such use of the land by the entryman is substantially for his own benefit and is consistent with his purpose to retain it also as a homestead. Hot Springs R. Co. v. Tyler, (1890) 36 Ark. 205.

And it has been held that the sale and surrender of an inchoate homestead claim, together with the improvements erected on the land by the entryman, is a good consideration for a promissory note made by the purchaser, the improvements being subjects of legitimate bargain and sale, though the sale conveys no interest in the land itself as against the government. McWilliams v. Bridges, (1878) 7 Neb. 419; Paxton Cattle Co. v. Arapahoe First Nat. Bank, (1887) 21 Neb. 621.

Where the entryman before issuance of the patent sold the improvements which he had made on the land after having forfeited all claim to such improvements, it was held that the purchaser did not, by virtue of his purchase, acquire a prior right to enter the land as a homestead as against other persons desiring so to enter it. Porter v. Bishop, (1889) 25 Fla. 749.

Removal of improvements on cancellation of entry.—A homestead settler who makes improvements on a tract of government land, and whose entry is afterwards canceled, may remove the improvements after the land has been awarded to an adverse claimant. Winans v. Beidler, (1898) 6 Okla. 603.

Sale of improvements after relinquishment is valid.—Where, after making application for a homestead and erecting improvements on the land homesteaded, the entryman abandoned all intention of perfecting the homestead and executed a relinquishment to the United States of all claim to acquire title to the land, and subsequently sold to another person the improvements which he had erected, taking the purchaser's note therefor, it was held that the note was not illegal, as the transaction was not a sale of an imperfect homestead right. Tarrance v. Hatfield, (1881) 71 Ala. 234.

Grant of right of way to railroad.—A homestead entryman may, after entry but before final proof, grant to a railroad a right of way over the land entered. U. S. v. Turner, (1892) 54 Fed. Rep. 228.

A lease of timber for turpentine purposes is valid and enforceable, as it is not forbidden by any express statutory provision and is not contrary to public policy. Orrell v. Bay Mfg. Co., (1903) 83 Miss. 800.

Rights of entryman in respect to timber before issuance of patent.—Prior to the issuance of the final certificate the rights of a homestead entryman in respect to the timber standing on the land entered are analogous to those of a tenant for life or for years, Shiver v. U. S., (1895) 159 U. S. 491; Conway v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 615; or of a person in possession under an uncompleted contract of purchase, U. S. v. Ball, (1887) 31 Fed. Rep. 667.

When he acts in good faith and has the intention of perfecting his entry in the manner prescribed by the homestead laws, and within the spirit of those laws, he may cut or remove timber for the purpose of preparing the land in the ordinary way for cultivation, Shiver v. U. S., (1895) 159 U. S. 491; The Timber Cases, (1881) 11 Fed. Rep. 81; U. S. v. Williams, (1883) 18 Fed. Rep. 475; U. S. v. Ball, (1887) 31 Fed. Rep. 667; U. S. v. Murphy, (1887) 32 Fed. Rep. 376; Conway v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 615; Grubbs v. U. S., (C. C. A.

1900) 105 Fed. Rep. 315; King-Ryder Lumber Co. v. Scott, (Ark. 1904) 84 S. W. Rep. 487; Orrell v. Bay Mfg. Co., (1903) 83 Miss. 800; or for the purpose of erecting necessary and proper improvements on the land, U. S. v. Murphy, (1887) 32 Fed. Rep. 376; Conway v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 615. And within these limitations, it seems that he may cut timber for the purpose of cultivating his land even before he files his application for entry in the land office. U. S. v. Yoder, (1883) 5 McCrary (U. S.) 615.

When the timber is cut in good faith and for the cultivation of the land the entryman has the right to sell or otherwise dispose of the surplus so cut. Shiver v. U. S., (1895) 159 U. S. 491; The Timber Cases, (1881) 11 Fed. Rep. 81; U. S. v. Murphy, (1887) 32 Fed. Rep. 376; Grubbs v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1900) 105 Fed. Rep. 315; King-Ryder Lumber Co. v. Scott, (Ark. 1904) 84 S. W. Rep. 487.

Thus where a bona fide entryman was unable, by reason of his age and poverty, to do the necessary clearing to render the land cultivable, it was held that it was not improper for him to make a contract with another person, whereby the latter was to clear the land, erect a dwelling house and other buildings thereon for the entryman, break such portions of the land as could be cultivated, furnish the entryman with money for the purchase of the requisite stock to outfit the farm, and with provisions sufficient to keep him and his hired man, in consideration of which he was to receive timber to the value of the work done and money advanced and expended in behalf of the entryman; this, too, though the entryman was to receive money for part of the value of the timber so cut by the person with whom he contracted. Conway v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 615. See also Grubbs v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1900) 105 Fed. Rep. 314.

When the timber is cut or sold for proper purposes, by a bona fide entryman, the government can maintain neither a criminal prosecution, Grubbs v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1900) 105 Fed. Rep. 315; or action of damages against the entryman, U. S. v. Ball, (1887) 31 Fed. Rep. 667; nor an action against the purchaser of the timber for its conversion, U. S. v. Yoder, (1883) 5 McCrary (U. S.) 615; U. S. v. Ball, (1887) 31 Fed. Rep. 667; Conway v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 615.

These principles, however, operate only to protect a bona fide entryman who cuts timber for the purpose of furthering the objects of the homestead laws. They cannot be invoked for the protection of an entryman who enters the land as a speculation for the purpose of denuding it of its timber, Conway v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 615; Grubbs v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1900) 105 Fed. Rep. 314; or who cuts or sells the timber for profit without regard to the legitimate purposes of the homestead laws, Shiver v. U. S., (1895) 159 U. S. 491; The Timber Cases, (1881) 11 Fed. Rep. 81; U. S. v. Williams, (1883) 18 Fed. Rep. 475; U. S. v. Freyberg, (1886) 32 Fed. Rep. 195; U. S. v.

Murphy, (1887) 32 Fed. Rep. 376; Conway v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 615; Grubbs v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1900) 105 Fed. Rep. 314; Orrell v. Ray Mfg. Co., (1903) 83 Miss. 800; even though he intends to acquire the title to the land from the government, as he might at any time after taking the timber change his intention and thus defeat the object of the law. The Tin. or Cases, (1881) 11 Fed. Rep. 81; U. S. v. Murphy, (1887) 32 Fed. Rep. 376.

For unlawful cutting or sale of the timber the government may maintain a criminal prosecution against the entryman. Shiver v. U. S., (1883) 159 U. S. 491; The Timber Cases, (1881) 11 Fed. Rep. 81; or against the purchaser of the timber, U. S. v. Murphy, (1887) 32 Fed. Rep. 376; or may bring an action of damages against the persons at fault. U. S. v. Williams, (1883) 13 Fed. Rep. 473.

Where the timber was cut and removed under no mistake or accident, it was held that the lack of criminal intent on the defendant's part was no defense to a criminal prosecution for unlawful cutting; and it was also held that the fact that the defendant was misled by the representations of the local land officers into believing that he had the unrestricted right to dispose of the timber standing on the land entered would present grounds for executive clemency, but would not constitute any legal defense for the wrongful act. U. S. v. Murphy, (1887) 32 Fed. Rep. 376.

When the defendant is a willful trespasser the measure of damages in an action for the unlawful cutting of timber is the full value of the property at the time of the bringing of the action, with no deduction for the defendant's time and expense; and when the defendant is an unintentional or mistaken trespasser the measure of damages is the value of the timber at the time of the conversion, less the amount which the trespasser has added to its value. U. S. v. Williams, (1883) 13 Fed. Rep. 473; Conway v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 615.

The sale of unauthorized sale of timber is void as to the government, it may be valid as to the purchaser, and the consequent purchase of the timber by the purchaser will not constitute a defense to the government's action for the unauthorized sale. U. S. v. Williams, (1883) 13 Fed. Rep. 473.

The government may maintain an action for the unauthorized sale of timber by an entryman, even though the entryman has not yet received his final proof, and the consequent purchase of the timber by the purchaser will not constitute a defense to the government's action for the unauthorized sale. U. S. v. Williams, (1883) 13 Fed. Rep. 473.

The government may maintain an action for the unauthorized sale of timber by an entryman, even though the entryman has not yet received his final proof, and the consequent purchase of the timber by the purchaser will not constitute a defense to the government's action for the unauthorized sale. U. S. v. Williams, (1883) 13 Fed. Rep. 473.

either the entryman or the purchaser of the timber after the entryman has made final proof and received his final certificate, U. S. v. Ball, (1887) 31 Fed. Rep. 667; or has commuted his homestead entry into a cash entry, U. S. v. Freyberg, (1886) 23 Fed. Rep. 195.

The question whether or not the cutting or sale of timber is lawful, is a question of fact to be determined by the jury upon consideration of all the facts and circumstances of each particular case. The crucial question is the good faith of the entryman as gathered from his actions. In passing on this question the jury should take into consideration the entryman's situation, his financial condition, the state of his health, and other surrounding circumstances. The mere amount of timber cut is not of itself a criterion of the legality of the cutting. A bona fide entryman may, under some circumstances, be justified in cutting a large amount of timber, while a fraudulent entryman would have no right to cut a single tree. Nor is the length of the interval between the cutting and the cultivation an absolute test. It has been said that "the plow must follow the axe." But there is no more a conclusive legal presumption of guilt arising from failure to plow the land immediately after the timber is cut off than there is a conclusive legal presumption of innocence when the land is so plowed. A bona fide entryman might be unable, because of his poverty or other reasons, to cultivate the land within a reasonable time after the cutting, while a fraudulent homesteader might, for the purpose of screening his fraudulent design, plow the land immediately after stripping it of its timber. Grubbs v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1900) 105 Fed. Rep. 314. See also Conway v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 615.

On the issuance of a patent the entryman's title relates back to the initiation of his claim, so as to give him a right to maintain an action against a trespasser for the value of timber cut and removed from the land after entry and before the issuance of the patent. Payson v. Desmond, (C. C. A. 1904) 129 Fed. Rep. 1.

Extrapro to obtain title after sale of rights.—Where a bill was filed alleging that the entryman had before final proof and that his widow and her interest to the defendant, who entered and the land and its improvements to the defendant for a valuable consideration, the defendant and that the complainant went into possession of the land and made valuable improvements and was proceeding to take the necessary legal steps to secure the homestead when the defendant clandestinely procured from the United States land office a certificate of entry of the land in the name of the widow, and then a deed from the widow to himself, and thereupon instituted proceedings against the complainant to oust him, it was held that the bill showed that the conduct of the defendant was a violation of the homestead law and a fraud on the rights of the complainant, and that the defendant was not entitled to assert the right of possession against the complainant; that the de-defendant should be deemed a holder of the legal title in trust for the complainant, and that upon payment by complainant of the balance due to the defendant, under the sale of the improvements and possession, with interest from the time it became due, the complainant would be entitled to a conveyance of the legal title provided the allegations of the bill were sustained. Cheesser v. De Prater, (1884) 20 Fla. 691.

Rights and duties of settler pending issuance of patent.—Pending the issuance of the patent the "settler has the right to treat the land as his own so far, and so far only, as is necessary to carry out the purposes of the Act. The object of this legislation is to preserve the right of the actual settler, but not to open the door to manifest abuses of such right. Obviously the privilege of residing on the land for five years would be ineffectual if he had not also the right to build himself a house, outbuildings, and fences, and to clear the land for cultivation, and to that extent the Act limits and modifies the Act of 1831, 4 Stat. L. 472, ch. 66, now embraced in R. S. 2461. It is equally clear that he is bound to act in good faith to the government, and that he has no right to pervert the law to dishonest purposes, or to make use of the land for profit or speculation. The law contemplates the possibility of his abandoning it, but he may not in the meantime ruin its value to others who may wish to purchase or enter it. With respect to the standing timber, his privileges are analogous to those of a tenant for life or for years." Shiver v. U. S., (1895) 159 U. S. 491; Orrell v. Bay Mfg. Co., (1903) 83 Miss. 800. And see R. S. 2461, under TIMBER LANDS AND FOREST RESERVATIONS.

Taxation by state before issuance of patent.—Land entered as a homestead under this section becomes subject to state taxation when the final certificate therefor is issued, as the entryman thereby acquires the right to a patent to the land. Burcham v. Terry, (1892) 55 Ark. 398.

It has even been held that a homestead is liable to taxation by the state as soon as the owner has the right to make his final proof and complete his title, though the final certificate is not actually issued. Bellinger v. White, (1877) 5 Neb. 399.

Ownership of land pending issuance of patent.—The land entered continues to be the property of the United States for five years following the entry, and until the patent is issued, but is subject to divestiture upon making of the final proof required by this section.

United States.—Shiver v. U. S., (1895) 159 U. S. 491; U. S. v. Ball, (1887) 31 Fed. Rep. 667.

Alabama.—Lindsey v. Veasy, (1878) 62 Ala. 421.

California.—Thrift v. Delaney, (1886) 69 Cal. 188.

Colorado.—Schoolfield v. Houle, (1889) 13 Colo. 394.

Washington.—Bolton v. La Camas Water Power Co., (1894) 10 Wash. 246; Kromer v. Friday, (1895) 10 Wash. 621.

Wisconsin.—Empey v. Plugert, (1885) 64 Wis. 603.

Title conferred by final certificate.—The final certificate issued to the entryman by the register and receiver does not transfer the title to the land from the United States to the entryman, but simply furnishes prima facie evidence of an equitable claim on the government for a patent. Guaranty Sav. Bank v. Bladow, (1900) 176 U. S. 448; Bolton v. La Camas Water Power Co., (1894) 10 Wash. 246; Kromer v. Friday, (1895) 10 Wash. 621.

Such a certificate is liable to cancellation at the direction of the land department, and those who deal in such certificates or found any right on them must be held to do so with full knowledge of their character and legal effect. Guaranty Sav. Bank v. Bladow, (1900) 176 U. S. 448.

Cancellation of final certificate for fraud.—An entry and final certificate issued to a settler under the Homestead Act for land subject to entry thereunder cannot be set aside by the land department on its own motion for fraud or mistake committed or occurring in obtaining or issuing such certificate. If the government wishes to have a certificate set aside for fraud, it must seek redress in the courts, where the matter can be heard and determined according to the law applicable to the rights of individuals under like circumstances. Wilson v. Fine, (1889) 40 Fed. Rep. 52.

Cancellation of patent for fraud.—The government may maintain a suit in equity to set aside a patent or cancel it, when its duty to the public requires such action, as where the issuance of the patent was constructively fraudulent because of the inadvertence and mistake of a subordinate clerk in the interior department in issuing the patent pending the prosecution of appeals by other claimants, and it is not necessary for the government to show that the patentee would not have prevailed if the appeals of the other claimants had been heard. U. S. v. Reed, (1892) 53 Fed. Rep. 405.

Patentee as trustee for equitable owner.—When the land laws of the United States confer upon a person a right to public lands on the existence of certain facts the right becomes fixed when the proper executive officer finds that those facts exist. If, therefore, the secretary of the interior issues to one person a patent, when under the facts decided by him another person is entitled to the land, ultimate rights will not be changed thereby, but the holder of the patent will be considered by the courts to hold the land in trust for the person to whom in equity it belongs. McCord v. Hill, (1901) 111 Wis. 499. And see McCord v. Hill, (1903) 117 Wis. 306.

Final proof by another inures to entryman's benefit.—Where an entryman deserted his wife after having complied with all the requirements of the law, so as to entitle him to a patent upon making final proof of residence, cultivation, nonalienation, and loyalty, as required by the statute, it was held that his equitable right to have the legal title vested in him by the government was complete, and that he could not be deprived of this right by the fact that such final proof was made for him by his deserted wife or any other person; that by whomsoever made the proof inured to his benefit; and that, therefore, the action of the government in issuing the patent to him, thus vesting in him the whole title both legal and equitable, was proper. Egbert v. Bond, (1899) 148 Mo. 19.

Remedy of entryman against unlawful possession.—An entryman, out of possession and having a decision by the land office in his favor, who may proceed against his adversary in possession by an action of forcible detainer, has an adequate remedy at law precluding him from resorting to the extraordinary remedies used by courts of equity. Black v. Jackson, (1900) 177 U. S. 349.

False oath to immaterial matter is not perjury.—Perjury cannot be predicated of a false oath to an affidavit not required by the statute. And this is true even though the affidavit is made pursuant to a departmental regulation requiring it, as such a regulation may have the force of law in a civil suit to determine property rights and yet be ineffectual as the basis of a criminal prosecution, the making an act a criminal offense being essentially an exercise of legislative power which cannot be delegated. U. S. v. Maid, (1902) 116 Fed. Rep. 650.

An act to amend section twenty-two hundred and ninety-one of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in relation to proof required in homestead entries.

[SEC. 1.] [Proof of residence, etc., before whom made — effect and disposal of proofs — fees.] That the proof of residence, occupation, or cultivation, the affidavit of non-alienation, and the oath of allegiance, required to be made by section twenty-two hundred and ninety-one of the Revised Statutes, may be made before the judge, or, in his absence, before the clerk, of any court of record of the county and State, or district and Territory, in which the lands are situated; and if said lands are situated in any unorganized county, such proof may be made in a similar manner in any adjacent county in said State or Territory; and the proof, affidavit, and oath, when so made and duly subscribed, shall have the same force and effect as if made before the register or receiver of the proper land-district; and the same shall be transmitted by such judge, or the clerk of his court, to the register and the receiver, with the fee and charges allowed by law to him; and the register and receiver shall be entitled to the same fees for examining and approving said testimony as are now allowed by law for taking the same. [19 Stat. L. 403.]

This and section 2 following were incorporated into the second edition of the Revised Statutes in section 2291. R. S. sec. 2291 is given supra, p. 292.

Affidavits.—See further Act of June 9, 1880, ch. 164, infra.

Commissioners authorized to administer oaths, etc. See Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 174, TERRITORIAL COURTS.

SEC. 2. [Punishment for false swearing, etc.] That if any witness making such proof, or the said applicant making such affidavit or oath, swears falsely as to any material matter contained in said proof, affidavits, or oaths, the said false swearing being willful and corrupt, he shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and shall be liable to the same pains and penalties as if he had sworn falsely before the register. [19 Stat. L. 404.]

An act to amend sections twenty-two hundred and sixty-two and twenty-three hundred and one of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in relation to the settler's affidavit in pre-emption and commuted homestead entries.

[Affidavits, before whom made.] That the affidavit required to be made by sections twenty-two hundred and sixty-two and twenty-three hundred and one of the Revised Statutes of the United States, may be made before the clerk of the county court or of any court of record, of the county and State or district and Territory in which the lands are situated; and if said lands are situated in any unorganized county, such affidavit may be made in a similar manner in any adjacent county in said State or Territory, and the affidavit so made and duly subscribed shall have the same force and effect as if made before the register or receiver of the proper land district; and the same shall be transmitted by such clerk of the court to the register and receiver with the fee and charges allowed by law. [21 Stat. L. 169.]

"R. S. sec. 2262, prescribes the oath to be taken by a claimant for land under the pre-emption laws. These have been repealed by 1891, March 3, ch. 561, sec. 4. Section 2301, here mentioned, has no reference to any affidavit. It is supposed that R. S.

sec. 2290 or 2291 is the section intended. These prescribe the oaths for a homestead applicant, but a substitute for the former is enacted by 1891, March 3, ch. 561, sec. 5." Compilers' note, 1 Supp. R. S. 292.

An act to provide additional regulations for homestead and pre-emption entries of public lands.

[SEC. 1.] [Notice of intention to make final proof — publication.] That before final proof shall be submitted by any person claiming to enter agricultural lands under the laws providing for pre-emption or homestead entries, such person shall file with the register of the proper land-office a notice of his or her intention to make such proof, stating therein the description of lands to be entered, and the names of the witnesses by whom the necessary facts will be established. Upon the filing of such notice, the register shall publish a notice, that such application has been made once a week for the period of thirty days, in a newspaper to be by him designated as published nearest to such land, and he shall also post such notice in some conspicuous place in his office for the same period. Such notice shall contain the names of the witnesses as stated in the application. At the expiration of said period of thirty days, the claimant shall be entitled to make proof in the manner heretofore provided by law. The Secretary of the Interior shall make all necessary rules for giving effect to the foregoing provisions. [20 Stat. L. 472.]

The pre-emption laws were repealed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 4, supra, p. 285.

SEC. 7. [Completing proof extended in case of unavoidable delay.] That the "act to provide additional regulations for homestead and pre-emption entries of public lands," approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, shall not be construed to forbid the taking of testimony for final proof within ten days following the day advertised as upon which such final proof shall be made, in cases where accident or unavoidable delays have prevented the applicant or witnesses from making such proof on the date specified. [25 Stat. L. 855.]

This is from the Act of March 2, 1889, ch. 381, "An act to withdraw certain public lands from private entry, and for other purposes."

An act extending the time for final proof and payment on lands claimed under the public land laws of the United States.

[Act of July 26, 1894, ch. 164, 28 Stat. L. 123.]

[SEC. 1.] [Time for making final proof and payment extended.] That the time for making final proof and payment for all lands located under the homestead and desert land laws of the United States, proof and payment of which has not yet been made, be, and the same is hereby, extended for the period of one year from the time proof and payment would become due under existing laws. [28 Stat. L. 123.]

SEC. 2. [As to pre-emption claims.] That the time of making final payments on entries under the pre-emption Act is hereby extended for one year from the date when the same becomes due in all cases where pre-emption entrymen are unable to make final payments from causes which they can not control, evidence of such inability to be subject to the regulations of the Secretary of the Interior. [28 Stat. L. 123.]

The pre-emption laws were repealed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 4, supra, p. 285, with a saving of rights as to pending claims.

An act to provide for the publication of notices of contest under the homestead, pre-emption, and tree-culture laws of the United States.

[SEC. 1.] [Publication of notices of contest.] That the notices of contest now provided by law under the homestead, pre-emption and tree-culture laws of the United States shall, after the passage of this act, be printed in some newspaper printed in the county where the land in contest lies; and if no newspaper be printed in such county, then in the newspaper printed in the county nearest to such land. [20 Stat. L. 91.]

The pre-emption and timber-culture laws were repealed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, secs. 1, 4.

An act for the relief of settlers on public lands.

[Act of May 14, 1880, ch. 89, 21 Stat. L. 140.]

[SEC. 1.] [Relinquishment of claim — land open to entry.] That when a pre-emption, homestead, or timber culture claimant shall file a written relinquishment of his claim in the local land-office, the land covered by such claim shall be held as open to settlement and entry without further action on the part of the Commissioner of the General Land Office. [21 Stat. L. 140.]

Voluntary relinquishment prior to this Act. — Although there was no provision of law prior to the passage of this Act for a voluntary relinquishment of lands entered under the homestead laws, an entryman had a right recognized by the uniform practice of the land department to disclaim and relinquish all interest in his entry under the provisions of R. S. sec. 2297. Upon such voluntary relinquishment, the land department was authorized to cancel the entry and restore the land to the public domain, as by the act of relinquishment the homestead entry no longer remained a subsisting entry sufficient to constitute such an appropriation of the tract as to segregate it from the public domain. Keane v. Brygger, (1895) 160 U. S. 276; Keane v. Brygger, (1891) 3 Wash. 338.

SEC. 2. [Notice to contestant of cancellation of claim — preference right to entry — death of contestant.] In all cases where any person has contested, paid the land-office fees, and procured the cancellation of any pre-emption, homestead, or timber-culture entry, he shall be notified by the register of the land office of the district in which such land is situated of such cancellation, and shall be allowed thirty days from date of such notice to enter said lands: Provided, That said register shall be entitled to a fee of one dollar for the giving of such notice, to be paid by the contestant and not to be reported: Provided further, That should any such person who has initiated a contest die before the final termination of the same, said contest shall not abate by reason thereof, but his heirs who are citizens of the United States, may continue the prosecution under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, and said heirs shall be entitled to the same rights under this act that contestant would have been if his death had not occurred. [27 Stat. L. 270.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of July 26, 1892, ch. 251, 27 Stat. L. 270. The amendment consists in the addition of all matter following the first proviso.

SEC. 3. [Time to file homestead application and perfect entry — effect of marriage of entrywoman.] That any settler who has settled, or who shall hereafter settle, on any of the public lands of the United States, whether surveyed or unsurveyed, with the intention of claiming the same under the homestead laws, shall be allowed the same time to file his homestead application and perfect his original entry in the United States land-office as is now allowed to settlers under the pre-emption laws to put their claims on record, and his right shall relate back to the date of settlement, the same as if he settled under the pre-emption laws.

Where an unmarried woman who has heretofore settled, or may hereafter settle, upon a tract of public land, improved, established, and maintained a bona fide residence thereon, with the intention of appropriating the same for a home, subject to the homestead law, and has married, or shall hereafter marry, before making entry of said land, or before making application to enter said land, she shall not on account of her marriage forfeit her right to make entry and receive patent for the land: Provided, That she does not abandon her residence on said land, and is otherwise qualified to make homestead entry: Provided further, That the man whom she marries is not, at the time of their marriage, claiming a separate tract of land under the homestead law. That this Act shall be applicable to all unpatented lands claimed by such entrywoman at the date of passage. [21 Stat. L. 141, 31 Stat. L. 683.]

This section was amended by the Act of June 6, 1900, ch. 821, 31 Stat. L. 683, by the addition of all that portion of the section commencing with the words "Where an unmarried woman," etc., to the end of the section as above given.

The purpose of this act is to permit an inceptive right to be obtained under the homestead law in a manner other than by filing an entry for the land. Sproat v. Durand, (1894) 2 Okla. 24.

Intervening claims defeated by relation. — Under the provisions of this section the ruling of the land department has been that if the homestead settler shall fully comply with the law as to continuous residence and cultivation, the settlement defeats all claims intervening between its date and the date of the filing of the homestead entry; and in making final proof, the entryman's five years of residence and cultivation will commence from the date of actual settlement. Hence, a homestead entryman's riparian rights in a stream running across the land homesteaded, attach from the date of his settlement, provided he complies with the law and obtains a patent for the land, and when such patent is issued it relates back to the date of the settlement so as to cut off adverse claims of a right to divert the water arising between the date of settlement and the issuance of the patent. Sturr v. Beck, (1890) 133 U. S. 541; Faull v. Cooke, (1890) 19 Oregon 455.

Relation back of contestant's rights. — "A contestant for a preference right has no right under the law to occupy the land as against the entryman, but when the entry is canceled as the result of his contest and the preference right is awarded under the Act of Congress of May 14, 1880, his rights relate back to the initiation of his contest, and no settlement made on the land or contest initiated subsequent to the initiation of his contest can defeat his right to enter the land or take from him the right to possession, if he follows up his right and makes the homestead entry within the time allowed by law." Reaves v. Oliver, (1895) 3 Okla. 62.

Respective rights of entryman and mere settler. — Where a person settled on a tract of land under the provisions of this Act and subsequently another person made a homestead entry at the local land office of said tract of land, and thereafter the settler, in the absence of the district judge, obtained of the county probate judge an order restraining the entryman from settling on and improving the land in dispute, whereupon the entryman filed a motion in the District Court to dissolve the temporary restraining order issued by the probate judge, and such motion was allowed and the restraining order dissolved, it was held that it was not error to dissolve such restraining order, for the reason that the entryman had a right to the joint use and occupancy of the land until such time as the land department should determine which of the contestants was entitled under the homestead law to the land in dispute. Littlefield v. Todd, (1895) 3 Okla. 1.

Act applies only to land included in public domain.—The only settlers upon whom this section confers any rights are settlers "upon any of the public lands of the United States." Hence, where a person, after certain land had been granted by the United States to a state, did acts that would have amounted to a settlement if the land had been open to settlement, but after the land was restored to the public domain he did nothing which amounted to a settlement, it was held that he could take no benefit under the provisions of this Act, as the land was not part of the public domain at the time of its attempted settlement. Edwards v. Begole, (C. C. A. 1903) 121 Fed. Rep. 1.

Land withdrawn before passage of Act.—The mere occupation of the public land for the purpose of subsequently entering the same as a homestead, but without actually making such entry until after the lands are withdrawn from entry by order of the secretary of the interior, gives the occupant no right to obtain the title under the provisions of this section after such withdrawal, where the withdrawal was made before the passage of this section. Maddox v. Burnham, (1895) 156 U. S. 544; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Nelson, (1900) 22 Wash. 521.

An act to provide for issuing patents for public lands claimed under the pre-emption and homestead laws in cases where the claimants have become insane.

[Act of June 8, 1880, ch. 136, 21 Stat. L. 166.]

[Perfection of claims of settlers becoming insane.] That in all cases in which parties who regularly initiated claims to public lands as settlers thereon according to the provisions of the pre-emption or homestead laws, have become insane or shall hereafter become insane before the expiration of the time during which their residence, cultivation, or improvement of the land claimed by them is required by law to be continued in order to entitle them to make the proper proof and perfect their claims, it shall be lawful for the required proof and payment to be made for their benefit by any person who may be legally authorized to act for them during their disability, and thereupon their claims shall be confirmed and patented, provided it shall be shown by proof satisfactory to the Commissioner of the General Land Office that the parties complied in good faith with the legal requirements up to the time of their becoming insane, and the requirement in homestead entries of an affidavit of allegiance by the applicant in certain cases as a prerequisite to the issuing of the patents shall be dispensed with so far as regards such insane parties. [21 Stat. L. 166.]

The pre-emption laws were repealed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 4, supra, p. 285.

An act for the relief of homestead settlers in Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan.

[Act of Jan. 19, 1895, ch. 34, 28 Stat. L. 634.]

[Preamble — destruction by forest fires.] Whereas during the summer and autumn of eighteen hundred and ninety-four extensive forest fires prevailed in northern Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan, resulting in the death of many homesteaders and their families, the destruction of their property and effects, and of much of the green timber growing upon them, which homesteads are valuable chiefly for the timber standing and growing on them; and

Whereas under existing law homesteaders are not allowed to cut or sell green or burned timber, except for the purpose of clearing and improving, and all burned timber not cut within a short period will become worthless and a loss to the settler and the Government: Therefore,

[SEC. 1.] [Time for final proof extended in certain burnt districts.] That all such persons actually occupying homesteads in said States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan at the time of such fires, upon claims under the laws of the United States, on lands of the United States, whose property and buildings were destroyed by such fires, and the heirs of all such persons who perished by such fires, and all persons who by reason of such fires and loss of property were obliged to leave their homesteads, are hereby granted two years' additional time in which to make final proof. And temporary absence for any period within two years from the date of this Act shall be deemed constructive possession and residence, but shall not be deducted from the time required to make final proof. [28 Stat. L. 634.]

SEC. 2. [Patents when property burned, etc.] That all persons whose property was destroyed by such fires, and the heirs of all persons who were actual occupants of the homesteads at the time of the fire, and who lost their lives in and by that fire, may, by proving such actual occupancy at the date of such fires, make proof showing compliance with the law up to the date of the fire, and shall make payment at the minimum price under existing statutes, in the same manner as if such claimants were alive, and upon receipt of such proof of loss of property by such fires, or death of the claimant, heirs surviving, and upon payment as aforesaid, a patent shall be issued to such claimant, or his or her heirs. [28 Stat. L. 635.]

SEC. 3. [License to cut burned timber — patents.] That the claimant upon any homestead, who by reason of not having lived thereon the necessary length of time to enable him to commute under section twenty-three hundred and one of the Revised Statutes as amended by the Act of March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, his heirs, executor, administrator, or guardian of his minor heirs, may, when the quantity of timber destroyed upon his or her homestead shall not exceed seventy-five thousand feet of merchantable green timber, file an estimate in the land office where such homestead was entered with such reasonable proofs as the Commissioner of Public Lands may prescribe, as to the quantity of timber destroyed upon any sectional subdivision, and thereupon the register and receiver may, under the direction of the Commissioner of Public Lands, issue a license or permit to cut the burned timber on any homestead or sectional fraction thereof, upon payment of the sum of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre for such sectional subdivision, and the Government shall issue a patent for the same to the claimant or his or her heirs. [28 Stat. L. 635.]

Sec. 2292. [When rights inure to the benefit of infant children.] In case of the death of both father and mother, leaving an infant child or children under twenty-one years of age, the right and fee shall inure to the benefit of such infant child or children; and the executor, administrator, or guardian may, at any time within two years after the death of the surviving parent, and in accordance with the laws of the State in which such children, for the time being, have their domicile, sell the land for the benefit of such infants, but for no other purpose, and the purchaser shall acquire the absolute title by the purchase, and be entitled to a patent from the United States on the payment of the office-fees and sum of money above specified. [R. S.]

Act of June 21, 1866, ch. 127, 14 Stat. L. 67.

Application to Greer county, Oklahoma.

— See infra, div. XIII.

Adult children take equally with minors.

— This section must be construed in connection with section 2291 so as to give effect to both if possible. Hence, if an entryman, after the death of his wife, dies intestate leaving adult and minor children, the land covered by the homestead entry vests in all his children equally, the adult as well as the minor, as the object of the two sections is to provide a method of completing the homestead claim and obtaining a patent therefor and not to establish a line of descent or rule of distribution of the deceased entryman's estate. The purpose of section 2292 is to give to infant children the benefit of the homestead entry and to relieve them, because of their infancy, from the necessity of proving the conditions required by section 2291 when there are only adults or adults and minors, and to allow a sale of the land within a prescribed period for the benefit of such infant children. Bernier v. Bernier, (1893) 147 U. S. 242; Holloman v. Bullock, (1903) 82 Miss. 405; Cranb v. Hambleton, (1885) 86 Mo. 501. Contra, Bernier v. Bernier, (1888) 72 Mich. 43.

"Minors" equivalent to "children under twenty-one years." — A patent issued by the land office after the death of the father and the mother, granting the land entered to "the minor heirs" of the father, passes the title to the children under twenty-one years of age, though by the law of the state where the land is situated some of such children are not minors. Anderson v. Peterson, (1887) 36 Minn. 547.

Sec. 2293. [Persons in military or naval service, when and before whom to make affidavit.] In case of any person desirous of availing himself of the benefits of this chapter; but who, by reason of actual service in the military or naval service of the United States, is unable to do the personal preliminary acts at the district land-office which the preceding sections require; and whose family, or some member thereof, is residing on the land which he desires to enter, and upon which a bona-fide improvement and settlement have been made, such person may make the affidavit required by law before the officer commanding in the branch of the service in which the party is engaged, which affidavit shall be as binding in law, and with like penalties, as if taken before the register or receiver; and upon such affidavit being filed with the register by the wife or other representative of the party, the same shall become effective from the date of such filing, provided the application and affidavit are accompanied by the fee and commissions as required by law. [R. S.]

Sec. 2294. [Officers before whom affidavits, etc., may be made — penalty for false swearing — fees.] That hereafter all affidavits, proofs, and oaths of any kind whatsoever required to be made by applicants and entrymen under the homestead, preemption, timber-culture, desert-land, and timber and stone Acts, may, in addition to those now authorized to take such affidavits, proofs, and oaths, be made before any United States commissioner or commissioner of the court exercising federal jurisdiction in the territory or before the judge or clerk of any court of record in the land district in which the lands are situated: Provided, That in case the affidavits, proofs, and oaths hereinbefore mentioned be taken out of the county in which the land is located the applicant must show by affidavit, satisfactory to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, that it was taken before the nearest or most accessible officer qualified to take said affidavits, proofs, and oaths in the land districts in which the lands applied for are located; but such showing by affidavit need not be made in making final proof if the proof be taken in the town or city where the newspaper is published in which the final proof notice is printed. The proof, affidavit, and oath, when so made and duly subscribed, shall have the same force and effect as if made before the register and receiver, when transmitted to them with the fees and commissions allowed and required by law. That if any witness making such proof, or any applicant making such affidavit or oath, shall knowingly, willfully, or corruptly swear falsely to any material matter contained in said proofs, affidavits, or oaths he shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and shall be liable to the same pains and penalties as if he had sworn falsely before the register. That the fees for entries and for final proofs, when made before any other officer than the register or receiver, shall be as follows:

For each affidavit, twenty-five cents.

For each deposition of claimant or witness, when not prepared by the officer, twenty-five cents.

For each deposition of claimant or witness, prepared by the officer, one dollar.

Any officer demanding or receiving a greater sum for such service shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of March 11, 1902, ch. 182, 32 Stat. L. 63.

The section originally read as follows:

"Sec. 2294. [When persons may make affidavit before clerk of court.] In any case in which the applicant for the benefit of the homestead, and whose family or some member thereof, is residing on the land which he desires to enter, and upon which a bona-fide improvement and settlement have been made, is prevented, by reason of distance, bodily infirmity, or other good cause, from personal attendance at the district land-office, it may be lawful for him to make the affidavit required by law before the clerk of the court for the county in which the applicant is an actual resident, and to transmit the same, with the fee and commissions, to the register and receiver." Act of March 21, 1864, ch. 38, 13 Stat. L. 35.

It was first amended by the Act of May 28, 1890, ch. 355, 26 Stat. L. 121, to read as follows:

"Sec. 2294. In any case in which the applicant for the benefit of the homestead, pre-emption, timber culture, or desert land law is prevented, by reason of distance, bodily infirmity, or other good cause, from personal attendance at the district land office, he or she may make the affidavit required by law before any commissioner of the United States circuit court or the clerk of a court of record for the county in which the land is situated, and transmit the same, with the fee and commissions to the register and receiver. That the proof of settlement, residence, occupation, cultivation, irrigation, or reclamation, the affidavit of non-alienation, the oath of allegiance, and all other affidavits required to be made under the homestead, pre-emption, timber culture, and desert land laws, may be made before any commissioner of the United States circuit court, or before the judge or clerk of any court of record of the county or parish in which the lands are situated; and the proof, affidavit, and oath, when so made and duly subscribed, shall have the same force and effect as if made before the register and receiver, when transmitted to them, with the fee and commissions allowed and required by law. That if any witness making such proof, or any applicant making such affidavit or oath, shall knowingly, willfully, and corruptly swear falsely to any material matter contained in said proofs, affidavits, or oath, he shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and shall be liable to the same pains and penalty as if he had sworn falsely before the register. That the fees for entries and for final proofs, when made before any other officer than the register and receiver shall be as follows:

"For each affidavit, twenty-five cents.

"For each deposition of claimant or witness, when not prepared by the officer, twenty-five cents.

"For each deposition of claimant or witness prepared by the officer one dollar.

"Any officer demanding or receiving a greater sum for such services shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished for each offense by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars."

It was again amended as above stated to read as given in the text.

The pre-emption and timber culture laws were repealed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, secs. 1, 4. See supra, p. 285, and infra, div. XVII.

False oath as to excusatory facts is perjury.—"The Act of March 21, 1864, permitting an applicant to make his affidavit for a homestead entry in a certain contingency, before a clerk, by a necessary implication requires such applicant, before he can avail himself of such privilege, to show by oath that such contingency exists; and that the clerk may, as incidental to his power to take the affidavit, administer such oath. The matter is also material, for on the existence of the excusatory facts depends the power of the clerk to administer the oath to the affidavit, and the right of the applicant to take the same before him, and use it in the land office." Hence, the wilful making of a false affidavit as to such excusatory facts is perjury. U. S. v. Hearing, (1886) 26 Fed. Rep. 744.

Perjury offense against United States, not against state.—When a clerk of a court administers the oath to an affidavit under the provisions of this section, he acts by virtue of the authority conferred by this statute and not under any state law. If the oath is wilfully false, it is an offense against the United States and not against the state. State v. Kirkpatrick, (1877) 32 Ark. 117.

An act to legalize entries of public lands under the homestead laws in certain cases.

[Entries on affidavits made prior to settlement and improvement legalized.] That in all cases of entries of public lands heretofore made under the act entitled "An act to secure homesteads to actual settlers on the public domain," approved May twentieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, where the affidavit required by section two of said act was made before the clerk of the county of the residence of the person making the entry, without having first made the settlement and improvement required by the provisions of section three of the act entitled "An act amendatory of the homestead law, and for other purposes," approved March twenty-first, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, said affidavits be, and the same are hereby, legalized and confirmed, so as to have the same force and validity as if the provisions of said last-named act had been strictly complied with: Provided, That nothing in this act shall have the effect or be construed to impair the valid and paramount adverse rights of any person or corporation to any of such lands, except in so far as the right of Congress to protect the claims or rights of homestead settlers upon lands within the limits of grants of lands to any railroad company may have been reserved in the acts making such grants and be now lawfully existing. [18 Stat. L. 192.]

Acts of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, sec. 2, and March 21, 1864, ch. 38, sec. 3, were incorporated into Revised Statutes as sections 2290 and 2294, respectively.

An act to provide for the validation of affidavits made before United States Commissioners in all land entries.

[Act of Aug. 4, 1894, ch. 211, 28 Stat. L. 227.]

[SEC. 1.] [Validation of entries on unauthorized affidavits.] That all entries under the homestead, pre-emption, timber-culture, or desert-land law made between May twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety, and the date of approval of this Act, and which are based on affidavits made before a United States court commissioner, instead of a United States circuit court commissioner, as provided by the Act of May twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety (twenty-sixth Statute, one hundred and twenty-one), are hereby validated, if no other objection exists; and all final proofs on entries of the classes mentioned made before a United States court commissioner, not a United States circuit court commissioner, between the dates aforesaid will be adjudicated in the same manner as if said proofs were made before an officer authorized by law to take such testimony. [28 Stat. L. 227.]

The Act of May 26, 1890, mentioned in the text is the provision amending R. S. sec. 2294, set out in the note to that section, supra, p. 305.

SEC. 2. [Entries on affidavits validated, if according to official regulations.] That all entries under the homestead, pre-emption, timber-culture, or desert-land law, based on affidavits made before any officer authorized to administer oaths in the State or Territory in which such entries were made, and where such affidavits were made in accordance with the regulations and decisions of the General Land Office prior to the passage of the Act of May twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety, are hereby validated, if no other objection exists. [28 Stat. L. 227.]

See note to section 1, supra.

Sec. 2295. [Record of applications.] The register of the land-office shall note all applications under the provisions of this chapter, on the tract-books and plats of his office, and keep a register of all such entries, and make return thereof to the General Land Office, together with the proof upon which they have been founded. [R. S.]

Act of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, 12 Stat. L. 393.

Sec. 2296. [Homestead lands not to be subject to prior debts.] No lands required under the provisions of this chapter shall in any event become liable to the satisfaction of any debt contracted prior to the issuing of the patent therefor. [R. S.]

Act of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, 12 Stat. L. 393.
Homestead not granted for creditors' benefit. — "Lands acquired under the Homestead Act of Congress are granted for the benefit of the grantee and his family and not for the benefit of antecedent creditors." Lewton v. Hower, (1882) 18 Fla. 872.

Constitutionality of exemption. — The exemption of homesteads acquired under this statute from sale for debts antecedent to the patent is constitutional and valid, and does not violate the sovereignty of the state. Seymour v. Sanders, (1874) 3 Dill. (U. S.) 437, 21 Fed. Cas. No. 12,690; Lewton v. Hower, (1882) 18 Fla. 872; Russell v. Lowth, (1874) 21 Minn. 167; Gile v. Hallock, (1873) 33 Wis. 523. And see Sorrels v. Self, (1884) 43 Ark. 451.

State legislation cannot interfere with the exemption of land acquired under the homestead laws of the United States from sale for indebtedness incurred by the patentee prior to the issuance of the patent, nor can such legislation embarrass the exercise by the patentee of the right of such exemption. Seymour v. Sanders, (1874) 3 Dill. (U. S.) 437, 21 Fed. Cas. No. 12,690; Russell v. Lowth, (1874) 21 Minn. 167.

Homestead land is exempt from sale under an attachment or execution issued on a judgment against the entryman for debts contracted by him before the issuance of the patent. Smith v. Schmitz, (1880) 10 Neb. 600; Baldwin v. Boyd, (1885) 18 Neb. 444; Brandhoefer v. Bain, (1895) 45 Neb. 781; Duell v. Potter, (1897) 51 Neb. 241; Jackett v. Bower, (1901) 62 Neb. 232; Clark v. Bayley, (1874) 5 Oregon 343; Faull v. Cooke, (1890) 19 Oregon 455. And if the land is sold under such an execution, the purchaser acquires no title. Dickerson v. Bridges, (1898) 147 Mo. 235; Dickerson v. Cuthburth, (1894) 56 Mo. App. 647.

Exemption from execution of judgment recovered before homestead entry. — Where, after entering land as a homestead, the entryman made final proof as a pre-emption entry, but occupied the land as a homestead and caused the word "homestead" to be written on the margin of the receiver's final receipt, it was held that it was exempt from execution issued after such final receipt on a judgment rendered before the issuance of the final receipt, as it had not been subjected specifically to a judgment lien by the levy of an execution before it was homesteaded. Weare v. Johnson, (1894) 20 Colo. 363.

Judgment after patent on antecedent debt. — Land entered as a homestead is exempt from sale under an execution based on a judgment for a debt contracted by the entryman prior to the issuance of the patent, notwithstanding the fact that the debt was reduced to judgment after the patent was issued. Miller v. Little, (1874) 47 Cal. 348.

Exemption in bankruptcy proceedings. —

The title to land entered as a homestead does not vest in the trustee in bankruptcy when the entryman becomes a bankrupt so as to become liable for debts contracted prior to the issuance of the patent, as it cannot be held that Congress intended to modify the homestead law by the Bankruptcy Act. In re Daubner, (1899) 96 Fed. Rep. 805.

No lien can be acquired in any manner on land entered under the homestead laws, to secure a debt contracted before the patent therefor is issued. Shorman v. Eakin, (1886) 47 Ark. 351.

Lien for costs of criminal prosecution. — Where the statute of a state provided that in case of the commission or attempt to commit a felony, the state should have a lien from the time of such commission or attempt, on all the property of the defendant for the costs of the proceedings brought against him for such crime, it was held that the lien did not attach to the homestead of an entryman who committed a crime prior to the issuance of a patent for the land homesteaded, and who was convicted after the issuance of the patent, as the title to the land was in the United States at the time the crime was committed. The court, however, expressly refrained from deciding what was the effect on the land of the judgment for costs rendered against the defendant after the issuance of the patent, as the question was not before it. State v. O'Neil, 7 Oregon 141.

Sale of house to enforce mechanic's lien. — The sale of a house located on a homestead, for the purpose of enforcing a mechanic's lien, and the removal of such house from the land homesteaded, do not in any way conflict with the provisions of this section. Mahon v. Surerus, (1899) 9 N. Dak. 57.

And one who has placed machinery upon land entered as a homestead, the patent for which has not been issued, may claim a lien on the machinery itself if its removal will not materially impair the realty, but he cannot claim a lien on the land. Paige v. Peters, (1887) 70 Wis. 178.

But where the statute authorizing a mechanic's lien provides that it shall attach only to the real estate and not to the personal property, the lien cannot attach to land for which the entryman has received no patent and is not entitled to receive a patent, the title to the land being in the United States. Kansas Lumber Co. v. Jones, (1884) 32 Kan. 195.

Meaning of the words "debts contracted." — The words "debts contracted" do not necessarily mean debts or obligations incurred by an agreement of the parties. The word "contract" has a more extensive signification than to make an agreement. In the ordinary acceptance of the term, "debts contracted" will include liabilities incurred. State v. O'Neil, 7 Oregon 141.

Liability for entryman's torts.—The exemption of this section covers the entryman's liability for tort growing out of a breach of a contract warranting the title to certain personal property sold by him. Flanagan v. Forsythe, (1897) 6 Okla. 225.

Note executed after patent for antecedent debt.—Land acquired by homestead entry is not liable to the satisfaction of a debt contracted prior to the issuance of the patent therefor, notwithstanding the fact that the debt is evidenced by a promissory note executed after the issuance of the patent, and if the homestead land is sold under an execution on a judgment recovered on such a note the entryman may recover possession of the land from the purchaser at the execution sale. Wallowa Nat. Bank v. Riley, (1896) 29 Oregon 289; Schultz v. Levy, (1898) 33 Oregon 373.

What is not antecedent debt.—Lands acquired under the homestead laws of the United States are not exempt from execution in satisfaction of a claim for contribution among cosureties, though the principal obligation was incurred prior to the issuance of the patent, if the payment by one of the cosureties upon which the claim of contribution is founded was not made until after the issuance of the patent. Prior to such payment no right of action existed, but only an equity which sprung up at the time the relation of cosureties was created and which did not ripen into a cause of action until the payment was actually made. The equity which theretofore existed cannot be held to be a debt contracted prior to the issuance of the patent within the meaning of this section. Shoemaker v. Stimson, (1896) 16 Wash. 1.

Debts incurred after final certificate but before patent.—It has been held that the land entered as a homestead may be subjected to the satisfaction of debts incurred by the entryman after the issuance of the receiver's final certificate but before the issuance of the patent, for the reason that the final certificate is as binding on the government as the patent, and when the patent issues it relates back to the date of the final certificate. Struby-Estabrook Mercantile Co. v. Davis, (1892) 18 Colo. 93; Leonard v. Ross, (1880) 23 Kan. 292; Flanagan v. Forsythe, (1897) 6 Okla. 225.

Possibly the better opinion is that the land cannot be subjected to the satisfaction of such debts, as this section in plain terms provides that the land shall not "in any event become liable to the satisfaction of any debt contracted prior to the issuing of the patent therefor." And this, too, notwithstanding the fact that upon receiving final certificate the entryman has a perfect equitable title to the land which he may convey, and that when the patent issues it relates back to the final certificate, as the condition or existence of the equitable title is not made the test of liability for antecedent debts. Barnard v. Boller, (1894) 105 Cal. 214; Wallowa Nat. Bank v. Riley, (1896) 29 Oregon 289. See also Miller v. Little, (1874) 47 Cal. 348; Jean v. Dee, (1893) 5 Wash. 580.

Exemption when entryman ceases to reside on land.—The exemption of the land homesteaded for the debts of the entryman incurred prior to the issuance of the patent, continues though the entryman after issuance of the patent ceases to occupy the land as a homestead, for the reason that the homestead laws impose no obligation on the entryman to occupy the land after the issuance of the patent. Jean v. Dee, (1893) 5 Wash. 580.

Right to mortgage before issuance of patent.—Provided he acts in good faith and not for the purpose of evading the prohibition of R. S. sec. 2291, against alienation, the entryman may, after making final proof and receiving the final certificate but before the issuance of the patent, execute a valid mortgage on the land homesteaded, as this section does not limit his right to fix a lien on the land by his own act, but simply protects him from compulsory payment of pre-existing debts.

Alabama.—Smart v. Kennedy, (1898) 123 Ala. 627.

Arkansas.—Gilkerson-Sloss Co. v. Forbes, (1891) 54 Ark. 148.

California.—Orr v. Stewart, (1885) 67 Cal. 275; Klemp v. Northrop, (1902) 137 Cal. 414.

Minnesota.—Lewis v. Wetherell, (1887) 36 Minn. 386.

Missouri.—Dickerson v. Bridges, (1896) 147 Mo. 235; Dickerson v. Cuthburth, (1894) 56 Mo. App. 647.

Nebraska.—Cheney v. White, (1876) 5 Neb. 261; Jones v. Yoakam, (1876) 5 Neb. 265.

Oklahoma.—Farias v. Deeming Invest. Co., (1897) 5 Okla. 496; Stark v. Duvall, (1898) 7 Okla. 213.

Oregon.—Howard v. Reckling, (1897) 31 Oregon 161.

Washington.—Boggan v. Reid, (1889) 1 Wash. 514; Weber v. Laidler, (1901) 26 Wash. 144; Towner v. Rodegeb, (1903) 33 Wash. 153.

Wisconsin.—Meinhold v. Walters, (1899) 102 Wis. 389.

Even if the mortgage is executed before the making of final proof and the issuance of final certificate, it is valid. Fuller v. Hunt, (1878) 48 Iowa 163; Lang v. Morey, (1889) 40 Minn. 396; Forgy v. Merryman, (1883) 14 Neb. 513; Orr v. Ulyatt, (1896) 23 Nev. 134; Spieass v. Neuberg, (1888) 71 Wis. 279.

And it seems that if one who is in possession of public lands mortgages them in fee, and afterwards acquires a title to the same under the homestead laws, he is estopped from denying the lien of the mortgage or setting up the title afterwards voluntarily acquired for the purpose of defeating it. Weber v. Laidler, (1901) 26 Wash. 144; Kirkaldie v. Larrabee, (1866) 31 Cal. 456.

But it has been held that where the entryman after making the entry executes a mortgage on the land entered and subsequently dies before making the final proof required by the statute, the mortgage is ineffectual to create a valid lien as against his heirs at law, who perfect the entry, make the required final proof of settlement and cultivation, and obtain from the government a patent to the land included in and acquired by such entry. Marley v. Sturkert, (1901) 62 Neb. 163.

Mortgage executed by entryman before entry.—Where a person after filing an application for a pre-emption of certain public land and executing a mortgage thereon filed a voluntary relinquishment of his pre-emption claim and immediately thereafter made an application for homestead entry of the same land, it was held that the two proceedings were entirely distinct and that the mortgage did not attach to the homestead entry. At the time of the execution of the mortgage the entryman had no vested right, but merely an inchoate undetermined claim liable to be defeated by his own act or that of the government if he did not carry out the provisions of the law, and the mortgagee took the mortgage with notice of the entryman's title and rights. Hebert v. Brown, (1895) 65 Fed. Rep. 2.

Priority of mortgages.—Where the entryman executes a mortgage on the land entered before issuance of a patent, and the mortgage is recorded the same day, the lien thereon is superior to the lien of a mortgage executed by the entryman after he has commuted his homestead entry into a cash entry and received his final receipt. Dickerson v. Bridges, (1898) 147 Mo. 235.

Estoppel of entryman to repudiate mortgage.—This section is a protection to the homesteader and not a limitation upon his right to borrow money on the land secured by a mortgage, and the homesteader cannot after executing the mortgage deny its validity under the provisions of this section. Stark v. Duvall, (1898) 7 Okla. 213.

Mortgage to procure money for commutation.—Where the entryman after filing his final affidavits in the proper land office, showing his settlement, residence, improvement, and nonalienation of the land, and also his affidavit of his right to commute the homestead to a cash entry, executes a mortgage on the land to procure money to pay the commutation price, the mortgage so executed is valid. McFall v. Murray, (1896) 4 Kan. App. 554. And see infra, R. S. 2301.

Exemption in hands of bona fide purchaser.—The terms of this section clearly exempt all lands obtained under the acts of which it is a part from liability for any of the debts of the entryman incurred prior to the issuance of the patent, whether the lands are still held by him or by a bona fide purchaser deriving title from him. Russell v. Lowth, (1874) 21 Minn. 167; Dickerson v. Cuthburth, (1894) 56 Mo. App. 647; Smith v. Steele, (1882) 13 Neb. 1; Baldwin v. Boyd, (1885) 18 Neb. 444; Clark v. Bayley, (1874) 5 Ore. 343.

But "manifestly the provision under consideration was intended as a protection to the homestead settler, the patentee, and not to exempt the land acquired under the law from the payment of the debts of a subsequent owner, although incurred prior to the date of the patent." Duell v. Potter, (1897) 51 Neb. 241.

Exemption when patentee re-acquires land after sale thereof.—Where a homestead en-tryman, after receiving his patent, conveyed the land to another and subsequently re-acquired title thereto, it was held that the land was exempt from liability for debts incurred by him prior to the issuance of the patent. The court said: "Our conclusion is that a particular tract of land acquired under the federal Homestead Law is forever exempt from liability for the debts of the patentee, created before patent issued, and this, without regard to whether he remains the owner or regains the ownership." Brandhoefer v. Bain, (1895) 45 Neb. 781, followed in Van Doren v. Miller, (1901) 14 S. Dak. 264. Contra, De Lany v. Knapp, (1896) 111 Cal. 165, which, after holding that the patentee when he subsequently acquired title to the homestead took it divested of its exemption, also held that the title of a bona fide purchaser for value and without notice at the execution sale, made after the reconveyance, was not affected by a secret trust impressed on the property by the entryman at the time he transferred the homestead, the transfer having been made for the purpose of placing the property beyond the reach of his creditors.

Exemption in hands of devisee.—When a homestead entryman dies before acquiring title to the land entered and after having devised it, the devisee, upon perfecting his title pursuant to U. S. R. S. 2291, acquires the land exempt from liability for the entryman's debts under the provisions of this section. Coleman v. McCormick, (1887) 37 Minn. 179.

Exemption in the hands of widow or heirs.—When an entryman dies before issuance of the patent, his widow or heirs have the right to acquire title to the homestead and hold the land free from the claims of the creditors of the original entryman. Sorrels v. Self, (1884) 43 Ark. 451. And see Towner v. Rodegeb, (1903) 33 Wash. 153.

Exemption of inchoate homestead right—sale by administrator.—Where the entryman died intestate before issuance of a patent, and his administrator sold the land for the purpose of paying the debts of the estate and expenses of the administration, the court, in holding that the sale was void, said: "If the homestead itself, with title acquired, cannot be subjected to liability for debts contracted before the issuance of patent, it would seem to follow with equal force that the homesteader's mere right to possession of land, not even entered, together with his improvements thereon, is likewise exempt from such liability. If execution for debts contracted before patent cannot be enforced against a homestead, either acquired or inchoate, it follows that such debts cannot be enforced against it by the processes of administration, as was attempted to be done in this case. If the improvements and right of possession of the settler when living cannot be sold to satisfy his debts, the mere fact of death does not change the principle." Towner v. Rodegeb, (1903) 33 Wash. 153.

Collateral attack of administrator's sale for antecedent debts.—Notwithstanding the exemption granted by this section, a judgment of a probate court ordering the administrator to sell land entered as a homestead by the deceased for the payment of debts contracted prior to the issuance of the patent therefor cannot be attacked collaterally, unless the fact that such debts antedate the patent appears in the record of the probate court's proceedings. Such a judgment can be reviewed only on appeal or other direct proceeding. J. B. Watkins Land Mortg. Co. v. Mullen, (1900) 62 Kan. 1.

Sec. 2297. [When lands entered for homestead revert to Government.] If, at any time after the filing of the affidavit, as required in section twenty-two hundred and ninety, and before the expiration of the five years mentioned in section twenty-two hundred and ninety-one, it is proved, after due notice to the settler, to the satisfaction of the register of the land-office, that the person having filed such affidavit has actually changed his residence, or abandoned the land for more than six months at any time, then and in that event the land so entered shall revert to the Government. Provided, That where there may be climatic reasons the Commissioner of the General Land Office may, in his discretion, allow the settler twelve months from the date of filing in which to commence his residence on said land under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe. [R. S.]

Act of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, 12 Stat. L. 393.

This section was amended by the Act of March 3, 1881, ch. 153, 21 Stat. L. 511, by adding the proviso as set forth in the text.

Jurisdiction of land department over contests.—The general power of the United States land department to determine all contests arising under the statutes granting rights to acquire title to the public lands of the United States, is sufficient to give the land department jurisdiction of contests arising under the provisions of the Forfeiture Act of Sept. 29, 1890, securing a preference right of purchase to licensees from the state or corporation to which the land had been granted, or to settlers upon such land, notwithstanding the fact that the causes of contest prescribed by this section do not include those based on such preferential right. Wiseman v. Eastman, (1899) 21 Wash. 163.

And the failure of the register of a land office on a cancellation of a homestead entry under this section to find affirmatively that the entryman had abandoned his claim for six months would not affect his jurisdiction to forfeit and cancel the entry for other causes. Lawrence v. Potter, (1900) 22 Wash. 32.

Regulation requiring contests to be heard before register and receiver.—The rule of the land department requiring contests to be heard before the register and the receiver of the local land office, made under authority of the supervisory powers in public land matters given by statute to the secretary of the interior, which rule has been acquiesced in and become the settled practice of the department, must be held by the courts as in aid of this section, which names the register alone as the tribunal before whom such hearing shall be had, inasmuch as there is nothing in the rule prejudicial to contestants, since the contest is reviewable on appeal to higher divisions of the department. Lawrence v. Potter, (1900) 22 Wash. 32.

Even if the action of the register and receiver of a land office in deciding a contest may have been so far in derogation of this section as to be irregular, a contestant complaining thereof is estopped to raise the objection in the courts when he has failed to raise the point before the local land office, the commissioner of public lands, or the secretary of the interior. Carr v. Fife, (1895) 156 U. S. 494; Lawrence v. Potter, (1900) 22 Wash. 32.

Voluntary relinquishment by entryman.—Notwithstanding the fact that this section provides for a contest, an entryman could relinquish his entry prior to the passage of the Act of May 14, 1880 (21 U. S. Stat. L. 140). There could have been no higher or more convincing evidence of abandonment of the entry than the testimony of the entryman himself by a formal relinquishment of his rights to the land indorsed on his original receipt and filed in the land office. After such proof of abandonment, it would have been a useless form to have required a contest to prove the very thing that was admitted and asserted by the original entryman. Keane v. Brygger, (1895) 160 U. S. 276; Keane v. Brygger, (1891) 3 Wash. 338. And see supra, note to Act of May 14, 1880, 21 U. S. Stat. L. 140, which is set out under R. S. 2291, supra, p. 300.

Recovery of sum paid for entry.—It is not within the discretion of a person to enter land under the homestead laws and at pleasure relinquish it without completing the transaction, as the obligation is not unilateral in its character, but is binding on the entryman as well as on the government. Hence, where the entryman, after properly entering a homestead, voluntarily relinquishes his rights, he has no cause of action for the sum paid to initiate the entry, even though such sum includes the purchase price of the excess over one hundred and sixty acres contained in a technical quarter section entered by him. Tietin v. U. S., (1900) 36 Ct. Cl. 1, and see supra, note R. S. 2289, p. 286.

An act for the relief of settlers on the public lands in districts subject to grasshopper incursions.

[SEC. 1.] [Leave of absence where crops injured by grasshoppers.] That it shall be lawful for homestead and pre-emption settlers on the public lands, and in all cases where pre-emptions are authorized by law, where crops have been or may be destroyed or seriously injured by grasshoppers, to leave and be absent from said lands, under such rules and regulations, as to proof of the same, as the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall prescribe; but in no case shall such absence extend beyond one year continuously; and during such absence no adverse rights shall attach to said lands, such settlers being allowed to resume and perfect their settlement as though no such absence had occurred. [21 Stat. L. 48.]

See more extensive provisions of following Act.

Previous Acts permitting absence of settlers in specified years on account of injury by grasshoppers are as follows: Act of June 18, 1874, ch. 308, 18 Stat. L. 81; Act of Dec. 28, 1874, ch. 10, 18 Stat. L. 294;

Act of May 20, 1876, ch. 102, 19 Stat. L. 54; Act of June 19, 1876, ch. 134, 19 Stat. L. 59; Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 127, 19 Stat. L. 405; Act of June 1, 1878, ch. 148, 20 Stat. L. 88; Act of June 14, 1878, ch. 190, 20 Stat. L. 113.

SEC. 2. [Time for making proof and payment may be extended.] That the time for making final proof and payment by pre-emptors whose crops shall have been destroyed or injured as aforesaid, may, in the discretion of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, be extended for one year after the expiration of the term of absence provided for in the first section of this act; * * * [21 Stat. L. 48.]

The omitted portion of the section relates to settlers under the timber culture laws which were repealed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 1.

See more extensive provisions of Rea. of Sept. 30, 1890, No. 59, infra, p. 311.

The pre-emption laws were repealed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 4, supra, p. 285.

SEC. 3. [Leave of absence on account of failure of crops, sickness, or other unavoidable casualty.] That whenever it shall be made to appear to the register and receiver of any public land office, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, that any settler upon the public domain under existing law is unable by reason of a total or partial destruction or failure of crops, sickness, or other unavoidable casualty, to secure a support for himself, herself, or those dependent upon him or her upon the lands settled upon, then such register and receiver may grant to such settler a leave of absence from the claim upon which he or she has filed for a period not exceeding one year at any one time, and such settler so granted leave of absence shall forfeit no rights by reason of such absence: Provided, That the time of such actual absence shall not be deducted from the actual residence required by law. That if any such settler has heretofore forfeited his or her entry for any of said reasons, such person shall be permitted to make entry of, not to exceed a quarter section on any public land subject to entry under the homestead law, and to perfect title to the same under the same conditions in every respect as if he had not made the former entry. [25 Stat. L. 854, 28 Stat. L. 599.]

This is from the Act of March 2, 1889, ch. 381, "An act to withdraw certain public lands from private entry, and for other purposes," as amended by the Act of Dec. 29, 1894, ch. 14. The amendatory act added the closing provision beginning with the words "That if any such settler has heretofore forfeited," etc.

Joint resolution to extend the time of payment to settlers on the public lands in certain cases.

[Res. No. 59, of Sept. 30, 1890, 26 Stat. L. 684.]

[Extension of time for payments when prevented by failure of crops, etc.] That whenever it shall appear by the filing of such evidence in the offices of any register and receiver as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior that any settler on the public lands, by reason of a failure of crops for which he is in no wise responsible, is unable to make the payment on his homestead or pre-emption claim required by law, the Commissioner of the General Land Office is hereby authorized to extend the time for such payment for not exceeding one year from the date when the same becomes due. [26 Stat. L. 684.]

An Act Granting leave of absence for one year to homestead settlers upon the Yankton Indian Reservation, in the State of South Dakota, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Leave of absence to homesteaders on ceded Yankton Indian Reservation.] That all settlers who made settlement under the homestead laws upon lands in the Yankton Indian Reservation, in the State of South Dakota, during the year eighteen hundred and ninety-five are hereby granted leave of absence from such homestead for one year from and after the date of this Act, and that by such absence such homestead settler shall not lose nor forfeit any right whatever: Provided, That the settler shall not receive credit upon the period of actual residence required by law for the time he is absent hereunder. [29 Stat. L. 16.]

SEC. 2. [Notice to be filed.] That any such homestead settler may avail himself of the benefits of this Act by filing a notice with the local land office describing his land and date of settlement thereon, which notice shall be signed by the settler and attested by the register of the land office. [29 Stat. L. 16.]

SEC. 3. [Time of making final proof, etc., as to ceded lands extended.] That the time for making final proof and payment for all lands located under the homestead laws of the United States upon any lands of any former Indian reservation in the State of South Dakota, be, and the same is hereby, extended for the period of one year from the time proof and payment would become due under existing laws. [29 Stat. L. 16.]

"The first two sections of this Act relate only to the Yankton Indian reservation, which was opened to settlement under the homestead and town-site laws by 1894, Aug. 15, ch. 290, sec. 12 (28 Stat. L. 314-319).

"The last section applies generally to 'any former Indian reservation in the state of South Dakota,' and would, therefore, embrace that portion of the great Sioux reservation lying within that state, and which was opened to settlement by 1891, March 3, ch. 543, secs. 26-30 (26 Stat. L. 1035-1039). See proclamation of the President, 1892, April 11, Proc. No. 22 (27 Stat. L. 1017).

"By 1896, June 10, ch. 398, homestead settlers on all ceded Indian reservations are granted an extension of one year in which to make payments." Compilers' note, 2 Supp. R. S. 448.

[SEC. 1.] [Time to make payments extended.] * * * That the homestead settlers on all ceded Indian reservations be, and they are hereby, granted an extension of one year in which to make payments as now provided by law. * * * [29 Stat. L. 342.]

[SEC. 1.] [Time to make payments extended.] * * * That the settlers who purchased with the condition annexed of actual settlement on all ceded Indian reservations be, and they are hereby, granted an extension of one year, in addition to the extensions heretofore granted, in which to make payments as now provided by law. * * * [30 Stat. L. 87.]

This is from the Indian Department Appropriation Act of June 7, 1897, ch. 3. See further Lands in Oklahoma, div. XIII.

[SEC. 1.] [Time to make payments extended.] * * * That the settlers who purchased with the condition annexed of actual settlement on all ceded Indian reservations be, and they are hereby, granted an extension to July first, nineteen hundred and one, in which to make payments as now provided by law. * * * [31 Stat. L. 241.]

Sec. 2298. [Limitation of amount entered for homestead.] No person shall be permitted to acquire title to more than one quarter-section under the provisions of this chapter. [R. S.]

Act of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, 12 Stat. L. 393.

Estoppel of creditor to question homesteader's title.—Where a creditor sought to subject to the satisfaction of his debt land devised to his debtor by the entryman, it was held that he was estopped from claiming that the provisions of this section forbade the debtor to acquire title to the land devised to him because of a previous exercise of the homestead right, as the creditor's claim to subject the land to his debt was based on the fact that the title was in his debtor. Coleman v. McCormick, (1887) 37 Minn. 179. And see supra, note R. S. 2296, p. 307.

[SEC. 1.] [Acquirement of title under land laws limited to 320 acres.] No person who shall after the passage of this act, enter upon any of the public lands with a view to occupation, entry or settlement under any of the land laws shall be permitted to acquire title to more than three hundred and twenty acres in the aggregate, under all of said laws, but this limitation shall not operate to curtail the right of any person who has heretofore made entry or settlement on the public lands, or whose occupation, entry or settlement, is validated by this act: * * * [26 Stat. L. 391.]

An act to grant additional rights to homestead settlers on public lands within railroad limits.

[Entries within limits of grants to or in aid of railroad or military road companies — additional entries.] That from and after the passage of this act, the even sections within the limits of any grant of public lands to any railroad company, or to any military road company, or to any State in aid of any railroad or military road, shall be open to settlers under the homestead laws to the extent of one hundred and sixty acres to each settler, and any person who has, under existing laws, taken a homestead on any even section within the limits of any railroad or military road land-grant, and who, by existing laws shall have been restricted to eighty acres, may enter under the homestead laws an additional eighty acres adjoining the land embraced in his original entry, if such additional land be subject to entry; or if such person so elect, he may surrender his entry to the United States for cancellation, and thereupon be entitled to enter lands under the homestead laws the same as if the surrendered entry had not been made. And any person so making additional entry of eighty acres, or new entry after the surrender and cancellation of his original entry, shall be permitted so to do without payment of fees and commissions; and the residence and cultivation of such person upon and of the land embraced in his original entry shall be considered residence and cultivation for the same length of time upon and of the land embraced in his additional or new entry, and shall be deducted from the five years' residence and cultivation required by law: Provided, That in no case shall patent issue upon an additional or new homestead entry under this act until the person has actually, and in conformity with the homestead laws, occupied, resided upon, and cultivated the land embraced therein at least one year. [20 Stat. L. 472.]

An act to grant additional rights to homestead settlers on public lands within railroad limits in the States of Missouri and Arkansas.

[Entries within limits of grants to or in aid of railroads in Missouri and Arkansas — additional entries.] That from and after the passage of this act the odd sections within the limits of any grant of public lands to any railroad company in the States of Missouri and Arkansas, or to such States respectively, in aid of any railroad where the even sections have been granted to and received by any railroad company or by such States respectively in aid of any railroad shall be open to settlers under the homestead laws to the extent of one hundred and sixty acres to each settler; and any person who has under existing laws taken a homestead on any section within the limits of any railroad grant in said States, and who by existing laws shall have been restricted to eighty acres, may enter under the homestead laws an additional eighty acres adjoining the land embraced in his original entry, if such additional land be subject to entry; or if such person so select, he may surrender his entry to the United States for cancellation, and thereupon be entitled to enter lands under the homestead laws the same as if the surrendered entry had not been made. And any person so making additional entry of eighty acres, or new entry after the cancellation of his original entry, shall be permitted to do so without payment of fees or commissions; and the residence of such person upon and cultivation of the land embraced in his original entry shall be considered residence and cultivation for the same length of time upon and of the land embraced in his additional or new entry, and shall be deducted from the five year's residence and cultivation required by law: Provided, That in no case shall patent issue upon an additional or new homestead entry under this act until the person has actually, and in conformity with the homestead laws, occupied, resided upon, and cultivated the land embraced therein at least one year. [21 Stat. L. 46.]

An act to protect homestead settlers within railway limits and for other purposes.

[Patents for additional entries without further cost or proof.] That all homestead settlers on public lands within the railway limits restricted to less than one hundred and sixty acres of land, who have heretofore made or may hereafter make the additional entry allowed either by the act approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, or the act approved July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, after having made final proof of settlement and cultivation under the original entry, shall be entitled to have the lands covered by the additional entry patented without any further cost or proof of settlement and cultivation. [24 Stat. L. 22.]

An act to withdraw certain public lands from private entry, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Withdrawal from private entry. See p. 334.]

SEC. 2. [Homestead entry after former unperfected entry — pre-emption entry changed to homestead entry.] That any person who has not heretofore perfected title to a tract of land of which he has made entry under the homestead law, may make a homestead entry of not exceeding one-quarter section of public land subject to such entry, such previous filing or entry to the contrary notwithstanding; but this right shall not apply to persons who perfect title to lands under the pre-emption or homestead laws already initiated; Provided, That all pre-emption settlers upon the public lands whose claims have been initiated prior to the passage of this act may change such entries to homestead entries and proceed to perfect their titles to their respective claims under the homestead law notwithstanding they may have heretofore had the benefit of such law, but such settlers who perfect title to such claims under the homestead law shall not thereafter be entitled to enter other lands under the pre-emption or homestead laws of the United States. [25 Stat. L. 854.]

The Act of June 14, 1878, ch. 189, "An Act for the relief of settlers on the public lands under the pre-emption laws," provided as follows:

"That any person who has made a settlement on the public lands under the pre-emption laws, and has subsequent to such settlement changed his filing in pursuance of law to that for a homestead entry upon the same tract of land shall be entitled subject to all the provisions of law relating to homesteads to have the time required to perfect his title under the homestead laws computed from the date of his original settlement heretofore made, or hereafter to be made, under the pre-emption laws." [20 Stat. L. 113.]

Similar provisions were contained in the Acts of March 3, 1877, ch. 123, 19 Stat. L. 404; May 27, 1878, ch. 140, 20 Stat. L. 63.

SEC. 3. [Leave of absence on account of failure of crops, sickness, or other unavoidable casualty. See p. 311.]

SEC. 4. [Price of forfeited railroad lands. See p. 335.]

SEC. 5. [Additional entry of contiguous land up to one quarter-section in the aggregate.] That any homestead settler who has heretofore entered less than one-quarter section of land may enter other and additional land lying contiguous to the original entry, which shall not, with the land first entered and occupied, exceed in the aggregate one hundred and sixty acres without proof of residence upon and cultivation of the additional entry; and if final proof of settlement and cultivation has been made for the original entry, when the additional entry is made, then the patent shall issue without further proof: Provided, That this section shall not apply to or for the benefit of any person who at the date of making application for entry hereunder does not own and occupy the lands covered by his original entry: And provided, That if the original entry should fail for any reason, prior to patent or should appear to be illegal or fraudulent, the additional entry shall not be permitted, or if having been initiated shall be canceled. [25 Stat. L. 854.]

SEC. 6. [Additional entry after final proof up to one quarter-section in the aggregate.] That every person entitled, under the provisions of the homestead laws, to enter a homestead, who has heretofore complied with or who shall hereafter comply with the conditions of said laws, and who shall have made his final proof thereunder for a quantity of land less than one hundred and sixty acres and received the receiver's final receipt therefor, shall be entitled under said laws to enter as a personal right, and not assignable, by legal subdivisions of the public lands of the United States subject to homestead entry, so much additional land as added to the quantity previously so entered by him shall not exceed one hundred and sixty acres: Provided, That in no case shall patent issue for the land covered by such additional entry until the person making such additional entry shall have actually and in conformity with the homestead laws resided upon and cultivated the lands so additionally entered and otherwise fully complied with such laws: Provided, also, That this section shall not be construed as affecting any rights as to location of soldiers certificates heretofore issued under section two thousand three hundred and six of the Revised Statutes. [25 Stat. L. 854.]

SEC. 7. [Time extended for taking final proof. See p. 299.]

SEC. 8. [Abandoned military reservation act not repealed.] That nothing in this act shall be construed as suspending, repealing or in any way rendering inoperative the provisions of the act entitled, "An act to provide for the disposal of abandoned and useless military reservations," approved July fifth, eighteen hundred and eighty-four. [25 Stat. L. 855.]

Sec. 2299. [Existing pre-emption rights not impaired.] Nothing contained in this chapter shall be so construed as to impair or interfere in any manner with existing pre-emption rights; and all persons who may have filed their applications for a pre-emption right prior to the twentieth day of May, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, shall be entitled to all the privileges of this chapter. [R. S.]

Sec. 2300. [What minors may have the privileges of this chapter.] No person who has served, or may hereafter serve, for a period not less than fourteen days in the Army or Navy of the United States, either regular or volunteer, under the laws thereof, during the existence of an actual war, domestic or foreign, shall be deprived of the benefits of this chapter on account of not having attained the age of twenty-one years. [R. S.]

Act of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, 12 Stat. L. 393.

Sec. 2301. [Payment after expiration of fourteen months — rights of applicant.] Nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to prevent any person who shall hereafter avail himself of the benefits of section twenty-two hundred and eighty-nine from paying the minimum price for the quantity of land so entered at any time after the expiration of fourteen calendar months from the date of such entry, and obtaining a patent therefor, upon making proof of settlement and of residence and cultivation for such period of fourteen months, and the provision of this section shall apply to lands on the ceded portion of the Sioux Reservation by act approved March second, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine in South Dakota and in the State of Nebraska, but shall not relieve said settlers from any payments now required by law. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Acts of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 6, 26 Stat. L. 1098, and Nov. 1, 1893, ch. 7, 28 Stat. L. 4, the latter Act merely adding the words "and in the state of Nebraska" following the words "South Dakota" in the section as given above.

The section originally read as follows:

"Sec. 2301. Nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to prevent any person who has availed himself of the benefits of section twenty-two hundred and eighty-nine, from paying the minimum price for the quantity of land so entered, at any time before the expiration of the five years, and obtaining a patent therefor from the Government, as in other cases directed by law, on making proof of settlement and cultivation as provided by law, granting pre-emption rights." Act of May 20, 1862, ch. 75, 12 Stat. L. 393.

The Act of March 2, 1889, ch. 405, 25 Stat. L. 888, mentioned in the section, has been omitted from this work as local. The proclamation declaring the lands open was made Feb. 10, 1890, Proc. No. 9, 26 Stat. L. 1554.

"Commuted homestead entry." — "If the homestead settler does not wish to remain five years on the land, the law permits him to pay for it with cash, and to obtain a patent therefor from the government. In other words, he may abandon his rights under the homestead law and avail himself of the benefits of the law granting pre-emption rights. * * * When this is done it is called a 'commuted homestead entry.'" U. S. v. Howard, (1889) 37 Fed. Rep. 666.

Commutation is not pre-emption. — The commutation of a homestead entry under this section is not an exercise of the right of pre-emption. Johnson v. Bridal Veil Lumbering Co., (1893) 24 Oregon 182, citing 4 Dec. Dept. Int. 441, 6 Dec. Dept. Int. 288.

Commutation of homestead confers new title. — Where an entryman, without complying with the conditions which are precedent to his right to obtain a homestead patent, elects and is permitted to surrender his homestead claim and to pay for the land as a pre-emptor, he makes a new and original entry, and the patent which is issued in pursuance thereof gives him a new title to the land. Hence, he is not concluded by a judgment in an action of ejectment covering the land homesteaded, rendered after the original application but before commutation of the homestead, as the bar of a judgment in such an action is limited to the rights of the parties as they existed at the time it was rendered, and neither the parties nor their privies are precluded by such judgment from showing in a subsequent action any new matters occurring after its rendition which give the defeated party a title or right of possession. Thrift v. Delaney, (1886) 69 Cal. 188.

Effect of commutation on homestead exemption. — The entryman, by commuting his homestead and paying for the land under the pre-emption laws, does not lose the right to hold the land free from liability to sale for debts incurred by him prior to the issuance of the patent, notwithstanding the fact that he obtains his title, so far as the patent is concerned, under the laws regulating the granting of pre-emption rights. Lewton v. Hower, (1882) 18 Fla. 872; Baldwin v. Boyd, (1885) 18 Neb. 444; Clark v. Bayley, (1874) 5 Oregon 343. And see supra, R. S. 2296.

Qualified pre-emptor not estopped by entering homestead. — "In the absence of an adverse claim, a qualified pre-emptor is not deprived of his right to enter and purchase land as such, by the fact that he made an application for and occupied the land as a homestead before he declared his intention to become a citizen." Bogan v. Edinburgh American Land Mortg. Co., (C. C. A. 1894) 63 Fed. Rep. 192.

Cancellation of patent for fraudulent commutation. — In a suit to cancel a patent, on the ground that the patentee's final proof for the commutation of his homestead entry was insufficient in the matter of residence and cultivation to entitle him to a commutation, where the bill failed to state any facts that would have justified the cancellation of the homestead entry, the court, in refusing the relief sought, said: "There is a wide distinction between the cancellation by the land department of a homestead entry and a refusal by the same authority of an application by the settler for patent before the expiration of the homestead limit of five years. To justify the former action—that is, cancellation of a homestead entry—affirmative testimony must be adduced that the settler has changed his residence or abandoned the land for more than six months.” Savage v. Worsham, (1896) 72 Fed. Rep. 601.

Perjury cannot be predicated of an oath to immaterial and irrelevant statements, no matter how false such statements may be. Thus where a homestead entryman, on his application for commutation of his homestead entry under this section, makes the affidavit required of an original applicant for homestead entry, but not required of an applicant for the commutation of such entry, the oath is as to immaterial and irrelevant matter and cannot support a conviction for perjury. U. S. v. Howard, (1889) 37 Fed. Rep. 666.

An Act Relating to commutations of homestead entries, and to confirm such entries when commutation proofs were received by local land officers prematurely.

[Sec. 1.] [Prematurely commuted homestead entries confirmed.] That whenever it shall appear to the Commissioner of the General Land Office that an error has heretofore been made by the officers of any local land office in receiving premature commutation proofs under the homestead laws, and that there was no fraud practiced by the entryman in making such proofs, and final payment has been made and a final certificate of entry has been issued to the entryman, and that there are no adverse claimants to the land described in the certificates of entry whose rights originated prior to making such final proofs, and that no other reason why the title should not vest in the entryman exists except that the commutation was made less than fourteen months from the date of the homestead settlement, and that there was at least six months' actual residence in good faith by the homestead entryman on the land prior to such commutation, such certificates of entry shall be in all things confirmed to the entryman, his heirs, and legal representatives, as of the date of such final certificate of entry and a patent issue thereon; and the title so patented shall inure to the benefit of any grantee or transferee in good faith of such entryman subsequent to the date of such final certificate: Provided, That this Act shall not apply to commutation and homestead entries on which final certificates have been issued, and which have heretofore been canceled when the lands made vacant by such cancellation have been reentered under the homestead Act. [29 Stat. L. 197.]

“By R. S. sec. 2301, homestead claimants were allowed to commute on making proof of settlement and cultivation as provided by law granting pre-emption rights.

“By 1891, March 3, ch. 561, sec. 6, R. S. sec. 2301, was amended so as to allow commutation on proof of settlement, residence, and cultivation for the period of fourteen months after the date of the entry.

“By 1890, May 2, ch. 182, sec. 21, settlers in (old) Oklahoma were allowed to pay for the land at $1.25 per acre and receive a patent after twelve months from the date of locating upon the homestead, on showing compliance with all the laws relating to homestead settlement.

“By 1893, Oct. 20, ch. 5, sec. 2, settlers upon the Absentee Shawnee, Pottawatomie, and Cheyenne and Arapahoe lands were allowed to pay for the land at $1.50 per acre, and settlers on the public-land strip at $1.25 per acre, and obtain a patent therefor by showing a compliance with all the laws relating to homestead settlement to date of proof, at the expiration of twelve months from the date of locating upon the homestead.

“By 1894, Aug. 15, ch. 290, sec. 19 (28 Stat. L. 336), the right of commutation was extended to all bona fide settlers on lands in the Cherokee Outlet after fourteen months from date of settlement upon full payment for the lands at the prices provided in said Act.

“Sec. 2 of the Act in the text renders the period of commutation uniform at fourteen months, and section 1 confirms all prior commutations made in good faith after six months' residence on the land, but in less than fourteen months.” Compilers' note, 2 Supp. R. S. 492.

Six months' residence before entry.—The six months' residence required by this Act as a condition of the right to commute the homestead entry, may be had any time before commutation and need not be subsequent to entry. This is true though the statute requires residence by the homestead "entryman." The courts will not give extraordinary force to the word "entryman" by holding that residence by an entryman can exist only after entry, as the word is used in other sections of the homestead laws as merely descriptive of the persons to whom the laws apply. McCord v. Hill, (1901) 111 Wis. 527. See also McCord v. Hill, (1903) 117 Wis. 306.

SEC. 2. [Commutation allowable after fourteen months.] That all commutations of homestead entries shall be allowed after the expiration of fourteen months from date of settlement. [29 Stat. L. 197.]

SEC. 3. [Repeal.] That all Acts and parts of Acts in conflict with any of the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed. [29 Stat. L. 197.]

An Act For the relief of the Colorado Cooperative Colony; to permit second homesteads in certain cases, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Temporary, and expired.]

SEC. 2. [Additional entry to homesteaders commuting first entry.] That any person who has heretofore made entry under the homestead laws and commuted same under provisions of section twenty-three hundred and one of the Revised Statutes of the United States and the amendments thereto shall be entitled to the benefits of the homestead laws, as though such former entry had not been made, except that commutation under the provisions of section twenty-three hundred and one of the Revised Statutes shall not be allowed of an entry made under this section of this Act. [31 Stat. L. 269.]

"In the report by the commissioner of the general land office on the bill containing the provisions embodied in the second and third sections of the above Act (Senate Rep. 1155, Fifty-sixth Congress, first session) it was said:

"The Act is practically an extension of the privilege conferred by the second section of the Act of March 2, 1889, except as to that provision of the bill now under consideration which makes subject to its provisions all homestead entries which have been perfected under the commutation clause of the homestead law.

"Such a provision, however, was embodied in the Act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. L. 1004), providing for the disposal of the Seminole lands in the Territory of Oklahoma; also in the Act of February 13, 1891 (26 Stat. L. 759), providing for the disposal of lands in Oklahoma acquired by agreement with the Sac and Fox Indians; also in the Act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. L. 1043), providing for the disposal of the lands in Montana ceded by the Crow Indians, and in the Act of March 3, 1893 (27 Stat. L. 563), providing for the disposal of the Kickapoo lands in Oklahoma—all of which provided that any person who, having attempted to, but from any cause failed to, acquire a title in fee under the homestead law, or who made entry under what is known as the commutation provision of the homestead law, shall be qualified to make homestead entry of said land.

"The Act of Sept. 29, 1890, restoring to settlement forfeited railroad lands, also contained the provision that 'any person who has not heretofore had the benefit of the homestead or pre-emption laws, or who has from any cause failed to perfect the title to a tract of land heretofore entered by him under either of said laws, may make a second homestead entry under the provisions of this Act.' The Act of Dec. 20, 1894, amending section 3 of the Act of March 2, 1889, permitted any settler who had theretofore forfeited his or her entry by reason of being unable from a total or partial destruction of crops, sickness, or other unavoidable casualty to secure a support for himself, herself, or those dependent upon him or her, to make entry of not to exceed a quarter-section on any public lands subject to entry under the homestead law and to perfect title to the same under the same conditions in every respect as if he had not made a former entry." Compilers' note, 2 Supp. R. S. 1189.

SEC. 3. [In case of forfeiture — purchasers of Flathead Indian lands.] That any person who prior to the passage of this Act, has made entry under the homestead laws, but from any cause has lost or forfeited the same shall be entitled to the benefits of the homestead laws as though such former entry had not been made: Provided, That persons who purchased land under and in accordance with the terms of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the sale of lands patented to certain members of the Flathead band of Indians in the Territory of Montana, and for other purposes," approved March second, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, shall not be held to have impaired or exhausted their homestead rights by or on account of any such purchase. [31 Stat. L. 270.]

An Act Providing for free homesteads on the public lands for actual and bona fide settlers, and reserving the public lands for that purpose.

[SEC. 1.] [Free homesteads to bona fide settlers on Indian lands opened to settlement — commutation of entry — payment to Indians.] That all settlers under the homestead laws of the United States upon the agricultural public lands, which have already been opened to settlement, acquired prior to the passage of this Act by treaty or agreement from the various Indian tribes, who have resided or who shall hereafter reside upon the tract entered in good faith for the period required by existing law, shall be entitled to a patent for the land so entered upon the payment to the local land officers of the usual and customary fees, and no other or further charge of any kind whatsoever shall be required from such settler to entitle him to a patent for the land covered by his entry: Provided, That the right to commute any such entry and pay for said lands in the option of any such settler and in the time and at the prices now fixed by existing laws shall remain in full force and effect: Provided, however, That all sums of money so released which if not released would not belong to any Indian tribe shall be paid to such Indian tribe by the United States, and that in the event that the proceeds of the annual sales of the public lands shall not be sufficient to meet the payments heretofore provided for agricultural colleges and experimental stations by an Act of Congress, approved August thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety, for the more complete endowment and support of the colleges for the benefit of agriculture and mechanic arts, established under the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, such deficiency shall be paid by the United States: And provided further, That no lands shall be herein included on which the United States Government had made valuable improvements, or lands that had been sold at public auction by said Government. [31 Stat. L. 179.]

SEC. 2. [Repeal.] That all Acts or parts of Acts inconsistent with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed. [31 Stat. L. 179.]

An Act To allow the commutation of homestead entries in certain cases.

[Commutation to settlers under free homestead laws.] That the provisions of section twenty-three hundred and one of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as amended, allowing homestead settlers to commute their homestead entries be, and the same hereby are, extended to all homestead settlers affected by or entitled to the benefits of the provisions of the Act entitled "An Act providing for free homesteads on the public lands for actual and bona fide settlers, and reserving the public lands for that purpose," approved the seventeenth day of May, anno Domini nineteen hundred. Provided, however, That in commuting such entries the entryman shall pay the price provided in the law under which original entry was made. [31 Stat. L. 740.]

An Act To allow the commutation of and second homestead entries in certain cases.

[SEC. 1.] [Settlers on ceded Sioux Reservation in South Dakota allowed to commute entries.] That homestead settlers upon the ceded portion of the Sioux Indian Reservation in South Dakota who made entry subsequent to March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, shall be entitled to the provisions of the Act entitled "An Act to allow commutation of homestead entries in certain cases," approved January twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred and one, and in commuting shall only be required to pay the price provided in the law under which original entry was made. [32 Stat. L. 203.]

SEC. 2. [Second homestead entries permitted settlers prior to May 17, 1900.] That any person who, prior to the passage of an Act entitled "An Act providing for free homesteads on the public lands for actual and bona fide settlers, and reserving the public lands for that purpose," approved May seventeenth, nineteen hundred, having made a homestead entry and perfected the same and acquired title to the land by final entry by having paid the price provided in the law opening the land to settlement, and who would have been entitled to the provisions of the Act before cited had final entry not been made prior to the passage of said Act, may make another homestead entry of not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres of any of the public lands in any State or Territory subject to homestead entry: Provided, That any person desiring to make another entry under this Act will be required to make affidavit, to be transmitted with the other filing papers now required by law, giving the description of the tract formerly entered, date and number of entry, and name of the land office where made, or other sufficient data to admit of readily identifying it on the official records: And provided further, That said person has all the other proper qualifications of a homestead entryman: And provided also, That commutation under section twenty-three hundred and one of the Revised Statutes, or any amendment thereto, or any similar statute, shall not be permitted of an entry made under this Act, excepting where the final proof, submitted on the former entry hereinbefore described, shows a residence upon the land covered thereby for the full period of five years, or such term of residence thereon as added to any properly credited military or naval service shall equal such period of five years. [32 Stat. L. 203.]

Sec. 2302. [No distinction on account of race or color — mineral lands.] No distinction shall be made in the construction or execution of this chapter, on account of race or color; nor shall any mineral lands be liable to entry and settlement under its provisions. [R. S.]

Act of June 21, 1866, ch. 127, 14 Stat. L. 67.

Land known to be valuable for its minerals. — "It is plain, from this brief statement of the legislation of Congress, that no title from the United States to land known at the time of sale to be valuable for its minerals of gold, silver, cinnabar, or copper can be obtained under the pre-emption or homestead laws or the town-site laws, or in any other way than as prescribed by the laws specially authorizing the sale of such lands, except in the states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, and Kansas. We say 'land known at the time to be valuable for its minerals,' as there are vast tracts of public land in which minerals of different kinds are found, but not in such quantity as to justify expenditures in the effort to extract them. It is not to such lands that the term 'mineral' in the sense of the statute is applicable. In the first section of the Act of 1866 no designation is given of the character of mineral lands which are free and open to exploration. But in the Act of 1872, which repealed that section and re-enacted one of broader import, it is 'valuable mineral deposits' which are declared to be free and open to exploration and purchase. The same term is carried into the Revised Statutes. It is there enacted that 'lands valuable for minerals' shall be reserved from sale, except as otherwise expressly directed, and that 'valuable mineral deposits' in lands belonging to the United States shall be free and open to exploration and purchase. We also say lands 'known' at the time of their sale to be thus valuable, in order to avoid any possible conclusion against the validity of titles which may be issued for other kinds of land, in which, years afterwards, rich deposits of mineral may be discovered. It is quite possible that lands settled upon as suitable only for agricultural purposes, entered by the settler and patented by the government under the pre-emption laws, may be found, years after the patent has been issued, to contain valuable minerals. Indeed, this has often happened. We, therefore, use the term 'known' to be valuable at the time of sale, to prevent any doubt being cast upon titles to lands afterwards found to be different in their mineral character from what was supposed when the entry of them was made and the patent issued." Deffeback v. Hawke, (1885) 115 U. S. 392.

Sec. 2303. [What lands disposed of only as homesteads.] [Repealed.]

This section was as follows:

"SEC. 2303. All the public lands in the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Florida, shall be disposed of in no other manner than according to the terms and stipulations contained in the preceding provisions of this chapter." Act of June 21, 1866, ch. 127, 14 Stat. L. 67.

It was directly repealed by the provisions in the following text.

This section was construed in U. S. v. Pratt Coal, etc., Co., (1883) 18 Fed. Rep. 708.

An act to repeal section two thousand three hundred and three of the Revised Statutes of the United States, making restrictions in the disposition of the public lands in the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Florida, and for other purposes.

[Act of July 4, 1876, ch. 165, 19 Stat. L. 73.]

[Repeal of R. S. sec. 2303.] That section two thousand three hundred and three of the Revised Statutes of the United States, confining the disposal of the public lands in the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Florida to the provisions of the homestead law, be, and the same is hereby, repealed: Provided, That the repeal of said section shall not have the effect to impair the right, complete or inchoate, of any homestead settler, and no land occupied by such settler at the time this act shall take effect, shall be subject to entry, pre-emption, or sale: And provided, That the public lands affected by this act, shall be offered at public sale, as soon as practicable from time to time, and according to the provisions of existing law, and shall not be subject to private entry until they are so offered. [19 Stat. L. 73.]

This Act is incorporated into sec. 2303 of the second edition of the Revised Statutes.

The last provision of the section in the text would seem to be repealed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 9, infra, p. 331.

Sec. 2304. [Soldiers' and sailors' homestead.] Every private soldier and officer who has served in the Army of the United States during the recent rebellion for ninety days, and who was honorably discharged and has remained loyal to the Government, including the troops mustered into the service of the United States by virtue of the third section of an Act approved February thirteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, and every seaman, marine, and officer who has served in the Navy of the United States or in the Marine Corps during the rebellion for ninety days, and who was honorably discharged and has remained loyal to the Government, and every private soldier and officer who has served in the Army of the United States during the Spanish war, or who has served, is serving, or shall have served in the said Army during the suppression of the insurrection in the Philippines for ninety days, and who was or shall be honorably discharged; and every seaman, marine, and officer who has served in the Navy of the United States or in the Marine Corps during the Spanish war, or who has served, is serving, or shall have served in the said forces during the suppression of the insurrection in the Philippines for ninety days, and who was or shall be honorably discharged, shall, on compliance with the provisions of this chapter, as hereinafter modified, be entitled to enter upon and receive patents for a quantity of public lands not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, or one quarter section, to be taken in compact form, according to legal subdivisions, including the alternate reserved sections of public lands along the line of any railroad or other public work not otherwise reserved or appropriated, and other lands subject to entry under the homestead laws of the United States; but such homestead settler shall be allowed six months after locating his homestead and filing his declaratory statement within which to make his entry and commence his settlement and improvement. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of March 1, 1901, ch. 674, 31 Stat. L. 847. The amendment consists in the addition of the matter commencing with "and every private soldier and officer" down to and including the words "the Philippines for ninety days, and who was or shall be honorably discharged."

State troops not entitled to homestead.—The troops known as the "Enrolled Missouri Militia," though acting from time to time in co-operation with the army of the United States in the suppression of the rebellion, constituted no part of such army, as they were never mustered into the service of the United States; and an order disbanding such troops (though entirely creditable to the troops thus discharged) is not an honorable discharge within the meaning of this section. Hence, persons who served with such enrolled militia are not entitled to enter homesteads under the provisions of this section. (1878) 16 Op. Atty.-Gen. 147.

Sec. 2305. [Deduction of military and naval service from time, etc.] The time which the homestead settler has served in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps shall be deducted from the time heretofore required to perfect title, or if discharged on account of wounds received or disability incurred in the line of duty, then the term of enlistment shall be deducted from the time heretofore required to perfect title, without reference to the length of time he may have served; but no patent shall issue to any homestead settler who has not resided upon, improved, and cultivated his homestead for a period of at least one year after he shall have commenced his improvements: Provided, That in every case in which a settler on the public land of the United States under the homestead laws died while actually engaged in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States as private soldier, officer, seaman, or marine, during the war with Spain or the Philippine insurrection, his widow, if unmarried, or in case of her death or marriage, then his minor orphan children or his or their legal representatives, may proceed forthwith to make final proof upon the land so held by the deceased soldier and settler, and that the death of such soldier while so engaged in the service of the United States shall, in the administration of the homestead laws, be construed to be equivalent to a performance of all requirements as to residence and cultivation for the full period of five years, and shall entitle his widow, if unmarried, or in case of her death or marriage, then his minor orphan children or his or their legal representatives, to make final proof upon and receive Government patent for said land; and that upon proof produced to the officers of the proper local land office by the widow, if unmarried, or in case of her death or marriage, then his minor orphan children or his or their legal representatives, that the applicant for patent is the widow, if unmarried, or in case of her death or marriage, his orphan children or his or their legal representatives, and that such soldier, sailor, or marine died while in the service of the United States as hereinbefore described, the patent for such land shall issue. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of March 1, 1901, ch. 674, 31 Stat.

L. 847. The amendment consists in the addition of all matter commencing with the proviso down to the end of the section.

An Act For the protection of homestead settlers who enter the military or naval service of the United States in time of war.

[Act of June 16, 1898, ch. 458, 30 Stat. L. 473.]

[Service in Army, Navy, or Marine Corps equivalent to residence, etc.] That in every case in which a settler on the public land of the United States under the homestead laws enlists or is actually engaged in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States as private soldier, officer, seaman, or marine, during the existing war with Spain, or during any other war in which the United States may be engaged, his services therein shall, in the administration of the homestead laws, be construed to be equivalent to all intents and purposes to residence and cultivation for the same length of time upon the tract entered or settled upon; and hereafter no contest shall be initiated on the ground of abandonment, nor allegation of abandonment sustained against any such settler, unless it shall be alleged in the preliminary affidavit or affidavits of contest, and proved at the hearing in cases hereafter initiated, that the settler's alleged absence from the land was not due to his employment in such service: Provided, That if such settler shall be discharged on account of wounds received or disability incurred in the line of duty, then the term of his enlistment shall be deducted from the required length of residence without reference to the time of actual service: Provided further, That no patent shall issue to any homestead settler who has not resided upon, improved, and cultivated his homestead for a period of at least one year after he shall have commenced his improvements. [30 Stat. L. 473.]

Sec. 2306. [Persons who have entered less than 160 acres, rights of.] Every person entitled, under the provisions of section twenty-three hundred and four, to enter a homestead who may have heretofore entered, under the homestead laws, a quantity of land less than one hundred and sixty acres, shall be permitted to enter so much land as, when added to the quantity previously entered, shall not exceed one hundred and sixty acres. [R. S.]

But see Act of June 16, 1880, ch. 244, infra, p. 326.

Conditions precedent to right to claim additional homestead.—"It will be seen from this section and from section 2304 that three things must concur in order to entitle a person to claim an additional homestead: (1) he must be one of the persons enumerated in section 2304, viz., a Union soldier or officer in the late war of the rebellion honorably discharged; (2) he must have entered a homestead under the homestead laws prior to March 3, 1873; (3) such entry must have been for less than one hundred and sixty acres. These three things concurring, it appears that the grant is absolute." Montague v. McCarroll, (1894) 10 Utah 22.

Additional homestead is bounty.—The grant of a soldiers' additional homestead is in the nature of a bounty or gift extended by the government to its soldiers in the war of the rebellion, and an application for such additional homestead is not to be treated as an application for a homestead under the homestead laws. U. S. v. Lair, (1902) 118 Fed. Rep. 98.

Occupancy not required.—Occupancy on the part of one entering an additional homestead under this section is not required. The government certainly did not intend that the beneficiary should abandon his original homestead which he had cultivated and improved, in order to secure the additional number of acres which this section authorizes him to locate at another place. The provisions of other sections of this chapter respecting residence on the land entered are therefore inapplicable to additional homestead entries made under this section. Rose v. Nevada, etc., Wood, etc., Co., (1887) 73 Cal. 385; Montague v. McCarroll, (1894) 10 Utah 22; Knight v. Leary, (1882) 54 Wis. 459. See also Grant v. Oliver, (1891) 91 Cal. 158.

And in an action of ejectment brought by one who purchased the land entered from the entryman, where the patent recited generally that the land was entered "pursuant to the Act of Congress approved May 20, 1862, * * * and the acts supplemental thereto," without referring specifically to this section, it was held that the recital did not throw on the plaintiff the burden of showing that the homestead was not initiated and acquired under the laws requiring actual settlement and residence by the entryman. Grant v. Oliver, (1891) 91 Cal. 158.

Presumption that entry without occupancy is valid.—Where the patent recited that the entryman's claim had been "established and duly consummated in conformity to law" and that it was issued pursuant to the Act of Congress approved May 20, 1862, "to secure homesteads to actual settlers on the public domain," and the acts supplemental thereto, it was held that it would be presumed that the entry was made under the provisions of this section, which did not require actual occupancy, on the ground that it must be presumed that the recitals of the patent were true if there was any method by which a valid entry of the land under the acts recited could have been made without actual occupancy. Knight v. Leary, (1882) 54 Wis. 459.

Right of entry transferable.—As Congress has imposed no restriction on the assignment of such right, the right of a soldier who has previously entered less than one hundred and sixty acres under the homestead laws, to enter enough more land to make up that quantity, is assignable before entry. Webster v. Luther, (1896) 163 U. S. 331, affirming (1892) 50 Minn. 77; Barnes v. Poirier, (1894) 27 U. S. App. 500, affirming (1893) 57 Fed. Rep. 956; Rose v. Nevada, etc., Wood, etc., Co., (1887) 73 Cal. 385; Bradley v. Whitesides, (1893) 55 Minn. 455; Tuman v. Pillsbury, (1895) 60 Minn. 520; Montague v. McCarroll, (1894) 10 Utah 22; Montague v. McCarroll, (1897) 15 Utah 318. Contra, Nichols v. Council, (1888) 51 Ark. 26; Macintosh v. Renton, (1882) 2 Wash. Ter. 121. Or after entry but before the issuance of the patent. Grant v. Oliver, (1891) 91 Cal. 159; Stewart v. Sutherland, (1892) 93 Cal. 270; Montgomery v. Pacific Coast Land Bureau, (1892) 94 Cal. 284; Knight v. Leary, (1882) 54 Wis. 459.

This is true notwithstanding the fact that a right of entry under the provisions of R. S. 2304 is not assignable before entry. Montague v. McCarroll, (1894) 10 Utah 22.

And the courts are not bound by the fact that it was the practice of the land department during a certain period to treat the statutory right of entry of additional land as entirely personal and not assignable or transferable, as the courts will not permit the practice of the executive department to defeat the obvious purpose of a statute. Webster v. Luther, (1896) 163 U. S. 331, affirming (1892) 50 Minn. 77; Barnes v. Poirier, (1894) 27 U. S. App. 500, affirming (1893) 57 Fed. Rep. 956.

An irrevocable power of attorney executed by the entryman in consideration of the sum of five dollars, which authorizes the donee of the power to enter upon and take possession of the land homesteaded and vests him with power to sell such land and deliver a deed of conveyance thereof, is a power with an interest, and is sufficient to convey the entryman's title to land entered under this section, and is binding on the entryman, his heirs and assigns. Montague v. McCarroll, (1897) 15 Utah 318.

Construction of various powers of attorney.—For instances of powers of attorney to enter and sell the additional homestead rights of soldiers which were held sufficient, see Bradley v. Whitesides, (1893) 55 Minn. 455; Tuman v. Pillsbury, (1895) 60 Minn. 520; Snell v. Weyerhauser, (1898) 71 Minn. 57; Pardoe v. Merritt, (1898) 75 Minn. 12. For instance of power held insufficient, see Cox v. Manvel, (1892) 50 Minn. 87.

Right of entry of additional homestead is personal property.—The right to enter an additional homestead under the provisions of this section is personal property, and as Congress has placed no restriction on the disposition of the right, it may be sold before entry. Hence, where the minor children of a deceased soldier are entitled to locate and enter an additional homestead, the right of entry may be sold by their guardian under a statute permitting him to sell his wards' personal property without an order of court. Mullen v. Wine, (1886) 26 Fed. Rep. 206, appeal dismissed in (1889) 136 U. S. 654; Pardoe v. Merritt, (1898) 75 Minn. 12. And see infra, R. S. 2307.

Proof of illegality of entry.—Where the record of the land office showed that an entry was made in the name of a soldier's widow, as the soldier's additional homestead, under sections 2304, 2306 of the Revised Statutes, by filing the papers required by the practice prevailing in the land office at that time, and a power of attorney exhibited at the land office was not filed, the cancellation of the entry more than ten years after it was made, by the commissioner of the general land office, on the ground of fraud, was unwarranted, where there was no pretense of making a formal inquiry into the actual facts of the transaction, no taking of proof, no distinct findings of any facts upon which the conclusion that the additional entry was fraudulent could be founded, and no evidence except an unauthenticated letter purporting to have been written by the person in whose name the original entry was made. Puget Mill Co. v. Brown, (1893) 54 Fed. Rep. 987, affirmed in (C. C. A. 1893) 59 Fed. Rep. 35.

Filing application.—The application of a party entitled to enter lands under this section must be regarded as filed when it is delivered to the proper officer and received by him for filing, and the rights of the applicant will not be affected by the failure of the clerks to perform their duties in respect to the filing. Hastay v. Bonness, (1901) 84 Minn. 120.

False affidavit by applicant.—Since the additional homestead granted under this section is in the nature of a bounty or gift, the making of a false affidavit by an applicant violates provisions of R. S. sec. 5438; and a prosecution may be maintained for a false affidavit made before a notary public or any other officer authorized to administer oaths for general purposes in the state, city, or county where such officer resides. U. S. v. Lair, (1902) 118 Fed. Rep. 98.

An act for the relief of certain settlers on the public lands, and to provide for the repayment of certain fees, purchase money and commissions paid on void entries of public lands.

[SEC. 1.] [Refund of fees, etc., for canceled entries of soldiers' and sailors' homesteads.] That in all cases where it shall, upon due proof being made, appear to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior that innocent parties have paid the fees and commissions and excess payments required upon the location of claims under the act entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to enable honorably discharged soldiers and sailors, their widows and orphan children, to acquire homesteads on the public lands of the United States', and amendments thereto", approved March third eighteen hundred and seventy-three, and now incorporated in section twenty-three hundred and six of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which said claims were, after such location, found to be fraudulent and void, and the entries or locations made thereon canceled, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to repay to such innocent parties the fees and commissions, and excess payments paid by them, upon the surrender of the receipts issued therefor by the receivers of public moneys, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, and shall be payable out of the appropriation to refund purchase-money on lands erroneously sold by the United States. [21 Stat. L. 287.]

SEC. 2. [Refund of fees, etc., where entries canceled or not confirmed, or double price paid.] In all cases where homestead or timber-culture or desert-land entries or other entries of public lands have heretofore or shall hereafter be canceled for conflict, or where, from any cause, the entry has been erroneously allowed and cannot be confirmed, the Secretary of the Interior shall cause to be repaid to the person who made such entry, or to his heirs or assigns, the fees and commissions, amount of purchase money, and excesses paid upon the same upon the surrender of the duplicate receipt and the execution of a proper relinquishment of all claims to said land, whenever such entry shall have been duly canceled by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and in all cases where parties have paid double-minimum price for land which has afterwards been found not to be within the limits of a railroad land grant, the excess of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre shall in like manner be repaid to the purchaser thereof, or to his heirs or assigns. [21 Stat. L. 287.]

SEC. 3. [Appropriation.] The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to make the payments herein provided for, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. [21 Stat. L. 287.]

SEC. 4. [Rules by the commissioner — warrants for payment.] The Commissioner of the General Land Office shall make all necessary rules, and issue all necessary instructions, to carry the provisions of this act into effect; and for the repayment of the purchase money and fees herein provided for the Secretary of the Interior shall draw his warrant on the Treasury and the same shall be paid without regard to the date of the cancellation of the entries. [21 Stat. L. 287.]

An act for relief of certain settlers on public land in the Tucson land district in Arizona.

[SEC. 1.] [Refund of excess of fees, etc., for lands entered at Tucson, Arizona.] That all persons having filed for or entered lands within the Tucson land district in Arizona who shall prove to the satisfaction of the register and receiver of the Tucson land office and the Commissioner of the General Land Office that he has paid any money in fees, commissions, or for the land more than once, or where he has paid double minimum price for land after it was proclaimed for purchase at single minimum by the General Land Office, that such excess so paid shall be repaid to the person who so paid the same, or to his heirs or personal representative. [27 Stat. L. 456.]

SEC. 2. [Examination of such claims — appropriation.] That it shall be the duty of such register and receiver to hear the proofs in such cases and make report thereof and their decision thereon to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, who, on receipt of the same, and upon the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, shall transmit to the Secretary of the Treasury the names of the beneficiaries, and the amount due each, and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay the same out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. [27 Stat. L. 456.]

[Invalid soldiers' additional homestead entries may be commuted.] * * * That where soldier's additional homestead entries have been made or initiated upon certificate of the Commissioner of the General Land Office of the right to make such entry, and there is no adverse claimant, and such certificate is found erroneous or invalid for any cause, the purchaser thereunder, on making proof of such purchase, may perfect his title by payment of the Government price for the land; but no person shall be permitted to acquire more than one hundred and sixty acres of public land through the location of any such certificate. * * * [27 Stat. L. 593.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1893, ch. 208.

[SEC. 1.] [Validation of sale of soldiers' additional homestead certificates.] * * * That all soldiers' additional homestead certificates heretofore issued under the rules and regulations of the General Land Office under section twenty-three hundred and six of the Revised Statutes of the United States, or in pursuance of the decisions or instructions of the Secretary of the Interior, of date March tenth, eighteen hundred and seventy seven, or any subsequent decisions or instructions of the Secretary of the Interior or the Commissioner of the General Land Office, shall be, and are hereby, declared to be valid, notwithstanding any attempted sale or transfer thereof; and where such certificates have been or may hereafter be sold or transferred, such sale or transfer shall not be regarded as invalidating the right, but the same shall be good and valid in the hands of bona fide purchasers for value; and all entries heretofore or hereafter made with such certificates by such purchasers shall be approved, and patent shall issue in the name of the assignees. * * * [28 Stat. L. 397.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of Aug. 18, 1894, ch. 301.

Sec. 2307. [Widow and minor children of persons entitled to homestead, etc.] In case of the death of any person who would be entitled to a homestead under the provisions of section twenty-three hundred and four, his widow, if unmarried, or in case of her death or marriage, then his minor orphan children, by a guardian duly appointed and officially accredited at the Department of the Interior, shall be entitled to all the benefits enumerated in this chapter, subject to all the provisions as to settlement and improvements therein contained; but if such person died during his term of enlistment, the whole term of his enlistment shall be deducted from the time heretofore required to perfect the title. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 338, 17 Stat. L. 333.

Sec. 2308. [Actual service in the Army or Navy equivalent to residence, etc.] Where a party at the date of his entry of a tract of land under the homestead laws, or subsequently thereto, was actually enlisted and employed in the Army or Navy of the United States, his services therein shall, in the administration of such homestead laws, be construed to be equivalent, to all intents and purposes, to a residence for the same length of time upon the tract so entered. And if his entry has been canceled by reason of his absence from such tract while in the military or naval service of the United States, and such tract has not been disposed of, his entry shall be restored; but if such tract has been disposed of, the party may enter another tract subject to entry under the homestead laws, and his right to a patent therefor may be determined by the proofs touching his residence and cultivation of the first tract and his absence therefrom in such service. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 338, 17 Stat. L. 333.

See further Act of June 16, 1898, ch. 458, supra, p. 324.

The effect of this section is to declare service in the army or navy of the United States by the entryman at the date of his entry equivalent to actual residence on the land. Hastings, etc., R. Co. v. Whitney, (1889) 132 U. S. 357, affirming (1886) 34 Minn. 538.

Sec. 2309. [Who may enter by agent.] Every soldier, sailor, marine, officer, or other person coming within the provisions of section twenty-three hundred and four, may, as well by an agent as in person, enter upon such homestead by filing a declaratory statement, as in pre-emption cases; but such claimant in person shall within the time prescribed make his actual entry, commence settlements and improvements on the same, and thereafter fulfill all the requirements of law. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 338, 17 Stat. L. 334.

Sec. 2310. [Chiefs, etc., of Stockbridge Munsees, homestead rights of.] Each of the chiefs, warriors, and heads of families of the Stockbridge Munsee tribes of Indians, residing in the county of Shawana, State of Wisconsin, may, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, enter a homestead and become entitled to all the benefits of this chapter, free from any fee or charge; and any part of their present reservation, which is abandoned for that purpose, may be sold, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, and the proceeds applied for the benefit of such Indians as may settle on homesteads, to aid them in improving the same. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1865, ch. 127, 13 Stat. L. 562.

Sec. 2311. [Exemption of homestead of Stockbridge Munsees.] The homestead secured, by virtue of the preceding section, shall not be subject to any tax, levy, or sale; nor shall it be sold, conveyed, mortgaged, or in any manner incumbered, except upon the decree of the district court of the United States, as provided in the following section. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1865, ch. 127, 13 Stat. L. 562.

SEC. 15. [Certain Indians entitled to benefit of homestead laws.] That any Indian born in the United States, who is the head of a family, or who has arrived at the age of twenty-one years, and who has abandoned, or may hereafter abandon, his tribal relations, shall, on making satisfactory proof of such abandonment, under rules to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, be entitled to the benefits of the act entitled "An act to secure homesteads to actual settlers on the public domain," approved May twentieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, and the acts amendatory thereof, except that the provisions of the eighth section of the said act shall not be held to apply to entries made under this act: Provided, however, That the title to lands acquired by any Indian by virtue hereof shall not be subject to alienation or incumbrance, either by voluntary conveyance or the judgment, decree, or order of any court, and shall be and remain inalienable for a period of five years from the date of the patent issued therefor: Provided, That any such Indian shall be entitled to his distributive share of all annuities, tribal funds, lands, and other property, the same as though he had maintained his tribal relations; and any transfer, alienation, or incumbrance of any interest he may hold or claim by reason of his former tribal relations shall be void. [18 Stat. L. 420.]

This and the following section 16 are from the Deficiencies Appropriation Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 131. The Act referred to in the text is incorporated into the Revised Statutes as sections 2238, 2240, 2289, 2290, 2295-2300. The eighth section of the Act of May 20, 1862, is incorporated into the Revised Statutes as section 2301.

SEC. 16. [Entries of homestead by, heretofore made, confirmed.] That in all cases in which Indians have heretofore entered public lands under the homestead-law, and have proceeded in accordance with the regulations prescribed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, or in which they may hereafter be allowed to so enter under said regulations prior to the promulgation of regulations to be established by the Secretary of the Interior under the fifteenth section of this act, and in which the conditions prescribed by law have been or may be complied with, the entries so allowed are hereby confirmed, and patents shall be issued thereon; subject, however, to the restriction and limitations contained in the fifteenth section of this act in regard to alienation and incumbrance. [18 Stat. L. 420.]

See note to section 15, supra.

[SEC. 1.] [Further application of homestead laws to Indians — patented lands held in trust.] * * * That such Indians as may now be located on public lands, or as may, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, or otherwise, hereafter, so locate may avail themselves of the provisions of the homestead laws as fully and to the same extent as may now be done by citizens of the United States; and to aid such Indians in making selections of homesteads and the necessary proofs at the proper land offices, one thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated; but no fees or commissions shall be charged on account of said entries or proofs. All patents therefor shall be of the legal effect, and declare that the United States does and will hold the land thus entered for the period of twenty-five years, in trust for the sole use and benefit of the Indian by whom such entry shall have been made, or, in case of his decease, of his widow and heirs according to the laws of the State or Territory where such land is located, and that at the expiration of said period the United States will convey the same by patent to said Indian, or his widow and heirs as aforesaid, in fee, discharged of said trust and free of all charge or incumbrance whatsoever.

This is from the Indian Appropriation Act of July 4, 1884, ch. 180.

Sec. 2312. [Stockbridge Munsees becoming citizens.] Whenever any of the chiefs, warriors, or heads of families of the tribes mentioned in section twenty-three hundred and ten, having filed with the clerk of the district court of the United States a declaration of his intention to become a citizen of the United States, and to dissolve all relations with any Indian tribe, two years previous thereto, appears in such court, and proves to the satisfaction thereof, by the testimony of two citizens, that for five years last passed he has adopted the habits of civilized life; that he has maintained himself and family by his own industry; that he reads and speaks the English language; that he is well disposed to become a peaceable and orderly citizen; and that he has sufficient capacity to manage his own affairs; the court may enter a decree admitting him to all the rights of a citizen of the United States and thenceforth he shall be no longer held or treated as a member of any Indian tribe, but shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges and be subject to all the duties and liabilities to taxation of other citizens of the United States. But nothing herein contained shall be construed to deprive such chiefs, warriors, or heads of families of annuities to which they are or may be entitled. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1865, ch. 127, 13 Stat. L. 562.

Sec. 2313. [Unsold lands of the Ottawa and Chippewa Indians, how opened for homestead.] The unoccupied lands in the reservation made for the Ottawa and Chippewa Indians, of Michigan, by the treaty of July thirty-one, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, shall be open to homestead entry for six months from the tenth day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, by Indians only of those tribes, who have not made selections or purchases under the treaty, including such members of the tribes as have become of age since the expiration of the ten years named in the treaty; and every Indian so entitled shall be permitted to make his homestead entry, at the local land-office, within such six months, of not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, or one quarter-section of minimum, or eighty acres of double minimum land, on making proper proof of his right, under such rules as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior. [R. S.]

Act of June 10, 1872, ch. 424, 17 Stat. L. 381.

Sec. 2314. [Selection for minors under preceding section.] The collector of customs for the district in which such land is situated, is authorized, and it is made his duty, to select for such minor children as would be entitled, under the preceding section, as the heirs of any Indian. [R. S.]

Act of June 10, 1872, ch. 424, 17 Stat. L. 381.

Sec. 2315. [Bona-fide settlers on above lands prior to, etc.] All actual, permanent, bona-fide settlers on any of such lands who settled prior to the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, shall be entitled to enter either under the homestead laws or to pay for at the minimum or double minimum price, as the case may be, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres of the former or eighty acres of the latter class of land on making proof of his settlement and continued residence before the expiration of six months from the tenth day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-two. [R. S.]

Act of June 10, 1872, ch. 424, 17 Stat. L. 381.

Sec. 2316. [Certain lands to be patented to Indians making selection.] All selections of such lands by Indians heretofore made and regularly reported and recognized as valid and proper by the Secretary of the Interior and Commissioner of Indian Affairs, shall be patented to the respective Indians making the same; and all sales heretofore made and reported, where the same are regular and not in conflict with such selections, or with any other valid adverse right, except of the United States, are confirmed, and patents shall issue thereon as in other cases according to law. [R. S.]

Act of June 10, 1872, ch. 424, 17 Stat. L. 381.

[VII. SALE AND DISPOSAL OF THE PUBLIC LANDS.]

Sec. 2353. [Public sale of lands in half quarter-sections.] All the public lands, the sale of which is authorized by law, shall, when offered at public sale to the highest bidder, be offered in half quarter-sections. [R. S.]

Act of April 24, 1820, ch. 51, 3 Stat. L. 566.
But see the following section.

Sections 2353-2379 constitute chapter 7 of title 32 of the Revised Statutes, entitled as above.

The first section of the Act of April 24, 1820 (3 Stat. L. 566), after referring to the Act of 1805, provided that "fractional sections, containing one hundred and sixty acres, or upwards, shall, in like manner, as nearly as practicable, be sub-divided into half quarter sections, under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury; but fractional sections, containing less than one hundred and sixty acres, shall not be divided, but shall be sold entire." The secretary of the treasury issued his regulations to the surveyor-general, through the commissioner of the land office, on the 10th day of June following, in which he directed that fractional sections containing more than one hundred and sixty acres should be divided into half quarter-sections by north and south or east and west lines, so as to preserve the most compact and convenient forms. Under this Act and the regulations of the land office some latitude of discretion has been exercised by the surveyor-general in the division of fractional sections exceeding the quantity mentioned, regard being had to convenient forms, and to avoid the subdivision of the public domain into ill-shaped and unsalable fractions. The requirements did not make it indispensable under all circumstances for a full or half quarter-section to be laid off, though the fraction was capable of such subdivision. (1837) 3 Op. Atty-Gen. 281; Gazzam v. Phillips, (1857) 20 How. (U. S.) 372, wherein the court refused to follow Brown v. Clements, (1845) 3 How. (U. S.) 650, which held to the contrary.

SEC. 9. [Public lands not to be sold at public auction — exceptions.] That hereafter no public lands of the United States, except abandoned military or other reservations isolated and disconnected fractional tracts authorized to be sold by section twenty-four hundred and fifty-five of the Revised Statutes, and mineral and other lands the sale of which at public auction has been authorized by acts of Congress of a special nature having local application, shall be sold at public sale. [26 Stat. L. 1099.]

This is from the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, "An act to repeal timber-culture laws, and for other purposes."

Abandoned military reservations, provisions for sale of, see infra, div. XIV.

Sec. 2354. [Private sales in what bodies.] All the public lands, when offered at private sale, may be purchased, at the option of the purchaser, in entire sections, half-sections, quarter-sections, half quarter-sections, or quarter quarter-sections. [R. S.]

Act of April 5, 1832, ch. 65, 4 Stat. L. 503.

The scope of the Act of April 5, 1832, is expressly confined to such public lands as might be "offered at private sale," after the first day of May then next, and cannot by any just latitude of construction be carried back to embrace pre-emptions under the Act of 1830. (1837) 3 Op. Atty-Gen. 211.

Sec. 2355. [Private sales, proceedings in.] Every person making application at any of the land-offices of the United States for the purchase at private sale of a tract of land shall produce to the register a memorandum in writing, describing the tract, which he shall enter by the proper number of the section, half-section, quarter-section, half quarter-section, or quarter quarter-section, as the case may be, and of the township and range, subscribing his name thereto, which memorandum the register shall file and preserve in his office. [R. S.]

Act of Feb. 24, 1810, ch. 11, 2 Stat. L. 556.

Erroneous rejection of application. — Where a party made his application in due form and tendered the money to purchase a fractional section and the register erroneously rejected the application, whereupon the applicant tendered the money to the treasurer of the United States in payment for the land, which the treasurer refused, it was held that the application ought to have been received and entered. A failure to appeal to the commissioner of the general land office from the refusal of the register to enter the application did not amount to an abandonment of the application. (1851) 5 Op. Atty-Gen. 476.

Sec. 2356. [No credit on sales of public lands.] Credit shall not be allowed for the purchase-money on the sale of any of the public lands, but every purchaser of land sold at public sale shall, on the day of purchase, make complete payment therefor; and the purchaser at private sale shall produce to the register of the land-office a receipt from the Treasurer of the United States, or from the receiver of public moneys of the district, for the amount of the purchase-money on any tract, before he enters the same at the land-office; and if any person, being the highest bidder at public sale for a tract of land, fails to make payment therefor on the day on which the same was purchased, the tract shall be again offered at public sale on the next day of sale, and such person shall not be capable of becoming the purchaser of that or any other tract offered at such public sales. [R. S.]

Public lands were formerly sold on credit at not less than two dollars an acre, but as the credit system worked badly it was abandoned in 1820 and the price was reduced to one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. Eldred v. Sexton, (1873) 19 Wall. (U. S.) 198; Baldwin v. Boyd, (1885) 18 Neb. 444.

In April, 1820, the system of credit sales was abandoned, and for the purpose of collecting the debts then owing to the government for lands previously sold, Congress passed an Act, on the 2d of March, 1821, allowing to all purchasers previous to the 1st of July, 1820, different periods of credit for the amount still owing, or a discount of thirty-seven and a half per cent. to all such as should pay in cash. The penalty for neglecting or refusing to comply with the provisions of this Act, on or before the 30th of September, 1821, was an absolute forfeiture of all title, and the land reverted to the United States, subject to be sold as prescribed by the Act of April 24, 1820. By subsequent acts, the provisions of the Act of March 2, 1821, were revived and extended to different periods, and the penalty in each Act was a forfeiture of all title. Kirkby v. Fogleman, 16 La. 277. See also Creps v. Wilkinson, (1839) 9 Ohio 200.

Receiver may not purchase on credit. — Under the Act of April 24, 1820 (3 Stat. L. 566), a receiver is prohibited from making an entry of public lands in his own name on credit. The Act of Congress forbidding the sale of public lands on credit makes no exception in favor of any officer. The officers must purchase upon the terms prescribed. U. S. v. Boyd, (1847) 5 How. (U. S.) 29.

Land sold on the last day of the sale, but not paid for, is not subject to be sold at private sale, by entry at the land office, either by the former purchaser or by any other person, until the same has been again exposed to public sale in the manner pointed out by the fourth section of the Act of 1820, and at such time as the President of the United States shall by his proclamation direct; and, consequently, the receiver does not act legally, and faithfully execute his duty, in permitting such an entry to be made. (1829) 2 Op. Atty-Gen. 200.

Authenticating purchases. — At various times since the passage of the Act of April 24, 1820, the modes of conducting sales at the different land offices of the United States have been prescribed by the commissioner. The regulations of the general land office of 1831 and the above named Act prescribed the mode of authentication by the registers and receivers of purchases of the public lands. Bell v. Hearne, (1856) 19 How. (U. S.) 252.

A mistake in inserting the wrong name of the purchaser will not defeat his rights. Where a receipt was given by the receiver made out to John Bell, and two certificates of purchase were made out by the register, one to John Bell and one to James Bell, and it appeared that the latter was a mistake which, however, was legally corrected by the commissioner of the general land office, it was held that the commissioner had the right to make the correction even though a patent had issued to James Bell, which had been reclaimed from the register's office and returned to the general land office to be canceled. Bell v. Hearne, (1856) 19 How. (U. S.) 252.

Patent reciting compliance with Act. — A recital in a patent that a named party "has deposited in the general land office of the United States a certificate of the register of the land office at Lincoln, Nebraska, whereby it appears that full payment has been made by said [named party] according to the provisions of the Act of Congress of the 24th of April, 1820, entitled 'An Act making further provision for the sale of the public lands,' was held to show simply that the provision of the above-named statute had been complied with, and not to show that the patent was issued under the Act of 1820. Baldwin v. Boyd, (1885) 18 Neb. 444.

The term "entry," as applied to appropriations of lands, was probably borrowed from the state of Virginia, where the term was used in that sense at a very remote period. It means that act by which an individual acquires an inceptive right to a portion of the unappropriated soil of the country, by filing his claim in the office of an officer known in the legislation of several states by the epithet of an entry-taker, and corresponding very much in his functions with the registers of land offices, under the Acts of the United States. In the natural progress of language, the term has been introduced into the laws of the United States; and, by reference to those laws, the meaning of the term will be found to be distinctly confined to the appropriation of lands under the laws of the United States at private sale. Chotard v. Pope, (1827) 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 587.

Sec. 2357. [Price of lands $1.25 per acre.] The price at which the public lands are offered for sale shall be one dollar and twenty-five cents an acre; and at every public sale, the highest bidder, who makes payment as provided in the preceding section, shall be the purchaser; but no land shall be sold, either at public or private sale, for a less price than one dollar and twenty-five cents an acre; and all the public lands which are hereafter offered at public sale, according to law, and remain unsold at the close of such public sales, shall be subject to be sold at private sale, by entry at the land-office, at one dollar and twenty-five cents an acre, to be paid at the time of making such entry: Provided, That the price to be paid for alternate reserved lands, along the line of railroads within the limits granted by any act of Congress, shall be two dollars and fifty cents per acre. [R. S.]

Act of April 24, 1820, ch. 51, 3 Stat. L. 566.

Effect of price as measure of damages for breach of Indian treaty. — By the Act of April 24, 1820, ch. 51, 3 Stat. L. 566, all the public lands of the United States were made open to entry and sale at one dollar and twenty-five cents an acre. The United States in 1831 obligated itself in a treaty with the Shawnees to expose to public sale to the highest bidder lands ceded to the United States by the Shawnees. The United States disposed of a part of the lands at private sale, which constituted a breach of trust, but the measure of damages for the violation of the treaty stipulation was held to be the difference between the amounts realized and the price fixed by the statute. U. S. v. Blackfeather, (1894) 155 U. S. 180.

Act of April 24, 1820, as affecting warrants under Act of March 3, 1801. — A warrant which, in strict conformity with the Act of March 3, 1801, stipulated, in the alternative, that certain lands might be received at the rate of two dollars per acre, in payment of any lands lying on the west side of the Mississippi, must be received at that rate. Congress did not intend, by the Act of the 24th of April, 1820, "making further provision for the sale of the public lands," to affect the value of such a warrant; nor could this be done without a violation of the public faith regularly pledged. (1822) 1 Op. Atty-Gen. 536.

Unoffered and offered lands. — After the passage of the Act of April 24, 1820, ch. 51, 3 Stat. L. 566, the public lands came to be spoken of as "unoffered lands" or those which had not been exposed to public sale, and "offered lands" or those which had been so exposed and remained unsold. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. De Lacey, (1899) 174 U. S. 623. The practice was established not to allow private entries until the land had been previously offered at public sale. Chotard v. Pope, (1827) 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 587; John- son v. Towsley, (1871) 13 Wall. (U. S.) 88; Eldred v. Sexton, (1873) 19 Wall. (U. S.) 189; (1829) 2 Op. Atty.-Gen. 200; (1856) 8 Op. Atty.-Gen. 247; (1843) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 167. See Act of May 18, 1898, ch. 344, 30 Stat. L. 418, infra, p. 335.

Operation of proviso of Act on subsequent legislation.—Up to the time of the revision of the statutes of the United States it was the settled policy of the government to hold for sale, at a price not less than double the minimum price of public lands, all alternate reserved sections on the lines of railroads constructed with the aid of the United States. This policy was recognized in section 2357 of the Revised Statutes. The proviso of this section applies to all alternate reserved lands described in any Act of Congress, and makes no exception of any lands of that class on account of their fitness or unfitness, in their natural condition, for agricultural purposes. Thus the law stood at the date of the Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 107, 19 Stat. L. 377, providing for the sale of "desert lands" in certain states and territories, which latter Act did not include alternate sections reserved to the United States, along the lines of railroads for the construction of which Congress made land grants. The Act of 1877 did not supersede or modify the proviso of section 2357 of the Revised Statutes, and, therefore, did not embrace alternate sections reserved to the United States by a railroad land grant. As a result, prior to the passage of the Act of 1891, lands, although within the general description of desert lands, could not properly be disposed of at less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre. Cases initiated under the original Act of 1877, but not completed by final proof until after the passage of the Act of 1891, were left by the latter Act—at least as to the price to be paid for the lands entered—to be governed by the law in force at the time the entry was made. U. S. v. Healey, (1895) 160 U. S. 136, reversing (1894) 29 Ct. Cl. 115. See also U. S. v. Ingram, (1899) 172 U. S. 327, reversing (1897) 32 Ct. Cl. 147.

Object of proviso.—The principal, if not the only, object of the requirement that the alternate reserved sections along the lines of land-grant railroads should not be sold for less than double the minimum price fixed for other public lands, was to compensate the United States for the loss of the sections given away by the government. U. S. v. Healey, (1895) 160 U. S. 136. See also U. S. v. Ingram, (1899) 172 U. S. 327.

An act relating to the public lands of the United States.

[SECS. 1, 2.] [Temporary and expired.]

SEC. 3. [Alternate sections of railroad lands reduced to $1.25.] That the price of lands now subject to entry which were raised to two dollars and fifty cents per acre, and put in market prior to January, eighteen hundred and sixty one, by reason of the grant of alternate sections for railroad purposes is hereby reduced to one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. [21 Stat. L. 238.]

Excess paid not recoverable in Court of Claims.—A party who without protest pays for public lands more than is required by law is not entitled to recover the excess in the Court of Claims. U. S. v. Edmondston, (1901) 181 U. S. 500. See also Shang v. U. S., (1901) 36 Ct. Cl. 466.

SEC. 4. [Mineral lands excepted from provisions of act — trespassers.] This act shall not apply to any of the mineral lands of the United States; and no person who shall be prosecuted for or proceeded against on account of any trespass committed or material taken from any of the public lands after March first, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine shall be entitled to the benefit thereof. [21 Stat. L. 238.]

"The first section of this Act relieved under conditions named certain trespassers upon public lands from proceedings by the United States for acts done prior to March 1, 1879. The second section relates to homestead entries 'heretofore' made. The provisions of section 4 would seem more especially applicable to section 1, but as they apply in terms to the whole Act, they are here retained." Compilers' note, 1 Supp. R. S. 298.

[SEC. 1.] [Withdrawal of lands from private entry.] That from and after the passage of this act no public lands of the United States, except those in the State of Missouri shall be subject to private entry. [25 Stat. L. 854.]

This and section 4, following, are from the Act of March 2, 1889, ch. 381. For reference to entire Act, see supra, p. 315.

Section 8 of this Act (supra, p. 316) provides that nothing in the Act is to be "construed as suspending, repealing or in any way rendering inoperative" the provisions of the Act of July 5, 1884, ch. 214, relating to the disposal of abandoned and useless military reservations. See infra, div. XIV.

SEC. 4. [Price of forfeited railroad lands, and adjacent lands.] That the price of all sections and parts of sections of the public lands within the limits of the portions of the several grants of lands to aid in the construction of railroads which have been heretofore and which may hereafter be forfeited, which were by the act making such grants or have since been increased to the double minimum price, and, also, of all lands within the limits of any such railroad grant, but not embraced in such grant lying adjacent to and coterminous with the portions of the line of any such railroad which shall not be completed at the date of this act, is hereby fixed at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. [25 Stat. L. 834.]

See note to section 1, supra.

An Act To abolish the distinction between offered and unoffered lands, and for other purposes.

[Act of May 18, 1898, ch. 344, 30 Stat. L. 418.]

[SEC. 1.] [Distinction between offered and unoffered lands abolished.] That in cases arising from and after the passage of this Act the distinction now obtaining in the statutes between offered and unoffered lands shall no longer be made in passing upon subsisting preemption claims, in disposing of the public lands under the homestead laws, and under the timber and stone law of June third, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, as extended by the Act of August fourth, eighteen hundred and ninety-two, but in all such cases hereafter arising the land in question shall be treated as unoffered, without regard to whether it may have actually been at some time offered or not. [30 Stat. L. 418.]

SEC. 2. [Private sale of lands in Missouri.] That all public lands within the State of Missouri shall hereafter be subject to disposal at private sale in the manner now provided by law for the sale of lands which have been publicly offered for sale, whether such lands have ever been offered at public sale or not: Provided, That the actual settlers shall have a preference right, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe. [30 Stat. L. 418.]

SEC. 2358. [Public lands may be offered for sale in such proportions as the President chooses.] Whenever the President is authorized to cause the public lands, in any land-district, to be offered for sale, he may offer for sale, at first, only a part of the lands contained in such district, and at any subsequent time or times he may offer for sale in the same manner any other part, or the remainder of the lands contained in the same. [R. S.]

Act of March 31, 1898, ch. 40, 2 Stat. L. 479.

SEC. 2359. [Advertisement of sales.] The public lands which are exposed to public sale by order of the President shall be advertised for a period of not less than three nor more than six months prior to the day of sale, unless otherwise specially provided. [R. S.]

Act of June 28, 1834, ch. 102, 4 Stat. L. 702.

SEC. 2. [Proclamation of sale of lands — publication.] That all executive proclamations relating to the sales of Public Lands shall be published in only one newspaper, the same to be printed and published in the State or Territory where the lands are situated, and to be designated by the Secretary of the Interior. [19 Stat. L. 221.]

This is from the Act of Jan. 12, 1877, ch. 18, "An Act providing for the sale of saline lands." See MINERAL LANDS, MINES, AND MINING, vol. 5, p. 48.

Sec. 2360. [Duration of sales.] The public sales of lands shall, respectively, be kept open for two weeks, and no longer, unless otherwise specially provided by law. [R. S.]

Act of April 24, 1820, ch. 51, 3 Stat. L. 567.

Sec. 2361. [Several certificates issued to two or more purchasers of same section.] Where two or more persons have become purchasers of a section or fractional section, the register of the land-office of the district in which the lands lie shall, on application of the parties, and a surrender of the original certificate, issue separate certificates, of the same date with the original, to each of the purchasers, or their assignees, in conformity with the division agreed on by them; but in no case shall the fractions so purchased be divided by other than north and south, or east and west, lines; nor shall any certificate issue for less than eighty acres. [R. S.]

Act of May 23, 1828, ch. 71, 4 Stat. L. 287.

Sec. 2362. [Purchase-money refunded where sale cannot be confirmed.] The Secretary of the Interior is authorized, upon proof being made, to his satisfaction, that any tract of land has been erroneously sold by the United States, so that from any cause the sale cannot be confirmed, to repay to the purchaser, or to his legal representatives or assignees, the sum of money which was paid therefor, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. [R. S.]

Act of Jan. 12, 1825, ch. 5, 4 Stat. L. 80;

Exclusiveness of relief — rights of assignees. — Notwithstanding the above section, actions may be maintained in the national courts, against the government of the United States, to recover the purchase price paid under void entries of public lands, under the provisions of the Act of Congress of March 3, 1887, which authorizes suits against the United States. Such actions cannot, however, be maintained by assignees of the parties who made the void entries, as assignments of all claims against the government are declared void by sec. 3477, R. S., unless made with prescribed formalities after the issuance of warrants to pay the claims. Emmons v. U. S., (1890) 42 Fed. Rep. 26. See also U. S. v. Foreman, (1897) 5 Okla. 237.

Scope and purpose of Act of Jan. 12, 1825. — Where there is a deficiency in the quantity of land purchased, and where an entry has been made of land to which another had a pre-emption title, these situations fall strictly within the terms of the Act of Jan. 12, 1825. The general purpose of this Act was to assure purchasers a prompt return of money paid by them for lands to which the United States could give no title.

Whether that disability proceeds from one or another cause is unimportant. All that a purchaser claiming under the provisions of this law is required to show is that the land for which his money has been paid into the public treasury was erroneously sold by the United States. The money thus paid being received without consideration, or upon a consideration which has failed, the principle of equity incorporated into this enactment entitles the party paying it to its return. In reference to cases of error arising out of miscalculations of the amounts to be paid, money thus paid is never properly in the treasury of the United States. It is paid and received by mutual mistake; and as long as it remains in the hands of the receiving officer he should correct the error. After the money has found its way into the treasury, however, like all other money, it should be withdrawn in strict fulfilment of the requirements of the law, which the administrative power of the executive department of the government cannot control. (1843) 4 Op. Atty-Gen. 227.

The only relief of a purchaser of previously sold land, under the Act of Jan. 12, 1825, ch. 5, 4 Stat. L. 80, is a repayment of the money paid under his void entry and purchase, and a change of entry cannot be had. The Act of 1825 is not supplementary or amendatory of any previous Act, but is substantive and independent, and provides for a class of cases not embraced by any other law. Carman v. Johnson, (1859) 29 Mo. 84.

The Act of Jan. 12, 1825, did not embrace all sales erroneously made, but only such as were erroneous by reason of a defect of title in the United States. This statute did not embrace a case of mere irregularity, in which attempts to dispose of a portion of the public domain have been made by persons having no authority to sell. The department cannot refund simply because it is just that the money should be repaid or that it is in the hands of the government by mistake or without consideration. (1843) 4 Op. Atty-Gen. 253. See also (1837) 3 Op. Atty-Gen. 253, holding that the Act embraces the single category of failure of consideration by reason of want of title to a whole or a part of the land sold.

Sec. 2363. [Refunding in certain cases, how done.] Where any tract of land has been erroneously sold, as described in the preceding section, and the money which was paid for the same has been invested in any stocks held in trust, or has been paid into the Treasury to the credit of any trust-fund, it is lawful, by the sale of such portion of the stocks as may be necessary for the purpose, or out of such trust-fund, to repay the purchase-money to the parties entitled thereto. [R. S.]

Sec. 2364. [Minimum price, how fixed when reservations sold.] Whenever any reservation of public lands is brought into market, the Commissioner of the General Land-Office shall fix a minimum price, not less than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, below which such lands shall not be disposed of. [R. S.]

Act of July 2, 1864, ch. 221, 13 Stat. L. 374.

Conflict between state and individual.—The Act of April 24, 1820, provided for the case "where two or more persons shall apply for the purchase at private sale of the same tract at the same time." The condition of a state in making a selection in execution of a general floating grant, under an Act which granted lands to it in aid of a canal, is not that of a person applying for the purchase of a tract of land at private sale, and, therefore, a conflict in such a case, between the state and an individual, as to a section of the public domain, does not come within the Act. Attorney-General Cushing said: "I do not mean to say that grants of public land to a state for railroad, canal, or other purposes, stand upon any higher right than grants to individual purchasers for money. That is not the point. It is not a question of higher rights or of lower ones, but of different ones, or rather of rights regulated and acquired by distinct provisions of law, each with its distinct relations and consequences." (1856) 8 Op. Atty-Gen. 252.

Sec. 2365. [Highest bidder, when preferred in private sales.] Where two or more persons apply for the purchase, at private sale, of the same tract, at the same time, the register shall determine the preference, by forthwith offering the tract to the highest bidder. [R. S.]

Sec. 2367. [Lands in California subject to private entry and withdrawn, how to be opened to entry.] Wherever lands in California subject to private entry have been or are hereafter withdrawn from market for any cause, such lands shall not thereafter be held subject to private entry until they have first been open for at least ninety days to homestead and pre-emption settlers, and again offered at public sale. [R. S.]

Act of July 15, 1870, ch. 292, 16 Stat. L. 304.

Sec. 2368. [Certain lands located in good faith by claims arising under treaty of Sept. 30, 1854, may be purchased, etc.] The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to permit the purchase, with cash or military bounty-land warrants, of such lands as may have been located with claims arising under the seventh clause of the second article of the treaty of September thirty, eighteen hundred and fifty-four, at such price per acre as he deems equitable and proper, but not at a less price than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, and the owners and holders of such claims in good faith are also permitted to complete their entries, and to perfect their titles under such claims upon compliance with the terms above mentioned; but it must be shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior that such claims are held by innocent parties in good faith, and that the locations made under such claims have been made in good faith and by innocent holders of the same. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1872, ch. 357, 17 Stat. L. 340.

The purchase of land located outside of the territory ceded to the United States by the treaty of Sept. 30, 1854, between the United States and the Chippewa Indians of Lake Superior and the Mississippi, was authorized by the above section. Fee v. Brown, (1896) 162 U. S. 602, affirming (1892) 17 Colo. 510.

Where a patent was void for want of authority in the commissioner of Indian affairs to issue the Chippewa scrip on which the title was founded, a subsequent transferee and claimant of the land in good faith was held to be within the Act of 1872, and a decision by the secretary on the facts as to the merits of the case was held to be final and not subject to review by the courts. Pugsley v. Brown, (1888) 35 Fed. Rep. 688.

Sec. 2369. [Mistakes in entry of lands, provisions for.] In every case of a purchaser of public lands, at private sale, having entered at the land-office, a tract different from that he intended to purchase, and being desirous of having the error in his entry corrected, he shall make his application for that purpose to the register of the land-office; and if it appears from testimony satisfactory to the register and receiver, that an error in the entry has been made, and that the same was occasioned by original incorrect marks made by the surveyor, or by the obliteration or change of the original marks and numbers at corners of the tract of land; or that it has in any otherwise arisen from mistake or error of the surveyor, or officers of the land-office, the register and receiver shall report the case, with the testimony, and their opinion thereon, to the Secretary of the Interior, who is authorized to direct that the purchaser is at liberty to withdraw the entry so erroneously made, and that the moneys which have been paid shall be applied in the purchase of other lands in the same district, or credited in the payment for other lands which have been purchased at the same office. [R. S.]

Mistake in application and certificates of register.—In Widdicombe v. Childers, (1888) 124 U. S. 400, the grantor of the defendant purchased at the proper land office the southeast quarter of a section; but the register by mistake described it in the application as the southwest quarter, and the entry in the plat book showed the purchase and sale of the southeast quarter. The plaintiff, with full knowledge of these facts, afterwards located and obtained a patent for the southeast quarter. It was held that he was a purchaser in bad faith, and that his legal title, though good as against the United States, was subject to the superior equities of the defendant and those claiming under him. The court said: "There cannot be a doubt that if the mistake in the written application and in the certificates of the register and receiver had been discovered before the patent was issued, * * * it would have been corrected in the land office upon proper application in that behalf. The error was one which arose from the mistake of the register, one of the officers of the local land office, and comes directly within the provisions of section 2369 of the Revised Statutes." See also Godkin v. Cohn, (C. C. A. 1897) 80 Fed. Rep. 458.

Act of 1819 and those following explained.—There is no authority under the Act of 1819 for refunding money for land erroneously entered. Instead of providing for the refunding of money, it provides that the purchaser may withdraw the entry erroneously made, and the money which has been paid shall be applied in the purchase of other lands in the same district, or credited on other lands previously purchased at the same office. What distinguishes this Act from the Acts following is that the errors must be such as originate with the surveyor or land officers; and that, if the purchaser wishes the mistake corrected, he may have it done on condition that the purchase money shall be applied to other lands. The distinguishing feature of the Act of 1824 is that it provides for errors not occasioned by any act of the surveyor or land officers. Another distinction between this and the other Acts is that, upon the correction of the erroneous entry, the payment is to be transferred to the tract intended to have been entered, so that, under this Act, if an erroneous entry has been made without any agency of the officers, the purchaser, if he wishes it corrected, may have it done by transferring the payment as before stated, but is not entitled to have the money refunded. It is very obvious that there is nothing in any of the Acts on the subject that authorizes a change of the entry of one tract to another, unless the party has made a mistake in his numbers at the time of entering, and establishes satisfactorily to the land department that he intended to enter the tract to which he desires the change to be made. Carman v. Johnson, (1859) 29 Mo. 84.

Only entries made by purchasers are contemplated. — The provisions of the Acts of March 3, 1819, May 18 [24], 1824, and May 24, 1828, contemplate, exclusively, entries made by purchasers, by directing the application of the money paid on the entry, and do not include entries made by Canadian volunteers. (1830) 2 Op. Atty-Gen. 341.

Sec. 2370. [Mistakes in patent lands.] The provisions of the preceding section are declared to extend to all cases where patents have issued or may hereafter issue; upon condition, however, that the party concerned surrenders his patent to the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, with a relinquishment of title thereon, executed in a form to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior. [R. S.]

Act of May 24, 1828, ch. 96, 4 Stat. L. 301.

Sec. 2371. [Mistakes in location of warrants.] The provisions of the two preceding sections are made applicable in all respects to errors in the location of land-warrants. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 147, 10 Stat. L. 257.

Sec. 2372. [Error in entry by mistake of numbers, proceedings upon.] In all cases of an entry hereafter made, of a tract of land not intended to be entered, by a mistake of the true numbers of the tract intended to be entered, where the tract, thus erroneously entered, does not, in quantity, exceed one half-section, and where the certificate of the original purchaser has not been assigned, or his right in any way transferred, the purchaser, or, in case of his death, the legal representatives, not being assignees or transferees, may, in any case coming within the provisions of this section, file his own affidavit, with such additional evidence as can be procured, showing the mistake of the numbers of the tract intended to be entered, and that every reasonable precaution and exertion had been used to avoid the error, with the register and receiver of the land-district within which such tract of land is situated, who shall transmit the evidence submitted to them in each case, together with their written opinion, both as to the existence of the mistake and the credibility of each person testifying thereto, to the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, who, if he be entirely satisfied that the mistake has been made, and that every reasonable precaution and exertion [sic] had been made to avoid it, is authorized to change the entry, and transfer the payment from the tract erroneously entered, to that intended to be entered, if unsold; but, if sold, to any other tract liable to entry; but the oath of the person interested shall in no case be deemed sufficient, in the absence of other corroborating testimony, to authorize any such change of entry; nor shall anything herein contained affect the right of third persons. [R. S.]

Act of May 24, 1824, ch. 138, 4 Stat. L. 31.

Intended land must be unsold at date of transfer. — The above section authorizes a transfer to the tracts intended only if they were unsold at the date of the transfer. A purchaser of those tracts does not take charged with notice of a prior application to make the transfer, and subject to its results. Manuel v. Fabyanski, (1890) 44 Minn. 71. It was also held in this case that certain papers and transactions in the land office did not constitute an application under the above section to transfer the entry to the tracts involved in the action.

Sec. 2373. [Agreement and acts intended to prevent bids, penalty.] Every person who, before or at the time of the public sale of any of the lands of the United States, bargains, contracts, or agrees, or attempts to bargain, contract, or agree with any other person, that the last-named person shall not bid upon or purchase the land so offered for sale, or any parcel thereof, or who by intimidation, combination, or unfair management, hinders, or prevents, or attempts to hinder or prevent, any person from bidding upon or purchasing any tract of land so offered for sale, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not more than two years, or both. [R. S.]

Act of March 31, 1830, ch. 48, 4 Stat. L. 392.

Object of statute.—In Fackler v. Ford, (1860) 24 How. (U. S.) 322, holding that one who agrees to sell public land which he expects to purchase at a public sale, cannot thereafter plead his fraud in obtaining title, to defeat a decree of specific performance, the court explained the Act of March 31, 1830, as follows: "The fourth section is intended to protect the government and punish all persons who enter into combinations or conspiracies to prevent others from bidding at the sales, either by agreement not to do so, or by intimidation, threats, or violence." See also Ellis v. Mosier, (1849) 2 Greene (Iowa) 246.

An agreement whereby one purchases for the benefit of others is not prohibited where there is no agreement calculated to prevent competition. Switzer v. Skiles, (1846) 8 Ill. 529, 44 Am. Dec. 723.

The employment of an agent to purchase at a stipulated price is not unlawful. Pearsons v. Lee, (1835) 2 Ill. 193.

Agreement need not be direct.—Under the Act of March 31, 1830, although the agreement must be positive, it need not necessarily be direct. Stannard v. McCarthy, (1841) Morr. (Iowa) 124.

The government is the only party that can object to an agreement which tends to prevent bidding, especially where no one else is injured by the agreement. Easley v. Kelom, (1871) 14 Wall. (U. S.) 279; Root v. Shields, (1868) Woolw. (U. S.) 340.

Sec. 2374. [Agreements to pay premium to purchasers at public sales.] If any person before, or at the time of the public sale of any of the lands of the United States, enters into any contract, bargain, agreement, or secret understanding with any other person, proposing to purchase such land, to pay or give to such purchasers for such land a sum of money or other article of property, over and above the price at which the land is bid off by such purchasers, every such contract, bargain, agreement, or secret understanding, and every bond, obligation, or writing of any kind whatsoever, founded upon or growing out of the same, shall be utterly null and void. [R. S.]

Act of March 31, 1830, ch. 48, 4 Stat. L. 392.

Object of statute.—The purpose of this law is to protect those who propose to purchase lands at the public sales, from extortion. Fackler v. Ford, (1860) 24 How. (U. S.) 322.

Agreements not within statute.—Where parties were in possession of unsurveyed public lands and executed an agreement to purchase the lands when surveyed and offered for sale, and thereafter to mortgage the same to a creditor, the court held that such an agreement was not a violation of the Act of March 31, 1830 (4 Stat. L. 392). Wright v. Shumway, (1853) 1 Biss. (U. S.) 23, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 18,093.

M. had a claim and valuable improvements on public lands. E. agreed to pay two hundred dollars for one-half of the claim, and M. intrusted the two hundred dollars to E. as agent, to purchase for him his remaining portion of the land at the public sale, with the understanding that E. should deed to M. his portion of the purchase when perfected. This agreement was held not to violate the fifth section of the Act of March 31, 1830. Ellis v. Mosier, (1849) 2 Greene (Iowa) 246.

Sec. 2375. [Recovery of premiums paid to purchasers at public sales.] Every person being a party to such contract, bargain, agreement, or secret understanding, who pays to such purchaser any sum of money or other article of value, over and above the purchase-money of such land, may sue for and recover such excess from such purchaser in any court having jurisdiction of the same. [R. S.]

Act of March 31, 1830, ch. 48, 4 Stat. L. 392.

Sec. 2376. [Discovery of agreements to pay premium by bill in equity.] If the party aggrieved have no legal evidence of such contract, bargain, agreement, or secret understanding, or of the payment of the excess, he may, by bill in equity, compel such purchaser to make discovery thereof; and if in such case the complainant shall ask for relief, the court in which the bill is pending may proceed to final decree between the parties to the same; but every such suit either in law or equity shall be commenced within six years next after the sale of such land by the United States. [R. S.]

Act of March 31, 1830, ch. 48, 4 Stat. L. 392.

Necessary allegations of bill.—A bill brought with reference to the above section must allege and show that the contract is prohibited by the statute and that the complainant has no legal evidence of the agreement. Gale v. Cutler, (1842) 1 Pinn. (Wis.) 253.

Secs. 2377–2379. [See infra, XVI. “Reservations and Grants for Public Purposes—School Lands.”]

[VIII. RESERVATION AND SALE OF TOWN SITES ON THE PUBLIC LANDS.]

Sec. 2380. [Town sites to be reserved.] The President is authorized to reserve from the public lands, whether surveyed or unsurveyed, town-sites on the shores of harbors, at the junction of rivers, important portages, or any natural or prospective centers of population. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1863, ch. 80, 12 Stat. L. 754.

Sections 2380–2394 constitute chapter 8 of title 32 of the Revised Statutes, entitled as above.

Entry and disposal of lands of abandoned military reservations under town-site laws. See infra, div. XIV.

Not applicable to Indian reservations.—

Land reserved for tribes of Indians is not a part of “the public lands,” and is not subject to the Acts of Congress relating to town sites. King v. McAndrews, (C. C. A. 1901) 111 Fed. Rep. 869.

Statute made applicable to Alaska.—The laws of the United States relating to town sites have been extended to Alaska. Sawyer v. Van Hook, (1900) 1 Alaska 108.

Sec. 2381. [Reservations to be surveyed into lots.] When, in the opinion of the President, the public interests require it, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to cause any of such reservations, or part thereof, to be surveyed into urban or suburban lots of suitable size, and to fix by appraisement of disinterested persons their cash value, and to offer the same for sale at public outcry to the highest bidder, and thence afterward to be held subject to sale at private entry according to such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe; but no lot shall be disposed of at public sale or private entry for less than the appraised value thereof. And all such sales shall be conducted by the register and receiver of the land-office in the district in which the reservations may be situated, in accordance with the instructions of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1863, ch. 80, 12 Stat. L. 754.

Sec. 2382. [Town or city sites in public lands.] In any case in which parties have already founded, or may hereafter desire to found, a city or town on the public lands, it may be lawful for them to cause to be filed with the recorder for the county in which the same is situated, a plat thereof, for not exceeding six hundred and forty acres, describing its exterior boundaries according to the lines of the public surveys, where such surveys have been executed; also giving the name of such city or town, and exhibiting the streets, squares, blocks, lots, and alleys, the size of the same, with measurements and area of each municipal subdivision, the lots in which shall each not exceed four thousand two hundred square feet, with a statement of the extent and general character of the improvements; such map and statement to be verified under oath by the party acting for and in behalf of the persons proposing to establish such city or town; and within one month after such filing there shall be transmitted to the General Land-Office a verified transcript of such map and statement, accompanied by the testimony of two witnesses that such city or town has been established in good faith, and when the premises are within the limits of an organized land-district, a similar map and statement shall be filed with the register and receiver, and at any time after the filing of such map, statement, and testimony in the General Land-Office it may be lawful for the President to cause the lots embraced within the limits of such city or town to be offered at public sale to the highest bidder, subject to a minimum of ten dollars for each lot; and such lots as may not be disposed of at public sale shall thereafter be liable to private entry at such minimum, or at such reasonable increase or diminution thereafter as the Secretary of the Interior may order from time to time, after at least three months' notice, in view of the increase or decrease in the value of the municipal property. But any actual settler upon any one lot, as above provided, and upon any additional lot in which he may have substantial improvements shall be entitled to prove up and purchase the same as a pre-emption, at such minimum, at any time before the day fixed for the public sale. [R. S.]

Act of July 1, 1864, ch. 205, 13 Stat. L. 343.

Purpose of Act.—"Congress had in view two objects, to wit: first, to protect the equitable rights of those in the bona fide occupation of lots in towns already established, and to enable persons to acquire small parcels at a nominal price in towns thereafter to be located; second, to enable the inhabitants of the existing or proposed town to establish proper streets, blocks, and squares, adapted to the particular locality." Jones v. Petaluma, (1868) 36 Cal. 230; Aleman v. Petaluma, (1869) 38 Cal. 553.

This Act was evidently designed in aid and for the benefit and relief of such persons as, having settled upon the public lands, might desire to lay out and establish a town or city including their possessions, or having already laid out and established a town or city on unoccupied lands, and settled upon lots or municipal subdivisions within the boundaries thereof, to enable such occupants of town or city lots to procure a title thereto from the United States at a minimum price; and, further, to provide a means by which other parties desiring to purchase lots within the limits of an established city or town upon the public lands could procure a valid title thereto. Congress had in view the individual interests of bona fide settlers upon small parcels of public lands, as well as the common interests of a community of persons so contiguously settled as to justify the establishment of a town or city, and did not intend the Act for the especial benefit of municipal organizations or corporations; and to so construe the law as to authorize under its sanction an appropriation of private property to public use without compensation, or an arbitrary confiscation of rights of property for the benefit of municipal associations or corporations, would be a manifest perversion of the leading object and purpose of the law. Jones v. Petaluma, (1869) 38 Cal. 397.

Decisions judicial in character and not subject to collateral attack.—Decisions under this section, both of law and fact, made by the proper officer or officers, are judicial in character and not subject to collateral attack. King v. McAndrews, (C. C. A. 1901) 111 Fed. Rep. 860.

Private property not to be taken without compensation.—A board of aldermen of a city has no authority, under this section, to lay out imaginary streets running through valuable improvements, and by that process to deprive citizens of their property without any compensation. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. Lynch, (1878) 13 Nev. 92.

Sec. 2383. [When towns established upon unsurveyed lands, extension limits, how adjusted.] When such cities or towns are established upon unsurveyed lands, it may be lawful, after the extension thereto of the public surveys, to adjust the extension limits of the premises according to those lines, where it can be done without interference with rights which may be vested by sale; and patents for all lots so disposed of at public or private sale shall issue as in ordinary cases. [R. S.]

Act of July 1, 1864, ch. 205, 13 Stat. L. 344.

Sec. 2384. [When transcript maps of town are not filed in twelve months, proceedings by Secretary of Interior.] If within twelve months from the establishment of a city or town on the public domain, the parties interested refuse or fail to file in the General Land-Office a transcript map, with the statement and testimony called for by the provisions of section twenty-three hundred and eighty-two, it may be lawful for the Secretary of the Interior to cause a survey and plat to be made of such city or town, and thereafter the lots in the same shall be disposed of as required by such provisions, with this exception, that they shall each be at an increase of fifty per centum on the minimum of ten dollars per lot. [R. S.]

Act of July 1, 1864, ch. 205, 13 Stat. L. 344.

Decisions judicial in character and not subject to collateral attack.—Decisions under this section, both of law and fact, made by the proper officer or officers, are judicial in character and not subject to collateral attack. King v. McAndrews, (C. C. A. 1901) 111 Fed. Rep. 860.

Sec. 2385. [Where size of lots or town plat vary from general rule.] In the case of any city or town, in which the lots may be variant as to size from the limitation fixed in section twenty-three hundred and eighty-two, and in which the lots and buildings, as municipal improvements, cover an area greater than six hundred and forty acres, such variance as to size of lots or excess in area shall prove no bar to such city or town claim under the provisions of that section; but the minimum price of each lot in such city or town, which may contain a greater number of square feet than the maximum named in that section, shall be increased to such reasonable amount as the Secretary of the Interior may by rule establish. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1865, ch. 107, 13 Stat. L. 530.

Sec. 2386. [Title to lots subject to mineral rights.] Where mineral veins are possessed, which possession is recognized by local authority, and to the extent so possessed and recognized, the title to town-lots to be acquired shall be subject to such recognized possession and the necessary use thereof; but nothing contained in this section shall be so construed as to recognize any color of title in possessors for mining purposes as against the United States. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1865, ch. 107, 13 Stat. L. 530.

The provisions as to minerals and mineral claims are set out under MINERAL LANDS, MINES, AND MINING, vol. 5, p. 1.

Mineral rights cannot be acquired under this section, but are left subject to acquisition in the same manner as deposits outside of town sites. Steel v. St. Louis Smelting, etc., Co., (1882) 106 U. S. 447; Poire v. Wells, (1882) 6 Colo. 406.

General purpose and effect of section.—“This statute was enacted at a time when it was the settled policy of the government not to sell its mineral lands, and when it was impossible for an individual to acquire title to such lands. Even then, when mineral veins were held and possessed by virtue of mere local rules and regulations, and when the title could not be acquired, the title to the town lots under the Town-site Act were subject to the necessary possession and use of the mine owner. Even then, when the government did not propose to part with its title to the mineral lands, the possessory title to the mine, such as it was, is made superior to that of the lot owner under the Town-site Act. That Act gave the mine owner all the title he had, made the lot owner's title subject to it, and is not at all inconsistent with the Act of 1872 (R. S. U. S. sec. 2319), which opens the public mineral lands to exploration and purchase, and gives to the locator the full title when its terms have been complied with.” Talbott v. King, (1896) 6 Mont. 76. To the same effect is Silver Bow Min., etc., Co. v. Clark, (1885) 5 Mont. 378.

Valuable for its minerals.—Lands of which acquisition is prohibited, under this section, must be such land as is known at the time to be valuable for its minerals; for there are vast tracts of public land in which minerals of different kinds are found, but not in such quantities as to justify the expenditure necessary to extract them. It is not to such land that the term "mineral," in the sense of the statute, is applicable. Deffebach v. Hawke, (1885) 115 U. S. 392.

The right to tunnel under a lot taken under the Town-site Act, in order to reach a mineral vein which was known to exist at the time of the issuing of the town-site patent and is excluded from the operation of the patent, does not belong to the owner of the vein in the absence of any agreement by the owner to that effect supported by a valid consideration. Dower v. Richards, (1887) 73 Cal. 477.

Sec. 2387. [Entry of town authorities in trust for occupants.] Whenever any portion of the public lands have been or may be settled upon and occupied as a town-site, not subject to entry under the agricultural pre-emption laws, it is lawful, in case such town be incorporated, for the corporate authorities thereof, and, if not incorporated, for the judge of the county court for the county in which such town is situated, to enter at the proper land-office, and at the minimum price, the land so settled and occupied in trust for the several use and benefit of the occupants thereof, according to their respective interests; the execution of which trust, as to the disposal of the lots in such town, and the proceeds of the sales thereof, to be conducted under such regulations as may be prescribed by the legislative authority of the State or Territory in which the same may be situated. [R. S.]

Act of March 2, 1867, ch. 177, 14 Stat. L. 541.

IN GENERAL.

Government's interest totally relinquished.

— Under this statute the government totally relinquishes its connection with the land when the patent issued to the local authority. McDaid v. Oklahoma, (1893) 150 U. S. 209; Bockfinger v. Foster, (1903) 190 U. S. 116; Chisolm v. Weisse, (1895) 2 Okla. 611.

"Corporate authorities" means the corporate authorities of a town, city, or village, in the commonly accepted meaning of those words, possessing and exercising the powers of a local or municipal government. Clarke v. Roy, (1866) 20 Wis. 478; Perry v. Superior City, (1870) 26 Wis. 64.

Duty of probate judge to make entry.

— Whenever any public land of the United States has been settled upon and occupied as a town site, and the town is not incorporated, it is the duty of the probate judge, upon being furnished with entrance money, to enter such lands for the benefit of the occupants of the town site according to their respective interests. McTaggart v. Harrison, (1873) 12 Kan. 62.

Expenses of entering not a lien on trust property. — A mayor of a city desired to enter land under this statute for the benefit of the occupants, and upon his right to do so being contested, he employed counsel to assist him in the contest and they performed the services for which they were employed. He never entered the lands, but his successor in office did. It was held, in an action by the attorneys against the successor, for their fees, that the contract made by the first mayor did not bind his successor in office and that the attorneys' charges were not a lien on the trust estate vested in the successor for the benefit of the occupants. Emmert v. De Long, (1873) 12 Kan. 67.

Authority of municipality to employ counsel. — A municipal corporation has authority to employ counsel in acquiring a town-site patent and to pay them reasonable compensation for their services, but a contract to pay counsel "the sum of ten dollars for each and every lot or parcel of lot actually sold and conveyed under and by virtue of said patent," is illegal and void, since the size of the lots or parcels of lots is in no way specified or made certain by the contract, and therefore the contract might charge the beneficiaries of the trust with unnecessary burdens and make the compensation of the attorney unreasonable and unconscionable. Hayward v. Red Cliff, (1894) 20 Colo. 33.

Evidence for identification. — Town-site plats are admissible to identify the lands. Wilder v. St. Paul, 12 Minn. 192; Mankato v. Meagher, 17 Minn. 265.

Oral evidence is also competent for the purpose of identification in an action involving the title to lands conveyed, but the plat itself should be produced, or the failure to produce it explained, before such oral evidence is admitted. Murray v. Hobson, (1887) 10 Colo. 66; Hanlon v. Hobson, (1897) 24 Colo. 284.

Parties. — In an action against a mayor of a municipal corporation for a demand or claim due out of the property held in trust for the occupants, all the trustees and cestuis que trustent should be made parties defendant. Emmert v. De Long, (1873) 12 Kan. 67.

NATURE OF TRUST AND TITLE AND AUTHORITY OF TRUSTEES.

Trust for occupants individually and collectively. — The trust provided for by this section is dual in its nature. It exists for the benefit of the occupants as individuals and also collectively as a community. Martin v. Hoff, (Ariz. 1901) 64 Pac. Rep. 445; Clark v. Titus, (1886) 2 Ariz. 147; Denver v.

Kent, (1871), 1 Colo. 336; Lockwitz v. Larson, (1898) 16 Utah 275; Newhouse v. Simino, (1892) 3 Wash. 648. See also Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184; Ruud v. Jensen, (1892) 3 Wash. 785.

The title to occupied lots becomes vested in the trustee for the benefit of the occupants severally when he makes the entry. Jones v. Eureka Imp. Co., (1890) 53 Ark. 191; Winfield Town Co. v. Maris, (1873) 11 Kan. 128; Sherry v. Sampson, (1873) 11 Kan. 611; Mankato v. Meagher, 17 Minn. 265; Goldberg v. Kidd, (1894) 5 S. Dak. 169; Eakin v. McCraith, (1882) 2 Wash. Ter. 112. See also Stringfellow v. Cain, (1878) 99 U. S. 610; Mallard v. Anderson, (1884) 36 La. Ann. 834.

Title to unoccupied lots.—The title to lots to which no valid claims are held by individuals, the trustees take in trust for the occupants of the town site collectively. Denver v. Kent, (1871) 1 Colo. 336; Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184.

The trusteeship as to unoccupied lots continues until they are all finally sold in the manner provided by law. Hartman v. Smith, (1887) 6 Mont. 295.

Location and occupancy after entry.—The opinion has been expressed that vacant and unoccupied lands are subject to location and occupation by any person at any time prior to the issuance of the patent. Lechler v. Chapin, (1877) 12 Nev. 71, per Hawley, C. J. Compare Winfield Town Co. v. Maris, (1873) 11 Kan. 128; Leech v. Rauch, 3 Minn. 454; Castner v. Gunther, 6 Minn. 119; Lockwitz v. Larson, (1898) 16 Utah 275.

Estate vested in trustees and not in municipality.—The estate and trust powers become vested in the trustees and not in the municipality. Smith v. Pipe, (1877) 3 Colo. 187; Georgetown v. Glaze, (1877) 3 Colo. 234; Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184; Burbank v. Ellis, (1878) 7 Neb. 156.

Bill by corporation to prevent abuse of trust.—It would seem, however, that a bill may be maintained by a corporation to correct or prevent an abuse of the trust which affects the interest of the beneficiaries. Denver v. Kent, (1871) 1 Colo. 336; Georgetown v. Glaze, (1877) 3 Colo. 234; Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184.

Suit to protect title.—The probate judge is the trustee of an express trust and has authority to sue to protect his title as such. Hartman v. Smith, (1887) 6 Mont. 295.

Title passes to successor.—The purpose of the statute is to confer the estate upon the county judge or corporate authorities in their official capacity, and to limit it to the successor until the purposes of the trust are fully accomplished. Therefore a vacancy in the office occasions no difficulty. Smith v. Hill, (1891) 89 Cal. 122; Smith v. Pipe, (1877) 3 Colo. 187; Georgetown v. Glaze, (1877) 3 Colo. 230; Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184.

Formation of new county from part of old county.—Where a new county is formed from a portion of an old county the probate judge of the new county becomes the successor of the old trustee in respect to those lands which belong to the town sites falling within the territory of the new county. Whittlesey v. Hoppenyan, (1888) 72 Wis. 140; Tucker v. Whittlesey, (1889) 74 Wis. 74.

Corporate authorities not successors of county judge.—When a town site, entered before incorporation by a county judge as trustee, becomes incorporated, the corporate authorities do not on that account succeed to the title of the original trustee. The title belongs to the successors in office of the county judge and they alone can convey the legal title. Wheeler v. Wade, (1891) 1 Colo. App. 66; Webber v. Petty, (1892) 2 Colo. App. 63; Rice v. Goodwin, (1892), 2 Colo. App. 267.

Decisions of trustees judicial in character.—The decision of all questions, under this section, whether of law or of fact, upon which depends the ultimate question whether the claimant of a town site is entitled to enter and to receive the patent for the land, is judicial in its nature, and impervious to collateral attack, and can only be assailed successfully by a direct proceeding in equity for that purpose. King v. McAndrews, (C. C. A. 1901) 111 Fed. Rep. 860; Larned v. Jenkins, (C. C. A. 1902) 113 Fed. Rep. 634; New Dunderberg Min. Co. v. Old, (C. C. A. 1897) 79 Fed. Rep. 598; Smith v. Pipe, (1877) 3 Colo. 187; Anderson v. Bartels, (1883) 7 Colo. 256; Poire v. Wells, (1882) 6 Colo. 406; Aspen v. Aspen Town, etc., Co., (1887) 10 Colo. 191; Chever v. Horner, (1887) 11 Colo. 68; Schnepel v. Mellen, (1878) 3 Mont. 118; Helena v. Albertose, (1889) 8 Mont. 499; Ming v. Foote, (1890) 9 Mont. 201, overruling Ming v. Truett, (1871) 1 Mont. 325, reviewing and distinguishing Edwards v. Tracy, (1874) 2 Mont. 49; Horsky v. Moran (1898) 21 Mont. 345; Mills v. Paynter, 1 Neb. 440; Tierney v. Cornell, (1874) 3 Neb. 267; Green v. Barker, (1896) 47 Neb. 934; Board of Education v. Mansfield, (S. Dak. 1903) 95 N. W. Rep. 286. Compare Rathbone v. Sterling, (1881) 25 Kan. 448.

Void deed attacked collaterally.—If the grantee was not in occupancy or entitled to occupancy of the land, the trustee had no authority to execute a deed to such grantee and it may be collaterally attacked as void and of no effect. Treadway v. Wilder, (1873) 9 Nev. 67. See also Poire v. Wells, (1882) 6 Colo. 406.

Acts and conveyances presumptively valid.—The rule that the acts and conveyances of officers of the land department are presumed to be valid, applies to town-site trustees. Poire v. Wells, (1882) 6 Colo. 406; Anderson v. Bartels, (1883) 7 Colo. 256; Setter v. Alvey, (1875) 15 Kan. 157; Marysville Invest. Co. v. Munson, (1890) 44 Kan. 491; Green v. Barker, (1896) 47 Neb. 934. See also Mathews v. Buckingham, (1879) 22 Kan. 166.

Finding of fact conclusive.—The findings of the trustees upon questions of fact are, as a rule, conclusive. Twine v. Carey, (1894) 2 Okla. 249; Bassett v. Mitchell, (1895) 3 Okla. 177; Myers v. Berry, (1895) 3 Okla. 612; King v. Thompson, (1895) 3 Okla. 644; Cummings v. McDermid, (1896) 4 Okla. 272.

See also Carter v. Thompson, (1894) 65 Fed. Rep. 329.

Deed cannot be attacked by stranger.—One who is a stranger to the title and in no way a beneficiary of the trust cannot question the validity of the acts of the trustees or the regularity of conveyances executed by them, nor can such person, by subsequent intrusion upon the possession of the holder of the legal title, acquire a right to question whether all the preliminaries required by law were complied with by the person holding the title from the trustee. Anderson v. Bartels, (1883) 7 Colo. 256; Murray v. Hobson, (1887) 10 Colo. 66; Chever v. Horner, (1887) 11 Colo. 68; Hanlon v. Hobson, (1897) 24 Colo. 284; Laughlin v. Denver, (1897) 24 Colo. 260; Sherry v. Sampson, (1873) 1 Kan. 611; Marysville Invest. Co. v. Munson, (1890) 44 Kan. 491; Taylor v. Winona, etc., R. Co., (1890) 45 Minn. 66; Ming v. Foote, (1890) 9 Mont. 201; Holland v. Buchanan, (1899) 19 Utah 11; Tucker v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., (1895) 91 Wis. 576. See also Jackson v. Winfield Town Co., (1880) 23 Kan. 542; Ready v. Kearsley, (1866) 14 Mich. 215.

No vendor's lien for expenses of administering trust.—The trustee before conveying the title to an occupant has a right to demand from the occupant to whom the deed is made the purchase money and all the expenses of administering the trust; and it is only upon the payment of all these that the occupant is entitled to demand a deed. There is nothing in the statute which gives the trustee a lien for the expenses of administering his trust should he see fit to make a conveyance before they are paid, for a vendor's lien can exist only for unpaid purchase money. Berry v. Ginaca, (1880) 5 Fed. Rep. 475.

Controversy between claimants a federal question.—A controversy between two persons, both of whom claim to be cestuis que trustent under this section, presents a federal question and authorizes the removal of the cause. Dunton v. Muth, (1891) 45 Fed. Rep. 390.

Trustee without authority to dedicate streets.—A town-site trustee has no authority to dedicate, as a street, alley or public square, any portion of the town site in the possession of an occupant, and such an attempted dedication gives the public no interest as against the occupant. Aleman v. Petaluma, (1869) 38 Cal. 553; Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184; Pueblo v. Budd, (1894) 19 Colo. 579; Laughlin v. Denver, (1897) 24 Colo. 255; Winfield Town Co. v. Maris, (1873) 11 Kan. 128; Buffalo v. Harling, (1892) 50 Minn. 551; Edwards v. Tracy, (1874) 2 Mont. 49; Hall v. Ashby, (1876) 2 Mont. 489, affirmed (1886) 119 U. S. 526; Parchen v. Ashby, (1883) 5 Mont. 68; Helena v. Albertose, (1889) 8 Mont. 499; Guthrie v. Beamer, (1895) 3 Okla. 652; Bingham v. Walla Walla, (1887) 3 Wash. Ter. 68.

OCCUPANCY AND RIGHTS OF OCCUPANTS.

Only occupants beneficiaries.—No claimant of lots comprising a portion of a town site is a beneficiary of the trust, or entitled to a conveyance without proof of actual occupation, either by the claimant or his grantors, whether such claimant be an individual or a town company. Clark v. Titus, (1886) 2 Ariz. 147; Ricks v. Reed, (1862) 19 Cal. 551; Biddick v. Kobler, (1895) 110 Cal. 191; Cook v. Rice, (1873) 2 Colo. 131; Clayton v. Spencer, (1874) 2 Colo. 378; Adams v. Binkley, (1878) 4 Colo. 247; Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184; Aspen v. Aspen Town, etc., Co., (1887) 10 Colo. 191; Mitchell v. Arkell, (1893) 3 Colo. App. 253; Winfield Town Co. v. Maris, (1873) 11 Kan. 128; Sherry v. Sampson, (1873) 11 Kan. 615; Guffin v. Linney, (1882) 26 Kan. 717; Matter of Selby, (1859) 6 Mich. 193; Leech v. Rauch, 3 Minn. 451; Carson v. Smith, 12 Minn. 560; Treadway v. Wilder, (1872) 8 Nev. 98, (1873) 9 Nev. 67; Lechler v. Chapin, (1877) 12 Nev. 72; Lockwitz v. Larson, (1898) 16 Utah 275; Holland v. Buchanan, (1899) 19 Utah 11. See also Callahan v. James, (Cal. 1902) 71 Pac. Rep. 104; Morris v. Watson, 15 Minn. 212.

The assigns of occupants stand in the position of their grantors and are entitled to a conveyance from the trustees. Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184; Aspen v. Aspen Town, etc., Co., (1887) 10 Colo. 191; Lechler v. Chapin, (1877) 12 Nev. 72.

Purchasers of vacant or forfeited lots at sales regularly made in pursuance of statute, are entitled to conveyance from the trustee. Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184.

Priority of occupancy determines the title where there are two or more claimants. Sawyer v. Van Hook, (1900) 1 Alaska 108; Webber v. Petty, (1892) 2 Colo. App. 63.

Who may be occupants.—A nonresident who is an occupant of the land he claims may be an occupant within the statute, as there is nothing in the statute which restricts the right of occupancy to residents. Greiner v. Fulton, (1891) 46 Kan. 405; Hagar v. Wikoff, (1895) 2 Okla. 580; Downman v. Saunders, (1895) 3 Okla. 227.

Municipal corporations.—A county or other municipal corporation may be an occupant within this section. Blue Earth County v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., (1881) 28 Minn. 503. But see Setter v. Alvey, (1875) 15 Kan. 157.

A town company stands upon the same footing as individuals and its bona fide occupancy will be recognized and protected by the law. Winfield Town Co. v. Maris, (1873) 11 Kan. 128; Marysville Invest. Co. v. Munson, (1890) 44 Kan. 491; Greiner v. Fulton, (1891) 46 Kan. 405; Mankato v. Meagher, 17 Minn. 265.

Occupation for speculative purposes not allowed.—A town site cannot be entered for speculative purposes by individuals or corporations, but only by actual settlers engaged in building a town. An entry solely for the benefit of a corporation, where there are no bona fide individual claims, is not contemplated or allowed by the law. Marysville Invest. Co. v. Holle, (1897) 58 Kan. 773, reversing 5 Kan. App. 408. See also Clark v. Titus, (1886) 2 Ariz. 147; Pascoe v. Green, (1893) 18 Colo. 326; Lechler v. Chapin, (1877) 12 Nev. 71.

Requisites of occupancy.—The acts necessary to constitute possession of land must always depend upon the facts of each case, such as the character of the land, its locality, and the object and purpose for which it is taken up and claimed. But the acts must always be such as to subject the land to the will and control of the claimant and to notify the public that the land is claimed and occupied. Garrard v. Silver Peak Mines, (1897) 82 Fed. Rep. 578; Ritter v. Lynch, (1903) 123 Fed. Rep. 930; Sawyer v. Van Hook, (1900) 1 Alaska 108; Price v. Brockway, (1901) 1 Alaska 233; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Tillman, (Ariz. 1889) 21 Pac. Rep. 818; Martin v. Hoff, (Ariz. 1901) 64 Pac. Rep. 445; Mankato v. Meagher, 17 Minn. 265; Schnepel v. Mellen, (1878) 3 Mont. 118; Eureka Min., etc., Co. v. Way, (1876) 11 Nev. 171; Lechler v. Chapin, (1877) 12 Nev. 72; Jackson v. Thornton, (1899) 8 Okla. 331.

Meaning of "settled upon and occupied."—"Settled upon" means taken possession of. It includes such an improvement of the lot by the erection of buildings or fences, or by actual residence thereon, or by such other acts of possession and improvement, as clearly and unmistakably show that it is bona fide the intention of the settler to take and hold possession of the lot, and that his possession and improvement is intended to be permanent, and for himself. "Occupied" also means taken and held in possession, and one who uses a lot and occupies it in good faith with buildings or other improvements or property, which show his intention to possess and claim it under the town-site law, although he may not reside upon it, can acquire title thereto." Sawyer v. Van Hook, (1900) 1 Alaska 108; Osgood v. Donnelly, (1901) 1 Alaska 385. See also Stringfellow v. Cain, (1878) 99 U. S. 610; Hussey v. Smith, (1878) 99 U. S. 20.

Necessity for retaining possession.—The widow and children of an occupant of land within a town site, have, under the town-site law, an inchoate interest after the death of the occupant, but they will lose such interest by failing to retain possession of the land until the entry by the municipal authorities. West v. Child, (1892) 8 Utah 223; West v. Utah Nat. Bank, (1893) 8 Utah 374.

Showing title to each lot claimed.—The possession of part of a separate and distinct tract by the owner or his tenants operates as an occupancy of the whole lot, but if the tract is cut up into distinct lots the claimant to such tract must show possession of all the lots. Carter v. Ruddy, (1897) 166 U. S. 493.

Actual residence not required.—Actual residence or the cultivation of the lands occupied is unnecessary. If the claimant be a bona fide occupant he is entitled to have his claim protected. Greiner v. Fulton, (1891) 46 Kan. 406; Leech v. Rauch, 3 Minn. 448.

Merely platting the land, without actual occupancy in person or by agent, is insufficient. Carson v. Smith, 12 Minn. 546. See also Weisberger v. Tenny, 8 Minn. 459.

Interest of occupants.—The interest of an occupant is inchoate, it is true, but it is nevertheless valuable; it is authorized by law and may be defended against all encroachments from persons not having a paramount right. It is more than a mere right of possession, because in time it will ripen into a perfect title. Davis v. Murphy, 3 Minn. 119; West v. Child, (1892) 8 Utah 223; West v. Utah Nat. Bank, (1893) 8 Utah 374. See also Gillett v. Gaffney, (1877) 3 Colo. 351.

A right of disposition belongs to the occupant of a lot, so far as his possessory rights therein are concerned, before the lands are entered by the judge of the County Court. Hussey v. Smith, (1878) 99 U. S. 20, reversing (1873) 1 Utah 129; Stringfellow v. Cain, (1878) 99 U. S. 610, reversing (1876) 1 Utah 361; Cannon v. Pratt, (1878) 99 U. S. 619, reversing (1876) 1 Utah 347; Hagar v. Wikoff, (1895) 2 Okla. 580; Guthrie v. Beamer, (1895) 3 Okla. 662; Clawson v. Wallace, (1898) 16 Utah 300. See also U. S. v. Tithing Yard, 9 Utah 274.

Recording conveyance of interest.—A conveyance of the interest of an occupant is subject to recording acts. Davis v. Murphy, 3 Minn. 119; Carson v. Smith, 5 Minn. 78, 77 Am. Dec. 539.

Interest descendible.—The interest of a bona fide occupant is descendible. Stringfellow v. Cain, (1878) 99 U. S. 610; Eversdon v. Mayhew, (1884) 65 Cal. 163, (1890) 85 Cal. 1; Gillett v. Gaffney, (1877) 3 Colo. 351; West v. Child, (1892) 8 Utah 223; West v. Utah Nat. Bank, (1893) 8 Utah 374. See also Coy v. Coy, 15 Minn. 119.

Descendible interest lost by abandonment.—If the persons entitled by descent do not retain control of the land until a proper entry is made, the right will be lost. Stringfellow v. Cain, (1878) 99 U. S. 610; West v. Child, (1892) 8 Utah 223; West v. Utah Nat. Bank, (1893) 8 Utah 374.

Bare right of possession.—Although an occupant has become disqualified from ever obtaining title to the land on account of having entered the land in violation of an Act of Congress, nevertheless such an occupant, who has settled upon a government town site and made improvements thereon, and who has been unlawfully dispossessed while in the peaceable and actual occupancy of the buildings or lots, by the authorities of the city, which had no right to or interest in the lots, can maintain an action for damages for trespass. The peaceable possession of the premises, although without right, is sufficient title to maintain trespass against a wrongdoer who without a bare right enters upon such possession. Oklahoma City v. Hill, (1897) 6 Okla. 114.

Right vested at date of entry.—The trust vests an absolute right in the beneficiaries at the time of the entry. The rights of occupants relate back to that time and are to be determined as of that date. Cook v. Rice, (1873) 2 Colo. 131; Clayton v. Spencer, (1874) 2 Colo. 378; Adams v. Binkley, (1878) 4 Colo. 247; Pascoe v. Green, (1893) 18 Colo. 326; Pueblo v. Budd, (1894) 19 Colo. 587; Winfield Town Co. v. Maris, (1873) 11 Kan. 128; Rathbone v. Sterling, (1881) 25 Kan. 444; Leech v. Rauch, 3 Minn. 448; Castner v. Gunther, 6 Minn. 119; Cast- ner v. Echard, 6 Minn. 149; Helena v. Albertose, (1889) 8 Mont. 490; Lechler v. Chapin, (1877) 12 Nev. 66; Guthrie v. Beamer, (1895) 3 Okla. 652; Lockwitz v. Larson, (1898) 16 Utah 275.

Meaning of term "entry."—By an "entry" under the Act is meant the filing of the application by the proper officer with the register of the land office, and proof of the performance of the conditions in respect to the settlement and occupancy of the town sites. Lockwitz v. Larson, (1898) 16 Utah 275.

Ownership.—The occupant of a lot at the time the entry of the town site by the county judge is made is its real owner. Goldberg v. Kidd, (1894) 5 S. Dak. 169; Cofield v. McClelland, (1872) 16 Wall. (U. S.) 334; Stringfellow v. Cain, (1878) 99 U. S. 610.

Rights not affected by government's failure to act.—"No delay on the part of the government in allowing the entry can affect the rights of those who were bona fide occupants at the time of the filing of the application and proof, or of those claiming through such occupants, provided the entry is ultimately made on the proof submitted with the application; for, if the entry were allowed on other proof submitted at a subsequent day, question might be made whether the conditions imposed by the Act had actually been performed on the prior day. Nor can the rights of the cestui que trustent be jeopardized by any delay on the part of the government to recognize them by proper evidence of title. The issuing of the final certificate and patent is not made a prerequisite, under the Act of 1867, to the establishment of the equitable rights of the occupants. Such certificate and patent do not confer the rights, although convenient, and probably necessary, to enforce them. They constitute the effect, but not the cause, and therefore a person who claims to have become an occupant of land on a town site after the date of filing the application, but before the issuance of the certificate and patent, is not a beneficiary under the Act, unless the right of occupancy was acquired through one who was a rightful occupant on the date of filing the application." Lockwitz v. Larson, (1898) 16 Utah 275.

The legal title vests in the occupant when the trustee in whom is vested, under the laws of Congress and by patent from the United States, the land comprising a town site, in trust for the occupants, executes a deed to a parcel of land to one claiming to be a beneficiary of the trust. Murray v. Hobson, (1887) 10 Colo. 66. See also Mills v. Hobson, (1887) 10 Colo. 78.

When trustee to execute deed.—The trustee should, under this statute, execute deeds to occupants of the town site and other lots when they have complied with the local rules and regulations. Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184; Mankato v. Meagher, 17 Minn. 265.

The failure of the deed to recite the authority by which it is executed does not invalidate the deed. Burbank v. Ellis, (1878) 7 Neb. 156.

Execution of deeds only after filing of plat and survey.—An original claimant of a town-site lot entered under this section is entitled to receive a deed therefor from the probate judge who holds the title as trustee, only after the town site has been surveyed into blocks, lots, and streets and alleys, and a plat of such survey filed in the office of the county recorder; and after such filing the streets and alleys designated in the plat become dedicated to the public use forever, and a claimant can acquire no title in fee to any street or alley upon which his lot abuts. Hershfield v. Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone Co., (1892) 12 Mont. 102.

When land taxable.—Until a conveyance has been made by the trustee to the occupant a town-site lot is not subject to taxation. Topeka Commercial Security Co. v. McPherson, (1898) 7 Okla. 332.

Rights of individuals in streets and alleys.—Where, at the time of the entry by the probate judge, certain lots in the town site were adjacent to a recognized street or alley, the occupants of the lots acquired an interest in such streets and alleys which was as much to be respected as their interest in the lots themselves. Parchen v. Ashby, (1883) 5 Mont. 68. See also Ashby v. Hall, (1886) 119 U. S. 526, affirming (1876) 2 Mont. 489; Dooly Block v. Salt Lake Rapid Transit Co., 9 Utah 31.

Streets and alleys to which public right attaches.—The streets and alleys contemplated by the Act, and as to which on the entry of lands the interest of the public attaches, are those streets and alleys which exist as a fact at the time of the entry, either by actual use or by the consent and acquiescence of the occupants affected, and not streets or lots laid out upon paper and to which the occupant has never given his consent. Bingham v. Walla Walla, (1887) 3 Wash. Ter. 68; Ashby v. Hall, (1886) 119 U. S. 526. See also Mills v. Hobson, (1887) 10 Colo. 78.

Title to half of street.—The grantee of a lot by deed from the trustee takes title, both to the lot and to the street on which it abuts, up to the centre of the street, subject to the easement of the public. Mankato v. Willard, 13 Minn. 13, 97 Am. Dec. 208; Harrington v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; Mankato v. Meagher, 17 Minn. 265.

Estoppel of occupant by dedication.—As between individuals, who have purchased lots which the proprietor had platted into a town site, and the proprietor, the individuals are entitled to have such streets as are necessary or convenient for their use and enjoyment of the property purchased by them, kept open for their own use and that of the public. But such a proprietor is not estopped from reclaiming or shutting up any street or portion thereof delineated on his plat, where private rights are not directly affected; and as against the municipality claiming the streets, where the public have not acquired rights by user, or acceptance of the offer to dedicate, indicated by the platting, the owner is not estopped. He may revoke or recall his offer to dedicate before actual acceptance at any time, when the plat has not been executed in accordance with the statute, and placed upon record. Diamond Match Co. v. Ontonagon, (1888) 72 Mich. 249.

Person without title estopped by dedication.—Since a person who has no title may become estopped by a common-law dedication, a claimant under the town-site law may become estopped by a dedication for a street or other purpose of a portion of lots occupied by him, although his right to a deed, at the time of the dedication, was not established. Mankato v. Willard, 13 Minn. 13, 97 Am. Dec. 208; Mankato v. Meagher, 17 Minn. 265; Mankato v. Warren, 20 Minn. 144.

No dedication shown.—Where, after the passage of this Act, town authorities adopted an official map of the town indicating a street laid out through the lands occupied by a private person at the date of the Act, the right of the occupant to the lands designated as a street was not affected thereby, and the petitioning of the municipal authorities by the grantees of such occupant for a deed of the land, and describing the land in the petition by reference to the map, did not operate to dedicate the land designated as a street to the use of the public. Nor will a conveyance of other portions of the lands of the occupant, described in the conveyance by reference to such street, dedicate the street to the public. Cerf v. Pflieger, (1892) 94 Cal. 131.

Loss of right by abandonment.—An occupant upon the public domain of the United States of a lot which is thereafter platted into blocks, streets, and alleys, and entered as provided by this Act, may lose whatever right he acquired by prior occupancy and possession, by abandonment, and such abandonment may be inferred from his acts and declarations, and from the declarations of such occupant's grantee. Boise City v. Flanagan, (1898) 6 Idaho 149; Weisberger v. Tenny, 8 Minn. 456; Brown v. Parker, (1894) 2 Okla. 264.

Abandonment a question of fact.—The question whether a lot has been abandoned is one of fact upon which the findings by the proper officers of the land department are final in the absence of fraud or mistake. Cook v. McCord, (1899) 9 Okla. 200.

Voluntary withdrawal from lot.—Where a party had been in the occupancy of a lot, and prior to the passage of this Act voluntarily withdrew therefrom and gave it up to another, the rights which depended on his keeping the possession were gone. Stringfellow v. Cain, (1878) 99 U. S. 610.

When land liable to loss by abandonment.—An occupant may lose the land by abandonment at any time until he has complied with the law in regard to improvements, occupancy, etc., and made application for a deed in accordance with the law and paid the price. Young v. Tiner, (1894) 4 Idaho 269; Thompson v. Holbrook, (1876) 1 Idaho 609.

Facts insufficient to show abandonment.—See Webber v. Petty, (1892) 2 Colo. App. 63.

LEGISLATIVE REGULATIONS.

Purpose of provision.—Congress intended by the last provision of the above section that the legislature of the state might authorize the trustee to make a survey and plat of unoccupied lands and dedicate the streets and public grounds to the public use, or that it might authorize a sale of the lots in such parcels as should seem to be required by the situation and probable future of the town. Diamond Match Co. v. Ontonagon, (1888) 72 Mich. 249.

State acts regulating disposal of lots.—In pursuance of this section a number of states and territories have passed appropriate statutes regulating the sale of town-site lots and the disposal of the proceeds. Hussey v. Smith, (1878) 99 U. S. 20, reversing (1873) 1 Utah 129; Hussey v. Merritt, (1878) 99 U. S. 25, note (construing Utah statute); Robertson v. Martin, (Ariz. 1904) 76 Pac. Rep. 614; Ricks v. Reed, (1862) 19 Cal. 551; Ryan v. Tomlinson, (1866) 31 Cal. 11; Cerf v. Pflieger, (1892) 94 Cal. 131; Amador County v. Gilbert, (1901) 133 Cal. 51; Coffield v. McClellan, (1871) 1 Colo. 370, affirmed (1872) 16 Wall. (U. S.) 331; Tucker v. McCoy, (1885) 8 Colo. 368; Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184; Graves v. Steel, (1854) 4 Greene (Iowa) 377; Winfield Town Co. v. Maris, (1873) 11 Kan. 128; Independence Town Co. v. De Long, (1873) 11 Kan. 152; Allen v. Houston, (1878) 21 Kan. 194; Remillard v. Blackmarr, (1892) 49 Minn. 490; Schnepel v. Mellen, (1878) 3 Mont. 118; Helena v. Albertose, (1889) 8 Mont. 499; Ming v. Foote, (1890) 9 Mont. 201; State v. Webster, (1903) 28 Mont. 104; Tierney v. Cornell, (1874) 3 Neb. 267; Lechler v. Chapin, (1877) 12 Nev. 65; Goldberg v. Kidd, (1894) 5 S. Dak. 169; Linck v. Salt Lake City, (1889) 6 Utah 109; Drake v. Reggel, (1894) 10 Utah 376; Newhouse v. Simino, (1892) 3 Wash. 648; Kellogg v. Sessions, (1892) 4 Wash. 814.

Extent of legislative control.—The power vested in legislatures in the execution of the trust is confined to regulations for the disposal of the land and the proceeds of the sales. These regulations may extend to provisions for the ascertainment of the nature and extent of the occupancy of different claimants of lots, and the execution and delivery to those found to be occupants in good faith of some official recognition or title in the nature of a conveyance. But the legislatures cannot dispose of the trust in any manner other than that prescribed by Congress or authorize any diminution of the rights of the occupants when the extent of their occupancy is once established. Ashby v. Hall, (1886) 119 U. S. 526; Clark v. Titus, (1886) 2 Ariz. 147; Denver v. Kent, (1871) 1 Colo. 336; Pueblo v. Budd, (1894) 19 Colo. 587; Lechler v. Chapin, (1877) 12 Nev. 71. See also Robertson v. Martin, (Ariz. 1904) 76 Pac. Rep. 614; Aspen v. Rucker, (1887) 10 Colo. 184; Winfield Town Co. v. Maris, (1873) 11 Kan. 128; Newhouse v. Simino, (1892) 3 Wash. 648; Kellogg v. Sessions, (1892) 4 Wash. 814.

Limiting time for application for title.—In Goldberg v. Kidd, (1894) 5 S. Dak. 169, it was held that it is not competent for the legislature to say that the equitable owner continuing in open and uninterrupted possession shall forfeit his rights under the Act of Congress unless, within a limited number of days, he shall apply for and put himself in a position to receive a full legal title; but the court expressed the opinion that the legislature did have authority to prescribe regulations for the orderly establishment by the county judge of such facts as would enable him to intelligently close out his trust by making deeds to persons entitled to them, and to provide that no occupant should obtain a deed without complying with such regulations, and to fix the time within which, under such regulations, application for deeds should be made.

Payment of purchase price by occupant.—Under a statute of a territory requiring the "claimant" of a lot to pay to the trustee a certain sum before he is entitled to a deed, all occupants must become "claimants," and as such file a statement and pay to the trustee the purchase price as required by the statute. This regulation, in connection with the vesting of the legal title in the occupant, is reasonable, and consistent with the other regulations of Congress relating to the disposal of town-site lots. Robertson v. Martin, (Ariz. 1904) 76 Pac. Rep. 614.

Compliance with legislative regulations.—Where the statutory regulations authorized by this section specify what lands shall be subject to sale by the trustee, and prescribe the time and conditions of the sale, such regulations must be complied with or the sale and the deed made in pursuance thereof will be totally void. Amador County v. Gilbert, (1901) 133 Cal. 51.

Sec. 2388. [Entry under preceding section, when to be made.] The entry of the land provided for in the preceding section shall be made, or a declaratory statement of the purpose of the inhabitants to enter it as a town-site shall be filed with the register of the proper land-office, prior to the commencement of the public sale of the body of land in which it is included, and the entry or declaratory statement shall include only such land as is actually occupied by the town, and the title to which is in the United States; but in any Territory in which a land-office may not have been established, such declaratory statements may be filed with the surveyor-general of the surveying-district in which the lands are situated; who shall transmit the same to the General Land-Office. [R. S.]

Act of March 2, 1867, ch. 177, 14 Stat. L. 541.

Decisions judicial in character and not subject to collateral attack.—Decisions under this and sections 2389, 2390 infra, both of law and fact, made by the proper officer or officers, are judicial in character and not subject to collateral attack. King v. McAndrews, (C. C. A. 1901) 111 Fed. Rep. 860.

Sec. 2389. [Entry in proportion to number of inhabitants.] If upon surveyed lands, the entry shall in its exterior limit be made in conformity to the legal subdivisions of the public lands authorized by law; and where the inhabitants are in number one hundred, and less than two hundred, shall embrace not exceeding three hundred and twenty acres; and in cases where the inhabitants of such town are more than two hundred, and less than one thousand, shall embrace not exceeding six hundred and forty acres; and where the number of inhabitants is one thousand and over one thousand, shall embrace not exceeding twelve hundred and eighty acres; but for each additional one thousand inhabitants, not exceeding five thousand in all, a further grant of three hundred and twenty acres shall be allowed. [R. S.]

See note under section 2388, supra.

Sec. 2390. [Authorities of Salt Lake City, rights of, as to entry.] The words "not exceeding five thousand in all," in the preceding section, shall not apply to Salt Lake City, in the Territory of Utah; but such section shall be so construed in its application to that city that lands may be entered for the full number of inhabitants contained therein, not exceeding fifteen thousand; and as that city covers school-section number thirty-six, in township number one north, of range number one west, the same may be embraced in such entry, and indemnity shall be given therefor when a grant is made by Congress of sections sixteen and thirty-six, in the Territory of Utah, for school purposes. [R. S.]

Act of July 1, 1870, ch. 193, 16 Stat. L. 183. Construction of section a "federal question."—Where a trustee had issued two deeds to the same premises to different claimants, the determination of which of the deeds, if either, is valid under this section presents a federal question for which the cause is removable. Dunton v. Muth, (1891) 45 Fed. Rep. 390.

See note under section 2388, supra.

Sec. 2391. [Certain acts of trustees to be void.] Any act of the trustees not made in conformity to the regulations alluded to in section twenty-three hundred and eighty-seven shall be void. [R. S.]

Act of March 2, 1867, ch. 177, 14 Stat. L. 541.

Sale of unsurveyed lands.—Where the laws of the state in force with respect to the procedure to be observed in dealing with lands within town-site entries required the lands to be "surveyed into suitable blocks and lots," the trustee, upon ascertaining that this had not been done, could not proceed to sell such lands. State v. Webster, (1903) 28 Mont. 104.

Sale without advertisement.—The selling of a lot, without conforming to the rule that it must be first advertised and offered for sale at public vendue, as prescribed by the statute passed by the legislature of the territory, renders a deed by the trustee totally void. Edwards v. Tracy, (1874) 2 Mont. 49.

Survey violating existing rights in streets and alleys.—The statute of the territory having provided that the survey and plat of the town site should conform as well as might be to the existing rights, interests, and claims of the occupants thereof, where, prior to the survey of the probate judge, there had been an earlier survey and plat designating lots, streets, and alleys, and the occupants had by usage and common consent accepted such survey and plat and had bought and sold their lots accordingly, then such streets and alleys remained streets and alleys after the survey and entry of the probate judge, though not so designated on his plat and survey, and in so far as his survey failed to conform to the rights of the occupants already acquired, it is void. Parchen v. Ashby, (1883) 5 Mont. 68.

Utah statute.—An Act of the territory of Utah directed that deeds of conveyance should be "executed by the mayor of the city or town, under seal of the corporation." It was held that a deed bearing the corporate seal, but not witnessed, was sufficient notwithstanding a general statute in the territory requiring deeds to be witnessed. Townsend v. Little, (1883) 109 U. S. 504.

Sec. 2392. [No title acquired to gold mines, etc., or to mining claims, etc.] No title shall be acquired, under the foregoing provisions of this chapter, to any mine of gold, silver, cinnabar, or copper; or to any valid mining-claim or possession held under existing laws. [R. S.]

Act of March 2, 1867, ch. 177, 14 Stat. L. 541; Act of June 8, 1868, ch. 53, 15 Stat. L. 67.

See the following text.

This section is a re-enactment of the Act of March 2, 1867, and the Act of June 8, 1868, ch. 53, the first of which acts was not repealed by the latter. Dower v. Richards, (1894) 151 U. S. 658.

States excepted.—This section applies to all the states except Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, and Kansas. Deffebach v. Hawke, (1885) 115 U. S. 392.

Two classes of mining claims distinguished.—This section prevents a town-site entry from carrying title to two classes of mining claims. The first class need not be characterized by possession in any person. It is sufficient if in fact the property is a known mine of one of the metals mentioned in the statute, and it is not sufficient that there be in fact a mine of this description unless at the time of the town-site entry it is known to be such. The other class of mining claims referred to consists of any valid mining claim or possession held under existing laws, and in this class of cases it is immaterial whether the claim was known to contain minerals of sufficient value to justify exploration or not. Callahan v. James, (1903) 141 Cal. 291.

Mining locations not acquirable under Act.—This Act recognizes the possession of mining locations within town limits and forbids the acquisition of such locations under proceedings to which title to other lands there situated is secured, thus leaving the mineral deposits within town sites open to exploration, and the land in which they are found to occupation and purchase, in the same manner as such deposits are elsewhere explored and possessed and the lands containing them are acquired. Steel v. St. Louis Smelting, etc., Co., (1882) 106 U. S. 447; Dower v. Richards, (1894) 151 U. S. 661, affirming (1889) 81 Cal. 44; Deffebach v. Hawke, (1885) 115 U. S. 392; Sparks v. Pierce, (1885) 115 U. S. 408; Davis v. Weibbold, (1891) 139 U. S. 507; Reilly v. Berry, (1887) 2 Ariz. 272; Blackmore v. Reilly, (1888) 2 Ariz. 442; Richards v. Dower, (1883) 64 Cal. 62, (1889) 81 Cal. 44; Jones v. Petaluma, (1868) 36 Cal. 230; Hunt v. Steese, (1888) 75 Cal. 620; Poire v. Wells, (1882) 6 Colo. 406; Butte City Smoke-house Lode Cases, (1887) 6 Mont. 397; King v. Thomas, (1887) 6 Mont. 409; Talbot v.

King, (1886) 6 Mont. 76; Silver Bow Min., etc., Co. v. Clark, (1885) 5 Mont. 378. See also O'Keefe v. Cannon, (1892) 52 Fed. Rep. 898.

Known mines are likewise excepted from the operation of the town-site grant. McLaughlin v. U. S., (1882) 107 U. S. 526; Colorado Coal, etc., Co. v. U. S., (1887) 123 U. S. 307; Davis v. Weibbold, (1891) 139 U. S. 507; Larned v. Jenkins, (C. C. A. 1902) 113 Fed. Rep. 634; Silver Bow Min., etc., Co. v. Clark, (1885) 5 Mont. 378. See also U. S. v. Reed, (1886) 12 Sawy. (U. S.) 99; Richards v. Dower, (1889) 81 Cal. 44; Gold Hill Quartz Min. Co. v. Ish, (1873) 5 Oregon 104.

Knowledge of mineral deposit at time of patent.—Lands to which the first clause of this section is applicable must be such lands as are known at the time the patent is issued to be valuable for their mineral deposits, in order to avoid any possible doubt as to the validity of the title which may be issued for lands in which mineral deposits may be afterwards discovered. Deffeback v. Hawke, (1885) 115 U. S. 392; Davis v. Weibbold, (1891) 139 U. S. 507 (each explained and distinguished in Barden v. Northern Pac. R. Co., (1894) 154 U. S. 288); Larned v. Jenkins, (C. C. A. 1902) 113 Fed. Rep. 634; Kansas City Min., etc., Co. v. Clay, (1892) 3 Ariz. 326; Richards v. Dower, (1889) 81 Cal. 44; Smith v. Hill, (1891) 89 Cal. 122. See also Moran v. Horsky, (1900) 178 U. S. 205.

A ledge which had been profitably worked, and contained gold bearing rock, but which had been abandoned, and which, at the time of the issuing of a town-site patent of the land within which it lies, was not known to be valuable for mining purposes, is not excepted from the operation of the town-site patent, although after such patent had taken effect the land is found to be still valuable for mining purposes. Dower v. Richards, (1894) 151 U. S. 658.

Tunneling under lot to reach minerals.—A grant by a town-site patent issued by the United States prior to the passage of the Act of 1872, prescribing the maximum width for quartz-mining claims, carries an absolute fee-simple title to the grantee and those claiming under him in a lot in which a quartz ledge was known to exist at the date of the patent and not actually included in the ledge; and a third person has no right, without the consent of the owner, to run a tunnel under a portion of the land not included in the ledge for the purpose of working such ledge. Dower v. Richards, (1887) 73 Cal. 477.

Attacking town-site patents collaterally for embracing mineral lands.—A town-site patent regularly issued cannot be attacked collaterally by parties who go upon the patented town site and locate a mining claim, upon the theory that the ground so located was known to be mineral land at the time of the town-site entry, and being such, was excepted from and did not pass by virtue of the town-site patent; for the question whether any lands located and held under the provisions of the land laws are mineral lands is to be determined by the officers of the land department, and their findings upon that question are conclusive and can only be attacked by a direct proceeding under the direction of the government of the United States. Steel v. St. Louis Smelting, etc., Co., (1882) 106 U. S. 447; Davis v. Weibbold, (1891) 139 U. S. 507; Barden v. Northern Pac. R. Co., (1894) 154 U. S. 288; Carter v. Thompson, (1894) 65 Fed. Rep. 329; New Dunderberg Min. Co. v. Old, (C. C. A. 1897) 79 Fed. Rep. 598; Horsky v. Moran, (1898) 21 Mont. 345; Board of Education v. Mansfield, (S. Dak. 1903) 95 N. W. Rep. 286. See also Pacific Coast Min., etc., Co. v. Spargo, (1883) 16 Fed. Rep. 348; Buena Vista Petroleum Co. v. Tulare Oil, etc., R. Co., (1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 226.

Excepting town-site rights in patents for mining claims.—No legal objection exists to the practice of the land department, in issuing patents for mining claims upon veins or lodes, of inserting in the patent a clause excepting from the grant the town-site rights in the premises, where it appears that the surface ground of any such claims lies wholly or partly within the limits of a previously located, entered, or patented town site. (1881) 17 Op. Atty-Gen. 248.

SEC. 16. [Town-site entries not to include mining rights — mining claims preserved.] That town-site entries may be made by incorporated towns and cities on the mineral lands of the United States, but no title shall be acquired by such towns or cities to any vein of gold, silver, cinnabar, copper, or lead, or to any valid mining claim or possession held under existing law. When mineral veins are possessed within the limits of an incorporated town or city, and such possession is recognized by local authority or by the laws of the United States, the title to town lots shall be subject to such recognized possession and the necessary use thereof and when entry has been made or patent issued for such town sites to such incorporated town or city, the possessor of such mineral vein may enter and receive patent for such mineral vein, and the surface ground appertaining thereto: Provided, That no entry shall be made by such mineral-vein claimant for surface ground where the owner or occupier of the surface ground shall have had possession of the same before the inception of the title of the mineral-vein applicant. [26 Stat. L. 1101.]

This is from the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, "An act to repeal timber-culture laws and for other purposes."

Sec. 2393. [Military or other reservations, etc.] The provisions of this chapter shall not apply to military or other reservations heretofore made by the United States, nor to reservations for light-houses, custom-houses, mints, or such other public purposes as the interests of the United States may require, whether held under reservations through the Land-Office by title derived from the Crown of Spain, or otherwise. [R. S.]

Act of March 2, 1867, ch. 177, 14 Stat. L. 541.

Sec. 2394. [Inhabitants of towns on public lands, right of, to enter.] The inhabitants of any town located on the public lands may avail themselves, if the town authorities choose to do so, of the provisions of sections twenty-three hundred and eighty-seven, twenty-three hundred and eighty-eight, and twenty-three hundred and eighty-nine; and in addition to the minimum price of the lands embracing any town-site so entered, there shall be paid by the parties availing themselves of such provisions all costs of surveying and platting any such town-site, and expenses incident thereto incurred by the United States, before any patent issues therefor; but nothing contained in the sections herein cited shall prevent the issuance of patents to persons who have made or may hereafter make entries, and elect to proceed under other laws relative to town-sites in this chapter set forth. [R. S.]

Act of June 8, 1868, ch. 53, 15 Stat. L. 67.

King v. McAndrews, (C. C. A. 1901) 111 Fed. Rep. 860.

Lands reserved to Indians are not "public lands" within the meaning of this section.

An act respecting the limits of reservations for town-sites upon the public domain.

[Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 113, 19 Stat. L. 392.]

[SEC. 1.] [Quantity of land excluded from homestead entry for town-site.] That the existence or incorporation of any town upon the public lands of the United States shall not be held to exclude from pre-emption or homestead entry a greater quantity than twenty-five hundred and sixty acres of land, or the maximum area which may be entered as a town-site under existing laws, unless the entire tract claimed or incorporated as such town-site shall, including and in excess of the area above specified, be actually settled upon, inhabited, improved, and used for business and municipal purposes. [19 Stat. L. 392.]

Pre-emption laws were repealed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 4, supra, p. 285.

Purpose of Act.—"The Act was intended to apply to and remedy a state of facts that existed in many western towns, where the corporate limits included large tracts of public land, unoccupied and unimproved, and not used for business or municipal purposes. It was evidently the purpose of the Act to establish a limitation upon such reservations for town sites on the public domain, and to open to settlement under the public land laws the unoccupied lands that were not used or required for municipal purposes." Vilas v. Algar, (C. C. A. 1901) 109 Fed. Rep. 519.

Cities laid out mainly on private lands.—This Act has no application to incorporated cities laid out on land mainly of private ownership and including some of the lands of the United States, but only to cities laid out exclusively on the public lands of the United States according to the laws of the United States. Houlton v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., (1893) 86 Wis. 59.

SEC. 2. [Confirms entries previously made.]

This section reads as follows:

"SEC. 2. That where entries have been heretofore allowed upon lands afterward ascertained to have been embraced in the corporate limits of any town, but which entries are or shall be shown, to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, to include only vacant unoccupied lands of the United States, not settled upon or used for municipal purposes, nor devoted to any public use of such town, said entries, if regular in all respects, are hereby confirmed and may be carried into patent: Provided, That this confirmation shall not operate to restrict the entry of any town-site to a smaller area than the maximum quantity of land which, by reason of present population, it may be entitled to enter under section twenty-three hundred and eighty-nine of the Revised Statutes." [19 Stat. L. 392.]

This section has been construed in the following cases: Vilas v. Algar, (C. C. A. 1901) 109 Fed. Rep. 519; Alger v. Hill, (1893) 2 Wash. 345, (1891) 6 Wash. 358.

SEC. 3. [Where town site exceeds maximum — proceedings — disposal of excess — incorporating acts to be furnished surveyor-general.] That whenever the corporate limits of any town upon the public domain are shown or alleged to include lands in excess of the maximum area specified in section one of this act, the Commissioner of the General Land Office may require the authorities of such town, and it shall be lawful for them, to elect what portion of said lands, in compact form and embracing the actual site of the municipal occupation and improvement, shall be withheld from pre-emption and homestead entry; and thereafter the residue of such lands shall be open to disposal under the homestead and pre-emption laws. And upon default of said town authorities to make such selection within sixty days after notification by the Commissioner, he may direct testimony respecting the actual location and extent of said improvements, to be taken by the register and receiver of the district in which such town may be situated; and, upon receipt of the same, he may determine and set off the proper site according to section one of this act, and declare the remaining lands open to settlement and entry under the homestead and pre-emption laws; and it shall be the duty of the secretary of each of the Territories of the United States to furnish the surveyor-general of the Territory for the use of the United States a copy duly certified of every act of the legislature of the Territory incorporating any city or town, the same to be forwarded by such secretary to the surveyor-general within one month from date of its approval. [19 Stat. L. 392.]

See note under section 1, supra.

SEC. 4. [Towns with less than maximum may make additional entries.] It shall be lawful for any town which has made, or may hereafter make entry of less than the maximum quantity of land named in section twenty-three hundred and eighty-nine of the Revised Statutes to make such additional entry, or entries, of contiguous tracts, which may be occupied for town purposes as when added to the entry or entries therefore made will not exceed twenty-five hundred and sixty acres: Provided, That such additional entry shall not together with all prior entries be in excess of the area to which the town may be entitled at date of the additional entry by virtue of its population as prescribed in said section twenty-three hundred and eighty-nine. [19 Stat. L. 392.]

An act to authorize entry of the public lands by incorporated cities and towns for cemetery and park purpose[s].

[Act of Sept. 30, 1890, ch. 1121, 26 Stat. L. 502.]

[Purchase of lands by cities and towns for cemeteries and parks.] That incorporated cities and towns shall have the right, under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, to purchase for cemetery and park purposes not exceeding one-quarter section of public lands not reserved for public use, such lands to be within three miles of such cities or towns: Provided, That when such city or town is situated within a mining district, the land proposed to be taken under this act shall be considered as mineral lands, and patent to such land shall not authorize such city or town to extract mineral therefrom, but all such mineral shall be reserved to the United States, and such reservation shall be entered into such patent. [26 Stat. L. 502.]

SEC. 22. [Oklahoma town sites — reservations for parks, schools, etc. — homestead entries — rights of occupants — disposition of proceeds.] That the provisions of title thirty-two, chapter eight of the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to "reservation and sale of town sites on the public lands" shall apply to the lands open, or to be opened to settlement in the Territory of Oklahoma, except those opened to settlement by the proclamation of the President on the twenty-second day of April; eighteen hundred and eighty-nine: Provided, That hereafter all surveys for town sites in said Territory shall contain reservations for parks (of substantially equal area if more than one park) and for schools and other public purposes, embracing in the aggregate not less than ten nor more than twenty acres; and patents for such reservations, to be maintained for such purposes, shall be issued to the towns respectively when organized as municipalities: Provided further, That in case any lands in said Territory of Oklahoma, which may be occupied and filed upon as a homestead, under the provisions of law applicable to said Territory, by a person who is entitled to perfect his title thereto under such laws, are required for town site purposes, it shall be lawful for such person to apply to the Secretary of the Interior to purchase the lands embraced in said homestead or any part thereof for town-site purposes. He shall file with the application a plat of such proposed town-site, and if such plat shall be approved by the Secretary of the Interior, he shall issue a patent to such person for land embraced in said town site, upon the payment of the sum of ten dollars per acre for all the lands embraced in such town site, except the lands to be donated and maintained for public purposes as provided in this section. And the sums so received by the Secretary of the Interior shall be paid over to the proper authorities of the municipalities when organized, to be used by them for school purposes only. [26 Stat. L. 91.]

An act to provide for town site entries of lands in what is known as "Oklahoma," and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Town-site entries of lands in Oklahoma by trustees — surveys, conveyances, etc.] That so much of the public lands situate in the Territory of Oklahoma, now open to settlement, as may be necessary to embrace all the legal subdivisions covered by actual occupancy for purposes of trade and business, not exceeding twelve hundred and eighty acres in each case, may be entered as town-sites, for the several use and benefit of the occupants thereof, by three trustees to be appointed by the Secretary of the Interior for that purpose, such entry to be made under the provisions of section twenty-three hundred and eighty-seven of the Revised Statutes as near as may be; and when such entry shall have been made, the Secretary of the Interior shall provide regulations for the proper execution of the trust, by such trustees including the survey of the land into streets, alleys, squares, blocks, and lots when necessary, or the approval of such survey as may already have been made by the inhabitants thereof, the assessment upon the lots of such sum as may be necessary to pay for the lands embraced in such town-site, costs of survey, conveyance of lots, and other necessary expenses, including compensation of trustees: Provided, That the Secretary of the Interior may when practicable cause more than one town site to be entered and the trust thereby created executed in the manner herein provided by a single board of trustees, but not more than seven boards of trustees in all shall be appointed for said Territory, and no more than two members of any of said boards shall be appointed from one political party. [26 Stat. L. 109.]

Boards of trustees abolished by Act of July 7, 1898, ch. 571, infra, p. 361.

Provisions of Act extended to Cherokee Outlet by Res. of Sept. 1, 1893, No. 4, infra, p. 360.

Differing from general Town-site Act.—The town sites referred to by the general Town-site Act (R. S. sec. 2387) were to be entered by the corporate authorities of the town if incorporated, or if not by the judge of the County Court for the county in which the town was located, and the trust as to the disposal of the lands, and the proceeds of the sales thereof, were to be executed in accordance with such regulations as might be prescribed by the legislative authorities of the state or territory in which the town might be situated; while under this special Act, in reference to Oklahoma, the entry is to be made by trustees appointed by the secretary, and the trust conducted under such regulations as may be established by him. In the one case the government parted with its connection with the land when the patent issued to the local trustees; in the other, the government retained its connection by having the entry made by its own agents and the trust executed in the manner it directs. By the scheme of this Act the title is held in trust for the occupying claimants, it is true, but also in trust sub modo for the government until the rightful claimants and the undisposed of or surplus land are ascertained. McDaid v. Oklahoma, (1893) 150 U. S. 209; Bockfinger v. Foster, (1903) 190 U. S. 116.

Nature of trustee's title.—The township trustees do not hold an indefeasible title as of private right with power to dispose of the land at will, but only as trustees for such occupants as may be ascertained, in the mode prescribed by the Act of Congress, to be entitled to the particular lots within the town-site boundary. The creation of the trust by Congress was only a step towards the ultimate transmission of the title of the United States to occupants under the Town-site Act. Bockfinger v. Foster, (1903) 190 U. S. 116.

Suit against town-site trustees not maintainable.—A suit against town-site trustees to compel them, without regard to the Acts of Congress, to convey to one who was not an occupant within the meaning of that Act, but who claimed that he had acquired, under the homestead laws, a right to the land su-prior to that held by the town-site trustees, for the use of occupants, is not maintainable, for the reason that the trustees are simply government agents created for the conveyance of the legal title from the government to the occupants, and that the legal title is still in the United States and subject exclusively to the supervision of the department of the interior. But when an occupant, under the Town-site Law, has acquired title from the town-site trustees, any one who adversely claims title to the land can litigate the matter with the occupant in some court of competent jurisdiction, because, as between the United States and the occupant, the former has then parted with its title. Bockfinger v. Foster, (1903) 190 U. S. 116, affirming (1900) 10 Okla. 488; Hammer v. Hermann, (1901) 11 Okla. 127; Fitzgerald v. Foster, (1902) 11 Okla. 558. See also McDaid v. Oklahoma, (1893) 150 U. S. 209; Johnson v. Towsley, (1871) 13 Wall. (U. S.) 72; Paine v. Foster, (1900) 9 Okla. 213.

Parties.—Even if an action against the town-site trustees to declare a resulting trust in favor of a plaintiff who claims adversely to the town-site entry could be maintained, the town-site lot claimants are necessary parties to the action. Fitzgerald v. Foster, (1902) 11 Okla. 558; Bockfinger v. Foster, (1900) 10 Okla. 488; Paine v. Foster, (1900) 9 Okla. 216.

When right of occupant becomes vested.—Congress has exclusive power over the disposition of the public domain, and may divest by appropriate legislation any interest acquired by settlement or occupancy at any time prior to an entry of the land, at the proper land office. No vested right as against the United States is acquired until all the prerequisites for the acquisition of the title have been complied with. Guthrie v. Beamer, (1895) 3 Okla. 652; Ard v. Brandon, (1895) 156 U. S. 537.

Supervisory power of secretary of interior.—The secretary of the interior is given supervision of the entire business of the land department, and he is invested with authority to review, reverse, amend, or affirm all proceedings in the department having for their ultimate object to secure the alienation of any portion of the public lands. This power of supervision may be exercised by the secretary, by direct orders, or by review on appeal, or on his own motion. It is his duty to exercise it whenever matters are brought to his attention which demand the exercise of such supervision. The supervisory power of the secretary over town-site trustees arises from the subordinate regulations of such trustee to himself and not from his general duties in relation to the public lands, and where the United States grants lands, absolutely and without reservation, to the trustees and their successors, to hold in trust for the use and benefit of the occupant, the trustees have the legal title and the government has no further control over the title other than the supervisory authority of the secretary of the interior in the adjustment of controversies between conflicting claimants to the lands. Paine v. Foster, (1900) 9 Okla. 213.

Deposit for expenses of contest.—A rule of the secretary of the interior which requires a contestant before town-site trustees, appointed under this Act, to deposit a certain sum with the treasurer of the board before the cause will be heard, is authorized by law and is a reasonable rule, and the contestant or claimant failing to comply with the rule cannot invoke the aid of a court of equity, although his failure to comply with the rule may have been due to his poverty. Twine v. Carey, (1894) 2 Okla. 249; Baldwin v. Mason (1895) 3 Okla. 237; Shultz v. Jones, (1895) 3 Okla. 504; Matthews v. Young, (1895) 3 Okla. 649.

Effect of approval of former survey.—Under the foregoing provision of this section for the entry and platting of the town sites, authorizing the approval of surveys already made and adopted by the inhabitants of the town, where prior to the passage of this Act the inhabitants of the town had made a survey and adopted a plat, and subsequently the secretary of the interior adopted and approved such survey and plat, the Act of Congress, and the action of the secretary thereunder, were, in effect, a dedication to the public uses of all such portions of the town site as were designated on such plat as streets and alleys, and had the effect to divest any individual claim, by settlement or occupancy, to such portions. A different rule would apply if the dedication had been attempted by the trustees or by Congress after the land was entered for the benefit of the occupants. The dedication of the lands for streets by the Act of Congress, and the action of the secretary, relate to the time of the adoption of the statute, or, probably, to the date of the adoption of the plat by the inhabitants. Guthrie v. Beamer, (1895) 3 Okla. 652.

Liability of disbursing agent for money deposited in banks.—A special disbursing agent of the board of town-site trustees, appointed in pursuance of regulations made by the secretary of the interior, authorized by this section, which regulations provided that the agent should deposit "all the sums received by him at least once a week, and when practicable daily, in some bank designated by the board," is liable for any loss that may arise from the failure of these banks, and he is not relieved from liability by the fact that these banks were designated by the board of trustees as places of deposit. The fact that some of the money deposited was derived from assessments and was never in the treasury is immaterial, inasmuch as it was public money, for which he was bound to account according to the terms of his bond. (1891) 20 Op. Atty-Gen. 24.

SEC. 2. [Certificate issued by recognized authority as evidence of occupancy.] That in the execution of such trust, and for the purpose of the conveyance of title by said trustees, any certificate or other paper evidence of claim duly issued by the authority recognized for such purpose by the people residing upon any town site the subject of entry hereunder, shall be, taken as evidence of the occupancy by the holder thereof of the lot or lots therein described, except that where there is an adverse claim to said property such certificate shall only be prima facie evidence of the claim of occupancy of the holder: Provided, That nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to make valid any claim now invalid of those who entered upon and occupied said lands in violation of the laws of the United States or the proclamation of the President thereunder: Provided further, That the certificates hereinbefore mentioned shall not be taken as evidence in favor of any person claiming lots who entered upon said lots in violation of law or the proclamation of the President thereunder. [26 Stat. L. 109.]

SEC. 3. [Church lots.] That lots of land occupied by any religious organization, incorporated or otherwise, conforming to the approved survey within the limits of such town-site, shall be conveyed to or in trust for the same. [26 Stat. L. 109.]

SEC. 4. [Remaining lots to be sold, or reserved for public use.] That all lots not disposed of as hereinbefore provided for shall be sold under the direc-issuance of the patent, when the patent is issued his general authority ceases and he cannot provide by rule for appeals from the decisions of the trustees. McDaid v. Territory, (1892) 1 Okla. 92; Moore v. Robbins, (1877) 96 U. S. 530.

Review by the courts upon questions of law.—The courts have always, in proper cases, interceded to correct mistakes of law, and, without attempting to take from the land department the right to determine controverted questions of fact, have, when two or more claimants to public lands have based their claims upon uncontroverted facts, after title has passed to one of the parties, examined into such facts for the purpose of correcting errors of law committed by the officers of the department, if any were found to exist; but it has not been the policy of the courts generally to interfere with the findings of such officers made upon disputed questions of fact, either at law or in equity. Twine v. Carey, (1894) 2 Okla. 249; King v. Thompson, (1895) 3 Okla. 644; Paine v. Foster, (1900) 9 Okla. 213. See also Johnson v. Towsley, (1871) 13 Wall. (U. S.) 84; Moore v. Robbins, (1877) 96 U. S. 530; Marquez v. Frisbie, (1879) 101 U. S. 473; Vance v. Lurbank, (1879) 101 U. S. 514; Quinby v. Conlan, (1881) 104 U. S. 420.

Sufficiency of petition.—In order to authorize a court of equity to interfere with the final action of a board of town-site trustees appointed under this Act, on account of a misapplication of the law by such trustees, the petition must specifically set out the findings of fact made by such trustees, in order that the court may determine whether or not the law was properly applied to the facts found by the trustees. Myers v. Berry, (1895) 3 Okla. 612; King v. Thompson, (1895) 3 Okla. 644.

Findings of fact reviewed only for fraud.—The findings of fact made in a lot controversy by a board of town-site trustees appointed under this Act are final and conclusive, except on appeal to the proper departmental officers. The courts will not inquire into the facts or evidence upon which findings are based, unless it is clearly made to appear that such findings were procured by fraud, imposition, or misrepresentation, to the manifest injury of the party complaining. Myers v. Berry, (1895) 3 Okla. 612; Twine v. Carey, (1894) 2 Okla. 249; King v. Thompson, (1895) 3 Okla. 644.

Sufficiency of allegations of fraud.—In order to give the courts jurisdiction to go behind the findings of fact made in a lot contest instituted before a board of town-site trustees appointed under this Act, and try and determine the cause, and render a decree adverse to the award made in such contest, on the ground of fraud, it is necessary that the complaint should allege the facts constituting the fraud with such fulness and particularity as to show to the court that the action of the officers whose duty it was to determine the controversy must necessarily have been affected thereby to the defeat of the complainant in the contest; and mere general allegations that the defendant, through false and fraudulent representations and false testimony, procured the deed to the lot, are not sufficient. The allegations of fact must show that the fraud which caused the defeat of the complainant was extrinsic or collateral to the matter tried, and not a fraud which was in issue in the contest. Cummings v. McDerimid, (1896) 4 Okla. 272; King v. Thompson, (1895) 3 Okla. 644.

Review by courts only after title has passed to claimant.—A court of equity has no power to hear and determine any question affecting the title to public lands until the matter has been finally determined by the land department, and the title has passed from the government; but, after the title has passed to private parties, a court of equity will convert the holder of the legal title into a trustee to the true owner, if in equity and good conscience, and by the laws of Congress and rules of the department thereunder, it ought to have gone to another. Twine v. Carey, (1894) 2 Okla. 249; King v. Thompson, (1895) 3 Okla. 644.

Estoppel of occupant by failure to assert right.—Where a settler upon a lot claiming under this Act fails to assert any right to the lot before the board of town-site trustees, and such failure was wholly due to his own laches, he becomes thereby estopped from obtaining relief in a court of equity. Bassett v. Mitchell, (1895) 3 Okla. 177.

SEC. 7. [Authority, duties, compensation and expenses of trustees.] That the trustees appointed under this act shall have the power to administer oaths, to hear and determine all controversies arising in the execution of this act shall keep a record of their proceedings, which shall, with all papers filed with them and all evidence of their official acts, except conveyances, be filed in the General Land Office and become part of the records of the same, and all conveyances executed by them shall be acknowledged before an officer duly authorized for that purpose. They shall be allowed such compensation as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, not exceeding ten dollars per day while actually employed; and such traveling and other necessary expenses as the Secretary may authorize and the Secretary of the Interior shall also provide them with necessary clerical force by detail or otherwise. [26 Stat. L. 110.]

SEC. 8. [Appropriation.]

Joint Resolution To make the provisions of the act of May Fourte Hundred and Ninety, which provides for townsite entries of land known as Oklahoma applicable to the territory known as the Cherokee Outlet, and to make the provisions of said act applicable to townsites in the Cherokee Outlet.

[Res. No. 4, of Sept. 1, 1893, 28 Stat. L.]

[Oklahoma town-site provisions made applicable to Cherokee Outlet. All the provisions of an act of Congress, approved May Four and Eight Hundred and Ninety, which provides for townsite entries in a portion of what is known as "Oklahoma," be, and the same are hereby made applicable to the territory known as the "Cherokee Outlet," part of the Territory of Oklahoma; and that all acts or parts of acts in conflict with this joint resolution be and the same are hereby repealed.]

The Cherokee Outlet was opened to settlement by Proclamation No. 1222.

An Act To provide for the disposal of public reservations in vacated town sites in the Territory of Oklahoma.

[Act of May 11, 1896, ch. 168, 29 Stat. L.]

[SEC. 1.] [Oklahoma — vacated town sites entered a patent. That in all cases where a town site, or an addition to a town site, has been entered under the provisions of section twenty-two of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for a temporary government for the Territory of Oklahoma," approved May second, eighteen hundred and ninety, in accordance with the laws of the Territory of Oklahoma, and a patent for such public reservations in such vacated town site, or addition thereto, has been issued, it shall be lawful for the Commissioner of the General Land Office, upon an official showing that such town site, or addition thereto, has been vacated, and upon payment of the homestead price for such land, to issue a patent for such reservations to the original entryman shall fail or neglect to make application for the same within six months from the vacation of such town site, or from the date of the issue of the patent, the reservations shall be subject to disposal under the provisions of section twenty-four hundred and fifty-five of the Revised Statutes of the United States as amended by the Act approved February twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. [29 Stat. L. 116.]

R. S. sec. 2455, as amended, is given infra, div. XIX.

SEC. 2. [Vacated town site sold by town or as isolated tract. That where a patent has already issued, or shall hereafter issue, for an addition to a town site or municipality, such town or municipality, upon the vacation of such town site or addition thereto, as aforesaid, may sell the same at private sale to the highest bidder after thirty days' public notice, and convey said lands to the purchaser by proper deed, and may cause the proceeds of such sale to be paid into the school fund of such town or municipality: Provided, That where, by reason of the vacation of such town site or addition thereto, the municipal organization has ceased to exist, the lands in such vacated town site which may have been patented shall be disposed of as isolated tracts under the provisions of section twenty-four hundred and fifty-five of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

by the Act approved February twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. [29 Stat. L. 117.]

See note to section 1, supra.

SEC. 3. [Repeal.] That all laws and parts of laws, in so far as they conflict with this Act, are hereby repealed. [29 Stat. L. 117.]

[Town-site trustees in Oklahoma abolished.] * * * Payment to boards on town-site entries in Oklahoma: * * * That on January first, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, the boards of trustees for town sites, and each of them in said Territory, shall cease and be abolished, and no compensation shall be allowed or paid to anyone, member, or trustee, or disbursing agent on or after January first, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine. And so much of the trust vested in said boards and heretofore initiated as shall remain unexecuted on said date shall be vested in the Commissioner of the General Land Office, who is hereby authorized and empowered to complete the same. * * * [30 Stat. L. 674.]

This is from the Deficiencies Appropriation Act of July 7, 1898, ch. 571.

The effect of this Act is to charge the commissioner of the general land office with the execution and completion of the trust formerly conferred upon the town-site boards; and, under the law, the commissioner cannot be sued as a trustee of such lands, for the benefit of another, in any case where formerly the town-site trustees could not be sued. Under this Act the commissioner occupies the same relation to the general government and to others as the board of town-site trustees occupied before their retirement under the Act. Hammer v. Hermann, (1901) 11 Okla. 127.

An Act To supplement existing laws relating to the disposition of lands, and so forth.

[SEC. 1.] [Oklahoma — subdivision of ceded lands — opening to settlement and entry — town sites — disposal of lots — disposition of proceeds.] That before the time for opening to settlement or entry of any of the lands in the Territory of Oklahoma, respectively ceded to the United States by the Wichita and affiliated bands of Indians, and the Comanche, Kiowa, and Apache tribes of Indians, under agreements respectively ratified by the Acts of March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and June sixth, nineteen hundred, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to subdivide the same into such number of counties as will, for the time being, best subserve the public interests, and to designate the place for the county seat of each county, and to set aside and reserve at such county seat, for disposition as herein provided, three hundred and twenty acres of land: Provided, That the Secretary of the Interior may attach any part of said lands to any adjoining county in said Territory.

The lands to be opened to settlement and entry under the Acts of Congress ratifying said agreements respectively shall be so opened by proclamation of the President, and to avoid the contests and conflicting claims which have heretofore resulted from opening similar public lands to settlement and entry, the President's proclamation shall prescribe the manner in which these lands may be settled upon, occupied and entered by persons entitled thereto under the Acts ratifying said agreements, respectively; and no person shall be permitted to settle upon, occupy or enter any of said lands except as prescribed in such proclamation until after the expiration of sixty days from the time when the same are opened to settlement and entry.

The lands so set apart and designated shall, in advance of the opening, be surveyed, subdivided, and platted, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, into appropriate lots, blocks, streets, alleys, and sites for parks or public buildings, so as to make a town site thereof: Provided, That no person shall purchase more than one business and one residence lot. Such town lots shall be offered and sold at public auction to the highest bidder, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, at sales to be had at the opening and subsequent thereto. The receipts from the sale of these lots in the respective county seats shall, after deducting the expenses incident to the surveying, subdividing, platting, and selling of the same, be disposed of under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior in the following manner: A court-house shall be erected therewith at such county seat at a cost of not exceeding ten thousand dollars and the residue shall be applied to the construction of bridges, roads, and such other public improvements as the Secretary of the Interior shall deem appropriate, including the payment of all expenses actually necessary to the maintenance of the county government until the time for collecting county taxes in the calendar year next succeeding the time of the opening. No indebtedness of any character shall be contracted or incurred by any of said counties prior to the time for collecting county taxes in the calendar year next succeeding the opening, excepting where the same shall have been authorized by the Secretary of the Interior.

Provided further, That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized, out of the proceeds of the sales of town lots in the towns of Lawton, Comanche County; Anadarko, Caddo County, and Hobart, Kiowa County, in the Territory of Oklahoma, heretofore had pursuant to the authority of the Act aforesaid, to cause to be expended, subject to his control and supervision and upon the recommendation of the legally constituted authorities of each of said towns, for the construction of public waterworks, schoolhouses, and such other municipal improvements as may be advisable and advantageous to the inhabitants of said towns, the following additional sums, to wit: For the town of Lawton, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; for the town of Anadarko, sixty thousand dollars, and for the town of Hobart, fifty thousand dollars: Provided further, That the sum of ten thousand dollars, as provided in the Act whereof this is amendatory, for the construction of a county court-house in each of the towns aforesaid, shall be, and hereby is, increased to the sum of thirty thousand dollars each for the construction of such county court-houses in each town. [31 Stat. L. 1093, 32 Stat. L. 506.]

This section was amended by the Act of June 30, 1902, ch. 1326, 32 Stat. L. 506, by adding the last two provisos above set out.

SEC. 2. [Temporary county and township officers.] The governor of the Territory shall appoint and commission for each county all county and township officers made necessary by the laws of the Territory of Oklahoma, who shall hold their respective offices until the officers elected by the people at the general election next following the opening shall have qualified. [31 Stat. L. 1094.]

SEC. 3. [Additional land districts. See supra, p. 272.]

An Act Providing for the commutation for town-site purposes of homestead entries in certain portions of Oklahoma.

[Commutation for town-sites of homestead entries in Oklahoma.] That that portion of section twenty-two of the Act approved May second, eighteen hundred and ninety, entitled "An Act to provide a temporary government for the Territory of Oklahoma, to enlarge the jurisdiction of the United States court in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes," providing for the commutation for town-site purposes of homestead entries in certain instances, be, and the same is hereby, made applicable to the lands in the Territory of Oklahoma ceded to the United States by the Wichita and affiliated bands of Indians and the Comanche, Kiowa, and Apache tribes of Indians, under agreements, respectively, ratified by the Acts of Congress of March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and June sixth, nineteen hundred. [32 Stat. L. 63.]

[IX. SURVEY OF THE PUBLIC LANDS.]

Sec. 2395. [Rules of survey.] The public lands shall be divided by north and south lines run according to the true meridian, and by others crossing them at right angles, to as to form townships of six miles square, unless where the line of an Indian reservation, or of tracts of land heretofore surveyed or patented, or the course of navigable rivers, may render this impracticable; and in that case this rule must be departed from no further than such particular circumstances require.

Second. The corners of the townships must be marked with progressive numbers from the beginning; each distance of a mile between such corners must be also distinctly marked with marks different from those of the corners.

Third. The townships shall be subdivided into sections, containing, as nearly as may be, six hundred and forty acres each, by running through the same, each way, parallel lines at the end of every two miles; and by making a corner on each of such lines, at the end of every mile. The sections shall be numbered respectively, beginning with the number one in the northeast section and proceeding west and east alternately through the township with progressive numbers till the thirty-six be completed.

Fourth. The deputy surveyors, respectively, shall cause to be marked on a tree near each corner established in the manner described, and within the section, the number of such section, and over it the number of the township within which such section may be; and the deputy surveyors shall carefully note, in their respective field-books, the names of the corner-trees marked and the numbers so made.

Fifth. Where the exterior lines of the townships which may be subdivided into sections or half-sections exceed, or do not extend six miles, the excess or deficiency shall be specially noted, and added to or deducted from the western and northern ranges of sections or half-sections in such township, according as the error may be in running the lines from east to west, or from north to south; the sections and half-sections bounded on the northern and western lines of such townships shall be sold as containing only the quantity expressed in the returns and plats respectively, and all others as containing the complete legal quantity.

Sixth. All lines shall be plainly marked upon trees, and measured with chains, containing two perches of sixteen and one-half feet each, subdivided into twenty-five equal links; and the chain shall be adjusted to a standard to be kept for that purpose.

Seventh. Every surveyor shall note in his field-book the true situations of all mines, salt licks, salt springs, and mill-seats which come to his knowledge; all water-courses over which the line he runs may pass; and also the quality of the lands.

Eighth. These field-books shall be returned to the surveyor-general, who shall cause therefrom a description of the whole lands surveyed to be made out and transmitted to the officers who may superintend the sales. He shall also cause a fair plat to be made of the townships and fractional parts of townships contained in the lands, describing the subdivisions thereof, and the marks of the corners. This plat shall be recorded in books to be kept for that purpose; and a copy thereof shall be kept open at the surveyor-general's office for public information, and other copies shall be sent to the places of the sale, and to the General Land-Office. [R. S.]

Act of May 18, 1796, ch. 29, 1 Stat. L. 465; Act of May 10, 1800, ch. 55, 2 Stat. L. 73.

Sections 2395-2413 constitute chapter 9 of title 32, of the Revised Statutes, entitled as above.

Surveys of abandoned military reservations. — See infra, div. XIV.

Object of statute—seventh and eighth subdivisions. — The Act of Congress, as long ago as 1796, provided that "every surveyor shall note in his field-book the true situation of all mines, salt-licks, salt-springs, and mill-seats which shall come to his knowledge."

* * * These field-books shall be returned to the surveyor-general, who shall thereupon cause a description of the whole lands surveyed to be made out, and transmitted to the officers who may superintend the sales." Cowell v. Lammers, (1884) 21 Fed. Rep. 200. In this case the court said: "The object, doubtless, is to enable the officers in charge to determine whether the lands are patentable or not. This provision has been in force ever since, and it was carried into the Revised Statutes (sec. 2395). * * * Thus the government has provided means to enable the land office to determine the character of the lands, and whether or not they are of the character granted by the acts, or authorized to be sold or otherwise disposed of."

Validity of saline entries. — The Act of May 18, 1796, required every surveyor to note in his field book the true situation of all mines, salt licks, and salt springs, and reserved for the future disposal of the United States every salt spring which should be discovered. The policy of the government since the acquisition of the Northwest Territory and the inauguration of our land system, to reserve salt springs from sale, has been uniform. This policy renders an entry void where salines had been noted on the field-books and where they were palpable to the eye. Morton v. Nebraska, (1874) 21 Wall. (U. S.) 660.

Meaning of terms "salt lick" and "salt spring." — The terms "salt lick" and "salt spring" seem to be used in the Acts of Congress as synonymous. A "salt lick" is so called in the western country from the fact that deer and other wild animals resort to it and lick or drink the brackish water. In this respect no distinction is perceived between a "lick" as frequently used and a "salt spring." Indiana v. Miller, (1843) 3 McLean (U. S.) 151, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,022.

Examination or exploration for mineral deposits is not included in the ordinary surveys of the public lands, the surveyor being only required "to note in his field-book the true situation of all mines, salt-licks, salt-springs, and mill-seats, which come to his knowledge." U. S. v. Smith, (1882) 11 Fed. Rep. 487.

Basis of system of surveys. — The Act of May 18, 1796, the first to authorize a sale of the domain ceded by Virginia, is the basis of our present rectangular system of surveys. Morton v. Nebraska, (1874) 21 Wall. (U. S.) 660.

"The settled policy of Congress has been to survey the public lands in square figures, running the lines north and south and east and west, and to extend the subdivisions authorized by law, as far as practicable, in square figures, to the lowest denomination." Brown v. Clements, (1845) 3 How. (U. S.) 663.

The statutes are general in their terms, which relate to the survey of the public lands, and many things are left to the direction of the surveyor-general and the land department. Goltermann v. Schiermeyer, (1892) 111 Mo. 404.

The power to make and correct surveys of the public lands belongs to the political department of the government. While the lands are subject to the supervision of the general land office, the decisions of that bureau in all such cases, like that of other special tribunals upon matters within their exclusive jurisdiction, are unassailable by the courts, except by a direct proceeding; and the courts have no concurrent or original power to make such corrections. Cragin v. Powell, (1888) 128 U. S. 691.

The courts can neither correct nor make surveys. — The power to correct or make surveys is reposed in the political department of the government, and the land department, charged with the duty of surveying the public domain, must primarily determine what are public lands subject to survey and disposal under the public-land laws. Possessed of the power, its exercise of jurisdiction cannot be questioned by the courts before it has taken final action. Kirwan v. Murphy, (1903) 189 U. S. 35.

The courts have power to protect the rights of a party who has purchased in good faith from the government, against the interferences or appropriations of corrective surveys made by the land department subsequently to a disposition or sale, when the land department has once made and approved a governmental survey of public lands, and the plats, maps, field-notes, and certificates are filed in the proper office, and the government has sold or disposed of such lands. Cragin v. Powell, (1888) 128 U. S. 691.

Land department's power to order survey — injunction. — It appeared in a certain case that no survey had been made, that no meander line was in fact run, and that no body of water in fact existed near a false meander line indicated. The meander line purporting to delimit a lake was a mile or more from the lake, and was run over high agricultural land, covered with ancient trees, which could not have grown in water. The land department held that the land lying between the alleged meander line and the lake was government land and ordered it to be surveyed. The execution of that order was restrained by an injunction on the theory that the government was estopped by the pretended survey and plat to deny that the land was bounded by the lake, but the court held, however, that it was for the land department to determine what are public lands, what lands have been surveyed, what are to be surveyed, what have been disposed of, what remain to be disposed of, and what are reserved, and the land department could not be stayed in the performance of its duty. The court also held that equity would not enjoin a government survey of lands where the proposed survey would be but a fugitive and temporary trespass, lacking the elements of irreparable mischief and of such long continuance as to become a nuisance. Kirwan v. Murphy, (1903) 189 U. S. 35.

Conclusiveness of surveys. — The description of land, and plat of the original government survey filed in the general land office, as made by the surveyor-general from the field-notes, are conclusive, and the section lines and corners as laid down in the description and plat are binding upon the general government and upon all other parties concerned. Tolleston Club v. State, (1894) 141 Ind. 197. See also Horne v. Smith, (1895) 159 U. S. 40.

Where the official plat and the approved survey of a township located premises in controversy in the northeast quarter of a section, and the patent under which the plaintiff claimed the land described it as the southeast quarter of the section, "according to the official plat of the survey returned to the general land office by the surveyor-general," it was held that neither parol evidence nor a private survey could be shown to establish that the premises were located in the southeast quarter of the section. Chapman v. Polack, (1886) 70 Cal. 487.

Sufficient determination of character of land. — It is a sufficient determination that school lands are mineral in their character, in order to give the state the right to select other lands as an indemnity, where the lands surveyed are certified by a deputy surveyor to be of a mineral character and the surveyor-general and the commissioner of the general land office approve of the field notes and plats which are filed in the land office. Johnston v. Morris, (C. C. A. 1896) 72 Fed. Rep. 890.

A survey is sufficient, under the above section, which runs at intervals of two miles parallel lines each way, and makes a corner on each line at the end of every mile, and which is completed under section 2396, by running straight lines from the established corners to the opposite corresponding corners, and, where no such opposite or corresponding corners have been or can be fixed, by running from the established corners due north and south, or east and west, as the case may be, to the watercourse or other external boundary of such fractional township; and such limit of survey extends over both land and water. Kean v. Roby, (1896) 145 Ind. 221.

Under subdivision 3 of the above section and subdivision 2 of section 2396, a government survey which as a matter of fact runs the section lines every two miles across swamp lands and marks the corners on each line at the end of every mile, is a legal survey. Tolleston Club v. State, (1894) 141 Ind. 197.

Completion of survey. — It is not necessary that the whole township be surveyed at one time, and often different parts of the township are surveyed at different times. But no survey of any part is completed until the lines and corners about that part are run and established as required by the statute. Even after a principal meridian and a base line have been established, and the exterior lines of the township have been surveyed, neither the sections nor their subdivisions can be said to have any existence until the township is subdivided into sections and quarter-sections by an approved survey. The lines are not ascertained by the survey, but they are created. Bullock v. Rouse, (1889) 81 Cal. 590; Robinson v. Forrest, (1865) 29 Cal. 318.

When lands are considered surveyed. — Lands are not surveyed lands by the United States until a certified copy of the official plat of survey has been filed in the local land office. U. S. v. Curtner, (1889) 38 Fed. Rep. 1.

In Oakley v. Stuart, (1878) 52 Cal. 521, the court said that "under the public land system and practice of the land department of the United States, lands have always been treated as surveyed when the lines were run in the field, and monuments or markers established by the proper surveyor." The above dictum was overruled in Medley v. Robertson, (1880) 55 Cal. 396, wherein it was held that the approval of the surveyor-general is necessary to constitute a survey.

When lands are granted according to an official plat of the survey of such lands, the plat itself, with all its notes, lines, descriptions, and landmarks, becomes as much a part of the grant or deed by which they are conveyed, and controls so far as limits are concerned, as if such descriptive features were written out upon the face of the deed or the grant itself. Cragin v. Powell, (1888) 128 U. S. 691; Jefferis v. East Omaha Land Co., (1890) 134 U. S. 178; Chapman v. Polack, (1886) 70 Cal. 487; Goltermann v. Schiermeyer, (1892) 111 Mo. 404.

Meander lines.—Generally, meander lines are lines which course the banks of navigable streams and other navigable waters; however, where it appeared from the field notes and plat of the surveyor that he stopped his surveys at a marsh bordering Lake Erie, and that the surveys were approved and a plat prepared based upon the surveys and field notes, it was held that patents which referred in terms to the survey and plat clearly disclosed the fact that the government did not convey any land which was a part of the marsh. The court said: "It may be remarked in passing that the letter of the statute would not limit the surveys to the shores of the lake, for section 2395 R. S. declares that surveys shall be by running lines at right angles 'so as to form townships of six miles square, unless where the line of an Indian reservation or of tracts of land heretofore surveyed or patented, or the course of navigable rivers, may render this impracticable; and in that case this rule must be departed from no further than such particular circumstances require.' But Lake Erie is not an Indian reservation, nor a tract of land heretofore surveyed and patented, nor a navigable river. It is true section 2396, which provides how the boundaries and contents of the several sections, half sections and quarter sections of the public lands of the United States shall be ascertained, says, after stating the rule where all the corners are established, that 'in those portions of the fractional townships where no such opposite corresponding corners have been or can be fixed, the boundary lines shall be ascertained by running from the established corners due north and south or east and west lines, as the case may be, to the water course, Indian boundary line, or other external boundary of such fractional township.' If this recognizes any other external boundary than that which is indicated in section 2395, it does not prescribe what that external boundary shall be; and if the land department treats either a marsh or a lake as such external boundary, who can declare that its action is void?" Niles v. Cedar Point Club, (1899) 175 U. S. 300, affirming (C. C. A.) 85 Fed. Rep. 45.

See also Horne v. Smith, (1895) 159 U. S. 40, wherein it was held that a survey terminated at a meander line bordering on a bayou of a river and that the land extending to the main body of the river between the termination of the survey and the river could not be claimed. The court said that although land is unsurveyed "it does not follow that a patent for the surveyed tract adjoining carries with it the land which, perhaps, ought to have been, but which was not in fact, surveyed. The patent conveys only the land which is surveyed, and when it is clear from the plat and the surveys that the tract surveyed terminated at a particular body of water, the patent carries no land beyond it."

The meander line is not a line of boundary, but one designed to point out the sinuosities of the bank of the stream, and as a means of ascertaining the quantity of land in the fraction which is to be paid for by the purchaser. Horne v. Smith, (1895) 159 U. S. 40; St. Paul, etc., R. Co. v. Schurmeir, (1868) 7 Wall. (U. S.) 272; Kirby v. Potter, (1903) 138 Cal. 686; Tolleston Club v. State, (1894) 141 Ind. 197; Heald v. Yumisko, (1898) 7 N. Dak. 423; Knudsen v. Omanson, (1894) 10 Utah 124.

A patent from the United States of a surveyed fractional government subdivision, bounded on a meandered lake, conveys the land to the lake, although the meander line of the survey is found not to be coincident with the shore line. The purchaser is not estopped to assert that his title extends to the lake, and beyond the meander line. Everson v. Waseca, (1890) 44 Minn. 247.

The making of a meander line has no certain significance.—It does not necessarily import that the tract on the other side of it is not surveyed or will not pass by a conveyance of the upland shown by the plat to border on the lake. It is not always a boundary. Its immediate import may be only to indicate the contour of a lake. Kean v. Calumet Canal, etc., Co., (1903) 190 U. S. 453, following Hardin v. Jordan, (1891) 140 U. S. 371; Mitchell v. Smale, (1891) 140 U. S. 406, and holding that the state of Indiana acquired the submerged land up to the line of the state under the Swamp Land Act of Sept. 28, 1850, by a patent which described the whole of fractional sections enumerated and bordering on non-navigable water and extending to the state line. It was also held that a resurvey by the United States after the lands were conveyed could not affect the rights of a party claiming through mesne conveyances from the state.

Meander line does not necessarily bound water.—Where it was urged that because a meander line was run this amounted to a determination by the land department that certain surveyed fractional sections bordered upon a body of water, navigable or non-navigable, and that, therefore, the purchaser of these fractional sections was entitled to riparian rights, and this contention was made in the face of the express declaration of the field notes and plat, that the space of ground beyond the surveyed sections was "flag marsh" or "impassable marsh and water," the court said, "There is no such magic in a meandered line. All that can be said of it is that it is an irregular line which bounds a body of land, and beyond that boundary there may be found forest or prairie, land or water, government or Indian reservation." Niles v. Cedar Point Club, (1899) 175 U. S. 300. See also Horne v. Smith, (1895) 159 U. S. 40; French-Glenn Live Stock Co. v. Springer, (1902) 185 U. S. 47.

In the subdivision of fractional townships there is no law or practice which authorizes a subdivision into sections otherwise than as provided by the fifth subdivision of the above section. Ogilvie v. Copeland, (1893) 145 Ill. 98.

Townships are fractional when the outer boundary lines cannot be carried out in full because of a watercourse, Indian boundary, or some other external interference. Goltermann v. Schiermeyer, (1892) 111 Mo. 404.

A congressional township of thirty-six sections does not necessarily contain thirty-six times six hundred and forty acres. Springer Land Assoc. v. Ford, (1897) 168 U. S. 513.

Duty of surveyor to calculate contents of irregular subdivisions.—Section 2395 provides that, where townships which are subdivided exceed or do not extend six miles, the excess or deficiency shall be specially noted and added to or deducted from the western and northern ranges of sections or half sections; and that these irregular sections and half sections shall be sold as containing only the quantity expressed in the returns and plats, and all others as containing the legal quantity. It is, therefore, the duty of the surveyor not only to note this excess or deficiency, but to calculate the contents of these irregular subdivisions, and to note the quantity on the surveys returned. Goltermann v. Schiermeyer, (1892) 111 Mo. 404.

Field notes as evidence.—The field notes are competent evidence and rank as the deposition of a surveyor, charged under oath with the duty of noting on the spot, and at the time he makes the survey, the quality of the land. Kirby v. Lewis, (1889) 39 Fed. Rep. 66.

Lost corner—inconsistent field notes.—Where a government corner is lost or obliterated, so that resort must be had to the government field notes for the purpose of determining its location, but the field notes are inconsistent, and cannot be reconciled, there is no universal rule that certain ones shall be preferred to the others, but, as in a case where living witnesses contradict each other, those should be accepted as correct which, under all the circumstances, are most entitled to credit, and most likely to be in accordance with the actual facts. A witness or bearing tree is not an established corner, but merely a designated object from which, in connection with the field notes, the location of the corner may be ascertained. Stadin v. Helin, (1899) 76 Minn. 496.

Where there is a variance between the plat and the field notes of an original government survey, the plat must control. Beaty v. Robertson, (1891) 130 Ind. 589.

The field notes and plat are presumed to be correct, unless the contrary is shown. They are important in ascertaining where monuments are located; but if the location of a monument is clearly shown by other evidence to be at a distance different from that given in the field notes and plat, they must give way. Ogilvie v. Copeland, (1893) 145 Ill. 98.

The courts take judicial notice of the system of surveys established by the United States and the base lines, meridians, townships, and ranges thereby established; also the relative positions of the sections in the townships. Bittle v. Stuart, (1879) 34 Ark. 224; Dickenson v. Breeden, (1863) 30 Ill. 279; Gooding v. Morgan, (1873) 70 Ill. 275; Jordan Ditching, etc., Assoc. v. Wagoner, (1870) 33 Ind. 50; Bannister v. Grassy Fork Ditching Assoc., (1875) 52 Ind. 178; Murphy v. Hendricks, (1877) 57 Ind. 593; Prieger v. Exchange Mut. Ins. Co., (1858) 6 Wis. 89; Atwater v. Schenck, (1850) 9 Wis. 160.

A designation of lands as "my forty," located at a certain place in a named county, was held to sufficiently describe the land in a contract of conveyance. The court said: "By 'forty,' thus used in connection with lands, is meant either the north or south half of a half of a quarter section of land. The statutes of the United States authorize the division of each quarter section of land into east and west halves, by a line drawn through it north and south, equidistant between the east and west corners of the quarter sections; and further provide for the subdivision of such half quarter sections into north and south halves, by a line run through the middle of them, east and west. Sections 2395, 2397, Rev. Stat. This subdivision of a half quarter section is the smallest subdivision of an entire or regular section of land recognized by the United States statutes. It usually contains about 40 acres, as does an entire section about 640 acres, or a half of a quarter section about 80 acres, and a quarter section about 160 acres. Theoretically, an entire section should contain 640 acres, and the above-mentioned smallest subdivision 40 acres, but, on account of inaccuracies of surveys, they both often fall a few acres short; yet the term 'forty,' whether such subdivisions contain 40 acres or less, has in this state [Florida] become as fixed and well understood a term to designate them as ever attached from common or general use to anything." Lente v. Clarke, (1886) 22 Fla. 515.

Sec. 2396. [Boundaries and contents of public lands, how ascertained.] The boundaries and contents of the several sections, half-sections, and quarter-sections of the public lands shall be ascertained in conformity with the following principles:

First. All the corners marked in the surveys, returned by the surveyor-general, shall be established as the proper corners of sections, or subdivisions of sections, which they were intended to designate; and the corners of half and quarter sections, not marked on the surveys, shall be placed as nearly as possible equidistant from two corners which stand on the same line.

Second. The boundary-lines, actually run and marked in the surveys returned by the surveyor-general, shall be established as the proper boundary-lines of the sections, or subdivisions, for which they were returned, shall be held and considered as the true and correct lines thereof. And the boundary-lines which have not been actually returned shall be ascertained, by running straight lines from the corners to the opposite corresponding corners; but in those portions of sections where no such opposite corresponding corners have been returned, the boundary-lines shall be ascertained by running from the corners due north and south or east and west lines, as the case may be, to the true course, Indian boundary-line, or other external boundary of the township.

Third. Each section or subdivision of section, the contents of which have been returned by the surveyor-general, shall be held and considered as containing the exact quantity expressed in such return; and in the case of quarter-sections, the contents whereof shall not have been returned, shall be held and considered as containing the one-half or the one-quarter, respectively, of the returned contents of the section of which they form a part. [R.-S.]

Where the water line is a boundary of a named lot, that line remains the boundary, no matter how it shifts by accretion, and a deed which describes the lot by number or name conveys the land up to the shifting line, exactly as it does up to the fixed side line. So long as the doctrine of accretion applies, the water line, if named as the boundary, continues to be the boundary, no matter how much it may shift, and the deed of the lot carries all to such line. East Omaha Land Co. v. Jeffries, (1889) 40 Fed. Rep. 386, affirmed (1890) 134 U. S. 178.

Character of land determined by survey.—Where a marsh bordering on a lake was surveyed by the general government and was conveyed to a state under the Swamp Land Act, and was then conveyed by the state to a private party, the court held that the character of the marsh as land, as distinguished from the bed of the lake, was conclusively established. It was also held that the purchaser owned the land up to the meander line and was entitled to restrain, within the limits of his holding, the hunting of game. Brown v. Parker, (1901) 127 Mich. 390.

Method of establishing centre of section.—A section of land was surveyed and disposed of by the general government without establishing the centre of the section. There was a controversy concerning whether the "bisecting" method or the "intersecting" method should be adopted. The former method consists of running a line from the quarter corner on the east to the quarter corner on the west side of the section, or vice versa, and the point half way on the line between the quarter corners is the centre. By the latter method straight lines are run from the quarter corner on the east to the quarter corner on the west and from the quarter corner on the south to the quarter corner on the north side of the section, the centre being the point where the two lines cross. By the instructions of the land department of the general government to government surveyors and the decision of that department, the Act of

Feb. 11, 1806, recognizing the "intersecting" method for the centre of sections, was not run in the Code of Iowa, section 10, which directs the resurvey and county surveyors, to follow the rules and progress and the instructions of the interior shall be followed. The court held that the requirement of surveyors to follow the progress and the consent of the secretary of the interior was not of the fact that, at the time the legislature was passed, the interior had determined the progress provided for of ascertaining the construction adopted followed. Gerke v. The State, 79.

Quantity of land

—The grant of a section of land, as surveyed, shall be considered as the actual survey of the land, and shall be considered as actually surveyed. If a line was made, by the survey, and that such line by corners or natural objects is established, will take according to the courses and distances notwithstanding any error in the quantity of land. In accordance with the above section, the quantity of land in a patent may be the extent of the survey, to control the actual land as located on the government survey, actually located by the survey when established, the quantity of land contained in the same is true to the intent to the contrary.

Stonewall Phosphate Co. v. Peyton, (1897) 39 Fla. 726.

Subdivision of fractional sections.—Where, owing to meandered lakes, but one quarter corner post was established upon the ground on the boundary lines of a certain section, which post was on the south line thereof, the division line between the southeast and southwest quarters of the section must be ascertained by running a line due north from the quarter post to the meandered lake upon the north side of the section. Beardsley v. Crane, (1893) 52 Minn. 537.

The true corner of a governmental subdivision of land is where the United States surveyors in fact established it. Beardsley v. Crane, (1893) 52 Minn. 537.

How lost corners should be found.—Where surveyors surveyed from the north to the south as the field notes indicated that the government surveyors ran their lines, the court said, in Ogilvie v. Copeland, (1893) 145 Ill. 98, concerning this method of finding lost corners: "That, undoubtedly, was the better way to run to find the location of the lost corners; but, if the corners were found, it can be of no consequence in what direction the lines between them were run, since * * * they control as to corners, distances, and quantities."

When the measurement of the line as returned does not agree with the distance between the corners established, and between which it is assumed to be the measurement, it must be disregarded. Monuments control as to courses and distances. Ogilvie v. Copeland, (1893) 145 Ill. 98.

Lines are established by law.—According to the provisions contained in the above section, the lines of subdivisions, as well as sections, are established by law. Chapman v. Polack, (1886) 70 Cal. 494; Hughes v. Wheeler, (1888) 76 Cal. 230.

The provision of the third subdivision of the above section, which declare that "each section or subdivision of section the contents of which have been returned by the surveyor-general, shall be held and considered as containing the exact quantity expressed in such return," was intended to fix the exact quantity at which the general government should dispose of the tract, and it was not intended to declare that every surveyed tract of land must, regardless of mistakes and inaccuracies, however pronounced, be forever held and considered, in conveyances between private parties, to contain the exact quantity specified in the government survey. Heald v. Yumisko, (1898) 7 N. Dak. 423.

Sec. 2397. An act to provide for taxation of railroad-grant lands, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Surveyed lands of railroad grants not exempt from taxation — tax sale — lien for costs of surveying.] That no lands granted to any railroad corporation by any act of Congress shall be exempt from taxation by States, Territories, and municipal corporations on account of the lien of the United States upon the same for the costs of surveying, selecting, and conveying the same, or because no patent has been issued therefor; but this provision shall not apply to lands unsurveyed: Provided, That any such land sold for taxes shall be taken by the purchaser subject to the lien for costs of surveying, selecting, and conveying, to be paid in such manner by the purchaser as the Secretary of the Interior may by rule provide and to all liens of the United States, all mortgages of the United States, and all rights of the United States in respect of such lands: Provided further, That this act shall apply only to lands situated opposite to and coterminous with completed portions of said roads, and in organized counties: Provided further, That at any sale of lands under the provisions of this act the United States may become a preferred purchaser, and in such case the lands sold shall be restored to the public domain and disposed of as provided by the laws relating thereto. [24 Stat. L. 143.]

Taxation of surveyed unpatented lands prior to Act of July 10, 1886.—As to surveyed but unpatented lands, on which the costs of survey had not been paid, it was held that, although lands sold by the United States might be taxed before the government parted with the legal title by issuing the patent, this principle was to be understood as applicable only to cases where the right to the patent was complete, and the equitable title fully vested, without anything more to be paid, or any act done going to the foundation of the right; and hence, where there had been a grant to a railroad company, if prepayment by the grantee of the cost of surveying the lands granted was required by the statute making the grant, before any of the lands should be conveyed, no title vested in the grantee, and the state could not levy taxes on the land, and under such levy sell and make a title which might defeat the lien of the United States. Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Prescott, (1872) 16 Wall. (U. S.) 603; Union Pac. R. Co. v. McShane, (1874) 22 Wall. (U. S.) 444; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Traill County, (1885) 115 U. S. 600. See also Central Pac. R. Co. v. Nevada, (1896) 162 U. S. 512; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Myers, (1899) 172 U. S. 589.

Effect of Act.—The above Act delegated to the states and territories the right to tax the lands granted to railroad companies notwithstanding they had not paid into the treasury of the United States the costs of surveying and selecting, the government taking the chances of collecting such costs from the purchaser at the tax sale. State v. Central Pac. R. Co., (1889) 20 Nev. 372.

Since the Act of Congress of July 10, 1886, the surveyed but unpatented lands within the grant to the Central Pacific railroad are no longer exempt from taxation by reason of the government lien thereon for the costs of surveying, etc. The conditions contained in that Act, to the effect that the lien shall continue, and that the United States may become a preferred purchaser at any tax sale of such land, control such sales, and there is no necessity for a legislative acceptance by the states of the conditions of the Act. Congress having full control over the public domain may make it subject to state taxation upon such conditions as are deemed proper, and then if so taxed it must be done subject to those conditions. The Act of July 10, 1886, is a grant to the states of the right to tax lands in which the United States still has such an interest as renders them exempt, and being beneficial, its acceptance by the grantee will be presumed. State v. Central Pac. R. Co., (1892) 21 Nev. 247.

When lands granted to a railroad company "within indemnity limits" are required by law to be selected by the grantee "under the direction of the secretary of the interior," and the selection has been made according to law, the lands so selected become subject to state taxation, without further action by the secretary of the interior, and without being patented, and may be sold for the recovery of taxes properly assessed in the name of the grantee, subject to such liens and claims as the United States government may have, as contemplated by the Act of Congress approved July 10, 1886. New Orleans Pac. R. Co. v. Kelly, (1900) 52 La. Ann. 1741.

Unsurveyed lands not subject to taxation.—Where an action was brought for the recovery of delinquent taxes assessed against lands acquired by a railroad company under the Acts of Congress of July 1, 1862, and July 2, 1864, and a large quantity of the land was unsurveyed, the court held that the unsurveyed lands could not be taxed. State v. Central Pac. R. Co., (1890) 21 Nev. 94.

Construction and interpretation of Act.—To render surveyed but unpatented lands upon which the costs of survey had not been paid subject to state taxation, Congress, on July 10, 1886, 24 Stat. L. 143, passed the above Act. This Act was interpreted in Central Pac. R. Co. v. Nevada, (1896) 162 U. S. 512. The lands involved were classified in the opinion of that case as follows: (1) Patented; (2) unsurveyed; (3) surveyed but unpatented, upon which the cost of surveying had been paid; and (4) like lands upon which the cost of survey had not been paid. Applying the statute, the court said: "The principal dispute is with regard to the fourth class. * * * In view of this statute it is difficult to see how these lands, which are the very ones provided for by the statute, can escape taxation if the state chooses to tax them." This case establishes the right of the state to tax the surveyed lands, mineral or agricultural, within the place limits of the grant. The statute of Nevada defined the term "real estate" to include "the ownership of, or claim to, or possession of, or right of possession to any lands;" and the Supreme Court of the state decided that to constitute a possessory claim actual possession was necessary, and, on this account, distinguished in some way surveyed from unsurveyed lands. It was urged that the distinction was not justified, and that the necessity of actual possession applied alike to both kinds and exempted both kinds from taxation, and hence it was insisted there was nothing to tax unless the title was taxed, and that this could not be done. To this contention the opinion replied that how the interest of the railroad company should be defined was not a federal question, nor did inaptitude of definition by the Supreme Court of the state or in the application of the definition raise a federal question. "Taxation of the lands by the state," it was said, "rested upon some theory that the railroad had a taxable interest in them. What that interest was does not concern us so long as it appears that, so far as Congress is concerned, express authority was given to tax the lands." See also Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Myers, (1899) 172 U. S. 589.

Controversy as to mineral character of lands.—In Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Myers, (1899) 172 U. S. 589, it was held that lands within the place limits of a railroad company's grant were taxable by the state of Montana, where the patents were withheld and there was an undetermined controversy between the company and the interior department concerning the mineral or nonmineral character of the lands.

Possessory claim to land.—The title or interest of the United States in the public lands will not be affected where only the possessory claim to the land is assessed. Such assessment will only reach the taxpayer's interest in the land. Under section 1108 Gen. Stat. Nev., it is a good answer for a defendant when assessed for a possessory claim to land to deny such claim, and plead that whatever claim it has is exempt from taxation. The possessory claim to public land which may be taxed as something separate and distinct from the title in fee, is an actual possession, and not a constructive possession or a mere claim to the land. Mortgaging and leasing public lands do not constitute actual possession thereof. State v. Central Pac. R. Co., (1892) 21 Nev. 247.

SEC. 2. [Cost for surveying, how collected.] That if any railroad corporation required by law to pay the costs of surveying, selecting, or conveying any lands granted to such company or for its use and benefit by act of Congress shall for thirty days neglect or refuse to pay any such costs after demand for payment thereof by the Secretary of the Interior, he shall notify the Attorney-General, who shall at once commence proceedings to collect the same. But when any sum shall be collected of such railroad company as costs of surveying, selecting, and conveying any tract of land which shall have been purchased under the provisions of section one hereof, the Secretary of the Interior shall out of such collections reimburse said purchaser, his heirs or assigns, the amount of money paid by him as the costs of such surveying, selecting, and conveying. [24 Stat. L. 143.]

SEC. 3. [Right of forfeiture to United States not affected.] That this act shall not affect the right of the Government to declare or enforce a forfeiture of any lands so granted; but all the rights of the United States to said lands or to any interest therein shall be and remain as if this act had not passed, except as to the lien mentioned in the first section hereof. [24 Stat. L. 143.]

SEC. 4. [Costs of survey of Union Pacific grant, when payable.] That section twenty-one of chapter two hundred and sixteen, approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, is hereby so amended as that the costs of surveying, selecting and conveying therein required to be paid shall become due and payable at and on the demand therefor made by the Secretary of the Interior as provided in section two of this act, and nothing in this act shall be construed or taken in any wise to affect or impair the right of Congress at any time hereafter further to alter, amend, or repeal the said act, as in the opinion of Congress, justice or the public welfare may require, or to impair or waive any right or remedy in the premises now existing in favor of the United States. This act shall be subject to alteration, amendment, or repeal. [24 Stat. L. 143.]

[SEC. 1.] [Survey of lands granted to States — selection of lands — notice — advances for surveys.] * * * That it shall be lawful for the governors of the States of Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming to apply to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for the survey of any township or townships of public land then remaining unsurveyed in any of the several surveying districts, with a view to satisfy the public land grants made by the several Acts admitting the said States into the Union to the extent of the full quantity of land called for thereby; and upon the application of said governors the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall proceed to immediately notify the Surveyor-General of the application made by the governor of any of the said States of the application made for the withdrawal of said lands, and the Surveyor-General shall proceed to have the survey or surveys so applied for made, as in the cases of surveys of public lands; and the lands that may be found to fall within the limits of such township or townships, as ascertained by the survey, shall be reserved upon the filing of the application for survey from any adverse appropriation by settlement or otherwise except under rights that may be found to exist of prior inception, for a period to extend from such application for survey until the expiration of sixty days from the date of the filing of the township plat of survey in the proper district land office, during which period of sixty days the State may select any of such lands not embraced in any valid adverse claim, for the satisfaction of such grants, with the condition, however, that the governor of the State, within thirty days from the date of such filing of the application for survey, shall cause a notice to be published, which publication shall be continued for thirty days from the first publication, in some newspaper of general circulation in the vicinity of the lands likely to be embraced in such township or townships, giving notice to all parties interested of the fact of such application for survey and the exclusive right of selection by the State for the aforesaid period of sixty days as herein provided for; and after the expiration of such period of sixty days any lands which may remain unselected by the State, and not otherwise appropriated according to law, shall be subject to disposal under general laws as other public lands: And provided further, That the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall give notice immediately of the reservation of any township or townships to the local land office in which the land is situate of the withdrawal of such township or townships, for the purpose hereinbefore provided: And provided further, That the governors of the several States herein named are authorized to advance money from time to time for the survey of the townships withdrawn at such United States depository as may be designated by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and the moneys so advanced shall be reimbursable. The foregoing provisions shall be applicable to Utah when admitted as a State into the Union and a governor is duly inaugurated and acting. * * * [28 Stat. L. 394.]

[SEC. 1.] [Survey of railroad land grants — continuing appropriation — reimbursement — reports.] * * * For the survey of the public lands lying within the limits of land grants made by Congress to aid in the construction of railroads, and the selection therein of such lands as are granted therefor, to enable the Secretary of the Interior to carry out the provisions of section one of the Act of March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, entitled "An Act to provide for the adjustment of land grants made by Congress to aid in the construction of railroads, and for the forfeiture of unearned lands, and for other purposes," being chapter three hundred and seventy-six of volume twenty-four of the Statutes at Large, page five hundred and fifty-six, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars is hereby appropriated and made a continuing appropriation for the survey of lands within the limits of railroad land grants, and any money which shall be expended of such appropriation and reimbursed and paid into the Treasury is hereby reappropriated, and said sum shall remain a continuing appropriation, and so often as any part of the same shall, after being expended, be reimbursed by any railroad company as hereinafter provided, the same shall be again available for the purposes aforesaid: Provided, That any portion of said sum expended for surveying such lands shall be reimbursed by the respective companies or parties in interest for whose benefit the lands are granted, according to the provisions of the Act of July fifteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy, chapter two hundred and ninety-two, volume sixteen, pages three hundred and five and three hundred and six, and Act of July thirty-first, eighteen hundred and seventy-six, chapter two hundred and forty-six of volume nineteen, page one hundred and twenty-one of the Statutes at Large, requiring "that before any lands granted to any railroad company shall be conveyed to such company or any persons entitled thereto under any of the Acts incorporating or relating to said company, unless said company is excepted by law from the payment of such cost, there shall first be paid into the Treasury of the United States the cost of surveying, selecting, and conveying the same by the said company or persons in interest": And provided further, That whenever there shall have been reimbursed and paid into the Treasury of the United States, by the respective companies or parties in interest, any part of said appropriation expended for surveys within such grants, there shall be immediately available, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, an amount equal to the amount so reimbursed, and the same shall be available for the survey of the public lands lying within the limits of the railroad land grants made by Congress, until all of said lands shall have been surveyed: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the use, within the limits of any railroad land grant made by Congress, of any part of any regular appropriation for surveying the public lands: Provided, That no part of the foregoing money shall be used for any land embraced in any grant to the State of Florida: And provided further, That the provisions of law requiring reimbursements to be made to the United States by railroad corporations claiming such grants, shall apply equally to the successors of such railroad corporations acquiring title to their lands and other property, under decree of foreclosure of any mortgage authorized by Congress. This paragraph shall be in lieu of the provision in the sundry civil appropriation Act approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, providing for the survey of such lands, and the Secretary of the Interior shall report to each regular session of Congress what has been done under the foregoing provisions.

[R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of Aug. 20, 1894, ch. 302, sec. 2, 8 Stat. L. 423.

The section originally read as follows:

"SEC. 2403. Where settlers make deposits in accordance with the provisions of section twenty-four hundred and one, the amount of such deposits shall go in part payment for the lands situated in the townships, the surveys of which is paid for out of such deposits." Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 10, § 1, 20 Stat. L. 581.

It was amended by Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 10, § 1, 20 Stat. L. 581, word "seven" and insert "and providing that" "a said section two thousand three shall have the same effect as though enacted as hereinafter amended." It was again amended

3, 1879, ch. 170, 20 Stat. L. 352, by adding at the end of the section as thus amended the following:

"Or the certificates issued for such deposits may be assigned by indorsement, and be received in payment for any public lands of the United States entered by settlers under the pre-emption and homestead laws of the United States, and not otherwise."

It was again amended as above stated to read as given in the text.

[Act of Feb. 27, 1899, ch. 205, 30 Stat. L. 892.]

[Deposit for surveys of grants to railroads.] That when any railroad company claiming a grant of land under any Act of Congress, desiring to secure the survey of any unsurveyed lands within the limits of its grant, shall file an application therefor in writing with the surveyor-general of the State in which the lands sought to be surveyed are situated, and deposit in a proper United States depository to the credit of the United States a sum sufficient to pay for such survey and for the examination thereof pursuant to law and the rules and regulations of the Department of the Interior under the direction of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, it shall thereupon be the duty of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, or the Director of the Geological Survey, as the case may be, to cause said lands to be surveyed. For any deposits made by any railroad company hereunder, certificates shall be issued, which may be used by such railroad company, its successors or assigns, to the same extent as cash is now allowed in payment of entries of public lands under existing law and regulations for any public lands of the United States in the States where the surveys were made, or for any survey or office fees due the United States from such railroad company on account of surveys of lands within its grant. The Secretary of the Interior shall provide such rules and regulations as may be necessary for carrying out the foregoing provisions. [30 Stat. L. 892.]

Sec. 2404. [Augmented rates for surveys of lands covered with forests, etc., in Oregon.] The Commissioner of the General Land-Office may authorize, in his discretion, public lands in Oregon, densely covered with forests or thick undergrowth, to be surveyed at augmented rates, not exceeding eighteen dollars per mile for standard parallels, fifteen dollars for townships, and twelve dollars for section lines. [R. S.]

Act of July 15, 1870, ch. 292, 16 Stat. L. 304, 305.

Sec. 2405. [Ibid. for California and Washington.] The Commissioner of the General Land-Office, in his discretion, may hereafter authorize public lands in California and in Washington Territory, densely covered with forests or thick undergrowth, to be surveyed at augmented rates, not exceeding eighteen dollars per linear mile for standard parallels, sixteen dollars for townships, and fourteen dollars for section lines. [R. S.]

Act of June 10, 1872, ch. 415, 17 Stat. L. 358.

Sec. 2406. [Geological surveys, extension of public surveys, expenses of subdividing.] There shall be no further geological survey by the Government, unless hereafter authorized by law. The public surveys shall extend over all mineral lands; and all subdividing of surveyed lands into lots less than one hundred and sixty acres may be done by county and local surveyors at the expense of claimants; but nothing in this section contained shall require the survey of waste or useless lands. [R. S.]

Act of July 21, 1852, ch. 66, 10 Stat. L. 15, 21; Act of July 9, 1870, ch. 235, 16 Stat. L. 218. See further GEOLOGICAL SURVEY, vol. 3, p. 155.

Sec. 2407. [Surveys on rivers in certain cases.] Whenever, in the opinion of the President, a departure from the ordinary method of surveying land on any river, lake, bayou, or water-course would promote the public interest, he may direct the surveyor-general in whose district such land is situated, and where the change is intended to be made, to cause the lands thus situated to be surveyed in tracts of two acres in width, fronting on any river, bayou, lake, or water-course, and running back the depth of forty acres; which tracts of land so surveyed shall be offered for sale entire, instead of in half-quarter sections, and in the usual manner and on the same terms in all respects as the other public lands of the United States. [R. S.]

Act of May 24, 1824, ch. 141, 4 Stat. L. 34.

Sec. 2408. [Lines of surveys in Nevada.] In extending the surveys of the public lands in the State of Nevada, the Secretary of the Interior may vary the lines of the subdivisions from a rectangular form, to suit the circumstances of the country. [R. S.]

Act of July 4, 1866, ch. 166, 14 Stat. L. 86.

Sec. 2409. [Geodetic method of survey in Oregon and California.] The Secretary of the Interior, if he deems it advisable, is authorized to continue the surveys in Oregon and California, to be made after what is known as the geodetic method, under such regulations and upon such terms as have been or may hereafter be prescribed by the Commissioner of the General Land-Office; but none other than township-lines shall be run where the land is unfit for cultivation; nor shall any deputy surveyor charge for any line except such as may be actually run and marked, or for any line not necessary to be run. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 27, 1850, ch. 76, 9 Stat. L. 496; Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 145, 10 Stat. L. 245.

Sec. 2410. [Rectangular mode of survey, when may be departed from.] Whenever, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior, a departure from the rectangular mode of surveying and subdividing the public lands in California would promote the public interests, he may direct such change to be made in the mode of surveying and designating such lands as he deems proper, with reference to the existence of mountains, mineral deposits, and the advantages derived from timber and water privileges; but such lands shall not be surveyed into less than one hundred and sixty acres, or subdivided into less than forty acres. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 145, 10 Stat. L. 245.

Sec. 2411. [Compensation for surveying by the day in Oregon and California.] Whenever the public surveys, or any portion of them, in the States of Oregon and California, are so required to be made as to render it expedient to make compensation for the surveying thereof by the day instead of by the mile, it shall be lawful for the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, to make such fair and reasonable allowance as, in his judgment, may be necessary to insure the accurate and faithful execution of the work. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 145, 10 Stat. L. 247.
See following text.

[SEC. 1.] [Compensation for surveying by the day in certain States and Territories.] * * * That in the States of California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington, Wyoming, the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico, and the district of Alaska, there may be allowed, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, for the survey and resurvey of lands heavily timbered, mountainous, or covered with dense undergrowth, rates not exceeding twenty-five dollars per linear mile for standard and meander lines, twenty-three dollars for township, and twenty dollars for section lines, the provisions of section twenty-four hundred and eleven, Revised Statutes of the United States, authorizing allowance for surveys in California and Oregon are hereby extended to all of the above-named States and Territories and district. * * * [32 Stat. L. 453.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of June 28, 1902, ch. 1301. The same provision was contained in the Act of March 3, 1901, ch. 853, 31 Stat. L. 1159.

Sec. 2412. [Penalty for interrupting surveys.] Every person who in any manner, by threats or force, interrupts, hinders, or prevents the surveying of the public lands, or of any private land-claim which has been or may be confirmed by the United States, by the persons authorized to survey the same, in conformity with the instructions of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than three thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not less than one nor more than three years. [R. S.]

Act of May 29, 1830, ch. 163, 4 Stat. L. 417.

Sec. 2413. [Protection of surveyor by marshal of district.] Whenever the President is satisfied that forcible opposition has been offered, or is likely to be offered, to any surveyor or deputy surveyor in the discharge of his duties in surveying the public lands, it may be lawful for the President to order the marshal of the State or district, by himself or deputy, to attend such surveyor or deputy surveyor with sufficient force to protect such officer in the execution of his duty, and to remove force should any be offered. [R. S.]

Act of May 29, 1830, ch. 163, 4 Stat. L. 417.

[SEC. 1.] [Injuring survey marks, posts, etc. — penalty — informers.]
 * * * That hereafter it shall be unlawful for any person to destroy, deface, change, or remove to another place any section corner, quarter-section corner, or meander post, on any Government line of survey, or to cut down any witness tree or any tree blazed to mark the line of a Government survey, or to deface, change, or remove any monument or bench mark of any Government survey. That any person who shall offend against any of the provisions of this paragraph shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof in any court shall be fined not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, or be imprisoned not more than one hundred days. All the fines accruing under this paragraph shall be paid into the Treasury, and the informer in each case of conviction shall be paid the sum of twenty-five dollars. * * * [29 Stat. L. 343.]

This is from the Indian Appropriation Act of June 10, 1896, ch. 398. Although this paragraph appears as a proviso under the head of "Surveying Lands in the Indian Territory," it is apparently general in terms, and applicable to the offenses described "on any Government line of survey."

Surveys in Indian Territory.—See INDIANS, vol. 3, p. 430.

[X. BOUNTY LANDS.]

Sec. 2414. [Military bounty-land warrants and locations assignable.] All warrants for military bounty-lands which have been or may hereafter be issued under any law of the United States, and all valid locations of the same which have been or may hereafter be made, are declared to be assignable by deed or instrument of writing, made and executed according to such form and pursuant to such regulations as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, so as to vest the assignee with all the rights of the original owner of the warrant or location. [R. S.]

Act of March 22, 1852, ch. 19, 10 Stat. L. 3; Act of June 3, 1858, ch. 84, 11 Stat. L. 309.

Sections 2414-2446 constitute chapter 10 of title 32 of the Revised Statutes, entitled as above.

Assignment of warrants after issuance.—The effect of this section when taken in connection with R. S. 2436 is to make certificates of bounty land assignable by any proper instrument executed after their issuance, according to forms to be prescribed by the executive department, but to render invalid assignments made before the issuance of the warrants or certificates. (1856) 7 Op. Atty.-Gen. 657.

Assignment before passage of this section.—Although before the passage of this section there was no provision for the assignment of military bounty-land warrants after issuance, the general land office regarded such warrants as assignable, and it would seem that such was the intention of Congress at the time of the passage of the original statute. The fact that this section was subsequently enacted is not sufficient to prove that these warrants were not assignable before its passage. Johnson v. Fluetsch, (1903) 176 Mo. 452.

But although an assignment after the issuance of the warrant and before the issuance of the patent would have been good under R. S. 2436, such an assignment would have been void prior to the passage of that section and prior to the passage of this section (2414) under the provisions of the Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 85, 9 Stat. L. 521. And the title to lands located under such an assignment would have vested in the warrantee and not in the assignee. Johns v. Warren, (1892) 85 Iowa 300.

The Porterfield warrants are assignable under the provisions of this section. McSorley v. Hill, (1891) 2 Wash. 638.

Spurious land warrants.—A land warrant fraudulently obtained from the commissioner of pensions in the name of a person deceased without heirs or widow, or of a fictitious person, is a mere nullity, incapable of lawful assignment, and may be rejected or canceled by the commissioner of public lands. But when the commissioner has duly issued a military land warrant, valid on its face, to a person in esse, and capable of assigning, and such warrant has passed by lawful assignment to a bona fide purchaser for value without notice, the government cannot cancel such warrant on the ground that the commissioner issued it in misapprehension or on imperfect or false evidence. (1856) 7 Op. Atty-Gen. 657.

Patentee as trustee for assignee.—“A certificate of entry or location under a military land warrant vests in the holder an equitable title to the land, and gives him a right to the patent when issued. If the holder of such a certificate conveys the land or assigns the certificate before the patent issues and a patent is afterward issued to him, he becomes, upon the plainest principles of equity, a trustee for the person to whom he had previously sold or assigned.” Gray v. Jones, (1882) 14 Fed. Rep. 83.

In like manner one who makes an original entry on land and receives a patent after it has been located by the assignee of a military bounty land warrant, holds the title in trust for the assignee. Johnson v. Fluetsch, 176 Mo. 452.

Right of assignee.—The assignee of a warrant has, as against the government, no higher equities than the warrantee. Hence, if the warrant was procured on false and fraudulent papers, the government is not estopped to deny its validity, though the assignee is a purchaser for value and without notice of the fraud. Bronson v. Kukuk, (1874) 3 Dill. (U. S.) 490, 4 Fed. Cas. No. 1,929, distinguishing (1856) 7 Op. Atty-Gen. 657.

Taxation by state before issuance of patent.—Since the title to the land remains in the United States until the issuance of the patent, it is not subject to taxation by the state, and a sale for state taxes under such circumstances is void. Bronson v. Kukuk, (1874) 3 Dill. (U. S.) 490, 4 Fed. Cas. No. 1,929.

And where, after the location of a bounty land warrant by the assignee thereof but before the issuance of a patent, the warrant upon which the location was made was canceled by the commissioner of the land office for fraud in the assignment, but the location or entry itself was not set aside, it was held that the assignee had no such interest in the land after cancellation of the warrant as rendered it subject to taxation, and that a title based on the sale of the land for state taxes was invalid as against one who subsequently succeeded to the assignee's rights and acquired a patent title by payment in cash as a substitute for the warrant. Durham v. Hussman, (1893) 88 Iowa 29, affirmed in (1897) 165 U. S. 144.

Sec. 2415. [Warrants located at $1.25; excess paid in cash.] The warrants which have been or may hereafter be issued in pursuance of law may be located according to the legal subdivisions of the public lands in one body upon any lands of the United States subject to private entry at the time of such location at the minimum price. When such warrant is located on lands which are subject to entry at a greater minimum than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, the locator shall pay to the United States in cash the difference between the value of such warrants at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre and the tract of land located on. But where such tract is rated at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, and does not exceed the area specified in the warrant, it must be taken in full satisfaction thereof. [R. S.]

Act of March 22, 1852, ch. 19, 10 Stat. L. 3.

Sec. 2416. [Claims for bounty lands in virtue of certain acts named, etc.] In all cases of warrants for bounty-lands, issued by virtue of an act approved July twenty-seven, one thousand eight hundred and forty-two, and of two acts approved January twenty-seven, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five, therein and thereby revised, and of two acts to the same intent, respectively, approved June twenty-six, eighteen hundred and forty-eight, and February eight, eighteen hundred and fifty-four, for military services in the revolutionary war, or in the war of eighteen hundred and twelve with Great Britain, which remained unsatisfied on the second day of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, it is lawful for the person in whose name such warrant issued, his heirs or legal representatives, to enter in quarter-sections, at the proper local land-office in any of the States or Territories, the quantity of the public lands subject to private entry which he is entitled to under such warrant. [R. S.]

Act of July 2, 1864, ch. 226, 13 Stat. L. 378.

Sec. 2417. [Same subject.] All warrants for bounty-lands referred to in the preceding section may be located at any time, in conformity with the general laws in force at the time of such location. [R. S.]

Act of July 2, 1864, ch. 226, 13 Stat. L. 379.

Sec. 2418. [Bounty lands for soldiers in certain wars.] Each of the surviving, or the widow or minor children of deceased commissioned and non-commissioned officers, musicians, or privates, whether of regulars, volunteers, rangers, or militia, who performed military service in any regiment, company, or detachment, in the service of the United States, in the war with Great Britain, declared on the eighteenth day of June, eighteen hundred and twelve, or in any of the Indian wars since seventeen hundred and ninety, and prior to the third of March, eighteen hundred and fifty, and each of the commissioned officers who was engaged in the military service of the United States in the war with Mexico, shall be entitled to lands as follows: Those who engaged to serve twelve months or during the war, and actually served nine months, shall receive one hundred and sixty acres, and those who engaged to serve six months, and actually served four months, shall receive eighty acres, and those who engaged to serve for any or an indefinite period, and actually served one month, shall receive forty acres; but wherever any officer or soldier was honorably discharged in consequence of disability contracted in the service, before the expiration of his period of service, he shall receive the amount to which he would have been entitled if he had served the full period for which he had engaged to serve. All the persons enumerated in this section who enlisted in the regular army, or were mustered in any volunteer company for a period of not less than twelve months, and who served in the war with Mexico and received an honorable discharge, or who were killed or died of wounds received or sickness incurred in the course of such service, or were discharged before the expiration of the term of service in consequence of wounds received or sickness incurred in the course of such service, shall be entitled to receive a certificate or warrant for one hundred and sixty acres of land: or at option Treasury scrip for one hundred dollars bearing interest at six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, at the pleasure of the Government. In the event of the death of any one of the persons mentioned in this section during service, or after his discharge, and before the issuing of a certificate or warrant, the warrant or scrip shall be issued in favor of his family or relatives: first, to the widow and his children; second, his father; third, his mother; fourth, his brothers and sisters. [R. S.]

Act of Feb. 11, 1847, ch. 8, 9 Stat. L. 125, 126; Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 85, 9 Stat. L. 520.

Right of soldier to demand warrant.—A soldier who has rendered the required service has a legal right to demand the issuance of a warrant for his bounty land, and the proper officers of the government are not only authorized, but bound, by law to issue the warrant. (1851) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 387.

Nature of certificate issued under this section.—A certificate issued under this section is not a right to demand money, but is merely a right to locate the warrant on any quarter-section of land subject to private entry. (1881) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 157.

Value of land subject to location.—This section was intended to operate on the public lands which were subject to sale at the minimum price, and did not authorize locations of land warrants on lands the price of which was fixed at $2 per acre by the Act of Aug. 3, 1846. (1848) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 714.

Issuance of several warrants on same claim.—Not more than one warrant can be lawfully issued on a soldier's claim for bounty land. If through mistake or fraud more than one warrant is issued on the same claim, the officer at fault will have transcended his authority and performed an act having no legal validity. The issuance of the first warrant must be held to have executed the law and fully satisfied the soldier's claim. Hence all land warrants for bounty land, subsequent to the one first issued on the claim, are null and void. (1851) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 387.

Volunteer honorably discharged before expiration of enlistment.—A volunteer soldier who enlisted in the army in 1846 for the term of five years, and served until 1849, when, in consequence of the reduction of the army after the termination of the war with Mexico, he was honorably discharged against his own wishes, was held to be entitled to the bounty land provided by this section. (1849) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 147.

But it was held that a soldier who enlisted during the war with Mexico for twelve months, but who, without having been wounded or sick, was honorably discharged, was not entitled to bounty land under this Act, where there was a presumption from the statement of the case made to the attorney-general that the claimant voluntarily withdrew from the service before the expiration of the twelve months for which he had enlisted. (1848) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 718.

Volunteer discharged before performing warlike duty.—Where a volunteer was regularly mustered into service for the war with Mexico, but was honorably discharged before marching to the seat of war or performing any warlike duty, it was held that he was entitled to bounty land under this section. (1852) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 617.

Seamen or marines not entitled to bounty land.—The Act of Sept. 28, 1850, 9 Stat. L. 920, appears not to have been considered sufficient to describe seamen or marines, and accordingly Congress by the Act of March 3, 1855, 10 Stat. L. 701, gave a similar bounty to the officers and privates of the navy and marines. In re Bailey, (1872) 2 Sawy. (U. S.) 200, 2 Fed. Cas. No. 728. And see infra, R. S. 2425-2431.

Devise of claim before issuance of warrant.—Soldiers entitled to bounty land, but who have not received warrants therefor, have no authority to dispose of their rights to such land or scrip by will, as the statute expressly provides a method for the disposition of the claim and the issuance of the warrant in the event of the soldier's death before the warrant is issued. (1850) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 237.

A soldier's home is not entitled to bounty-land warrants belonging to the estates of deceased soldiers which remain unclaimed for the period of three years after their decease. (1881) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 167.

Sec. 2419. [Certain classes of persons in the Mexican war, their widows, etc., entitled to forty acres.] The persons enumerated in the preceding section received into service after the commencement of the war with Mexico, for less than twelve months, and who served such term, or were honorably discharged are entitled to receive a certificate or warrant for forty acres, or scrip for twenty-five dollars if preferred, and in the event of the death of such person during service, or after honorable discharge before the eleventh of February, eighteen hundred and forty-seven, the warrant or scrip shall issue to the wife, child, or children, if there be any, and if none, to the father, and if no father, to the mother of such soldier. [R. S.]

Act of Feb. 11, 1847, ch. 8, 9 Stat. L. 126.

Sec. 2420. [Militia and volunteers in service since 1812.] Where the militia, or volunteers, or State troops of any State or Territory, subsequent to the eighteenth day of June, eighteen hundred and twelve, and prior to March twenty-second, eighteen hundred and fifty-two, were called into service, the officers and soldiers thereof shall be entitled to all the benefits of section two thousand four hundred and eighteen upon proof of length of service as therein required. [R. S.]

Act of March 22, 1852, ch. 19, 10 Stat. L. 4.

Sec. 2421. [Persons not entitled under preceding sections.] No person shall take any benefit under the provisions of the three preceding sections, if he has received, or is entitled to receive, any military land-bounty under any act of Congress passed prior to the twenty-second March, eighteen hundred and fifty-two. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 85, 9 Stat. L. 520.

Sec. 2422. [Period of captivity added to actual service] Any officer or soldier remained in captivity estimated and added to the period of his actual service retained in captivity shall receive land under the provisions of sections twenty-four hundred and twenty and twenty-four hundred and twenty-five in a manner that he would be entitled in case he had entered the whole term made up by the addition of the time of service during such term. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 85, § 9 Stat. L. 520.

Sec. 2423. [Warrant and patent to issue, when.] Where provision is made by sections twenty-four hundred and twenty and twenty-four hundred and twenty-five a warrant from the Department of the Interior for the quantity of land to which he is entitled by such warrant, with evidence of the location thereof he shall take to the General Land-Office, a patent shall be issued therefor.

Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 85, § 9 Stat. L. 520.

Sec. 2424. [Widows of persons entitled.] In the case of any person, for whom provision is made by sections twenty and twenty-four hundred and twenty, and who was killed in battle for his services, a like warrant shall issue in favor of his widow, and she shall be entitled to one hundred and sixty acres of land; and if she was killed in battle; nor shall a subsequent marriage of such widow affect such warrant, if she be a widow at the time of her death. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 85, § 9 Stat. L. 520.

Sec. 2425. [Additional bounty lands, etc.] Each person specified in the classes enumerated in the following sections who served a period of not less than fourteen days, in any of the United States have been engaged since the year seventeen hundred and ninety and prior to the third day of March, eighteen hundred and fifty, shall be entitled to receive a warrant from the Department of the Interior for one hundred and sixty acres of land; and, where any person served less than fourteen days prior to the third day of March, eighteen hundred and fifty, he shall be entitled for any number of acres less than one hundred and sixty, but not less than ten, to a warrant for such quantity of land only as will make, when added to the land he may have received prior to that date, one hundred and sixty acres.

Act of March 3, 1855, ch. 207, § 10 Stat. L. 701, 702.

Service in an Indian war.—Where a brigadier-general of the United States army commanding the department of New Mexico called out volunteers to serve against the Indians, it was held that a volunteer who was not mustered in or regularly enlisted, but who served pursuant to the call upward of fourteen days, was entitled to the benefit of this section. The court said that the troops called into the military service to serve against the Indians were equally entitled with other troops to the benefit of this section and of the various similar Acts of Congress, though there may have been no formal declaration of war by Congress nor any public official proclamation of war by the President of the United States to suppress the Indians to submit to the laws known in common law and legal enactments. Case, (1865) 1 Ct. Cl. 573. Compare d J., (1866) 2 Ct. Cl. 573.

Service subsequent to the declaration of a war.—Military service subsequent to the declaration of a war, as in the case of May 14, 1856, a soldier so serving was entitled to the same services were em ployed by the latter law. It was not necessary that the soldier should have been mustered in or formally enlisted, provided he served with the armed forces of the United States subject to military orders for the space of fourteen days. Alire's Case, (1865) 1 Ct. Cl. 233, reversed on jurisdictional grounds in (1867) 6 Wall. (U. S.) 573. Compare dissenting opinion of Loring, J., (1866) 2 Ct. Cl. 590.

Sec. 2426. [Classes under last section specified.] The classes of persons embraced as beneficiaries under the preceding section, are as follows, namely:

First. Commissioned and non-commissioned officers, musicians, and privates, whether of the regulars, volunteers, rangers, or militia, who were regularly mustered into the service of the United States.

Second. Commissioned and non-commissioned officers, seamen, ordinary seamen, flotilla-men, marines, clerks, and landsmen in the Navy.

Third. Militia, volunteers, and State troops of any State or Territory, called into military service, and regularly mustered therein, and whose services have been paid by the United States.

Fourth. Wagon-masters and teamsters who have been employed under the direction of competent authority, in time of war, in the transportation of military stores and supplies.

Fifth. Officers and soldiers of the revolutionary war, and marines, seamen, and other persons in the naval service of the United States during that war.

Sixth. Chaplains who served with the Army.

Seventh. Volunteers who served with the armed forces of the United States in any of the wars mentioned, subject to military orders, whether regularly mustered into the service of the United States or not. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1855, ch. 207, 10 Stat. L. 701; Act of May 14, 1856, ch. 26, 11 Stat. L. 8, 9.

Militia serving under authority of state.— This section includes not only militia or volunteers whose military service was performed under the general command of the United States and in time of war, but also such as rendered military service whether in time of war or not, and whether under the immediate authority of the United States or of a state or territory, but who were paid for such service by the United States. (1855) 7 Op. Atty.-Gen. 606.

Sec. 2427. [What classes of persons entitled under section 2425, without regard to length of service.] The following class of persons are included as beneficiaries under section twenty-four hundred and twenty-five, without regard to the length of service rendered.

First. Any of the classes of persons mentioned in section twenty-four hundred and twenty-six who have been actually engaged in any battle in any of the wars in which this country has been engaged since seventeen hundred and ninety, and prior to March third, eighteen hundred and fifty-five.

Second. Those volunteers who served at the invasion of Plattsburgh, in September, eighteen hundred and fourteen.

Third. The volunteers who served at the battle of King's Mountain, in the revolutionary war.

Fourth. The volunteers who served at the battle of Nickojack against the confederate savages of the South.

Fifth. The volunteers who served at the attack on Lewistown, in Delaware, by the British fleet, in the war of eighteen hundred and twelve. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1855, ch. 207, 10 Stat. L. 702.

Sec. 2428. [Widows and children of persons entitled under section 2425.] In the event of the death of any person who would be entitled to a warrant, as provided in section twenty-four hundred and twenty-five, leaving a widow, or, if no widow, a minor child, such widow or such minor child shall receive a warrant for the same quantity of land that the decedent would be entitled to receive, if living on the third day of March, eighteen hundred and fifty-five. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1855, ch. 207, 10 Stat. L. 702.

Minor's right vests on filing of claim.—The Act does not vest the right to the warrant for bounty land in the minor child before his or her claim is filed. (1860) 9 Op. Atty.-Gen. 427.

Date at which minority must have existed.—The date of the application is the one at which the person claiming as a minor must be shown to have been under full age; and where this is established the right of the claimant will not be defeated by attaining his or her majority before the case is finally disposed of. (1860) 9 Op. Atty.-Gen. 427.

Minor children born after the date of the Act are included within its provisions. (1860) 9 Op. Atty.-Gen. 427.

Sec. 2429. [Subsequent marriage of widow.] A subsequent marriage shall not impair the right of any widow, under the preceding section, if she be a widow at the time of her application. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1855, ch. 207, 10 Stat. L. 702.

Sec. 2430. [Minors under section 2428.] Persons within the age of twenty-one years on the third day of March, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, shall be considered minors within the intent of section twenty-four hundred and twenty-eight. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1855, ch. 207, 10 Stat. L. 702.

Sec. 2431. [Proof of service.] Where no record evidence of the service for which a warrant is claimed exists, parol evidence may be admitted to prove the service performed, under such regulations as the Commissioner of Pensions may prescribe. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1855, ch. 207, 10 Stat. L. 702; Act of May 14, 1856, ch. 26, 11 Stat. L. 8.

An Act To repeal in part and to limit section thirty-four hundred and eighty of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

[Act of March 11, 1898, ch. 57, 30 Stat. L. 274.]

[Applicants need not prove loyalty during rebellion.] That section thirty-four hundred and eighty of the Revised Statutes of the United States be, and the same is hereby, so far, and no further, modified and repealed as to dispense with proof of loyalty during the late war of the rebellion as a prerequisite in any application for bounty land where the proof otherwise shows that the applicant is entitled thereto. [30 Stat. L. 274.]

R. S. sec. 3480 prohibits the payment of any claim or demand against the United States which accrued or existed prior to the 13th day of April 1861, in favor of any person who was not loyal to the government of the United States during the Rebellion. See CLAIMS, vol. 2, p. 14.

Sec. 2432. [Former evidence of right to bounty land to be received in certain cases.] Where certificate or a warrant for bounty-land for any less quantity than one hundred and sixty acres has been issued to any officer or soldier, or to the widow or minor child of any officer or soldier, the evidence upon which such certificate or warrant was issued shall be received to establish the service of such officer or soldier in the application of himself, or of his widow or minor child, for a warrant for so much land as may be required to make up the full sum of one hundred and sixty acres, to which he may be entitled under the preceding section, on proof of the identity of such officer or soldier, or, in case of his death, of the marriage and identity of his widow, or, in case of her death, of the identity of his minor child. But if, upon a review of such evidence, the Commissioner of Pensions is not satisfied that the former warrant was properly granted, he may require additional evidence, as well of the term as of the fact of service. [R. S.]

Act of May 14, 1856, ch. 26, 11 Stat. L. 8.

Sec. 2433. [Allowance of time of service for distance from home to place of muster or discharge.] When any company, battalion, or regiment, in an organized form, marched more than twenty miles to the place where they were mustered into the service of the United States, or were discharged more than twenty miles from the place where such company, battalion, or regiment was organized, in all such cases, in computing the length of service of the officers and soldiers of any such company, battalion, or regiment, there shall be allowed one day for every twenty miles from the place where the company, battalion, or regiment was organized to the place where the same was mustered into the service of the United States, and one day for every twenty miles from the place where such company, battalion, or regiment was discharged, to the place where it was organized, and from whence it marched to enter the service, provided that such march was in obedience to the command or direction of the President, or some general officer of the United States, commanding an army or department, or the chief executive officer of the State or Territory by which such company, battalion, or regiment was called into service. [R. S.]

Act of May 14, 1856, ch. 26, 11 Stat. L. 9; Act of March 22, 1852, ch. 19, 10 Stat. L. 4.

Sec. 2434. [Indians included.] The provisions of all the bounty-land laws shall be extended to Indians, in the same manner and to the same extent as to white persons. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1855, ch. 207, 10 Stat. L. 702.

Sec. 2435. [Former evidence of right to a pension to be received in certain cases on application for bounty land.] Where a pension has been granted to any officer or soldier, the evidence upon which such pension was granted shall be received to establish the service of such officer or soldier in his application for bounty-land; and upon proof of his identity as such pensioner, a warrant may be issued to him for the quantity of land to which he is entitled; and in case of the death of such pensioned officer or soldier, his widow shall be entitled to a warrant for the same quantity of land to which her husband would have been entitled, if living, upon proof that she is such widow; and in case of the death of such officer or soldier, leaving a minor child and no widow, or where the widow may have deceased before the issuing of any warrant, such minor child shall be entitled to a warrant for the same quantity of land as the father would have been entitled to receive if living, upon proof of the decease of father and mother. But if, upon a review of such evidence, the Commissioner of Pensions is not satisfied that the pension was properly granted, he may require additional evidence, as well of the term as of the fact of service. [R. S.]

Act of May 14, 1856, ch. 26, 11 Stat. L. 8.

Sec. 2436. [Sales, mortgages, letters of attorney, etc., made before issue of warrant to be void.] All sales, mortgages, letters of attorney, or other instruments of writing, going to affect the title or claim to any warrant issued, or to be issued, or any land granted, or to be granted, under the preceding provisions of this chapter, made or executed prior to the issue of such warrant, shall be null and void to all intents and purposes whatsoever; nor shall such warrant, or the land obtained thereby, be in anywise affected by, or charged with, or subject to, the payment of any debt or claim incurred by any officer or soldier, prior to the issuing of the patent. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 85, 9 Stat. L. 521.

Traffic in soldiers' claims illegal.—Where a partnership was engaged in the business of buying up soldiers' claims before the issuance of scrip or land warrants, it was held that the traffic was illegal under the provisions of the ninth section of the Act of Feb. 11, 1847, the main object of which was to protect the soldier against improvident contracts. Brooks v. Martin, (1863) 2 Wall. (U. S.) 70.

This section prohibits the devise of a soldier's bounty claim before the issuance of the warrant. (1850) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 237.

Sec. 2437. [Warrants to be located free of expense by Commissioner of Land-Office, etc.] It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, to cause to be located, free of expense, any warrant which the holder may transmit to the General Land-Office for that purpose, in such State or land-district as the holder or warrantee may designate, and upon good farming-land, so far as the same can be ascertained from the maps, plats, and field-notes of the surveyor, or from any other information in the possession of the local office, and, upon the location being made, the Secretary shall cause a patent to be transmitted to such warrantee or holder. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 85, 9 Stat. L. 521.

Sec. 2438. [Deserters not entitled to bounty land.] No person who has been in the military service of the United States shall, in any case, receive a bounty-land warrant if it appears by the muster-rolls of his regiment or corps that he deserted or was dishonorably discharged from service. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 85, 9 Stat. L. 520;
Act of March 3, 1855, ch. 207, 10 Stat. L. 701.

The widow of a person registered as a deserter on the rolls of the war department is not entitled to bounty lands until the charge of desertion is disproved. U. S. v. Snow, (1877) 2 Flipp. (U. S.) 1, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 16,350.

Sec. 2439. [Lost warrants, provisions for.] When a soldier of the Regular Army, who has obtained a military land-warrant, loses the same, or such warrant is destroyed by accident, he shall, upon proof thereof to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior, be entitled to a patent in like manner as if the warrant was produced. [R. S.]

Act of April 27, 1816, ch. 127, 3 Stat. L. 317.

Sec. 2440. [Discharges, omissions, and loss of, provided for.] In all cases of discharge from the military service of the United States of any soldier of the Regular Army, when it appears to the satisfaction of the Secretary of War that a certificate of faithful services has been omitted by the neglect of the discharging officer, by misconstruction of the law, or by any other neglect or casualty, such omission shall not prevent the issuing of the warrant and patent as in other cases. And when it is proved that any soldier of the Regular Army has lost his discharge and certificate of faithful service, the Secretary of War shall cause such papers to be furnished such soldier as will entitle him to his land-warrant and patent, provided such measure is justified by the time of his enlistment, the period of service, and the report of some officer of the corps to which he was attached. [R. S.]

Act of April 27, 1816, ch. 127, 3 Stat. L. 317.

Sec. 2441. [New warrant issued in lieu of lost warrant.] Whenever it appears that any certificate or warrant, issued in pursuance of any law granting bounty-land, has been lost or destroyed, whether the same has been sold and assigned by the warrantee or not, the Secretary of the Interior is required to cause a new certificate or warrant of like tenor to be issued in lieu thereof; which new certificate or warrant may be assigned, located, and patented in like manner as other certificates or warrants for bounty-land are now authorized by law to be assigned, located, and patented; and in all cases where warrants have been, or may be, re-issued, the original warrant, in whosever [sic] hands it may be, shall be deemed and held to be null and void, and the assignment thereof, if any there be, fraudulent; and no patent shall ever issue for any land located therewith, unless such presumption of fraud in the assignment be removed by due proof that the same was executed by the warrantee in good faith and for a valuable consideration. [R. S.]

Act of June 23, 1860, ch. 203, 12 Stat. L. 90.

Issuance of duplicate warrant renders original void.—Where a duplicate warrant is issued after the loss of the original, a patent issued to the purchaser of such duplicate warrant is valid as against one claiming under the original warrant, in the absence of due proof that he received the original by an assignment from the warrantee executed in good faith and for a valuable consideration, as the making of such proof is essential to prevent the operation of this section which renders the original void and raises the presumption of fraud in the assignment. Boyd v. Mammoth Spring Imp., etc., Co., (1896) 137 Mo. 482.

Sec. 2442. [Regulations by Secretary of Interior.] The Secretary of the Interior is required to prescribe such regulations for carrying the preceding section into effect as he may deem necessary and proper in order to protect the Government against imposition and fraud by persons claiming the benefit thereof; and all laws and parts of laws for the punishment of frauds against the United States are made applicable to frauds under that section. [R. S.]

Act of June 23, 1860, ch. 203, 12 Stat. L. 91.

Sec. 2443. [Mode of issuing patents to the heirs of persons entitled to bounty lands.] In all cases where an officer or soldier of the revolutionary war, or a soldier of the war of eighteen hundred and twelve, was entitled to bounty-land, has died before obtaining a patent for the land, and where application is made by a part only of the heirs of such deceased officer or soldier for such bounty-land, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to issue the patent in the name of the heirs of such deceased officer or soldier, without specifying each; and the patent so issued in the name of the heirs, generally, shall inure to the benefit of the whole, in such portions as they are severally entitled to by the laws of descent in the State or Territory where the officer or soldier belonged at the time of his death. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1843, Res. 7, 5 Stat. L. 650.

Sec. 2444. [Death of claimant after establishing right and before issuing of warrant.] When proof has been or hereafter is filed in the Pension-Office, during the life-time of a claimant, establishing, to the satisfaction of that office, his right to a warrant for military services, and such warrant has not been, or may not be, issued until after the death of the claimant, and all such warrants as have been heretofore issued subsequent to the death of the claimant, the title to such warrants shall vest in his widow, if there be one, and if there be no widow, then in the heirs or legatees of the claimant; and all military bounty-land warrants issued pursuant to law shall be treated as personal chattels, and may be conveyed by assignment of such widow, heirs, or legatees, or by the legal representatives of the deceased claimant, for the use of such heirs or legatees only. [R. S.]

Respective rights of widow, heirs, and legatees. — A land warrant issued after the death of a claimant who left a widow and children inures to the widow's benefit alone. Where the deceased claimant was a widow with two sets of children, the warrant inures to the benefit of her heirs or legatees. Heirs are those who are so declared by the law of the claimant's domicil. (1858) 9 Op. Atty.-Gen. 243.

Sec. 2445. [When proofs may be filed by legal representatives.] The legal representatives of a deceased claimant for a bounty-land warrant, whose claim was filed prior to his death, may file the proofs necessary to perfect such claim. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1869, ch. 138, 15 Stat. L. 336.

Sec. 2446. [Relocation of military bounty-land warrants in cases of error.] Where an actual settler on the public lands has sought, or hereafter attempts, to locate the land settled on and improved by him, with a military bounty-land warrant, and where, from any cause, an error has occurred in making such location, he is authorized to relinquish the land so erroneously located, and to locate such warrant upon the land so settled upon and improved by him, if the same then be vacant, and if not, upon any other vacant land, on making proof of those facts to the satisfaction of the land-officers, according to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, and subject to his final adjudication. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1853, ch. 147, 10 Stat. L. 256.

An Act To provide for the location and satisfaction of outstanding military bounty land warrants and certificates of location under section three of the Act approved June second, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight.

[Act of Dec. 13, 1894, ch. 3, 28 Stat. L. 594.]

[Bounty warrants and indemnity certificates receivable for entries.] That in addition to the benefits now given thereto by law, all unsatisfied military bounty land warrants under any act of Congress, and unsatisfied indemnity certificates of location under the Act of Congress approved June second, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, whether heretofore or hereafter issued, shall be receivable at the rate of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre in payment or part payment for any lands entered under the desert land law of March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, entitled "An Act to provide for the sale of desert lands in certain States and Territories," and the amendments thereto, the timber-culture law of March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, entitled "An Act to encourage the growth of timber on the Western prairies," and the amendments thereto; the timber and stone law of June third, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, entitled "An Act for the sale of timber lands in the States of California, Oregon, Nebraska, and Washington Territory," and the amendments thereto, or for lands which may be sold at public auction, except such lands as shall have been purchased from any Indian tribe within ten years last past. [28 Stat. L. 594.]

The Act herein referred to as March 3, 1887, should be March 3, 1877.

An act to construe and define "An act to cede to the State of Ohio the unsold lands in the Virginia military district in said State," approved February eighteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, and for other purposes.

[Act of May 27, 1880, ch. 105, 21 Stat. L. 142.]

[SEC. 1.] [Virginia military district lands ceded to Ohio not to include appropriated lands.] That the act ceding to the State of Ohio the lands remaining "unsurveyed and unsold" in the Virginia military district, in the State of Ohio, had no reference to lands which were included in any survey or entry within said district founded upon military warrant or warrants upon Continental establishment; and the true intent and meaning of said act was to cede to the State of Ohio only such lands as were unappropriated, and not included in any survey or entry within said district, which survey or entry was founded upon military warrant or warrants upon Continental establishment. [21 Stat. L. 142.]

The purpose and effect of this Act, and of the Act of Aug. 7, 1882, ch. 44, 22 Stat. L. 348, were not to create new rights but to preserve those already existing at the time of the passage of the Act of cession.¹ Board of Trustees v. Cuppett, (1895) 52 Ohio St. 567.

SEC. 2. [Surveys returned to land office by March 3, 1857, declared valid.] That all legal surveys returned to the land office on or before March third, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, on entries made on or before January first, eighteen hundred and fifty-two, and founded on unsatisfied Virginia military Continental warrants, are hereby declared valid. [21 Stat. L. 143.]

This section refers to the general land office and not to the office of the principal surveyor of the Virginia military district. Fussell v. Gregg, (1885) 113 U. S. 550.

SEC. 3. [Officers and soldiers of Virginia line to have three years to perfect land title.] That the officers and soldiers of the Virginia line on Continental establishment, their heirs or assigns, entitled to bounty-lands, which have, on or before January first, eighteen hundred and fifty-two, been entered within the tract reserved by Virginia, between the Little Miami and Sciota Rivers, for satisfying the legal bounties to her officers and soldiers upon Continental establishment, shall be allowed three years from and after the passage of this act to make and return their surveys for record to the office of the principal surveyor of said district, and may file their plats and certificates, warrants, or certified copies of warrants, at the General Land Office, and receive patents for the same. [21 Stat. L. 143.]

Three years' additional time is allowed by this section for the return of the surveys of the land which had been entered but not sur-vayed before Jan. 1, 1852. Fussell v. Gregg, (1885) 113 U. S. 550.

SEC. 4. [Grant to Ohio Agricultural, etc., College not interfered with.] This act shall not in any way affect or interfere with the title to any lands sold for a valuable consideration by the Ohio Agricultural and Mechanical College, grantee, under the act of February eighteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one. [21 Stat. L. 143.]

The effect of this section is to confirm the title to land sold for a valuable consideration by the Ohio Agricultural and Mechanical College under the Act of Feb. 18, 1871. Coan v. Flagg, (1887) 123 U. S. 117.

An act in relation to land-patents in the Virginia military district of Ohio.

[SEC. 1.] [Possession of lands in Virginia military district of Ohio for twenty years under color of title.] That any person in the actual open possession of any tract of land in the Virginia military district of the State of Ohio, under claim and color of title made in good faith based upon or deducible from entry of a tract of land within said district founded upon military warrant upon Continental establishment, and a record of which entry was duly made in the office of the principal surveyor of the Virginia military district, either before or since its removal to Chillicothe, Ohio, prior to January first, eighteen hundred and fifty-two, such possession having continued for twenty years last past, under a claim of title on the part of said party either as entryman, or of his or her grantors, or of parties by or under whom such party claims by purchase or inheritance, or they by title based upon or deducible from such entry by tax-sale or otherwise, shall be deemed and held to be the legal owner of such land so included in said entry, to the extent and according to the purport of said entry or of his or her paper titles based thereon or deducible therefrom. [22 Stat. L. 348.]

SEC. 2. [Conflicting law repealed.] That so much of the act approved February eighteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, entitled "An act to cede to the State of Ohio the unsold lands in the Virginia military district in said State," and of an act approved May twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and eighty, construing said act of February eighteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, as conflicts with this act, be, and the same is hereby, repealed. [22 Stat. L. 348.]

[XI. DESERT LANDS.]

An act to provide for the sale of desert lands in certain States and Territories.

[Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 107, 19 Stat. L. 877.]

[SEC. 1.] [Reclamation and purchase of desert lands — use of water.] That it shall be lawful for any citizen of the United States, or any person of requisite age "who may be entitled to become a citizen, and who has filed a declaration to become such" and upon payment of twenty five cents per acre — to file a declaration under oath with the register and the receiver of the land district in which any desert land is situated, that he intends to reclaim a tract of desert land not exceeding one section, by conducting water upon the same within the period of three years thereafter, Provided however that the right to the use of water by the person so conducting the same, on or to any tract of desert land of six hundred and forty acres shall depend upon bona fide prior appropriation: and such right shall not exceed the amount of water actually appropriated, and necessarily used for the purpose of irrigation and reclamation: and all surplus water over and above such actual appropriation and use together with the water of all, lakes, rivers and other sources of water supply upon the public lands and not navigable, shall remain and be held free for the appropriation and use of the public for irrigation, mining and manufacturing purposes subject to existing rights. Said declaration shall describe particularly said section of land if surveyed, and, if unsurveyed, shall describe the same as nearly as possible without a survey. At any time within the period of three years after filing said declaration, upon making satisfactory proof to the register and receiver of the reclamation of said tract of land in the manner aforesaid, and upon the payment to the receiver of the additional sum of one dollar per acre for a tract of land not exceeding six hundred and forty acres to any one person, a patent for the same shall be issued to him. Provided, that no person shall be permitted to enter more than one tract of land and not to exceed six hundred and forty acres which shall be in compact form. [19 Stat. L. 377.]

Entry severs lands from public domain.—An entry under this section reserves the land entered from entry under other laws and gives the right of possession for three years to the proposed purchaser. Sallee v. Corder, (1885) 67 Cal. 174.

Entry by corporation.—The language of this section clearly excludes an association or corporation from making a desert land entry, as by its terms it is limited to citizens of the United States or persons of requisite age who may be entitled to become citizens. This construction finds confirmation in the further provision that "no person shall be permitted to enter more than one tract," etc. Thus where an entry of two tracts was made by a corporation at its expense in the names of two individuals, and after the digging of the ditches such individuals were taken to view the land for the purpose of enabling them to make the final proof required by the statute, and after the issuance of the patents the patentees conveyed the lands by quitclaim deeds to the corporation for a nominal consideration, it was held that the entries were fraudulent, and that the government was entitled to have the patents canceled. Salina Stock Co. v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1898) 85 Fed. Rep. 339.

But there is nothing in the statute denouncing a mere intention on the part of the locator to transfer his or her title, when perfected, for the benefit of even a corporation, when the locator pays the purchase money and complies with the requirements of the statute respecting irrigation. In such case, if the patent is issued to him, he may transfer the land to whom he pleases. U. S. v. Mackintosh, (C. C. A. 1898) 85 Fed. Rep. 333.

Entry of land along line of railroad.—The alternate reserved sections of land along the line of a railroad to which alternate sections have been granted by Congress may be entered under the terms of this Act on payment of the double price of two dollars and fifty cents per acre fixed by Congress. Semle, the initial payment required is fifty cents per acre, instead of the twenty-five cents required when the entry is made on land at the minimum price of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. U. S. v. Ingram, (1899) 172 U. S. 327.

Neither the Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 107, 19 Stat. L. 377, nor the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, modify U. S. R. S. 2357, so as to permit desert-land entry of alternate reserved sections at a price less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre. Hence, a desert-land entryman who was required to pay such price is not entitled to recover from the United States the difference between one dollar and twenty-five cents and two dollars and fifty cents per acre. U. S. v. Healey, (1895) 160 U. S. 136, reversing (1894) 29 Ct. Cl. 115.

Appropriation of water need not be directly by owner.—"We perceive no merit in the contention that the proviso in the Desert Land Act of March 3, 1877, declaring that surplus water on the public domain shall remain and be held free for the appropriation and use of the public for irrigation, mining, and manufacturing purposes, subject to existing rights, is an expression of the will of Congress that all public waters within its control, or the control of a legislative body of its creation, must be directly appropriated by the owners of land upon which a beneficial use of water is to be made, and that in consequence a territorial legislature cannot lawfully empower a corporation, such as the appellee, to become an intermediary for furnishing water to irrigate the lands of third parties." Gutierrez v. Albuquerque Land, etc., Co., (1903) 188 U. S. 555.

Effect on navigable streams and riparian rights.—By this Act Congress recognized and assented to the appropriation of water in contravention of the common-law right of lower riparian proprietors to insist on the continuous flow of the stream. But Congress did not intend to release its control over the navigable streams of the country, and to grant those reclaiming arid lands the right to appropriate the waters of the tributary streams which unite into a navigable watercourse, and thereby destroy the navigability of such watercourse in derogation of the interests of all the people of the United States. U. S. v. Rio Grande Dam, etc., Co., (1899) 174 U. S. 690. And see Farm Invest. Co. v. Carpenter, (1900) 9 Wyo. 110, 123.

Sufficiency of reclamation.—"It was the manifest purpose of Congress to hold out to the citizens of the United States an inducement to reclaim the waste and desert lands of the public domain, and thus render them subservient to the uses of husbandry by process of irrigation. This was to be accomplished by such a system of ditches as would carry to the subdivisions of the land capable of being reached by the surface flow, a supply of water such as, when let out of the ditches by draw gates or smaller ditches, might spread over the accessible parts, and stimulate vegetable life. If the main ditches were thus constructed, with the acquired adequate supply of water to irrigate the lands for the purpose of cultivation in the ordinary method of carrying it out over the surface of the ground, we think the reclamation contemplated by the statute was accomplished, without showing that this appropriation was followed by actual use and culti-ation. This seems to be in accord with recent rulings of the land-office department." J. S. v. Mackintosh, (C. C. A. 1898) 85 Fed. Rep. 333.

Assignment of entry.—The making of a desert-land entry gives the entryman no right which he can sell or transfer; and a conveyance from the entryman before the perfection of his title passes no interest as against the government, which may subsequently cancel the entry. Williams v. U. S., (1891) 38 U. S. 514.

Agreement to convey after vesting of title.—There is no ruling of the land department that one who has entered desert lands in good faith may not make an agreement to convey the land after title shall vest in him. On the contrary, the land department has affirmatively recognized such agreements as valid and as not affecting the rights of the entryman to obtain title. Such an agreement is not an assignment of the entry. Arnold v. Christy, (1893) 4 Ariz. 19.

Effect of final payment on entryman's rights.—Final payment made by an applicant for a land warrant at the proper time and place and to the proper officer, and in the expectation of receiving therefor his final certificate of entry, is conclusive evidence that the applicant did not intend to abandon his entry. After making such payment the applicant is entitled to receive a warrant for the land or to be paid back his money. The money so paid is in the nature of a pledge that the applicant will complete his part of the transaction when the government is ready to do its part, and the statute of limitations does not begin to run against an action to recover the money until the final refusal of the secretary of the interior to refund it. Slocum v. U. S., (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 85.

Money paid under mutual mistake of fact.—Where both parties suppose that an entry in the land office covers the land which the claimant has improved, and in that belief the purchase money is paid and the certificate issued, and the government subsequently cancels the entry upon discovery that the mistake of a numeral transfers the entry to an adjoining section of land, the government is bound in equity and good conscience to refund the purchase money; and an action for the money had and received will lie for its refusal. Money deposited in the land office for the purpose of purchasing land is held in trust for that use, and a transaction may remain open until finally acted on by the secretary of the interior; and the statute of limitations does not begin to run until the final action of the department. Nelson v. U. S., (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 427.

Forfeiture of sum paid for entry.—Where under the terms of this Act a person entered part of an alternate reserved section on the line of a railroad at $2.50 per acre, and made the preliminary payment thereon fifty cents per acre, and thereafter he failed to reclaim the land by conducting water thereon as required by the statute, and voluntarily abandoned his entry, which was canceled, it was held that he had no cause of action against the United States for the sum of money he paid to initiate the entry. U. S. v. Ingalls, (1899) 172 U. S. 327.

The provisions of the Act in the text superseded the provisions of the Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 160, 18 Stat. L. 497, "An act to provide for the sale of desert lands in Lassen County, California," as follows:

"[SEC. 1.] That it shall be lawful for any citizen of the United States, or any person of requisite age who may be entitled to become a citizen, and who has filed his declaration of intention to become such, to file a declaration with the register and the receiver of the proper land district for the county of Lassen, California, in which any desert land is situated, that he intends to reclaim a certain section of desert land situated in said county, exceeding one section, by conducting water upon the same, so as to reclaim all of said land within the period of two years thereafter; and said declaration shall be sworn to and shall describe particularly said section of land, if surveyed, and, if unsurveyed, shall describe the same as nearly as possible without a survey; which said declaration shall be supported by the affidavit of at least two credible witnesses, establishing to the satisfaction of the register or receiver the fact that said lands are of the character described in this act. And at any time within the period of two years after the filing of said declaration, and upon making satisfactory proof of the reclamation of said tract of land in the manner aforesaid, before the register and the receiver of said land office, the person shall be entitled to enter or locate the reclaimed section, or any part thereof, in the same manner as in cases where public lands of the United States are subject to entry at a price not exceeding one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, and shall receive a patent therefor.

"SEC. 2. That all lands within said county of Lassen, exclusive of timber lands and mineral lands, which do not produce grain or which will not, without such reclamation, produce some agricultural crop, shall be deemed desert lands within the meaning of this act."

Lands in military reservation.—See Act of May 19, 1900, ch. 484, infra, div. XIV.

Validation of entries.—See Act of August 1894, ch. 211, supra, p. 306.

Affidavits, before whom made. See sec. 2294, supra, p. 304.

Confirmation of entries.—See Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 7, and Act of January 1901, ch. 12, infra, div. XIX.

SEC. 2. [Desert lands defined.] That all lands exclusive of timber lands and mineral lands which will not, without irrigation, produce some agricultural crop, shall be deemed desert lands, within the meaning of this act, which shall be ascertained by proof of two or more credible witnesses under oath, whose affidavits shall be filed in the land office in which said tract of land may be situated — [19 Stat. L. 377.]

Determination of desert character.—The occasion on which the desert character of the land is to be ascertained is at the time of filing the declaration. This is a fact to be determined by the register of the land office upon affidavits or other proper evidence; and his determination is final and conclusive on the courts in the absence of a direct impeachment for fraud. U. S. v. Mackintosh, (C. C. A. 1898) 85 Fed. Rep. 333.

SEC. 3. [States to which applicable — determination of desert lands.] That this act shall only apply to and take effect in the States of California, Oregon and Nevada, and the Territories of Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Wyoming, Arizona, New Mexico and Dakota, and the determination of what may be considered desert land shall be subject to the decision and regulation of the Commissioner of the General Land Office. [19 Stat. L. 377.]

Colorado included, see section 8, infra.

SEC. 4. [Plan of irrigation to be filed — association of entrymen.] That at the time of filing the declaration hereinbefore required the party shall also file a map of said land, which shall exhibit a plan showing the mode of contemplated irrigation, and which plan shall be sufficient to thoroughly irrigate and reclaim said land, and prepare it to raise ordinary agricultural crops, and shall also show the source of the water to be used for irrigation and reclamation. Persons entering or proposing to enter separate sections, or fractional parts of sections, of desert lands, may associate together in the construction of canals and ditches for irrigating and reclaiming all of said tracts, and may file a joint map or maps showing their plan of internal improvements. [23 Stat. L. 1096.]

Sections 4-8 of this Act were added by the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, sec. 2, 26 Stat. L. 1096-1097, "An act to repeal timber-culture laws, and for other purposes."

SEC. 5. [Expenditure and cultivation required.] That no land shall be patented to any person under this act unless he or his assignors shall have expended in the necessary irrigation, reclamation, and cultivation thereof, by means of main canals and branch ditches, and in permanent improvements upon the land, and in the purchase of water rights for the irrigation of the same, at least three dollars per acre of whole tract reclaimed and patented in the manner following: Within one year after making entry for such tract of desert land as aforesaid the party so entering shall expend not less than one dollar per acre for the purposes aforesaid: and he shall in like manner expend the sum of one dollar per acre during the second and also during the third year thereafter, until the full sum of three dollars per acre is so expended. Said party shall file during each year with the register proof, by the affidavits of two or more credible witnesses, that the full sum of one dollar per acre has been expended in such necessary improvements during such year, and the manner in which expended, and at the expiration of the third year a map or plan showing the character and extent of such improvements. If any party who has made such application shall fail during any year to file the testimony aforesaid the lands shall revert to the United States, and the twenty-five cents advanced payment shall be forfeited to the United States, and the entry shall be canceled. Nothing herein contained shall prevent a claimant from making his final entry and receiving his patent at an earlier date than hereinbefore prescribed, provided that he then makes the required proof of reclamation to the aggregate extent of three dollars per acre: Provided, That proof be further required of the cultivation of one-eighth of the land. [26 Stat. L. 1096.]

See note to section 4, supra.

SEC. 6. [Existing claims, how perfected.] That this act shall not affect valid rights heretofore accrued under said act of March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, but all bona-fide claims heretofore lawfully initiated may be perfected, upon due compliance with the provisions of said act, in the same manner, upon the same terms and conditions, and subject to the same limitations, forfeitures, and contests as if this act had not been passed; or said claims, at the option of the claimant, may be perfected and patented under the provisions of said act, as amended by this act, so far as applicable; and all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [26 Stat. L. 1097.]

See note to section 4, supra.

SEC. 7. [Issue of patents upon proof and payment — limit of individual holding — additional proofs.] That at any time after filing the declaration and within the period of four years thereafter, upon making satisfactory proof to the register and the receiver of the reclamation and cultivation of said land to the extent and cost and in the manner aforesaid, and substantially in accordance with the plans herein provided for, and that he or she is a citizen of the United States, and upon payment to the receiver of the additional sum of one dollar per acre for said land, a patent shall issue therefor to the applicant or his assigns; But no person or association of persons shall hold by assignment or otherwise prior to the issue of patent, more than three hundred and twenty acres of such arid or desert lands but this section shall not apply to entries made or initiated prior to the approval of this act. Provided, however, That additional proofs may be required at any time within the period prescribed by law and that the claims or entries made under this or any preceding act shall be subject to contest, as provided by the law, relating to homestead cases, for illegal inception, abandonment, or failure to comply with the requirements of law and upon satisfactory proof thereof shall be canceled, and the lands, and money paid therefor, shall be forfeited to the United States. [26 Stat. L. 1097.]

See note to section 4, supra.

Period extended. — See Act of Aug. 4, 1894, ch. 208, given below.

SEC. 8. [Act applicable to Colorado — resident citizens only may enter desert land.] That the provisions of the act to which this is an amendment, and the amendments thereto, shall apply to and be in force in the State of Colorado as well as the States named in the original act; and no person shall be entitled to make entry of desert land except he be a resident citizen of the State or Territory in which the land sought to be entered is located. [26 Stat. L. 1097.]

See note to section 4, supra.

An act for the relief of persons who have filed declarations of intention to enter desert land.

[Act of Aug. 4, 1894, ch. 208, 28 Stat. L. 226.]

[Time extended for final proof of entries.] That in all cases where declarations of intention to enter desert lands have been filed, and the four years' limit within which final proof may be made had not expired prior to January first, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, the time within which such proof may be made in each such case is hereby extended to five years from the date of filing the declaration; and the requirement that the persons filing such declarations shall expend the full sum of one dollar per acre during each year toward the reclamation of the land is hereby suspended for the year eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and such annual expenditure for that year, and the proof thereof, is hereby dispensed with: Provided, That within the period of five years from filing the declaration satisfactory proof be made to the register and receiver of the reclamation and cultivation of such land to the extent and cost and in the manner provided by existing law, except as to said year eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and upon the payment to the receiver of the additional sum of one dollar per acre, as provided in existing law, a patent shall issue as therein provided. [28 Stat. L. 226.]

SEC. 4. [Grant to States irrigating desert lands.] That to aid the public land States in the reclamation of the desert lands therein, and the settlement, cultivation and sale thereof in small tracts to actual settlers, the Secretary of the Interior with the approval of the President, be, and hereby is, authorized and empowered, upon proper application of the State to contract and agree, from time to time, with each of the States in which there may be situated desert lands as defined by the Act entitled "An Act to provide for the sale of desert land in certain States and Territories," approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, and the Act amendatory thereof, approved March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, binding the United States to donate, grant and patent to the State free of cost for survey or price such desert lands, not exceeding one million acres in each State, as the State may cause to be irrigated, reclaimed occupied, and not less than twenty acres of each one hundred and sixty-acre tract cultivated by actual settlers, within ten years next after the passage of this Act, as thoroughly as is required of citizens who may enter under the said desert land law. [28 Stat. L. 422.]

[Plan of irrigation to be filed — contracts for reclaiming and settlement.] Before the application of any State is allowed or any contract or agreement is executed or any segregation of any of the land from the public domain is ordered by the Secretary of the Interior, the State shall file a map of the said land proposed to be irrigated which shall exhibit a plan showing the mode of the contemplated irrigation and which plan shall be sufficient to thoroughly irrigate and reclaim said land and prepare it to raise ordinary agricultural crops and shall also show the source of the water to be used for irrigation and reclamation, and the Secretary of the Interior may make necessary regulations for the reservation of the lands applied for by the States to date from the date of the filing of the map and plan of irrigation, but such reservation shall be of no force whatever if such map and plan of irrigation shall not be approved. That any State contracting under this section is hereby authorized to make all necessary contracts to cause the said lands to be reclaimed, and to induce their settlement and cultivation in accordance with and subject to the provisions of this section; but the State shall not be authorized to lease any of said lands or to use or dispose of the same in any way whatever, except to secure their reclamation, cultivation and settlement. [28 Stat. L. 422.]

[Patents for reclaimed lands — limit to one person — surplus from sale.] As fast as any State may furnish satisfactory proof according to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, that any of said lands are irrigated, reclaimed and occupied by actual settlers, patents shall be issued to the State or its assigns for said lands so reclaimed and settled: Provided, That said States shall not sell or dispose of more than one hundred and sixty acres of said lands to any one person, and any surplus of money derived by any State from the sale of said lands in excess of the cost of their reclamation, shall be held as a trust fund for and be applied to the reclamation of other desert lands in such State. * * * [28 Stat. L. 422.]

ing the benefits of this statute, see State v. Wright, (1896) 17 Mont. 565; State v. M. B. Hall, (1898) 20 Mont. 510; Howlett v. Clark, (1897) 17 Wash. 626.

[SEC. 1.] [Lien for expenses of reclaiming lands — patents to issue thereon.] * * * That under any law heretofore or hereafter enacted by any State, providing for the reclamation of arid lands, in pursuance and acceptance of the terms of the grant made in section four of an Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five," approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, a lien or liens is hereby authorized to be created by the State to which such lands are granted and by whatever authority whatever, and when created shall be valid on and against the separate legal subdivisions of land reclaimed, for the actual cost and necessary expenses of reclamation and reasonable interest thereon from the date of reclamation until disposed of to actual settlers; and when an ample supply of water is actually furnished in a substantial ditch or canal, or by artesian wells or reservoirs, to reclaim a particular tract or tracts of such lands, then patents shall issue for the same to such State without regard to settlement or cultivation. Provided, That in no event, in no contingency, and under no circumstances shall the United States be in any manner directly or indirectly liable for the amount of any such lien or liability, in whole or in part. * * * [29 Stat. L. 34.]

SEC. 3. [Time limit for reclamation by States — extension of period for restoration to public domain.] That section four of the Act of August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, entitled "An Act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and for other purposes," is hereby amended so that the ten years' period within which any State shall cause the lands applied for under said Act to be irrigated and reclaimed, as provided in said section as amended by the Act of June eleventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, shall begin to run from the date of approval by the Secretary of the Interior of the State's application for the segregation of such lands; and if the State fails within said ten years to cause the whole or any part of the lands segregated to be so irrigated and reclaimed, the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, continue said segregation for a period of not exceeding five years, or may, in his discretion, restore such lands to the public domain. * * * [31 Stat. L. 1188.]

[XII. SWAMP AND OVERFLOWED LANDS.]

Sec. 2479. [Grant of swamp and overflowed lands to certain States to aid in construction of levees, etc.] To enable the several States (but not including the States of Kansas, Nebraska, and Nevada) to construct the necessary levees and drains, to reclaim the swamp and overflowed lands therein — the whole of the swamp and overflowed lands, made unfit thereby for cultivation, and remaining unsold on or after the twenty-eighth day of September, A. D. eighteen hundred and fifty, are granted and belong to the several States respectively, in which said lands are situated: Provided, however, That said grant of swamp and overflowed lands, as to the State of California, Minnesota, and Oregon, is subject to the limitations, restrictions and conditions hereinafter named and specified, as applicable to said three last-named States respectively. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 84, 9 Stat. L. 520; Act of March 12, 1860, ch. 5, 12 Stat. L. 3.

Exception as to new states and the territory of New Mexico, and grant of other lands in lieu of swamp and overflowed lands, see Acts under div. XVI.

Grant made only to existing states.— This Act makes no grant of swamp lands to any of the territories, nor does a territory become entitled to a swamp-land grant from the United States upon its admission to the Union as a state, in the absence of a statute expressly conferring such grant, though the Act admitting it into the Union contains a provision to the effect that "all the laws of the United States which are not locally inapplicable shall have the same force and effect within that state as in the other states of the Union." Rice v. Sioux City, etc., R. Co., (1884) 110 U. S. 695.

Grant in present.— The Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 84, 9 Stat. L. 520, was, ex proprio vigore, a grant in present to the states then in existence of all the swamp and overflowed lands within their respective limits. This is true though the second section of the Act (R. S. 2480) required identification of the lands by the secretary of the interior before the issuance of patents therefor. The Act itself was a present grant to each state of all the lands within its limits of the particular description designated, wanting only a definition of boundaries to render the title perfect. It conveyed a fee-simple estate clogged by no conditions.

Sufficiency of description for grant in present.—The description of the land as all "swamp and overflowed lands made unfit thereby for cultivation" is not too vague and indefinite to enable the Act to operate as a grant in present. Wright v. Roseberry, (1887) 121 U. S. 488; Branch v. Mitchell, (1866) 24 Ark. 431; Owens v. Jackson, (1858) 9 Cal. 322; Gaston v. Stott, (1873) 5 Oregon 48.

Sale by United States after passage of Act.—Since the Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 84, § 9 Stat. L. 520, was a fee-simple grant in present, the United States thereby relinquished all power to make subsequent disposition of lands embraced therein. Hence, when land was actually swampy and overflowed at the time of the passage of the Act, a subsequent grant, sale, location, entry, or other disposition of such land adverse to the swamp-land grant is void unless confirmed or ratified by the state in which the land is situated; this, too, though the sale or grant is made before the state has had the land located and confirmed as swamp land.

Compare Thompson v. Prince, (1873) 67 Ill. 281; Prior v. Lambeth, (1883) 78 Mo. 538, holding that an entry made under other laws by another person prior to the selection or designation of the land as swamp land is valid as against one claiming under this Act though the land is actually swamp. Compare also Funston v. Metcalf, (1866) 40 Miss. 504.

If a patent is issued pursuant to an adverse grant or sale made by the United States after the passage of this Act, it cannot be impeached collaterally by parol evidence. *Ehrhardt v. And where for more than twenty-eight years a state and the United States united in regarding the land in controversy as not being swamp, it was held that a person not claiming under the swamp-land grant could not set up such grant to defeat a title resting on a United States patent. Davis v. Nolan, (1878) 49 Iowa 683.

And the swamp-land claimant was held estopped to deny the title of one claiming under a United States patent where the patentee had been in open and notorious possession of the land in controversy for more than thirty years, and had paid taxes thereon for such period, and it was doubtful if the land was swamp and overflowed within the meaning of the statute. Knapp v. Paine, (1895) 95 Iowa 64.

Estoppel to claim lands under Swamp-land Act.—Where, since the enactment of the Swamp-land Act, the United States has granted lands to a state for other purposes, such as the construction of railroads, etc., and certain lands are certified to the state as inuring to it under the later Act, and the state does not question the correctness of this certification, it is estopped to claim that the lands in fact inured to it under the Swamp-land Act. McCormic v. Hayes, (1895) 159 U. S. 332; Hough v. Buchanan, (1886) 27 Fed. Rep. 328; Pengra v. Munz, (1887) 29 Fed. Rep. 834; Rogers Locomotive Mach. Works v. American Emigrant Co., (1896) 164 U. As a county is a mere agency of the state, this estoppel is binding on a county to which the state granted its swamp lands prior to the subsequent conflicting grant to the state. Rogers Locomotive Mach. Works v. American Emigrant Co., (1896) 164 U. S. 559, reversing (1891) 83 Iowa 612.

And it is likewise binding on individuals claiming under the state by an agreement entered into after the lands had been certified to the state as inuring to it under the later Act. Rogers Locomotive Mach. Works v.

As to relinquishment by state, see infra, notes to R. S. 2482.

Statute includes swamp land and overflowed land.—The Act includes two kinds of land, swamp and overflowed. If by reason of either swamp or overflow the land is rendered unfit for cultivation it comes within the purview of the Act. Merrill v. Tobin, (1887) 30 Fed. Rep. 738.

Construction of terms "swamp" and "overflowed."—"Now, lands 'subject to overflow,' or 'subject to overflow from slough,' or 'subject to periodical overflow,' are not necessarily such as come within the descriptive terms of those inuring to the state under the swamp-land grant. Whether the terms 'swamp' and 'overflowed' when connected by the particle 'and' be taken together as a general term of description for the lands granted by the Swamp-land Act, or whether those terms are separable and refer to two different qualities of lands thus granted, makes little or no difference in this consideration. If the former theory be the correct one, then manifestly the meaning of the phrase is entirely different from the phrase 'subject to periodical overflow.' And if the latter theory be adopted, still we think there is a marked distinction between the terms 'overflowed' and 'subject to periodical overflow.' The term 'overflowed,' as thus used, has reference to a permanent condition of the lands to which it is applied. It has reference to those lands which are overflowed and will remain so without reclamation or drainage; while 'subject to periodical overflow' has reference to a condition which may or may not exist, and which when it does exist is of a temporary character. It was never intended that all the public lands which perchance might be temporarily overflowed at the time of freshets and high waters, but which, for the greater portion of the year, were dry lands, should be granted to the several states as 'swamp and overflowed' lands." Heath v. Wallace, (1891) 138 U. S. 573, affirming (1886) 71 Cal. 50.

"Swamp lands, as distinguished from overflowed lands, may be considered such as require drainage to fit them for cultivation. Overflowed lands are those which are subject to such periodical or frequent overflows as to require levees or embankments to keep out the water, and render them suitable for cultivation. It does not make any difference whether the overflow be by fresh water, as by the rising of rivers or lakes, or by the flow of the tides. When drainage, reclamation, or leveeing is necessary to enable the farmer to use them for some of the ordinary purposes of husbandry, the lands are within the terms of the Act of Congress, and the title passed by it to the state." San Francisco Sav. Union v. Irwin, (1886) 28 Fed. Rep. 708.

"Swamp and overflowed" equivalent to "wet and unfit for cultivation."—"The phrase 'swamp and overflowed,' as defined by section 2 of the Arkansas Swamp-land Act of 1850, is merely the equivalent of the phrase 'wet and unfit for cultivation,' and therefore land which is too 'wet' for cultivation is 'swamp and overflowed,' whether the water flows over it or stands upon it. In this sense the adjectives 'swamp' and 'overflowed,' taken together, qualify the noun 'land' in but one particular—express but one fact concerning it—that is, it is too wet for cultivation." Miller v. Tobin, (1883) 18 Fed. Rep. 609.

"Low and swamp lands holding rain water and overflowing to a great depth are clearly of the character contemplated by the law." Branch v. Mitchell, (1866) 24 Ark. 431.

Land not overflowed annually.—It was not intended by this Act that the land should be overflowed annually, it being sufficient if it was subject to overflow and required artificial means to subject it to beneficial use. Hence, a tract of land that is swampy and the greater portion of which is wet and unfit for cultivation, is swamp and overflowed land within the meaning of these Acts. Keller v. Brickey, (1875) 78 Ill. 133.

Land subject to overflow by tides.—Where lands were subject to periodical overflow by the tides, so as to make them unfit to raise the ordinary crops of the country without levees to protect them from such overflow, they were considered to be overflowed lands within the meaning of this Act. San Francisco Sav. Union v. Irwin, (1886) 28 Fed. Rep. 708, distinguished in Baer v. Moran Bros. Co., (1891) 2 Wash. 608, wherein it was said that the lands involved in the principal case were ones over which the high monthly tides flowed but not the ordinary daily tides.

Lands not susceptible of profitable reclamation.—By this Act all swamp lands were granted that the state might thereby acquire a fund for general drainage purposes. The grant included lands which could not be profitably reclaimed as well as those susceptible of profitable reclamation by drains and levees. People v. Warner, (1898) 116 Mich. 228.

Islands included in grant.—The Act applies to islands as well as to the mainland, provided the islands are actually swamp and overflowed lands within the meaning of the statute. People v. Warner, (1898) 116 Mich. 228.

And where a strip of unsurveyed land connected with an island in a navigable lake was, in its natural state, in some places a few inches above and in others slightly below the ordinary water level, and was at times entirely submerged, it was held not to constitute a part of the bed of the lake but to be swamp and overflowed land within the meaning of this section, so as to pass to the state of Michigan thereunder. State v. Lake St. Clair Fishing, etc., Club, (1901) 127 Mich. 580.

Bed of river as overflowed land.—Where a navigable river changed its course, forming a new channel, it was held that the bed of the old channel was not swamp and overflowed land within the meaning of this statute though each succeeding freshet brought down some sediment, which filled up the old channel to a certain extent. Edwards v. Bolley, 96 Cal. 408.

Non-navigable waters as overflowed lands.—Where it appeared that a small lake was not a tributary of any other body of water and was inaccessible except by land, and that it was impossible to use it for purposes of travel or commerce or for purposes of pleasure other than that of hunting, it was held that it was entirely competent for the United States, by its survey and patent, to sell and convey the lands beneath the waters of such lake as swamp and overflowed lands, and for the state to receive and convey them as such without reservation or restriction. Lamprey v. Danz, (1902) 86 Minn. 317.

The artificial submersion of land will not prevent it from being swamp and overflowed land so as to pass to the state under the terms of this Act. Diana Shooting Club v. Lamoreux, (1902) 114 Wis. 44.

Beds of shallow lakes.—Permanently overflowed swamps, so-called shallow lakes, which are destined to become dry as the direct and necessary result of the building of the levees in aid of the construction of which the swamp-land grants were made, passed as lands under those grants. The Acts making the grants contemplated that these areas would be reclaimed, and therefore within the purview of the Acts they were land. McDade v. Bossier Levee Board, (1902) 109 La. 625. See also Indiana v. Milk, (1882) 11 Fed. Rep. 389.

Land under water included in grant to state of Indiana.—In a proceeding brought by a purchaser from the state of Indiana to quiet the title to certain land bordering on and extending under certain non-navigable water up to the state line, where it appeared that the state got its title under this statute and that the patent from the United States described the whole of fractional sections enumerated and bordering on the water, in which sections the disputed land lay, and that after the grant the water receded, it was held that the location made by the state must be presumed to have included the land overflowed at the time of the grant to it, as well as the land not under water at that time, and that therefore it acquired and conveyed a good title to the holder of the land in dispute, though the land under water was not embraced in the survey made before the issuance of the patent by the United States—it appearing that the land surrounding the water was surveyed so that the identification of the submerged portion was absolute. It was also held, that the making of a meander line had no certain signification and did not necessarily import that the tract on the other side of it was not surveyed or would not pass by a conveyance of the upland, shown by the plat to border on the water, but that in the case at bar its immediate import was only to indicate the contour of the water. It was further held, that a resurvey made by the United States after the grant to the state did not affect the grantee's rights, as it had no jurisdiction to make such resurvey. Keon v. Calumet Canal, etc., Co., (1903) 190

U. S. 452, White and McKenna, J. dissenting.

Land "unfit for cultivation."—"Land can be cultivated, within the meaning of the Act, is arable land—that which is adapted to the raising of crops which require planting and tillage, as corn, wheat, rye, and barley, in this country—and is susceptible of such cultivation in ordinary seasons." American Emigrant Rogers Locomotive Mach. Works, (1886) 104 Iowa 612, reversed on other grounds 164 U. S. 559.

Land is to be considered as unfit for cultivation if, by reason of the overflow to which it is subject, it is not susceptible of cultivation in grain or other staple products. Keeran v. Griffith, (1866) 31 Cal. 461; Keeran v. Allen, (1867) 33 Cal. 542. See also McConaughy v. Tobin, (1897) 30 Fed. Rep. 738.

Land is not rendered fit for cultivation by the mere fact that it will produce a crop of hay having a market value, or a crop of grass may spring up after the flow subsides, as there are but few instances of land that are rendered barren by overflows and yet they may be unfit for cultivation of staple products unless protected by levees. Keeran v. Griffith, 31 Cal. 461. And see McConaughy v. American Emigrant Rogers Locomotive Mach. Co. (1888) 33 Fed. Rep. 449; American Emigrant Rogers Locomotive Mach. Co. v. Rogers Locomotive Mach. Co. (1891) 83 Iowa 612, reversed on other grounds (1896) 164 U. S. 559.

Land capable of "successful" cultivation.—If the lands, by reason of the overflow, are usually rendered unfit for the successful cultivation of staple crops, they are swamp and overflowed lands within the meaning of the Act. Hence, it was not erroneous for the trial court, after instructing the jury that if the lands were not by reason of the overflow rendered unfit for cultivation in staple crops enumerated, they were not swamp and overflowed, to give the instruction that the fact that any staple crops above specified might be cultivated and raised on the land, was not the test that was required, but that the jury should also consider whether such crops or any of them might be cultivated successfully. Thompson v. Thornton, (1875) 50 Cal. 475.

Distinction between "profitably" and "successfully" cultivated.—Where the court instructed the jury that if after the subsidence of the waters the land had been profitably cultivated each year for the majority of a series of years of the staple crops, it was not swamp and overflowed land within the meaning of the Act, it was held that the instruction was erroneous, the proper test being whether the land was capable of successful cultivation and not whether it might be cultivated profitably, the word "successfully" not being the synonym of "profitably," as the nature and conditions of the soil might be such that its cultivation would be unprofitable though the land was in no sense swamp and overflowed land. Wright v. Carpenter, 47 Cal. 436.

Cultivability of neighboring lands.—

it was sought to show that lands subject to overflow were susceptible of cultivation after the subsidence of the waters, and it did not appear that the land in question had been actually cultivated, it was held that it was proper to admit evidence that other lands in the neighborhood similarly situated, but subject to deeper overflow, and therefore less fit for cultivation, produced staple crops. In deciding the question the court said that the evidence tended to prove that the land involved in the suit would also produce staple crops, and that it was the only reasonably certain evidence of the fact, in the absence of actual experiment on the land itself. Keeran v. Allen, (1867) 33 Cal. 542.

Land cultivable though overflowed annually.—Though land is subject to annual overflow, it is not thereby rendered unfit for cultivation within the meaning of this section, if regularly and annually, after the subsidence of the waters, a crop of grain or other staple products can be cultivated and produced successfully—such as wheat, rye, barley, oats, corn, buckwheat, peas, or beans. Keeran v. Allen, (1867) 33 Cal. 542.

Character of land at date of grant controls.—In determining the question as to whether or not land is swamp and overflowed within the meaning of this Act, its character must be ascertained as of the date of the grant. Kirby v. Lewis, (1869) 39 Fed. Rep. 66; Kernan v. Griffith, (1864) 27 Cal. 87, (1866) 31 Cal. 462; Robinson v. Forrest, (1865) 29 Cal. 317; Thompson v. Thornton, (1875) 50 Cal. 142; Ogden v. Buckley, (1902) 116 Iowa 352; Connors v. Meserve, (1888) 76 Iowa 691; Young v. Hanson, (1895) 95 Iowa 717; Sterling v. Jackson, (1888) 69 Mich. 488. Hence, lands which were passed to the state by reason of the fact that they were swamp and overflowed at the time of the passage of the Act, remained the property of the state though they subsequently became dry or were submerged by inroads from lakes or other waters. Sterling v. Jackson, (1888) 69 Mich. 488.

On the other hand, lands submerged in a navigable river at the passage of the Act did not become the property of the state under this Act, on subsequently arising into an island. Holman v. Hodges, (1901) 112 Iowa 714. And a subsequent change in the bed of a navigable river did not vest in the state title to the old channel as swamp or overflowed land. Edwards v. Rolley, (1892) 96 Cal. 408.

In an action concerning the title of swamp lands brought many years after the passage of this Act, it was held that evidence of the character of the land at the time of the trial was inadmissible. Connors v. Meserve, (1888) 76 Iowa 691; Young v. Hanson, (1895) 95 Iowa 717.

But evidence that the land in controversy was of a swampy character before the prairie sod in that part of the state had been broken, has been held sufficient to prove that it was of such a character at the date of the passage of this Act, though the evidence did not run back to such date. Bourne v. Ragan, (1896) 96 Iowa 566.

Question as to character of land one of fact.—The question as to whether or not lands returned as "subject to periodical overflow" are within the descriptive terms of those granted by this Act—that is, whether they are "swamp or overflowed"—is a question of fact properly determinable by the land department. Heath v. Wallace, (1891) 138 U. S. 573, affirming (1886) 71 Cal. 50; Smith v. Hollis, (1885) 46 Ark. 17.

In like manner the question as to whether or not certain lands were swamp and overflowed on the date of the passage of the Act of Sept. 28, 1850, is one of fact to be determined by the jury on the evidence submitted. Kernan v. Griffith, (1864) 27 Cal. 87, (1866) 31 Cal. 461.

Conclusiveness of department's decision as to scope of grant.—The decision of the secretary of the interior, in November, 1855, that those lands which had been reserved by the President under the Act of Sept. 20, 1850, ch. 61, granting lands to the state of Illinois to aid in the construction of a railroad, did not pass to the state by virtue of the swamp-land grant of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 84, is to be treated as res adjudicata as to all the lands embraced within the belt of territory to which it specifically relates and refers. (1881) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 27.

And this is true notwithstanding the fact that the decision of the secretary was made after the passage of the Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 84, but before the passage of R. S. 2479, as the adoption of the Revised Statutes did not create a new state of the law so as to annul prior decisions or to authorize the head of an executive department to re-examine legal questions determined by his predecessors. (1881) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 27; Illinois v. U. S., (1885) 20 Ct. Cl. 342.

Grant severs land from public domain.—This Act, by clear and apt description, granted to the state absolutely all the public lands therein that were then swamp and overflowed, and segregated them from the mass of the public domain. Hence, an ex parte survey of those lands by the government after the passage of the Act cannot be considered as having any just relation to the power reserved to the United States by the Act admitting California to the Union (passed before the Swamp-land Act) providing as a condition of admission that the people of California should never, either through their legislature or otherwise, interfere with the primary disposal of the public lands within the limits of the state. Kernan v. Griffith, (1864) 27 Cal. 87.

Lands excluded from operation of grant.—The intention of the statute was to exclude from the grant all the swamp and overflowed lands in which the United States had, by contract, for a valuable consideration, given vested rights to individuals or the states before the passage of the Act. Hence, the grant excludes land located on a military land warrant prior to the passage of the Act, though no patent therefor was issued to the locator until after the Act was passed. Culver v. Uthe, (1890) 133 U. S. 655.

And the grant does not cover land previgranted to a state for school purposes. Trustees v. Schroll, (1887) 120 Ill. 509. It has been held that it was not the intention of Congress to grant by this Act to the state of California swamp and overflowed lands within the exterior boundaries of a Mexican grant, though in the confirmation of the Mexican grant such lands were actually excluded. Shanklin v. McNamara, 87 Cal. 371.

Originally, this Act was not intended to apply to land held by the United States in fee with any equitable claims of others which it was bound by treaty to protect. Therefore the state of California took no interest within its limits under this Act subject to the interests of pueblos in any lands within their limits acquired prior to the passage of the Act. San Francisco v. Le Roy, (1880) 138 U. S. 656.

Lands granted Florida for school purposes.—This Act does not apply to or embrace the sixteenth sections granted to the state of Florida for school purposes by the Act of March 3, 1845, ch. 48, 5 Stat. L. 742. v. Jennings, (Fla. 1903) 35 So. Rep. 980.

Sec. 2480. [Secretary of the Interior to make lists of such lands, for transmission to the governors of the States.] It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior, to make accurate lists and plats of all such lands, and transmit them to the governors of the several States in which such lands may lie, and on request of the governor of any State in which said swamp and overflowed lands may be, to cause patents to be issued to said State therefor, conveying to it the fee-simple of said land.

The proceeds of said lands, whether from sale or by direct appropriation, shall be applied exclusively, as far as necessary, to the reclaiming of the same, by means of levees and drains. [R. S.] of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 84, 9 Stat. L. 519. Identification and patent perfect title in fee.—When the secretary of the interior has made the identification provided for by this Act, then, and not before, the state is entitled to a patent, and on the issuance of a patent the fee-simple title vests in the state.

The state's title at the outset is an inchoate one and does not become perfect as to the date of the Act until a patent is issued.

Locomotive Mach. Works v. American Locomotive Co., (1896) 164 U. S. 559; Michigan, etc., Co. v. Rust, (1897) 168 U. S. 30; Brown v. Hitchcock, (1899) 173 U. S. 30; Pengra v. Munz, (1887) 29 Fed. 30; Kile v. Tubbs, (1863) 23 Cal. 431; v. Buckley, (1902) 116 Iowa 352; Good v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., (1877) 233. See also Funston v. Metcalf, 40 Miss. 504; Dowd v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., (1890) 68 Miss. 159; Birch v. Gillis, 67 Mo. 102; Stephenson v. Stephenson, 71 Mo. 127.

The state's title not dependent on patent.—The object of this section was not to postpone vestiture of title in the state until a patent should issue, but was to provide for the ascertainment of boundaries and to prevent premature interference with the lands by the state legislature before they were so ascertained as to avoid mistake and confusion. State v. Pool, (1859) 20 Ark. 100; Branch v. Chell, (1860) 24 Ark. 431; Gaston v. Gaston, (1873) 5 Oregon 48.

It is sufficient that the lands should have been elected as swamp and overflowed, and the election approved by the secretary of the interior. State v. Portsmouth Sav. Bank, 106 Ind. 435; Masterson v. Marshall, 65 Mo. 94.

The Act itself acted as a conveyance, Owens v. Masterson, (1858) 9 Cal. 322; Summers v. Masterson, (1858) 9 Cal. 554; Kernan v. Masterson, (1864) 27 Cal. 87; Masterson v.

Marshall, (1877) 65 Mo. 94; and the patent is merely the evidence of title. McCabe v. Goodwin, (1895) 106 Cal. 486; Warner v. Co. v. Calderwood, (1899) 36 Oregon 228.

Right of state to dispose of land by patent.—The state may sell or otherwise dispose of land enuring to it under this Act though it has received no patent therefor from the United States. Owens v. Jacobson, (1858) 9 Cal. 322; Kernan v. Griffith, (1864) 27 Cal. 87.

But a patent issued by the state under these circumstances is of no greater legal effect than a quitclaim of whatever title the state may have at the time of the issuance of the patent, so that it is of no force if the land is not actually swamp. Kile v. Tubbs, (1863) 23 Cal. 431.

Hence the title to the state's grant is liable to be defeated by a decision of the secretary of the interior that the land was not actually swamp and overflowed at the time of the passage of the Act. State v. Portsmouth Sav. Bank, (1886) 106 Ind. 435.

Patent relates back to passage of Act.—As a corollary to the propositions that the grant of this Act was in presenti, and that subsequent grant or disposition by the United States of the lands embraced therein is void when a patent issues from the United States to a state under this Act, the state's title to the particular land patented (when thus perfected) relates back to the date of the passage of the Act, so as to defeat adverse claims intervening between the date of the Act and the date of the patent.

United States.—French v. Fyan, (1893) 93 U. S. 169; Martin v. Marks, (1877) 93 U. S. 345; Pengra v. Munz, (1887) 29 Fed. 30; (1858) 9 Op. Atty.-Gen. 254.

Oregon.—Warner Stock Co. v. Calderwood, (1899) 36 Oregon 228.

See also Smith v. Goodell, (1872) 66 Ill. 450, holding that the patent relates back at least to the date of the approval of the state's selection of lands as swamp and overflowed.

Compare Prior v. Lambeth, (1883) 78 Mo. 538, holding that the patent does not relate back so as to defeat the title of third persons entering the land under another law prior to its selection or designation as swamp land.

Conclusiveness of United States patent as to character of land.—A patent for swamp and overflowed land issued by the secretary of the interior is ordinarily conclusive of the question of the character of the land and is not subject to collateral attack, but may be avoided only in a direct equitable proceeding brought for that purpose.

United States.—French v. Fyan, (1876) 93 U. S. 169; San Francisco Sav. Union v. Irwin, (1886) 28 Fed. Rep. 708; Pengra v. Munz, (1887) 29 Fed. Rep. 830.

Michigan.—State v. Lake St. Clair Fishing, etc., Club, (1901) 127 Mich. 580.

Minnesota.—Lamprey v. Danz, (1902) 86 Minn. 317.

Oregon.—Warner Stock Co. v. Calderwood, (1899) 36 Oregon 228.

Wisconsin.—Diana Shooting Club v. Lamoignon, (1902) 114 Wis. 44.

Compare Cramer v. Keller, (1889) 98 Mo. 279, holding that the patent is prima facie evidence that the land is swamp and overflowed, and that the burden of proof is on one who asserts that the secretary of the interior did not approve the selection of the land in question as swamp and overflowed.

In Roy v. Duluth, etc., R. Co., (1897) 69 Minn. 547, affirmed (1899) 173 U. S. 587, it was held that if through fraud, inadvertence, or mistake a patent is issued by the secretary for land high and cultivable, one who has made a homestead entry on such land is the equitable owner thereof and is entitled to a judgment barring the swamp-land patentee, and those claiming under him, from asserting any adverse right to the land.

Decision by secretary of interior as to character of land.—This section devolved on the secretary of the interior, as the head of the department which administered the affairs of the public lands, the duty, and conferred on him the power, of determining what lands were of the description granted by the Act, and made his office the tribunal whose decision on that subject was to be controlling.

United States.—French v. Fyan, (1876) 93 U. S. 169; Heath v. Wallace, (1891) 138 U. S. 573, affirming (1886) 71 Cal. 50.

Arkansas.—Smith v. Hollis, (1885) 46 Ark. 17.

California.—Sacramento Valley Reclamation Co. v. Cook, (1882) 61 Cal. 341.

Indiana.—State v. Portsmouth Sav. Bank, (1886) 106 Ind. 445.

Missouri.—Masterson v. Marshall, (1877) 65 Mo. 94; Jasper County v. Wadlow, (1884) 82 Mo. 172; Cramer v. Keller, (1889) 98 Mo. 279.

Wisconsin.—Diana Shooting Club v. Lamoignon, (1902) 114 Wis. 44.

Hence the action of the secretary of the interior in identifying lands as swamp and overflowed lands passing to a state under the provisions of this statute, is conclusive against collateral attack, though no patent for such lands has been issued by the United States to the state.

United States.—Wright v. Roseberry, (1887) 121 U. S. 488; Heath v. Wallace, (1891) 138 U. S. 573, affirming (1886) 71 Cal. 50.

Arkansas.—Hendry v. Willis, (1878) 33 Ark. 833.

In like manner the decision of the secretary rejecting a selection by the state of lands claimed to be swamp and overflowed is final and conclusive as against collateral attack. Heath v. Wallace, (1891) 138 U. S. 573, affirming (1886) 71 Cal. 50; Chandler v. Calumet, etc., Min. Co., (1893) 149 U. S. 79, affirming (1888) 36 Fed. Rep. 665; Rogers Locomotive Mach. Works v. Cedar Point Club Co., (1891) 46 Fed. Rep. 273; Smith v. Hollis, (1885) 46 Ark. 17. See also Funston v. Metcalf, (1866) 40 Miss. 504.

What constitutes making list by secretary.—The provision that the secretary of the interior shall make a list of lands passing under the Act, merely requires that the lands shall be ascertained and located under the authority and with the approval of the secretary. Hence, the confirmation by the secretary of a list of lands as swamp and overflowed, made by a commission appointed by the governor of a state, is sufficient. Fore v. Williams, (1858) 35 Miss. 533.

Effect of secretary's failure to determine character of land.—The failure, refusal, or delay of the secretary of the interior to determine the question whether or not particular land is swamp and overflowed so as to pass to the state under the operation of this Act, does not defeat or impair the right of the state to land which is in fact clearly swamp and overflowed, as its right to such land does not depend on the action of the secretary, but on the Act of Congress. And when the secretary has failed to perform the duty imposed on him by this section, the fact that the land is of the character described by the statute may be shown by competent parol evidence, such as the testimony of witnesses who are familiar with the land, or by any other proper mode which will effect the desired object.

Missouri.—Clarkson v. Buchanan, (1873) 53 Mo. 563; Campbell v. Wortman, (1874) 58 Mo. 258; Funkhouser v. Peck, (1877) 67 Mo. 19.

Compare Funston v. Metcalf, (1866) 40 Miss. 504; Dowd v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., (1890) 68 Miss. 159; Birch v. Gillis, (1877) 67 Mo. 102; Stephenson v. Stephenson, (1879) 71 Me. 127; Prior v. Lambeth, (1883) 78 Me. 538.

Resort by the state to such mode of identification would seem to be permissible where the secretary declares his inability to certify the lands to the state for any cause other than a consideration of their character. Wright v. Roseberry, (1887) 121 U. S. 488, followed in People v. Warner, (1898) 116 Mich. 228; State v. Lake St. Clair Fishing, etc., Club, (1901) 127 Mich. 580.

If the secretary, in making out his lists, omits lands really swamp and overflowed and unfit for cultivation, the state does not thereby lose its right to take such lands under the grant of this statute. Branch v. Mitchell, (1866) 24 Ark. 431.

On the other hand, when the party claiming adversely to the swamp-land claimant has a patent from the United States, parol evidence that the land is in fact swampy is inadmissible to impeach such patent. Hardt v. Hogaboom, (1885) 115 U. S. 400; Cahn v. Barnes, (1881) 5 Fed. Rep. 326; Wright v. Haggin, (1886) 69 Cal. 255; Iowa R. road Land Co. v. Antoine, (1879) 52 Iowa 429. See also McCormick v. Hayes, (1885) 159 U. S. 332; Palmer v. Born, (1883) 159 U. S. 332; Palmer v. Born, (1883) Mo. 99. Compare Miller v. Tobin, (1887) Oregon 540, holding that such a patent is absolutely void and may be collaterally impeached in any action.

Burden of proving that land is swampy. When a particular tract of land has not been patented to the state or certified by the secretary of the interior as being swamp and overflowed, the burden of proving that it is of such character is on the party so claiming. Wright v. Roseberry, (1887) 121 U. S. 488; Kirby v. Lewis, (1889) 39 Fed. Rep. 100; Hays v. McCormick, (1891) 83 Iowa 89.

Distinction between "selection" and "identification."—The word "selection" applies more naturally to the action of the grantee in reporting to the land department the lands which it claims than to the action of the land officers in identifying from the field notes what are and what are not swamp and overflowed lands. The term "selection" is not an apt word to describe the identification of certain lands according to evidence presented of their character. Michigan Land & Lumber Co. v. Rust, (1897) 168 U. S. 589.

Effect of ex parte survey by state. United States.—When the state and the United States proceed independently to determine the position and extent of the swamp and overflowed lands within the limit of the state, neither is bound by the action of the other. Kernan v. Griffith, (1864) 27 Cal. 87; Keeran v. Griffith, (1866) 31 Cal. 461.

Though an ex parte survey by the United States is admissible in evidence for the purpose of showing the lines of the subdivision, it cannot be used to prove that the lands therein are or are not swamp and overflowed. Robinson v. Forrest, (1865) 29 Cal. 318; Keeran v. Griffith, (1866) 31 Cal. 462.

State patent or selection as prima facie evidence of character of land.—A patent from the state for lands determined by its ex parte proceedings to be swamp and overflowed lands inuring to it under this Act is not conclusive as to the character of the lands patented as against one who claims the lands under title derived from the United States. Kile v. Tubbs, (1863) 23 Cal. 181; People v. Stratton, (1864) 25 Cal. 181; Robinson v. Forrest, (1865) 29 Cal. 318; Wright v. Caruthers, (1873) 47 Cal. 181.

And it has been held that under such circumstances the patent from the state is even prima facie evidence of the character of the lands which it covers. Keeran v. Griffith, (1866) 31 Cal. 461; Keeran v. Allen, (1867) 33 Cal. 542. See also Dowd v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., (1890) 68 Miss. 159. Compare Hendry v. Willis, (1878) 33 Ark. 833.

The mere selection by the agent of the state of certain lands as being swamp lands does not, of itself, bring the lands so selected within the grant, but only amounts to a claim that they are of the description granted by this Act. Hence, when the secretary of the interior rejects the state selection, the lands included therein do not pass to the state, but may be sold by the United States. Smith v. Hollis, (1885) 46 Ark. 17; Buena Vista County v. Iowa Falls, etc., R. Co., (1880) 55 Iowa 157, affirmed in (1884) 112 U. S. 165.

But when the selection made by the state officers is approved by the land department, the list evidencing such selection is prima facie evidence at least that the lands included therein were swamp lands, and passed to the state under the grant. Page County v. Burlington, etc., R. Co., (1875) 40 Iowa 520. See also Connors v. Meservey, (1888) 76 Iowa 691.

And it has been held that where the selection was made in a proper manner and the list was sent to the general land office in due time and no action was taken thereon by the general land office, the list was prima facie evidence that the lands were swamp, as the nonaction of the federal officers should not be allowed to defeat the title of the state to lands to which it was entitled under this Act. Snell v. Dubuque, etc., R. Co., (1889) 78 Iowa 88.

Effect of state's failure to make selection.—Where an officer appointed by the state to select and designate all the swamp and overflowed lands within a county failed to report particular land as swamp and overflowed, it was held that such failure was competent evidence that the land not reported was not swamp and overflowed. The basis of the decision was that it must be presumed that the state officer selected and reported all the swamp lands in accordance with his official duty; and it was said that after the lapse of thirty years the presumption would seem to be conclusive. Kirby v. Lewis, (1889) 39 Fed. Rep. 66.

Right of land department to resurvey before patent.—Though a survey has been made, and such survey indicates that certain land is swamp land and therefore passes under the statute to a state, it is within the power of the land department, at any time prior to the issuance of a patent, to order a resurvey of its own motion and thereby correct any mistakes in the former survey. Michigan Land, etc., Co. v. Rust, (1897) 168 U. S. 589.

Effect of state's acceptance of erroneous survey.—The effect of a state statute adopting the surveys on file in the surveyor-general's office as the basis of adjustment is not to make an erroneous survey conclusive or to preclude the land department from the exercise of its unquestioned jurisdiction to correct surveys, but is simply to accept the field notes finally approved as the evidence of the lands passing under the grant, leaving to the land department the making of any needed corrections in the surveys and field notes. Michigan Land, etc., Co. v. Rust, (1897) 168 U. S. 589.

Acceptance of resurvey by state.—The action of a state in accepting a new and corrected survey as the basis of adjustment is tantamount to a waiver of any claims under the prior and erroneous survey. Michigan Land, etc., Co. v. Rust, (1897) 168 U. S. 589.

Power of state as to disposition of proceeds.—The appropriation of the proceeds arising from the sale of swamp lands rests solely in the good faith of the state. Its discretion in disposing of them is not controlled by the statute, as neither a contract nor a trust following the lands was thereby created. Mills County v. Railroad Co.'s, (1882) 107 U. S. 557; Hagar v. Reclamation Dist. No. 108, (1884) 111 U. S. 701; U. S. v. Louisiana, (1888) 127 U. S. 182. See also American Emigrant Co. v. Adams County, (1879) 100 U. S. 61; Chandler v. Calumet, etc., Min. Co., (1888) 36 Fed. Rep. 665, affirmed (1893) 149 U. S. 79. See also Gaston v. Stott, (1873) 5 Oregon 48, holding that the trust raised by this section in regard to the application of the proceeds of sale is a matter of municipal and not judicial concern, over which the state has plenary and conclusive power; and that, therefore, the diversion of the proceeds from the purpose expressed in this section to those of aiding in the construction of certain works of internal improvement provided for by the state legislative assembly, did not operate to defeat the title of the state.

Who may complain of diversion of proceeds.—If a state applies to a purpose other than that indicated by this section the proceeds of swamp land which it has sold, only the United States may complain of the diversion. Even if the statute creates a contract, a private person who has purchased such lands from the state cannot complain of a breach on the part of the state, for the reason that he is not a party to the contract. Hagar v. Reclamation Dist. No. 108, (1884) 111 U. S. 701. See also Mills County v. Railroad Co.'s, (1882) 107 U. S. 557; Barrett v. Brooks, (1866) 21 Iowa 144.

Sec. 2481. [Legal subdivisions mostly wet and unfit for cultivation.] In making out lists and plats of the lands aforesaid all legal subdivisions, the greater part whereof is wet and unfit for cultivation, shall be included in said lists and plats, but when the greater part of a subdivision is not of that character, the whole of it shall be excluded therefrom. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 84, § 9 Stat. L. 519.

Necessity of identification by secretary of interior.—While Congress by this section defined what it intended to grant as swamp and overflowed lands, it intrusted the identification of those lands to the secretary of the interior, as appears from R. S. 2480. Michigan Land, etc., Co. v. Rust, (1897) 168 U. S. 589; State v. Portsmouth Sav. Bank, (1886) 106 Ind. 435.

Construction of term "legal subdivisions."—The term "legal subdivisions," as used in this section, refers to the smallest subdivisions under the congressional system of surveys, that is, quarter quarter-sections or forty-acre lots. However, if a fractional quarter-section is subdivided, the subdivisions may be smaller than forty-acre lots and different in their form. If the greater portion of such a subdivision was wet and uncultivated, it passed to the state under the Act, but otherwise it did not. Robin Forrester, (1865) 29 Cal. 318; Frederick Zumwalt, (1901) 134 Cal. 44. See also boom v. Ehrhardt, (1881) 58 Cal. affirmed in (1885) 115 U. S. 67.

Sec. 2482. [Indemnity to states where lands have been sold by U. States.] Upon proof by the authorized agent of the State, before the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, that any of the lands purchased by person from the United States, prior to March 2d, 1855, were "swamp-lands" within the true intent and meaning of the act entitled "An act to enable the State of Arkansas and other States to reclaim the swamp-lands within their limits," approved September twenty-eight, eighteen hundred and fifty, the chase-money shall be paid over to the State wherein said land is situate; when the lands have been located by warrant or scrip, the said State shall be authorized to locate a like quantity of any of the public lands subject to sale at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, or less, and patents shall issue therefor. The decision of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office shall be first approved by the Secretary of the Interior. [R. S.]

Act of March 2, 1855, ch. 147, 10 Stat. L. 634, 635.

Permanent appropriation to pay states. See R. S. sec. 3689 under ESTIMATES, APPROPRIATIONS, AND REPORTS, vol. 2, p. 911.

This section inoperative to restrict original grant. — Since the Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 84, was a grant in presenti to the states of the fee-simple title to all the unsold swamp and overflowed lands within their limits, no subsequent Act of Congress could diminish the estate or clog it with new conditions, or except from the operation of the grant any swamp and overflowed lands not originally excepted. A fee-simple estate passed to a grantee would not be affected by a subsequent unilateral act of his grantor. Hence, this section in no way affected the title acquired by virtue of the original Act. Gaston v. Stott, (1873) 5 Oregon 48.

Whether the lands falling within the terms of the grant had or had not vested in the state under the Act was a judicial question which Congress had no right to decide. Branch v. Mitchell, (1866) 24 Ark. 431.

Relinquishment of title by state. — Before the rights of third persons claiming under the state have attached to swamp and overflowed lands granted by the Swamp-land Act, it is competent for the state to agree that sales of such lands by the federal government subsequent to the passage of the Swamp-land Act shall be respected by the state, and that those claiming under the federal government shall be protected in their rights. Michigan Land, etc., Co. v. Rust, (C. C. A. 1895) 68 Fed. Rep. 155, affirmed (1897) 168 U. S. 589; Kirby v. Lewis, (1889) 39 Fed. Rep. 66; Chism v. Price, (1891) 54 Ark. 251; Bruce v. Patton, (1891) 54 Ark. 455; Fredericks v. Zumwalt, (1901) 134 Cal. 44; Cook County v. Calumet, etc., Canal, etc., Co., (1890) 131 Ill. 505, writ of error dismissed (1891) 138 U. S. 35; Dale v. Turner, (1876) 34 Mich. 405; Juggett v. Case, (1886) 61 Mich. 480.

But the governor of a state has no right to relinquish to the federal government the claim of the state to lands under the Swamp-land Act, and a state after it has granted swamp lands to an individual cannot deprive the rights of its grantee by a relinquishment of its claims under the Swamp-land Act. Matthews v. Goodrich, (1885) 102 Ind. 102.

What constitutes relinquishment. — Although the state statute is ineffectual to prevent the confirmation of sales made by the United States, if the state is indemnified by the United States for sales made after the passage of the Act of Sept. 28, 1850, the release of the indemnity will be treated in equity as a sale of the lands by the state to the United States (provided no private rights previously attached), and the title thus acquired by the United States will inure in way of estoppel to the grantee. Fletcher v. Pool, (1859) 20 Ark. 100.

How. Stat. Mich., secs. 5384, 5385, authorizing the state treasurer to receive the proceeds of the sale of the swamp lands sold by it after the grant of such lands to the state in 1850, amounted to a waiver of the state's claim to all such lands as had been disposed of previously by the federal government. Ives v. Ely, (1885) Mich. 569. See also Dale v. Turner, (1876) 34 Mich. 405. But this statute did not give firm title to lands granted or disposed of by the federal government after its passage. Sherman v. A. P. Cook Co., (1893) Mich. 61.

The Missouri Swamp-land Act of 1865, ch. 72, secs. 24 and 25, did not constitute a relinquishment by the state of its title to swamp lands which had been sold by the United States, but only authorized the governor to relinquish the state's title to such lands at the request of the Court; and it did not amount to an acceptance of the indemnity provided for by the Act, but simply authorized the registration of lands to collect the indemnity for land as might be relinquished by the governor at the request of the County Court. Master-son v. Marshall, (1877) 65 Mo. 94.

Act does not apply to railroad grants.—The Arkansas Act of Dec. 14, 1875, ratifying and confirming the title to swamp lands disposed of by the United States subsequent to Sept. 28, 1850, does not apply to lands granted by the United States in aid of railroads, but only to lands for which the United States would make indemnity to the state, namely, lands disposed of for cash, scrip, or warrants. Chism v. Price, (1891) 54 Ark. 251.

Limitation of action by state for indemnity.—The statute of limitations does not begin to run against an action in the Court of Claims by a state to recover from the United States moneys received from the sale of swamp lands until six years after the ascertainment of the amount due the state, by the making of proof of the sales by the authorized agent of the state before the commissioner of the general land office. U. S. v. Louisiana, (1887) 123 U. S. 32; Louisiana v. U. S., (1887) 22 Ct. Cl. 284.

Sec. 2483. [Patents to issue for swamp lands to purchasers and locators, prior to issuing of patents to states, etc.] The President of the United States shall cause patents to be issued to the purchaser or purchasers, locator or locators, who made entries of the public lands claimed as swamp lands, either with cash or land-warrants, or scrip, or under any homestead or pre-emption laws prior to the issue of patents to the State or States: Provided, That in all cases where any State through its constituted authorities, may have sold or disposed of any tract or tracts of land prior to the entry sale or location of the same under the pre-emption or other laws of the United States, no patent shall be issued by the President for such tract or tracts of land, until such State through its constituted authorities, shall release its claim thereto in such form as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior. In all cases where such State did not within ninety days from the second day of March, 1855, the date of an act entitled, "An act for the relief of purchasers and locators of swamp and overflowed lands" through its constituted authorities, return to the General Land-Office of the United States, a list of all the lands sold as aforesaid, together with the dates of such sales and the names of the purchasers, the President shall issue patents to persons who made such entries of the public lands so claimed as swamp-land. [R. S.]

Act of March 2, 1855, ch. 147, 10 Stat. L. 634.

Sec. 2484. [Selection of swamp and overflowed lands confirmed.] All lands selected and reported to the General Land-Office as swamp and overflowed land by the several States entitled to the provisions of said act of Sept. 28, 1850, prior to March third, A. D. eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, are confirmed to said States respectively so far as the same remained vacant and unappropriated and not interfered with by an actual settlement under any law of the United States. [R. S.]

Act of March 3, 1857, ch. 117, 11 Stat. L. 251.

Purpose of this section.—The failure of the secretary of the interior to perform the duties imposed on him by R. S. 2480 became such a grievance that Congress deemed it necessary to provide a remedy by the passage of the Act on which this section is based. Martin v. Marks, (1877) 97 U. S. 345. See also Chism v. Price, (1891) 54 Ark. 251.

This section was unnecessary, since the Act of Sept. 28, 1850, vested a fee simple title in the states, so that the states might select for themselves, and if their title was questioned by the United States or by individuals they might claim of right that the matter should be determined by jury. Gaston v. Stott, (1873) 5 Oregon 48.

Confirmation of lands not identified by secretary.—By this section selections of swamp lands theretofore made by the states and reported to the commissioner of the land office were confirmed and made valid though they did not have the personal approval of the secretary of the interior. Chism v. Price, (1891) 54 Ark. 251; Cramer v. Keller, (1889) 98 Mo. 279.

Identification of lands originally granted.—The Act of Sept. 28, 1850, was a present grant subject to the identification of the specific parcels of lands coming within the describing Act; and the selection confirmed by the Act of March 3, 1857, furnished this identification, and perfected the title of the several states to the swamp and overflowed lands within their limits. Martin v. Marks, (1877) 97 U. S. 345; Tolleston Club v. State, (1894) 141 Ind. 197.

Confirmation limited to land vacant and not appropriated.—It has been said that "this confirmatory Act applied only to lands that were vacant and not appropriated, and lands which had been sold by the United States, or entered with land warrants, before a patent issued to the state, are exempt from its operation." Cramer v. Keller, (1889) 98 Mo. 279.

But if by this it is meant that a grant by the United States of land actually swamp and overflowed, or an actual settlement on such land under a claim adverse to the swamp-land grant, after the passage of the Act of Sept. 8, 1850, and before the passage of this Act, defeated the rights of the swamp-land claimant, the decision is contrary to the clear weight of authority. See supra, notes to R. S. 2479, 2480. See also Gaston v. Stott, (1873) 5 Oregon 48.

Possibly, however, the case of Cramer v. Keller, (1889) 98 Mo. 279, refers to the purpose of the confirmatory Act, and not to its actual effect as construed by the courts.

Fraudulent or erroneous surveys not confirmed.—The purpose of this Act was not to oust the land department of its ordinary jurisdiction to inquire into and ascertain what were swamp and overflowed lands, but was to confirm and ratify the methods thus far pursued. But it cannot be supposed that Congress intended to condone frauds, to prevent the correction of errors or mistakes, or to take everything as it then appeared in the records of the land department, and, forbidding any further inquiry, declare that lands should be granted to the state when through error or fraud they appeared by the records to be swamp and overflowed. It would require very clear and direct language to justify a presumption that Congress intended to ignore the existence of frauds and errors and thereby enlarge the amount of a grant to a state. The language of this section does not compel any such conclusion as to the intent of Congress. Michigan Land, etc., Co. v. Rust, (1897) 168 U. S. 589. See also Michigan Land, etc., Co. v. Pack, (C. C. A. 1895) 68 Fed. Rep. 170; Michigan v. Jackson, etc., R. Co. (C. C. A. 1895) 69 Fed. Rep. 116; Keeran v. Allen, (1867) 33 Cal. 548. Compare Fremont County v. Burlington, etc., R. Co., (1867) 22 Iowa 91, affirmed (1869) 9 Wall. (U. S.) 89; Montgomery County v. Burlington, etc., R. Co., (1874) 38 Iowa 208; American Emigrant Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., (1877) 47 Iowa 515, holding that this Act confirmed and vested in the several states the title to lands reported in the manner prescribed, though they were not in fact swamp and overflowed lands, provided they were vacant and had not been actually settled on adversely to the swamp-land claim prior to the passage of the Act.

Confirmation of selection of submerged land.—Where, from the facts of the case, a presumption arose that a selection made by the state of Indiana included land submerged at the time of the selection and of the patent issued by the United States, as well as the upland bordering on non-navigable water, it was held that this section operated to confirm such selection. Kean v. Calumet Canal, etc., Co., (1903) 190 U. S. 452, White and McKenna, JJ., dissenting.

Cash indemnity to states for swamp lands sold.—The secretary of the interior is warranted in approving statements of account between the United States and the state, made by the commissioner of the general land office, for cash indemnity for swamp lands sold during the period intervening between the passage of the Swamp-land Act, Sept. 28, 1850, and March 3, 1857. (1885) 18 Op. Atty-Gen. 170. See also (1866) 11 Op. Atty-Gen. 467.

And this, too, though this section omits that part of the Act of March 3, 1857, which granted the indemnity, as the right to indemnity under that Act for swamp lands so disposed of is a right "accrued" to those states in which such lands are situated prior to the adoption of the Revised Statutes, and is therefore saved by R. S. 5597 from being affected by the repeal of the omitted indemnity provision under the operation of R. S. 5590. (1887) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 340.

And the state of Louisiana is entitled to indemnity for any swamp lands granted to it by the Act of March 2, 1849, ch. 87, which were sold by the United States between the date of that Act and Sept. 28, 1850. But as to such swamp lands as were excepted out of the grant made by the said Act of 1849 (namely, "lands fronting on rivers, creeks, bayous, watercourses," etc.) and as were first granted to that state by the Act of Sept. 28, 1856, ch. 84, it is entitled to indemnity only for those sold by the United States after Sept. 28, 1850. (1887) 18 Op. Atty-Gen. 522.

Manner in which indemnity is made.—A state is entitled to the purchase money of swamp lands in her limits sold by the United States for cash after Sept. 28, 1850, and prior to the passage of the Act of March 3, 1857, and she is also entitled to indemnity in land for such swamp lands as were located with warrants or scrip between such dates. (1866) 11 Op. Atty-Gen. 467.

No indemnity for sales subsequent to passage of this Act.—(1866) 11 Op. Atty-Gen. 467.

Lands granted Florida for school purposes.—This Act does not apply to or embrace the sixteenth section granted to the state of Florida for school purposes by the Act of March 3, 1845, ch. 48, 5 Stat. L. 742. State v. Jennings, (Fla. 1903) 35 So. Rep. 986.

Subsequent grant by Congress void.—After the passage of this Act the United States government had no power to set aside the selection confirmed by the Act, and convey the land covered by the selection to a person claiming adversely to the swamp-land claim, unless it was found that the lands were not vacant or unappropriated at the time of the passage of the Act. Martin v. Marks, (1877) 97 U. S. 346.

Secs. 2485, 2486, 2487. [Certain lands selected by California confirmed to that state. See infra, XIX. Miscellaneous Provisions Relating to the Public Lands.]

Sec. 2488. [Swamp and overflowed lands to be certified to state within one year, in certain cases.] It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, to certify over to the State of California as swamp and overflowed lands, all the lands represented as such upon the approved township surveys and plats, whether made before or after the 23d day of July, 1866, under the authority of the United States.

The surveyor-general of the United States for California, shall under the direction of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, examine the segregation maps and surveys of the swamp and overflowed lands, made by said State; and where he shall find them to conform to the system of surveys adopted by the United States, he shall construct and approve township plats accordingly, and forward to the General Land-Office for approval.

In segregating large bodies of land, notoriously and obviously swamp and overflowed, it shall not be necessary to subdivide the same, but to run the exterior lines of such body of land.

In case such State surveys are found not to be in accordance with the system of United States surveys, and in such other townships as no survey has been made by the United States, the Commissioner shall direct the surveyor-general, to make segregation surveys, upon application to the surveyor-general, by the governor of said State, within one year of such application, of all the swamp and overflowed land in such townships, and to report the same to the General Land-Office, representing and describing what land was swamp and overflowed, under the grant, according to the best evidence he can obtain.

If the authorities of said State, shall claim as swamp and overflowed, any land not represented as such upon the map or in the returns of the surveyors, the character of such land at the date of the grant September twenty-eight, eighteen hundred and fifty, and the right to the same shall be determined by testimony, to be taken before the surveyor-general, who shall decide the same, subject to the approval of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office. [R. S.]

Act of July 23, 1866, ch. 219, 14 Stat. L. 219.

Purpose and effect of this Act.—This Act tended to remove the existing uncertainty and confusion as to land titles in California, principally by recognizing the action of the state in disposing of the lands granted to her, in cases where such disposition was made in good faith and did not interfere with previously acquired interests, and by providing a mode for identifying the swamp and overflowed lands in the future without the action of the secretary of the interior. It no longer left the identification to the secretary, but provided for identification by the joint action of the state and federal authorities. Wright v. Roseberry, (1887) 121 U. S. 488, reversing (1883) 63 Cal. 252; Tubbs v. Wilhoit, (1891) 138 U. S. 134; Heath v. Wallace, (1891) 138 U. S. 573, affirming (1886) 71 Cal. 50; McCabe v. Goodwin, (1895) 106 Cal. 486.

A homestead entry after the passage of this Act on land the title to which was confirmed thereby was invalid as against a swamp-land claimant. Tubbs v. Wilhoit, (1891) 138 U. S. 134.

Section applies only to lands actually swamp and overflowed.—Sacramento Sav. Bank v. Hynes, (1875) 50 Cal. 195. See also Sutton v. Fassett, (1875) 51 Cal. 12.

Certification of lands not covered by Act.—The action of the commissioner of the general land office in certifying to the state lands to which this Act does not apply transfers no title. Sutton v. Fassett, (1875) 51 Cal. 12.

"Lands subject to periodical overflow" are not "swamp and overflowed lands" within the meaning of this section. Heath v. Wallace, (1891) 138 U. S. 573, affirming (1886) 71 Cal. 50.

Effect of failure to have character of land determined.—Where land surveyed in 1869 was patented by the United States in 1882 to a purchaser from a Mexican grantee, and no steps had been taken by the governor or by the state authorities to have the character of the land determined, and it did not appear that a person claiming the land in controversy under a swamp-land certificate of purchase from the state issued in 1856 had ever taken any steps to have the governor or state authorities move in the manner, it was held that the delay in having the character of the land determined, though not conclusive, was persuasive that the land was never of the character described by the Swamp Land Act as swamp and overflowed. St. John v. McNamara, (1891) 87 Cal. 371.

Sec. 2489. [List of lands selected to be sent to General Land Office.] shall be the duty of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, to require the officers of the local land-offices in said State (in case the same has not already been done) and the surveyor-general immediately to forward lists of selections made by the State hereinbefore specified and lists and maps of swamp and overflowed lands, claimed by said State or surveyed as provided in the ten preceding sections, for final disposition and determination, which disposition shall be made by the Commissioner of the General Land-Office without delay. [R. S.]

Act of July 23, 1866, ch. 219, 14 Stat. L. 220.

Sec. 2490. [Act of Sept. 28, 1850, ch. 84, extended to Minnesota and Oregon.] The provisions of the act of Congress entitled "An act to enable the State of Arkansas and other States to redeem" the swamp lands within the limits, approved September 28, A. D. 1850, extend to the States of Minnesota and Oregon: Provided, That the grant shall not include any lands which the Government of the United States may have sold or disposed of under any act enacted prior to March 12, 1860, prior to the confirmation of title to be made under the authority of said act — and the selections to be made from lands already surveyed in each of the States last named, under the authority of the act aforesaid, shall have been made within two years from the adjournment of the legislature of each State, at its next session after the 12th day of March, A. D. 1860 — and as to all lands surveyed or to be surveyed, thereafter, within two years from such adjournment, at the next session after notice by the Secretary of the Interior to the governor of the State, that the surveys have been completed and confirmed. [R. S.]

Act of March 12, 1860, ch. 5, 12 Stat. L. 3.

Selection within time limited is condition precedent. — The purpose and effect of the provision limiting the time within which the selections must be made are to devolve on the state the duty of making the selections in the first instance, whereupon it becomes the duty of the secretary of the interior to ascertain whether the lands included in such selections are "wet and unfit for cultivation" within the meaning and terms of the Act. But if the selection is not made within the time prescribed, the grant reverts to the United States. The selection within the time limited is a condition precedent. Pengra v. Munz, (1887) 29 Fed. Rep. 830. Contra, Gaston v. Stott, (1873) 5 Oregon 48, holding that the provision is merely directory and that the state of Oregon lost no rights by not complying strictly therewith.

Exception of land sold before confirmation

Inoperative. — Since the grant is in preference to a fee-simple title, no confirmation of title is necessary. Hence the exception of lands which the government of the United States may have reserved, sold, or disposed of (in pursuance of any law theretofore enacted) prior to the confirmation of title to be made under the authority of the Act is repugnant to the purview of the Act and cannot stand. Thus, one who claims swamp land under a purchase from the state of Oregon, after the passage of this act, is entitled to the land as against a person claiming under a subsequent entry under pre-emption laws, though the title to the land was never confirmed to the state. Gaston v. Stott, (1873) 5 Oregon 48.

The right of the state of Minnesota to swamp lands depends wholly upon this act. — Rice v. Sioux City, etc., R. Co., (1891) 110 U. S. 695.

An act for the relief of actual settlers on lands claimed to be swamp and overflowed lands in the State of Missouri.

[Act of Feb. 23, 1875, ch. 99, 18 Stat. L. 334.]

[Purchasers of lands in Missouri as swamp lands to have priority of title to homestead if lands not in fact swamp.] That in all cases in the State of Missouri where lands have heretofore been selected and claimed as swamp overflowed lands by said State, and the various counties therein, by virtue of any act of Congress, and said lands have been withheld from market in consequence thereof by the General Government, and the said State and counties have sold said lands to actual settlers, and said settlers have improved the same to the value of one hundred dollars; said settlers, their heirs, assigns, and legal representatives, who have continued to reside thereon, shall have priority of right to preëempt or homestead all such lands as may be rejected by the United States as not being in fact swamp and overflowed lands; and it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to make such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this act: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall prejudice the rights of any person who may have made actual settlement upon such lands under the preemption or homestead laws prior to the passage of this act. [18 Stat. L. 334.]

An act granting to the State of Missouri all lands therein selected as swamp and overflowed lands.

[Lands in Missouri selected as swamp and overflowed lands granted to State.] That all lands in the State of Missouri selected as swamp and overflowed lands, and regularly reported as such to the General Land Office, and now withheld from market as such, so far as the same remain vacant and unappropriated and not interfered with by any preemption, homestead, or other claim under any law of the United States, and the claim whereto has not been heretofore rejected by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, or other competent authority, be, and the same are hereby, confirmed to said State, and all title thereto vested in said State; and it is hereby made the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to cause patents to issue for the same. [19 Stat. L. 395.]

An Act To enable certain persons in the State of Mississippi to procure title to public lands.

[SEC. 1.] [Preference of purchasers from Mississippi of swamp lands on grant to Mobile and Ohio Railroad.] That all persons who, prior to January nineteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, purchased in good faith from the State of Mississippi any lands within the six miles or granted limits of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and which lands were included in approved swamp-land list numbered seven, Augusta series, their heirs or assigns, shall have the preference right for one year from the passage of this Act to enter under the homestead laws of the United States not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres of the lands so purchased by them from the State of Mississippi and to purchase not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres additional of such lands at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, or, if they elect not to avail themselves of the homestead law, to purchase three hundred and twenty acres of such land: Provided, however, That this Act shall not affect the rights of homestead claimants who, between the sixteenth day of February, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and the twenty-seventh day of May, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, made settlements and entries or filed with the local land officers applications to enter in good faith, under the homestead laws, any of the lands included in the provisions of this Act not occupied or actually and substantially improved by such purchasers from the State. [29 Stat. L. 534.]

SEC. 2. [Purchasers at tax sales.] That all persons who have legally purchased any of the lands aforesaid at tax sales shall be considered assigns within the meaning of this Act. [29 Stat. L. 534.]

SEC. 3. [Title of purchasers of unconfirmed swamp lands in Arkansas confirmed.] That the title of all persons who have purchased from the State of Arkansas any unconfirmed swamp land and hold deeds for the same by virtue of the same is hereby confirmed and made valid as against any claim or demand of the United States, and without the payment by said persons, their heirs or assigns, of any sum whatever to the United States or to the State of Arkansas. [30 Stat. L. 368.]

This and section 4 following are from the Act of April 29, 1898, ch. 229, "An Act to approve a compromise and settlement between the United States and the State of Arkansas." Sections 1 and 2 relate to the approval of the terms of the compromise and the amounts paid thereon.

SEC. 4. [Relinquishment by Arkansas of certain public lands — title to grantees confirmed.] That the State of Arkansas does hereby relinquish and quitclaim to the United States all lands heretofore confirmed, certified, patented to the State which have been entered under the public land laws and does hereby cede, relinquish, and quitclaim to the United States all title, and interest under the Acts of September twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and fifty, March second, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, and March eighth, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, in and to all lands in the State which have been heretofore granted, confirmed, certified, or patented by the United States under any other Acts, and the title to such lands is hereby confirmed to the grantees, their heirs, successors, or assigns, anything in this Act or any other Act to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided, That this Act shall be in full force or effect until the State of Arkansas shall have accepted and approved the conditions, limitations, and provisions herein contained by an act of the general assembly or by an instrument in writing duly executed by the governor under the authority conferred upon him by the legislature of said State and filed with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of the Interior within one year from the approval of this Act: Provided further, That where the general assembly of the State of Arkansas did, on the tenth day of March, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, accept and approve the conditions, limitations, and provisions herein contained before the passage of this Act, the same shall be effective and conclusive, therefore this Act shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage. [30 Stat. L. 368.]

See note to section 3, supra.

[XIII. LANDS IN OKLAHOMA.]

SEC. 18. [Lands subject to settlement — school and missionary lands reserved — restrictions as to railroads.] * * * All the lands embraced within that portion of the Territory of Oklahoma heretofore known as the Land Strip, shall be open to settlement under the provisions of the homestead laws of the United States, except section twenty-three hundred and one

Revised Statutes, which shall not apply; but all actual and bona fide settlers upon and occupants of the lands in said Public Land Strip at the time of the passage of this act shall be entitled to have preference to and hold the lands upon which they have settled under the homestead laws of the United States, by virtue of their settlement and occupancy of said lands, and they shall be credited with the time they have actually occupied their homesteads, respectively, not exceeding two years, on the time required under said laws to perfect title as homestead settlers.

The lands within said Territory of Oklahoma, acquired by cession of the Muscogee (or Creek) Nation of Indians, confirmed by act of Congress approved March first, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, and also the lands acquired in pursuance of an agreement with the Seminole Nation of Indians by re-lease and conveyance, dated March sixteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, which may hereafter be open to settlement, shall be disposed of under the provisions of sections twelve, thirteen, and fourteen of the "Act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety, and for other purposes," approved March second, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, and under section two of an "Act to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Muscogee (or Creek) Nation of Indians in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes," approved March first, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine: Provided, however, That each settler under and in accordance with the provisions of said acts shall, before receiving a patent for his homestead on the land hereafter opened to settlement as aforesaid, pay to the United States for the land so taken by him, in addition to the fees provided by law, the sum of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.

Whenever any of the other lands within the Territory of Oklahoma, now occupied by any Indian tribe, shall by operation of law or proclamation of the President of the United States, be open to settlement, they shall be disposed of to actual settlers only, under the provisions of the homestead law, except section twenty-three hundred and one of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which shall not apply: Provided, however, That each settler, under and in accordance with the provisions of said homestead laws, shall before receiving a patent for his homestead pay to the United States for the land so taken by him, in addition to the fees provided by law, a sum per acre equal to the amount which has been or may be paid by the United States to obtain a relinquishment of the Indian title or interest therein, but in no case shall such payment be less than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. The rights of honorably discharged soldiers and sailors in the late civil war, as defined and described in sections twenty-three hundred and four and twenty-three hundred and five of the Revised Statutes of the United States, shall not be abridged except as to such payment. All tracts of land in Oklahoma Territory which have been set apart for school purposes, to educational societies, or missionary boards at work among the Indians, shall not be open for settlement, but are hereby granted to the respective educational societies or missionary boards for whose use the same has been set apart. No part of the land embraced within the Territory hereby created shall inure to the use or benefit of any railroad corporation, except the rights of way and land for stations heretofore granted to certain railroad corporations. Nor shall any provision of this act or any act of any officer of the United States, done or performed under the provisions of this act or otherwise, invest any corporation owning or operating any railroad in the Indian Territory, or Territory created by this act, with any land or right to any land in either of said Territories, and this act shall not apply to or affect any land which, upon any condition becoming a part of the public domain, would inure to the benefit of, or become the property of, any railroad corporation. [26 Stat. L. 90.]

This and sections 20, 21, 24, 27 following are from the Act of May 2, 1890, ch. 182, "An act to provide a temporary government for the Territory of Oklahoma, to enlarge the jurisdiction of the United States Court in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes."

The omitted part of the above section relates to school lands. See infra, div. 2.

SEC. 20. [Procedure under homestead laws — selections in square form by soldiers' and sailors' homesteads.] That the procedure in applications, entries, contests, and adjudications in the Territory of Oklahoma shall be in form and manner prescribed under the homestead laws of the United States, and the general principles and provisions of the homestead laws, except as modified by the provisions of this act and the acts of Congress approved March first and second, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, heretofore mentioned, shall be applicable to all entries made in said Territory, but no patent shall be issued to any person who is not a citizen of the United States at the time of making final proof.

All persons who shall settle on land in said Territory, under the provisions of the homestead laws of the United States, and of this act, shall be required to select the same in square form as nearly as may be; and no person who shall at the time be seized in fee simple of a hundred and sixty acres of land in any State or Territory, shall hereafter be entitled to enter land in said Territory of Oklahoma. The provisions of sections twenty-three hundred and four and twenty-three hundred and five of the Revised Statutes of the United States shall, except so far as modified by this act, apply to all homestead settlements in said Territory. [26 Stat. L. 91.]

See note to section 18, supra.

The Acts herein referred to are the following:

Act of March 1, 1889, 25 Stat. L. 757, in relation to the cession of lands of the Muscogee (or Creek) Nation of Indians, section 2 of which provides as follows:

"SEC. 2. That the lands acquired by the United States under said agreement shall be a part of the public domain, but they shall only be disposed of in accordance with the laws regulating homestead entries, and to the persons qualified to make such homestead entries, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres to one qualified claimant. And the provisions of section twenty-three hundred and one of the Revised Statutes of the United States shall not apply to any lands acquired under said agreement. Any person who may enter upon any part of said lands in said agreement mentioned prior to the time that the same are opened to settlement by Act of Congress shall not be permitted to occupy or to make entry of such lands or lay any claim thereto." [25 Stat. L. 759.]

Act of March 2, 1889, ch. 412, 25 Stat. L. 1005, relating to the cession of lands of the Seminole and Cherokee Indians, sections 13 and 14 of which provide as follows:

"SEC. 13. That the lands acquired by the United States under said agreement shall be a part of the public domain, to be disposed of only as herein provided, and sections sixteen and thirty-six of each township, whether surveyed or unsurveyed, are hereby reserved for the use and benefit of the public schools, to be established within the limits of said lands under such conditions and regulations as may be hereafter enacted by Congress.

"That the lands acquired by conveyance from the Seminole Indians hereunder, except the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections of each township, shall be disposed of to actual settlers under the homestead laws only, except as herein otherwise provided (except that section two thousand three hundred and one of the Revised Statutes shall not apply): And provided further, That any person who, having attempted to, but for any cause, failed to secure a homestead in fee to a homestead under existing law, who made entry under what is known as the commuted provision of the homestead laws, shall be qualified to make a homestead entry upon said lands: And provided further, That the rights of honorably discharged Union soldiers and sailors in the late Civil War, as defined and described in sections twenty-three hundred and four and twenty-three hundred and five of the Revised Statutes shall not be abridged: And provided further, That no entry shall be in square form as near as practicable and no person be permitted to enter more than one-quarter section thereof, but until said lands are opened for settlement by proclamation of the President, no person shall be permitted to enter upon and occupy the same, and no person violating this vision shall ever be permitted to enter any of said lands or acquire any right thereto.

"The Secretary of the Interior may, after said proclamation and not before, permit entry of said lands for town-sites, under sections twenty-three hundred and eighty-seven and twenty-three hundred and eighty-eight of the Revised Statutes, but no such entry shall embrace more than one-half section of land.

"That all the foreg[o]ing provisions with reference to lands to be acquired from the Seminole Indians including the provisions pertaining to forfeiture shall apply to and regulate the disposal of the lands acquired from the Muscogee or Creek Indians by articles of cession and agreement made and concluded at the city of Washington on the nineteenth day of January in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and eighty-nine." [25 Stat. L. 1005.]

"SEC. 14. The President is hereby authorized to appoint three Commissioners, not more than two of whom shall be members of the same political party, to negotiate with the Cherokee Indians and with all other Indians owning or claiming lands lying west of the ninety-sixth degree of longitude in the Indian Territory for the cession to the United States of all their title, claim or interest of every kind or character in and to said lands, and any and all agreements resulting from such negotiations shall be reported to the President and by him to Congress at its next session and to the council or councils of the nation or nations, tribe or tribes, agreeing to the same for ratification, and for this purpose the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, or as much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated to be immediately available: Provided, That said Commission is further authorized to submit to the Cherokee nation the proposition that said nation shall cede to the United States in the manner and with the effect aforesaid, all the rights of said nation in said lands upon the same terms as to payment as is provided in the agreement made with the Creek Indians of date, January nineteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, and ratified by the present Congress; and if said Cherokee nation shall accept, and by Act of its legislative authority duly passed, ratify the same, the said lands shall thereupon become a part of the public domain, for the purpose of such disposition as is herein provided, and the President is authorized as soon thereafter as he may deem advisable, by proclamation open said lands to settlement in the same manner and to the same effect, as in this act provided concerning the lands acquired from said Creek Indians, but until said lands are opened for settlement by proclamation of the President, no person shall be permitted to enter upon and occupy the same, and no person violating this provision shall be permitted to enter any of said lands or acquire any right thereto." [25 Stat. L. 1005.]

Procedure in land contests. — "This section goes further than to make the homestead laws applicable, but adopts and puts in force the procedure in contests then in force as well as the general provisions and principles of the homestead laws." Peters v. U. S., (1894) 2 Okla. 116, 125.

Presence in prohibited territory at time of opening. — Under the statute and the proclamation of the President for the opening up for settlement of lands in Oklahoma, any person who was within the prohibited territory at the time the land was opened by law for settlement was precluded from entering a homestead therein. Thus a railroad section hand residing with his family on a railroad right of way within the territory, who, by reason of his employment and residence, was within the prohibited territory at the time of the opening, was disqualified to make a homestead entry. Smith v. Townsend, (1893) 148 U. S. 490, affirming (1892) 1 Okla. 117.

And so was a deputy marshal of the United States who was within the prohibited territory in the performance of his official duties. Payne v. Robertson, (1898) 169 U. S. 323, affirming Payne v. Foster, (Okla. 1893) 33 Pac. Rep. 424.

The provision with regard to honorably discharged Union sailors and soldiers was intended only to give them an equal right with others to acquire a homestead within the territory, and in no way operated to relieve them from the general restriction as to going into the territory. Calhoun v. Violet, (1899) 173 U. S. 60, affirming (1896) 4 Okla. 321.

But one who was within the Osage Indian or the Ponca Indian reservation before the hour of twelve o'clock noon (central standard time) of Sept. 16, 1893, and made the race from said reservation into the part of the Cherokee Outlet opened to settlement on that day, was not by reason thereof disqualified from settling, filing homestead entry upon, and acquiring title to a quarter-section of land within the country then declared open to settlement. McClung v. Penny, (1902) 12 Okla. 303; Winebrenner v. Forney, (1902) 11 Okla. 665, affirmed (1903) 189 U. S. 148.

It has been established by the rulings of the land department that one who took part in the race for land on the day of the opening was not prohibited from taking land because of a prior entry into the territory, unless it is shown that manifest advantage resulted to the entryman from his previous presence in the territory. Potter v. Hall, (1903) 189 U. S. 292, reversing (1901) 11 Okla. 173.

Compare Patterson v. Wilson, (1901) 11 Okla. 75, holding that a person who makes the race is disqualified from making a homestead entry, if he was within the territory prior to the opening and subsequent to the Act providing for the opening. In that case the court considered that the claimant had gained a decided advantage by his presence in the territory during the prohibited period, but expressly disapproved of the doctrine of advantage, and based its decision on the broad ground that there was no exception to the rule prohibiting persons who were within the territory before the opening from making a homestead entry.

SEC. 21. [Homestead locations and entries — patents.] That any person, entitled by law to take a homestead in said Territory of Oklahoma, who has already located and filed upon, or shall hereafter locate and file upon, a homestead within the limits described in the President's proclamation of April first, eighteen hundred and eighty nine, and under and in pursuance of the laws applicable to the settlement of the lands opened for settlement by such proclamation, and who has complied with all the laws relating to such homestead settlement, may receive a patent therefor at the expiration of twelve months from date of locating upon said homestead upon payment to the United States of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre for land embraced in such homestead. [26 Stat. L. 91.]

See note to section 18, supra.

SEC. 24. [Fraudulent settlement void — penalty.] That it shall be unlawful for any person, for himself or any company, association, or corporation, to directly or indirectly procure any person to settle upon any lands open to settlement in the Territory of Oklahoma, with intent thereafter of acquiring title thereto; and any title thus acquired shall be void; and the parties to such fraudulent settlement shall severally be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished upon indictment, by imprisonment not exceeding twelve months, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. [26 Stat. L. 92.]

See note to section 18, supra.

SEC. 27. [Rights of occupants not impaired.] That the provisions of this act shall not be so construed as to invalidate or impair any legal claims or rights of persons occupying any portion of said Territory, under the laws of the United States, but such claims shall be adjudicated by the Land Department, or the courts, in accordance with their respective jurisdictions. [26 Stat. L. 93.]

See note to section 18, supra.

SEC. 16. [Ceded Indian lands open to homestead and town-site entries — all lands in Oklahoma declared agricultural.] That whenever any of the lands acquired by either of the three foregoing agreements respecting lands in the Indian or Oklahoma Territory shall by operation of law or proclamation of the President of the United States be open to settlement they shall be disposed of to actual settlers only, under the provisions of the homestead and town site laws (except section twenty-three hundred and one of the Revised Stat[ut]es of the United States which shall not apply): Provided, however, That each settler, on said lands shall before making a final proof and receiving a certificate of entry, pay to the United States for the land so taken by him, in addition to the fees provided by law, and within five years from the date of the first original entry, the sum of one dollar and fifty cents per acre, one-half of which shall be paid within two years; but the rights of honorably discharged Union soldiers and sailors as defined and described in Sections twenty-three hundred and four and twenty-three hundred and five of the Revised Statutes of the United States shall not be abridged except as to the sum to be paid as aforesaid, and all the lands in Oklahoma are hereby declared to be agricultural lands, and proof of their non-mineral character shall not be required as a condition precedent to final entry [26 Stat. L. 1026.]

This and sections 17-36 following are from the Indian Department Appropriation Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 543. The "foregoing agreements" referred to in the section are the agreements for the cession of lands of the Pottawatomie, Absentee Shawnee, and Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians.

Town-site entries.—See supra, p. 355.

SEC. 17. [Division into counties — county seats — jurisdiction of courts.] That before any lands in Oklahoma are open to settlement it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to divide the same into counties which shall contain as near as possible not less than nine hundred square miles in each county. In establishing said county line the Secretary is hereby authorized to extend the lines of the counties already located so as to make the area of said counties equal, as near as may be, to the area of the counties provided for in this act. At the first election for county officers the people of each county may vote for a name for each county, and the name which receives the greatest number of votes shall be the name of such county: Provided, further, That as soon as the county lines are designated by the Secretary, he shall reserve not to exceed one-half section of land in each county to be located near the center of said county, for county seat purposes to be entered under sections twenty-three hundred and eighty-seven and twenty-three and eighty-eight of the Revised Statutes: Provided, That in addition to the jurisdiction granted to the probate courts and the judges thereof in Oklahoma Territory by Legislative enactments which enactments are hereby ratified, the Probate Judges of said Territory are hereby granted such jurisdiction in town site matters and under such regulations as are provided by the laws of the State of Kansas. [26 Stat. L. 1026.]

This section, with the exception of the concluding proviso, is repeated verbatim in section 37, except that the area of the counties is fixed at "not less than seven hundred" instead of "not less than nine hundred" square miles each.

Ratification of Oklahoma statutes.—The provision of this section ratifying the Oklahoma statutes in regard to the jurisdiction of probate courts and of the judges thereof has the effect of giving the Acts of the territorial legislature the same force and effect as if they were themselves congressional enactments. Finch v. U. S., (1893) 1 Okla. 396; Wetz v. Elliott, (1896) 4 Okla. 618.

And if the law was one which the legislature of Oklahoma had no power to pass, the Act of Congress ratifying it gave it all the vitality it would have had if it had first found expression in Congress. Finch v. U. S., (1893) 1 Okla. 396.

Jurisdiction of probate judges.—By this section Congress intended to repudiate the Oklahoma Act of Dec. 2, 1890 (Oklahoma Stat. 1893, p. 1145), and to adopt for the government of probate judges, in town-site matters in Oklahoma, the laws of the State of Kansas, by giving to said judges "such jurisdiction in town-site matters and under such regulations as are provided by the laws of the State of Kansas." The effect is to exclude any other jurisdiction in such matters, or any other regulations. Brown v. Parker, (1894) 2 Okla. 258.

SEC. 18. [School lands. See infra, div. XVI.]

SECS. 19-35. [Special.]

These sections provide for opening certain lands of the Cœur d'Alene, Arickaree, Gros Ventre, Mandan, Sisseton, and Wahpeton Sioux, and Crow Indians, in Washington, Idaho, Montana, and North and South Dakota, to settlement.

SEC. 36. [Lease of school lands. See infra, div. XVI.]

SEC. 37. [Same as section 17.]

This section is the same as section 17, except that the area of the counties is fixed at "not less than seven hundred" instead of

"not less than nine hundred" square miles each, and the last proviso of that section is omitted.

An Act Granting settlers on certain lands in Oklahoma Territory the right to commute their homestead entries, and for other purposes.

[Act of Oct. 20, 1893, ch. 5, 28 Stat. L. 3.]

[SEC. 1.] [Homesteaders granted extension of time to make first payment.] That the homestead settlers on the Absentee Shawnee, Pottawatomie, and Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indian lands, in Oklahoma Territory be, and they are hereby, granted an extension of one year within which to make the first payment provided for in section sixteen of the act of Congress approved March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, entitled "An act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-two, and for other purposes," and such payment may be made at any time within three years from the date of the entry of such lands. [28 Stat. L. 3.]

The cession of lands by the Absentee Shawnee Indians is contained in section 9 of the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 543, 26 Stat. L. 1018.

The cession of lands by the Pottawatomie

Indians is contained in section 8 of the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 543, 26 Stat. L. 1016.

The cession of lands by the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians is contained in section 13 of the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 543, 26 Stat. L. 1022.

SEC. 2. [Issuance of patent.] That any person entitled by law to take a homestead in said Territory of Oklahoma who has already located and filed upon, or who shall hereafter locate and file upon a homestead within any of the lands in the Absentee Shawnee, Pottawatomie, and Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indian lands and the Public Land Strip in Oklahoma Territory, and who has complied with all the laws relating to such homestead settlement, may receive a patent therefor at the expiration of twelve months from the date of locating upon such homestead, upon payment to the United States of one dollar and fifty cents per acre for the land embodied in such homestead: Provided, That homestead settlers in the Public Land Strip now Beaver County, Oklahoma, may receive such patent upon the payment to the United States of the sum of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. [28 Stat. L. 3.]

SEC. 3. [Repeal.] That all acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [28 Stat. L. 3.]

[SEC. 1.] [Homesteaders granted extension of time to make first payment.]
* * * That the homestead settlers on the Absentee Shawnee, Pottawatomie, and Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indian lands in Oklahoma Territory be, and they are hereby, granted an extension of one year within which to make the first payment provided for in section sixteen of the Act of Congress approved March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, entitled "An Act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-two, and for other purposes," and such payment may be made at any time within five years from the date of the entry of such lands. And that the like extension of one year on the first payment required to be made, when payable in installments, is hereby granted to all homestead settlers on and purchasers of all ceded Indian reservations in the States of North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Montana, and Idaho.

* * * [28 Stat. L. 901.]

This is from the Indian Appropriation Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 188.

sec. 1, and June 7, 1897, ch. 3, sec. 1, granting extensions as to ceded Indian lands, supra, pp. 312, 313.

An Act To provide for the entry of lands in Greer County, Oklahoma, to give preference rights to settlers, and for other purposes.

[Act of Jan. 18, 1897, ch. 62, 29 Stat. L. 490.]

[SEC. 1.] [Homestead settlers in Greer county — preference right — additional lands — members of family — death of settler — improvements.] That every person qualified under the homestead laws of the United States, who, on March sixteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, was a bona fide occupant of land within the territory established as Greer County, Oklahoma, shall be entitled to continue his occupation of such land with improvements thereon, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, and shall be allowed six months preference right from the passage of this Act within which to initiate his claim thereto, and shall be entitled to perfect title thereto under the provisions of the homestead law, upon payment of land office fees only, at the expiration of five years from the date of entry, except that such person shall receive credit for all time during which he or those under whom he claims shall have continuously occupied the same prior to March sixteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-six. Every such person shall also have the right, for six months prior to all other persons, to purchase at one dollar an acre, in five equal annual payments, any additional land of which he was in actual possession on March sixteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, which, prior to said date, shall have been cultivated, purchased, or improved by him. When any person entitled to a homestead or additional land, as above provided, is the head of a family, and though still living, shall not take such homestead or additional land, within six months from the passage of this Act, any member of such family over the age of twenty-one years, other than husband or wife, shall succeed to the right to take such homestead or additional land for three months longer, and any such member of the family shall also have the right to take, as before provided, any excess of additional land actually cultivated or improved prior to March sixteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-six above the amount to which such head of the family is entitled, not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres to any one person thus taking as a member of such family. In case of the death of any settler who actually established residence and made improvement on land in said Greer County prior to March sixteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, the entry shall be treated as having accrued at the time the residence was established, and sections twenty-two hundred and ninety-one and twenty-two hundred and ninety-two of the Revised Statutes shall be applicable thereto. Any person entitled to such homestead or additional land shall have the right prior to January first, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, from the passage of this Act to remove all crops and improvements he may have on land not taken by him. [29 Stat. L. 490.]

"By the provisions of 1890, May 2, ch. 182, sec. 25, Greer county, Oklahoma, was excepted from the provisions of the Act providing temporary government for the territory of Oklahoma until a decision by the Supreme Court of the United States of the title contested between the United States and the state of Texas. The action brought in the Supreme Court under that Act was decided March 16, 1896, (162 U. S. 1) and the object of this Act is to carry into effect that decision so far as it relates to title to land. Provisions were made as to the organization of the county, the ownership of property, judicial proceedings, and judgments, by 1896, May 4, ch. 155." Compilers' note, 2 Supp. R. S. 530.

SEC. 2. [Unoccupied land subject to entry.] That all land in said county not occupied, cultivated, or improved, as provided in the first section hereof, or not included within the limits of any town site or reserve, shall be subject to entry to actual settlers only, under the provisions of the homestead law. [29 Stat. L. 490.]

SEC. 3. [Town-site entries — preference right.] That the inhabitants of any town located in said county shall be entitled to enter the same as a town site under the provisions of sections twenty-three hundred and eighty-seven, twenty-three hundred and eighty-eight, and twenty-three hundred and eighty-nine of the Revised Statutes of the United States: Provided, That all persons who have made or own improvements on any town lots in said county made prior to March sixteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, shall have the preference right to enter said lots under the provisions of this Act and of the general town-site laws. [29 Stat. L. 490.]

See p. 355 et seq., as to town sites in Oklahoma.

SEC. 4. [School lands. See infra, div. XVI.]

SEC. 5. [Lands for churches, etc. See infra, div. XVI.]

SEC. 6. [Land office at Mangum. See supra, p. 272.]

SEC. 7. [Application of act — commutation of homesteads.] That the provisions of this Act shall apply only to Greer County, Oklahoma, and that all laws inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, applying to said territory in said county, are hereby repealed; and all laws authorizing commutations of homesteads in Oklahoma shall apply to Greer County. [29 Stat. L. 491.]

SEC. 8. [Effect.] That this Act shall take effect from its passage and approval. [29 Stat. L. 491.]

An Act To amend an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the entry of lands in Greer County, Oklahoma, to give preference rights to settlers, and for other purposes," approved January eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven.

[Act of June 23, 1897, ch. 3, 30 Stat. L. 105.]

[Time for exercise of preference rights extended.] That the time for the exercise of the preference rights of entry granted to bona fide occupants of land within the territory established as Greer County, Oklahoma, by section one of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the entry of lands in Greer County, Oklahoma, to give preference rights to settlers, and for other purposes," approved January eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, be, and the same is hereby, extended to January first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight. [30 Stat. L. 105.]

An Act To amend section one of an Act to provide for the entry of lands in Greer County, Oklahoma Territory, to give preference right to settlers, and for other purposes.

[Settlers who purchased from Texas allowed to perfect titles.] That section one of an Act to give preference right to settlers in Greer County, Oklahoma Territory, is hereby so amended as to allow parties who have had the benefit of the homestead laws of the United States, and who had purchased land in Greer County from the State of Texas prior to March sixteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, to perfect titles to said lands according to the provisions of section one hereinbefore mentioned, under such regulations as the Commissioner of the General Land Office may prescribe, and according to the legal subdivisions of the public surveys, if no adverse rights have attached: Provided, That no settler shall be permitted to acquire to exceed three hundred and twenty acres under this provision. [30 Stat. L. 966.]

[XIV. ABANDONED MILITARY AND NAVAL RESERVATIONS.]

An act to provide for the disposal of abandoned and useless military reservations.

[Act of July 5, 1884, ch. 214, 23 Stat. L. 103.]

[SEC. 1.] [Disposal of abandoned and useless military reservations.] That whenever, in the opinion of the President of the United States, the lands, or any portion of them, included within the limits of any military reservation heretofore or hereafter declared, have become or shall become useless for military purposes, he shall cause the same or so much thereof as he may designate, to be placed under the control of the Secretary of the Interior for disposition as hereinafter provided, and shall cause to be filed with the Secretary of the Interior a notice thereof. [23 Stat. L. 103.]

Authority to restore to public domain.—Where a part of the public domain has once been reserved by the President for military or other public purposes, and subsequently the land so reserved becomes unnecessary for such purposes, it cannot be restored to the public domain without authority from Congress. (1881) 17 Op. Atty.-Gen. 168. See also (1878) 16 Op. Atty.-Gen. 121; (1862) 10 Op. Atty.-Gen. 359.

Applicability of Act.—In a case where a patent had issued and title had passed from the government prior to the enactment of the Act of July 5, 1884, ch. 214, 23 Stat. L. 103, it was held that the statute could have no significance. Johnson v. Drew, (1898) 171 U. S. 93.

Private claim—Ownership of buildings.—Where land established as a military reservation includes the private claim of an individual, which was subsequently discovered and the use of the reservation discontinued, and upon the land are erected some twenty-two buildings, but in the patent issued to the claimant there was a clause reserving to the United States its rights to ownership in the buildings, it was held that the ownership of the buildings was in the United States. (1893) 20 Op. Atty.-Gen. 603.

SEC. 2. [Survey, subdivision, appraisal, sale, etc.—rights of actual settlers.] That the Secretary of the Interior may, if in his opinion the public interests so require, cause the said lands, or any part thereof, in such reservations, to be regularly surveyed, or to be subdivided into tracts of less than forty acres each, and into town lots, or either, or both. He shall cause the said lands so surveyed and subdivided, and each tract thereof, to be appraised by three competent and disinterested men to be appointed by him, and who shall, after having each been first duly sworn to impartially and faithfully execute the trust reposed in them, appraise the said lands, subdivisions, and tracts, and each of them and report their proceedings to the Secretary of the Interior for his action thereon. If such appraisal be disapproved, the Secretary of the Interior shall again cause the said lands to be appraised as before provided; and when the appraisal has been approved he shall cause the said lands, subdivisions, and lots to be sold at public sale, to the highest bidder for cash, at not less than the appraised value thereof, nor less than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, first having given not less than sixty days' public notice of the time, place, and terms of sale, immediately prior to such sale, by publication in at least two newspapers having a general circulation in the country [sic] or section of county [sic] where the lands to be sold are situate; and any lands, subdivisions, or lots remaining unsold may be reoffered for sale at any subsequent time in the same manner, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior; and if not sold at such second offering for want of bidders, then the Secretary of the Interior may sell the same at private sale, for cash, at not less than the appraised value, nor less than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre: Provided, That any settler who was in actual occupation of any portion of any such reservations prior to the location of such reservation, or settled thereon prior to January first, eighteen hundred and eighty-four, in good faith for the purpose of securing a home and of entering the same under the general laws and has continued in such occupation to the present time, and is by law entitled to make a homestead entry shall be entitled to enter the land so occupied, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres in a body, according to the Government surveys and subdivisions: Provided further, That said lands were subject to entry under the public land laws at the time of their withdrawal: And provided further, That all patents heretofore issued, and approved State selections, covering any lands within the old Fort Lyon Military Reservation, in the State of Colorado, declared by executive order of August eighth, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, are hereby confirmed; and the rights of all entrymen and settlers on said reservation to acquire title under the homestead, pre-emption, or timber culture laws are hereby recognized and affirmed to the extent they would have attached had public lands been settled upon or entered; and such portions of said reservation as shall not have been entered or settled upon as aforesaid shall be disposed of by the Secretary of the Interior under the provisions of this act, including lands that may be abandoned by settlers or entrymen. [23 Stat. L. 103.]

Right of settler to enter land occupied.—The right given by the Act of Congress (chapter 214, Acts of 1884) to a settler upon a military reservation when entitled to make a homestead entry, to enter one hundred and sixty acres in a body, is dependent upon the fact that the land was subject to entry under the public land laws at the time of its withdrawal; and when a settler upon a portion of a military reservation, without any certificate of entry or showing any privity with the title of the government other than that of bare possession and claiming to enter the land under the said Act, seeks to defeat a patent to the land issued by the land-office department, on the ground that he was in actual possession when the patent issued, it is incumbent on him to show that the land occupied by him was subject to entry under the public lands at the time of its withdrawal for a military reservation. Johnson v. Drew, (1894) 34 Fla. 130.

No preference rights after withdrawal.—There is nothing in the Act of July 5, 1884, which offers to settlers or occupants who enter into possession of any subdivision or lot subsequent to the executive order of withdrawal, any preference right of entry or purchase. Any subsequent occupant has only the usual right of any other citizen to purchase at the public sale. Walsh v. Ford, (1901) 1 Alaska 146.

SEC. 3. [Appraisal and sale of buildings, etc., on reservations—sale of lands to owners of improvements—proceeds of sales.] That the Secretary of the Interior shall cause any improvements, buildings, building materials, and other property which may be situate upon any such lands, subdivisions or lots not heretofore sold by the United States authorities, to be appraised in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the appraisements of such lands, subdivisions, and lots, and shall cause the same, together with the tract or lot upon which they are situate, to be sold at public sale, to the highest bidder for cash, at not less than the appraised value of such land and improvements, first giving the sixty days' notice as hereinbefore provided; or he may, in his discretion, cause the improvements to be sold separately, at public sale for cash, at not less than the appraised value, to be removed by the purchaser within such time as may be prescribed, first giving the sixty days' public notice before provided; and if in any case the lands and improvements, or the improvements separately, as the case may be, are not sold for want of bidders, then the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, cause the same to be reoffered for sale, at any subsequent time, in the same manner as above provided, or may cause the same to be sold at private sale for not less than the appraised value: Provided, That where buildings or improvements have been heretofore sold by the United States authorities the land upon which such buildings or improvements are situate not exceeding the smallest subdivision or lot provided for by this act upon the reservation on which said buildings are situate shall be offered for sale to the purchaser of said improvements and buildings at the appraised value of the lands and if said purchaser shall fail for sixty days after notice to complete said purchase of lands the same shall be sold under the provisions of this act: And provided further That the proceeds of the military reservation lands sold on Bois Blanc Island near to Fort Mackinaw military reservation shall be set apart as a separate fund for the improvement of the National Park on the Island of Mackinaw Michigan under the direction of the Secretary of War. [23 Stat. L. 103.]

SEC. 4. [Repeal of laws relating to reservations in Florida.] That the provisions of the act of August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and fifty-six, relative to military reservations in the State of Florida, and the sixth section of the act of June twelfth, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, relative to the sale of military sites be, and the same are hereby, repealed. [23 Stat. L. 103.]

The piece of land known as the Dragoon Barracks lot, in St. Augustine, Fla., and the buildings thereon, being the property of the United States, may be appraised and disposed of in the manner provided by the second and third sections of the Act of July 5, 1884, ch. 214. (1887) 18 Op. Atty-Gen. 543.

SEC. 5. [Lands containing mineral deposits. See MINERAL LANDS, MINES, AND MINING, vol. 5, p. 7.]

SEC. 6. [Right of way across reservations. See infra, div. XVIII.]

[Grant of portions of abandoned reservations to municipal corporations.]
* * * That the President is hereby authorized by proclamation to withhold from sale and grant for public use to the municipal corporation in which the same is situated all or any portion of any abandoned military reservation not exceeding twenty acres in one place. * * * [27 Stat. L. 593.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1893, ch. 208.

An act to provide for the opening of certain abandoned military reservations, and for other purposes.

[Act of Aug. 23, 1894, ch. 314, 28 Stat. L. 491.]

[SEC. 1.] [Abandoned reservations opened to settlement under land laws — preference to settlers.] That all lands not already disposed of included within the limits of any abandoned military reservation heretofore placed under the control of the Secretary of the Interior for disposition under the Act approved July fifth, eighteen hundred and eighty-four, the disposal of which has not been provided for by a subsequent Act of Congress, where the area exceeds five thousand acres, except such legal subdivisions as have Government improvements thereon, and except also such other parts as are now or may be reserved for some public use, are hereby opened to settlement under the public-land laws of the United States, and a preference right of entry for a period of six months from the date of this Act shall be given all bona fide settlers who are qualified to enter under the homestead law and have made improvements and are now residing upon any agricultural lands in said reservations, and for a period of six months from the date of settlement when that shall occur after the date of this Act: Provided, That persons who enter under the homestead law shall pay for such lands not less than the value heretofore or hereafter determined by appraisement, nor less than the price of the land at the time of the entry, and such payment may, at the option of the purchaser, be made in five equal installments, at times and at rates of interest to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior. [28 Stat. L. 491.]

For amendment to this Act, see Act of Feb. 15, 1895, ch. 92, infra.

SEC. 2. [Reservations hereafter abandoned — appraisements, how made.] That nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to suspend or to interfere with the operation of the said Act approved July fifth, eighteen hundred and eighty-four, as to all lands included in abandoned military reservations hereafter placed under the control of the Secretary of the Interior for disposal, and all appraisements required by the first section of this Act shall be in accordance with the provisions of said Act of July fifth, eighteen hundred and eighty-four. [28 Stat. L. 491.]

An Act To amend and extend the provisions of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the opening of certain abandoned military reservations, and for other purposes," approved August twenty-third, eighteen hundred and ninety-four.

[SEC. 1.] [Abandoned reservations opened to settlement under land laws.] That the provisions of the Act approved August twenty-third, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, entitled "An Act to provide for the opening of certain abandoned military reservations, and for other purposes," are hereby extended to all abandoned military reservations which were placed under the control of the Secretary of the Interior under any law in force prior to the Act of July fifth, eighteen hundred and eighty-four. [28 Stat. L. 664.]

SEC. 2. [Preference to settlers.] That the preference right of entry given to actual settlers by the terms of the Act to which this is an amendment shall, so far as the lands to which the provisions of said Act are extended, take effect and continue for six months from the date of this amendatory Act. [28 Stat. L. 664.]

An act for the relief of certain claimants under the donation land law of Oregon, approved September twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and fifty.

[Patents to settlers on abandoned military reservations in Washington and Oregon.] That the claims of such persons who were duly qualified thereto, and made bona-fide settlements upon lands in the State of Oregon and Washington Territory, under the provisions of the act of Congress, approved September twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and fifty, entitled "An act to create the office of surveyor-general of the public lands in Oregon, and to provide for the survey, and to make donations to settlers of the said public lands," and the legislation supplemental thereto, which have been included, in whole or in part, within the limits of any reservation made by the United States for military purposes subsequent to the date of such settlement and prior to the completion of the period of residence and cultivation required by said act, which reservation has been, or may hereafter be, declared abandoned by the Secretary of War as no longer necessary to the United States for military or other purposes, shall be adjudicated and patented the same as other donation claims arising under said act and supplemental legislation, as though such reservation had never been made: Provided however, That no claim of any settler coming within the purview of this act shall be validated or confirmed the value of whose improvements, at the time such reservation was made by the United States, has been ascertained and paid for by the Secretary of War, as required by the aforesaid act of September twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and fifty, and the legislation supplemental thereto. An Act To provide for the disposal of the Fort Buford abandoned military reservation, in the States of North Dakota and Montana.

[Disposal of Fort Buford military reservation.] That all public lands now remaining undisposed of within the abandoned military reservation in the States of North Dakota and Montana, formerly known as Fort Buford Military Reservation, and which are not otherwise occupied or used for any public purpose, are hereby made subject to disposal under the homestead, town-site, and desert-land laws: Provided, That actual occupants thereon upon the first day of January, nineteen hundred, if otherwise qualified, shall have the preference right to make one entry not exceeding one quarter-section: Provided further, That any of such lands as are occupied for town-site purposes, and any of the lands that may be shown to be valuable for coal or minerals, such lands so occupied for town-site purposes or valuable for coal or minerals shall be disposed of as now provided for lands subject to entry and sale under the town-site, coal, or mineral-land laws, respectively: Provided further, That this act shall not apply to any subdivision of land, which subdivision may include adjoining lands to the amount of one hundred and sixty acres, on which any buildings or improvements of the United States are situated, but such lands shall be appraised and sold as now provided by law. [31 Stat. L. 180.]

An Act Granting homesteaders on the abandoned Fort Fetterman Military Reservation in Wyoming the right to purchase one quarter section of public land on said reservation as pasture or grazing land.

[Disposal of Fort Fetterman military reservation.] That each person who has exercised the right of homestead entry on the abandoned Fort Fetterman reservation in the State of Wyoming shall, upon proper proof of settlement and homestead upon land covered by said entry, be entitled to the right to purchase, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, not exceeding one quarter-section of the public lands on said reservation as pasture or grazing land not otherwise disposed of: Provided, That land so purchased be unfitted for cultivation and homestead entry by reason of lack of water for irrigating purposes or otherwise: And provided further, That said purchase of pasture or grazing land shall not, with the land heretofore entered by the applicant, exceed in the aggregate three hundred and twenty acres. [31 Stat. L. 1085.]

An act to authorize the Secretary of the Navy to certify to the Secretary of the Interior, for restoration to the public domain, lands in the states of Alabama and Mississippi not needed for naval purposes.

[Naval reservations in Alabama and Mississippi restored to public domain — preference right of settlement.] That the Secretary of the Navy be, and he is hereby, authorized to cause to be certified to the Secretary of the Interior, for restoration to the public domain, the whole or such portion or portions of the several tracts of land in the States of Alabama and Mississippi heretofore set apart and reserved for naval uses as are no longer required for the purposes for which they were reserved, or for any purposes connected with the naval service; and upon such certification the tracts of land described therein shall be duly restored to and become a part of the public lands of the United States and a preference right of entry for a period of six months from the date of this Act shall be given all bona fide settlers who are qualified to enter under the homestead law and have made improvements and are now residing upon any agricultural lands in said reservations, and for a period of six months from the date of settlement when that shall occur after the date of this Act: Provided, That persons who enter under the homestead law shall pay for such lands not less than the value heretofore or hereafter determined by appraisalment, nor less than the price of the land at the time of the entry; and such payment may, at the option of the purchaser, be made in five equal installments, at times and at rates of interest to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior: Provided, That so much of the said lands as are situated on Back Bay, near the city of Biloxi, in the State of Mississippi, shall be disposed of under the town-site law and not as agricultural lands. [28 Stat. L. 814.]

[XV. GRANTS IN AID OF OR FOR RAILROADS AND WAGON ROADS.]

An act to authorize the issuance of patents for lands granted to the State of Oregon in certain cases.

[Act of June 18, 1874, ch. 305, 18 Stat. L. 80.]

[Patents for lands granted for construction of wagon roads in Oregon.] Whereas certain lands have heretofore, by acts of Congress, been granted to the State of Oregon to aid in the construction of certain military wagon-roads in said State, and there exists no law providing for the issuing of formal patents for said lands: Therefore,

That in all cases when the roads in aid of the construction of which said lands were granted are shown by the certificate of the governor of the State of Oregon, as in said acts provided, to have been constructed and completed, patents for said lands shall issue in due form to the State of Oregon as fast as the same shall, under said grants, be selected and certified, unless the State of Oregon shall by public act have transferred its interests in said lands to any corporation or corporations, in which case the patents shall issue from the General Land Office to such corporation or corporations upon their payment of the necessary expenses thereof: Provided, That this shall not be construed to revive any land grant already expired nor to create any new rights of any kind except to provide for issuing patents for lands to which the State is already entitled. [18 Stat. L. 80.]

Significance of Act.—In Altschul v. Clark, (1901) 39 Oregon 315, it was held that where a road company selected certain lands, under the Act of July 5, 1866, filed the selection list in the local land office, and paid or tendered the usual fees, the grant did not operate to pass title, and that it was necessary for the secretary of the interior to approve of the selection as a condition precedent to the passing of the title. The court said: "This seems to be the interpretation placed upon the grant by Congress in adopting the Act of June 18, 1874. * * * While it was not intended thereby to ingraft upon the original Act a condition that the patents should issue as a prerequisite to the passing of the title, it indicates quite clearly that the primary intention of Congress was that the selection should receive the certification or, in other words, the approval of the secretary of the interior, before the grant should become effective."

Effect of Act and patent issued thereunder.—In Pengra v. Munz, (1887) 29 Fed. Rep. 830, the court said: "The subsequent passage of the Act of 1874, authorizing patents to issue, * * * did not affect the title already vested. The effect of a patent, when issued under that Act, is not to pass the title, but to give the patentee record evidence of an already existing one. Wherefore it is of no moment that it does not appear that a patent has issued to the state or its grantee for the premises. The title of the latter was complete on the approval of the secretary * * * of the selection." See also Cahn v. Barnes, (1881) 5 Fed. Rep. 326.

By the Act of June 18, 1874, 18 Stat. L. 80, it is in effect recited that Congress had "granted" certain lands to the state of Oregon, "to aid in the construction of certain military wagon roads" therein, and that there is no law for the issuance of "formal patents" therefor; and the Act in effect provides that whenever it appears "from the certificate of the governor," as provided in said Act, that any of said roads has been "constructed and completed," a patent shall issue to the state for said lands, or to any corporation to whom it may have transferred its interest therein, "as fast as the same shall, under said grants, be selected and certified." Pengra v. Munz, (1887) 29 Fed. Rep. 830.

Improvements by bona fide transferee.—In U. S. v. Willamette Valley, etc., Wagon-Road Co., (1892) 54 Fed. Rep. 807, it was held that the United States would be precluded from enforcing a forfeiture of a wagon-road grant against a bona fide transferee thereof where the question of the construction of the road was investigated, and patents thereafter issued, and the defendants, assuming that such action was a final determination of the question of title, and relying on the same, made expenditures. See also U. S. v. Willamette Valley, etc., Wagon Road Co., (1892) 55 Fed. Rep. 711.

Patent conclusive that lands are within grant.—In Cahn v. Barnes, (1881) 5 Fed. Rep. 326, it was held that a patent issued under the above Act was conclusive evidence at law that the lands belonged to the wagon-road grant and not to the swamp-land grant.

Certificate of governor—Effect of.—In U. S. v. Dalles Military Road Co., (1890) 41 Fed. Rep. 493, it was held that "(1) The Act granting lands in aid of the Dalles military road passed a present title to the state of Oregon, to be defeated only by a breach of conditions subsequent. (2) The fact that the governor's certificate was not made on completion of each section of ten miles of the road makes no difference. * * * (3) The authority to determine whether the road was completed was vested solely in the governor of Oregon, whose decision, in the absence of any such fraud as would vitiate it, is necessarily final and conclusive. (4) The right to a patent once vested is equivalent, as respects the government dealing with the public lands, to a patent issued. (5) Purchasers of these lands from the state's grantee * * * were entitled to rely upon the record, constituted by the * * * Acts of Congress and of the state, the withdrawal of the lands by the commissioner, and the governor's certificate. * * * (7) Where fifteen years have elapsed after affirmative and confirmatory action by Congress in directing the issue of patents to lands in all cases where the certificate of the governor had been made, and twenty years have elapsed after the date of such certificates, * * * it is not within the established principles of equity jurisprudence" to allow a suit for the forfeiture of the lands and a cancellation of the patents to be maintained. To the same general effect, see U. S. v. Wallamet Valley, etc., Wagon-Road Co., (1890) 44 Fed. Rep. 234, 42 Fed. Rep. 351. The decrees in these cases, however, were reversed in (1891) 140 U. S. 599, wherein it was held that where the pleas which alleged that the respondents were bona fide purchasers, and the absence of fraud in the issuance of the governor's certificates, were sustained after having been set down for a hearing, the United States should have been allowed to put in issue the matter alleged in the pleas. It was also held that the defense of laches was not available against the United States. After the decision of the Supreme Court in 140 U. S. 599, replications were filed by the United States to the pleas. The Circuit Court of Appeals held that the trial of the case would be on the issues presented by the pleas, and if the defendants were found to be bona fide purchasers, the dismissal of the bill should follow, regardless of the question of the completion of the road or of fraud touching the governor's certificate. It was also held that evidence to the effect that the governor's certificate was procured by fraud was inadmissible in the absence of a showing of implication by or on behalf of the road company or its grantees; that since the Act of 1874, which authorized patents to issue upon the governor's certificate, purchasers in good faith from the road company had the right to rely upon the certificate, and in the absence of implication on their part, evidence that the road was not constructed was immaterial. U. S. v. Dalles Military Road Co., (1892) 51 Fed. Rep. 629.

An act for the relief of settlers on railroad lands.

[Selection of lieu lands by railroads relinquishing lands entered by settlers—title of settlers.] That in the adjustment of all railroad land grants, whether made directly to any railroad company or to any State for railroad purposes, if any of the lands granted be found in the possession of an actual settler whose entry or filing has been allowed under the pre-emption or homestead laws of the United States subsequent to the time at which, by the decision of the land-office, the right of said road was declared to have attached to such lands, the grantees, upon a proper relinquishment of the lands so entered or filed for, shall be entitled to select an equal quantity of other lands in lieu thereof from any of the public lands not mineral and within the limits of the grant not otherwise appropriated at the date of selection, to which they shall receive title the same as though originally granted. And any such entries or filings thus relieved from conflict may be perfected into complete title as if such lands had not been granted: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall in any manner be so construed as to enlarge or extend any grant to any such railroad or to extend to lands reserved in any land grant made for railroad purposes: And provided further, That this act shall not be construed so as in any manner to confirm or legalize any decision or ruling of the Interior Department under which lands have been certified to any railroad company when such lands have been entered by a pre-emption or homestead settler after the location of the line of the road and prior to the notice to the local land-office of the withdrawal of such lands from market. [18 Stat. L. 194.]

Privileges of Act extended.— See following section, and Act of July 1, 1902, ch. 1386, infra, p. 451.

Prior appropriation.— Where certain lands were reserved for a special purpose and did not pass to a railroad company although within the limits of its grant, it was held that the fact that in 1874 Congress passed an Act which extended the homestead law to all settlers on such lands who might desire to take advantage of the same, would not have the effect to take the lands from the special appropriation thereof, and restore the same to the condition of the mass of the public domain, so as to make the railroad grant attach by the subsequent fixing of the definite route of the railroad and by the filing of a plat thereof with the commissioner of the general land office. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Hinchman, (1892) 53 Fed. Rep. 523.

An act to amend an act entitled "An act for the relief of settlers on railroad lands," approved June twenty-second, eighteen hundred and seventy-four.

[Act of Aug. 29, 1890, ch. 319, 26 Stat. L. 369.]

[Rights of settlers with unrecorded entries on railroad lands.] That the privileges granted by the aforesaid act approved June twenty-second, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, are hereby extended (subject to the provisos, limitations, and restrictions thereof) to all persons entitled to the right of homestead or pre-emption under the laws of the United States, who have resided upon and improved for five years lands granted to any railroad company, but whose entries or filings have not for any cause been admitted to record. [26 Stat. L. 369.]

An act for the relief of settlers on lands within railroad limits.

[Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 196, 18 Stat. L. 519.]

[Settlers within limits of railroad grants forfeited to United States.] That where any actual settler who shall have paid for any lands situate within the limits of any grant of lands by Congress to aid in the construction of any railroad, the price of such lands being fixed by law at double minimum rates, and such railroad lands having been forfeited to the United States and restored to the public domain for failure to build such railroad, such person or persons shall have the right to locate, on any unoccupied lands, an amount equal to their original entry, without further cost, except such fees as are now provided by law in pre-emption cases: Provided, That when such location is upon double minimum lands, one-half the amount only shall be taken. [18 Stat. L. 519.]

An act to confirm pre-emption and homestead entries of public lands within the limits of railroad-grants in cases where such entries have been made under the regulations of the Land Department.

[SEC. 1.] [Homestead entries within limits of land grants, prior to notice of withdrawal from or after restoration to market, confirmed.] That all pre-emption and homestead entries, or entries in compliance with any law of the United States, of the public lands, made in good faith, by actual settlers, upon tracts of land of not more than one hundred and sixty acres each, within the limits of any land-grant, prior to the time when notice of the withdrawal of the lands embraced in such grant was received at the local land-office of the district in which such lands are situated, or after their restoration to market by order of the General Land-Office, and where the pre-emption and homestead laws have been complied with, and proper proofs thereof have been made by the parties holding such tracts or parcels, they shall be confirmed, and patents for the same shall issue to the parties entitled thereto. [19 Stat. L. 35.]

When Act does not apply. — "The Act, by its terms, presupposes a case in which notice of withdrawal of the lands was required by law to be given. It does not * * * apply to a case where, prior to any pre-emption or homestead entry, the lands had been specially granted by an Act of Congress, and had fully vested in the grantee. To give it such a construction would be equivalent to saying that Congress intended to take lands from an owner whose title was perfect, and confer them upon another." Taboreck v. Burlington, etc., R. Co., (1881) 13 Fed. Rep. 103.

"The effect of the Act of 1876 was to validate all otherwise regular pre-emption and homestead entries made prior to the time when the notice of withdrawal was received at the local land office, although such entries were made after the time when the map of general route was filed in the office of the secretary of the interior and the order of withdrawal made. * * * This Act of 1876, rightfully construed and in accordance with the spirit of congressional dealings with individual homesteaders and pre-emptors, is to be taken as a legislative enactment that no entry was to be considered invalidated by reason of the filing of the map of general route, if it was made before notice of the withdrawal was received at the local land office." Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Amacker, (1900) 175 U. S. 564, affirming (C. C. A. 1893) 58 Fed. Rep. 850, which reversed the judgment in (1892), 53 Fed. Rep. 48, wherein it was held that where the general route of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company was located on the 1st of February, 1872, and subsequently a party filed his application to make an entry as a part of his homestead claim May 3, 1872, after which on May 6, 1872, notice of the withdrawal of the lands at the time of the fixing of the general route of the railroad was filed in the land office of Helena, Montana, the above Act authorized a perfection of the party's title. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Amacker, (1892) 53 Fed. Rep. 48.

Where a homestead entry was made in good faith by an actual settler within the limits of a railroad grant after a map of the definite location of the road was filed, but before notice of the withdrawal of the lands covered by the grant was received at the local land office (a delay of about twelve months having occurred in giving the notice), and all the requirements of the law in regard to such an entry were complied with by the homesteader, it was held that the case was within the provisions of the Act of April 21, 1876, ch. 72, (1876) 15 Op. Atty-Gen. 583.

Act was passed after time for completion of road. — In St. Paul, etc., R. Co. v. Greenhalgh, (1886) 26 Fed. Rep. 563, affirmed (1891) 139 U. S. 19, the court held in regard to the Acts of Congress of June 22, 1874, and April 21, 1876, and the Acts of the state of Minnesota of March 1, 1877, and March 9, 1878, that "all were passed after the time given for the completion of the road, when there had been a nonperformance of the conditions of the grant, and when, therefore, there existed the right of absolute and total forfeiture by the grantor, the United States, and of resumption and transfer by the state to another beneficiary."

SEC. 2. [Re-entry of claims abandoned on account of decision of land office.] That when at the time of such withdrawal as aforesaid valid pre-emption or homestead claims existed upon any lands within the limits of any such grants which afterward were abandoned, and, under the decisions and rulings of the Land Department, were re-entered by pre-emption or homestead claimants who have complied with the laws governing pre-emption or homestead entries, and shall make the proper proofs required under such laws, such entries shall be deemed valid, and patents shall issue therefor to the person entitled thereto. [19 Stat. L. 35.]

SEC. 3. [Entries after expiration of land grant.] That all such pre-emption and homestead entries which may have been made by permission of the Land Department, or in pursuance of the rules and instructions thereof, within the limits of any land-grant at a time subsequent to expiration of such grant, shall be deemed valid, and a compliance with the laws and the making of the proof required shall entitle the holder of such claim to a patent therefor. [19 Stat. L. 36.]

An act for the relief of certain settlers on restored railroad lands.

[Rights of licensed settlers on railroad lands subsequently restored to public domain.] That all persons who shall have settled and made valuable and permanent improvements upon any odd numbered section of land within any railroad withdrawal in good faith and with the permission or license of the railroad company for whose benefit the same shall have been made, and with the expectation of purchasing of such company the land so settled upon, which land so settled upon and improved, may, for any cause, be restored to the public domain, and who, at the time of such restoration, may not be entitled to enter and acquire title to such land under the pre-emption, homestead, or timber-culture acts of the United States, shall be permitted, at any time within three months after such restoration, and under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner of the General Land Office may prescribe, to purchase not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres in extent of the same by legal sub-divisions, at the price of two dollars and fifty cents per acre, and to receive patents therefor. [21 Stat. L. 315.]

Where the land is included in a forest reservation the settler's right granted by the above Act is not barred, because the land was included in the reservation which was created by the President's proclamation before it was surveyed and subsequent to the setting aside of the withdrawal. Holmes v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1902) 118 Fed. Rep. 995, reversing (1900) 105 Fed. Rep. 41. Concerning the decision of the court below, the Circuit Court of Appeals said: "The Circuit Court decided this question adversely to the plaintiff in error, H., for the reason that at the time when he made his settlement the lands were withdrawn from entry and settlement; citing Maddox v. Burnham, (1895) 156 U. S. 544, and Wood v. Beach, (1895) 156 U. S. 548. In so ruling, the Circuit Court followed the law as it was understood, and as it had been settled by a series of decisions of the Supreme Court. A few months after the decision of the Circuit Court was rendered, however, the Supreme Court, in Hewitt v. Schultz, (1901) 180 U. S. 139, overruled its prior decisions, and denied the efficacy of the act of withdrawal to exclude from settlement land which was not in fact withdrawn by the operation of a present grant, and which, but for the withdrawal, would have been open to entry and settlement under the public-land laws. By the decision in that case and in the subsequent case of Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Bell, (1902) 183 U. S. 675, the court has held that the withdrawal of lands by the secretary of the interior for the reason that they were supposed to be within the limits of a grant to a railroad company could not injuriously affect the right of a settler upon such land, who claimed the right to enter and settle the same as public land of the United States."

An act to provide for the adjustment of land grants made by Congress to aid in the construction of railroads and for the forfeiture of unearned lands, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Adjustment by Secretary of Interior of land grants to railroads.] That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby authorized and directed to immediately adjust, in accordance with the decisions of the Supreme Court, each of the railroad land grants made by Congress to aid in the construction of railroads and heretofore unadjusted. [24 Stat. L. 556.]

Purpose of Act.—In the case of Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Dunmeyer, (1885) 113 U. S. 629, the Supreme Court decided that under the Act of July 1, 1862, and the Acts amendatory thereof, granting lands to aid in the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from the Missouri river to the Pacific ocean, (12 St. L. 489) lands to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had attached at any time before the line of the road was definitely fixed, by filing a map of its location with the commissioner of the general land office at Washington, were exempted from the operation of the grant, and that the failure of the pre-emptor or homesteader to make the requisite proof and perfect his claim, or its actual abandonment, did not cause the land to revert to the railroad company or become a part of the grant, but in such case it remained a part of the public domain. Before this decision was pronounced, the government had issued patents or patent certificates to the railway company for lands which were not within the grant, because pre-emption and homestead rights had attached thereto before the company filed the map of the definite location of its road in the general land office. In some instances the company had sold and conveyed such lands. After the decision in the Dunmeyer case, it was plain that, as to all lands to which the right of pre-emption or homestead had attached prior to the definite location of the line of railroad, the patents issued to the railroad company by the government were void. It was equally plain that the purchasers from the railroad company of such lands acquired no title. To correct the mistake of the land department in patenting lands to the railway company not within the grant, and to relieve, as far as practicable, all persons from loss or injury by reason of the mistake, and to place all parties, as far as it could be done, in the same situation they would have been if the mistake had not occurred, Congress passed the Act of March 3, 1887 (24 Stat., ch. 376, p. 556). See also Wagstaff v. Collins, (C. C. A. 1899) 97 Fed. Rep. 3.

In U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1902) 184 U. S. 49, the court said, in speaking of the Acts of Congress of March 3, 1887, Feb. 12, 1896, and March 2, 1896: "These Acts were passed for the purpose of upholding the titles of parties who in good faith had purchased from railroad companies lands which though supposed to be part of their grants, proved not to be so."

The entire statute is remedial in its nature and must be construed so as to carry out the intent of Congress and to secure the intended relief. "Primarily, the purpose was to secure an adjustment of the various land grants in aid of railroads. Much confusion had existed in the construction and administration of those grants. There had been conflicting decisions, and Congress attempted, without displacing vested rights, to do equity to all parties claiming interests in lands within these various grants. It did not purpose to merely define legal rights or prescribe new methods for their enforcement. The courts were competent under the law, as it stood, without additional legislation to preserve such rights. There were three parties whose interests and equities were to be regarded: First, the railway company, the beneficiary of the grant; second, parties who had dealt with the railway company in reference to lands claimed by it to be within the scope of its grant; and, third, parties who had attempted to secure title under the settlement laws of the United States. With reference to the railway company, * * * Congress aimed to limit its acquisition of title to the amount of land which it had in fact earned by the construction of the road, and prescribed that the adjustment with it should be made in accordance with the rules of [the Supreme Court of the United States]; authorized actions to recover any lands improperly conveyed to the company, or, if the company had parted with them, the value thereof in money. As to those who had dealt with the railway company, its evident purpose was to secure to them the lands they had contracted for, in so far as it could be done without trespassing on the rights of settlers." Gertgens v. O'Connor, (1903) 191 U. S. 237, affirming (1902) 85 Minn. 481. See also U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1902) 117 Fed. Rep. 544.

Act cannot operate to free reservations.—Where a conveyance from a railroad company contained reservations, it was held that the Act of March 3, 1887, and the concurrent resolution of June 10, 1896, could not operate to free the title of a purchaser from the reservations. Adams v. Henderson, (1897) 168 U. S. 573.

Where adjustments have been made.—The powers conferred by the above Act upon the secretary of the interior to make adjustments and to cause suits to be brought, is confined to grants previously unadjusted. U. S. v. Des Moines Valley R. Co., (1895) 70 Fed. Rep. 435, affirmed (C. C. A. 1897) 84 Fed. Rep. 40.

A bona fide purchaser is entitled to protection under the Act of March 3, 1887. U. S. v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., (C. C. A. 1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 973, affirmed (1896) 165 U. S. 482; U. S. v. Winona, etc., R. Co., (C. C. A. 1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 948, affirmed (1897) 165 U. S. 463; U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., (C. C. A. 1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 974, affirmed (1896) 165 U. S. 482.

The Act of Congress of March 3, 1887, makes it the duty of the department and of the courts, in dealing with the matter of the readjustment of these land grants, to carefully protect the rights and equities of actual settlers. Hence, the rule should be followed that in making such adjustment, so far as it may be possible to do so, actual settlers shall not be deprived of their farms or homes, even if, to do so, it may require the apportionment to the company of a section or other quantity of land within the indemnity limits, which would not fall within the nearest tiers of sections. U. S. v. Sioux City, etc., R. Co., (1890) 43 Fed. Rep. 617.

SEC. 2. [Patents erroneously issued to be canceled.] That if it shall appear, upon the completion of such adjustments respectfully, [respectively?] or sooner, that lands have been, from any cause, heretofore erroneously certified or patented, by the United States, to or for the use or benefit of any company claiming by, through, or under grant from the United States, to aid in the construction of a railroad, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior to thereupon demand from such company a relinquishment or reconveyance to the United States of all such lands, whether within granted or indemnity limits, and if such company shall neglect or fail to so reconvey such lands to the United States within ninety days after the aforesaid demand shall have been made, it shall thereupon be the duty of the Attorney-General to commence and prosecute in the proper courts the necessary proceedings to cancel all patents, certification, or other evidence of title heretofore issued for such lands, and to restore the title thereof to the United States. [24 Stat. L. 556.]

"A chief purpose of the Act of 1887 was to declare forfeited unearned lands and restore them to the public domain, and not to give third parties and speculators an opportunity to purchase such lands from companies which had defaulted in the work of construction, and to whom the state had never conveyed, and thereby obtain a preference over actual settlers in possession." Knepper v. Sands, (1904) 194 U. S. 476.

The Adjustment Act of March 3, 1887, is not limited to cases of failure to complete the entire line, for it is declared in section 2 "that if it shall appear, upon the completion of such adjustments respectfully [sic], or sooner, that lands have been, from any cause, heretofore erroneously certified or patented, by the United States * * * it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to commence and prosecute in the proper courts the necessary proceedings." Brett v. Meisterling, (1902) 117 Fed. Rep. 768.

Authority of government to sue.—Under the above Act and those of Feb. 12, 1896, and March 2, 1896, the government may maintain a suit in equity to set aside a patent for land erroneously granted and to determine the rights of parties who claim to be bona fide purchasers, confirm their rights, and in the same proceeding demand an accounting from the railroad company in regard to lands sold and have a decree for the amounts authorized to be recovered. U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1902) 117 Fed. Rep. 544.

Certification of lands already covered by a homestead or pre-emption entry is erroneous and without authority of law. The Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 376, is mandatory, and makes it the duty of the United States to bring a suit to restore title to the United States if the party to whom the land was erroneously certified after a prior certification does not give or procure a relinquishment or reconveyance. (1891) 20 Op. Atty.-Gen. 224.

Controlling action of department.—The above Act does not authorize the courts to restrain or control the action of the department in matters of judicial cognizance. Sioux City, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1888) 34 Fed. Rep. 835.

Mineral lands erroneously patented.—Where land patented to a railroad company was known to be mineral land prior to the issuance and delivery of the patent therefor, the court held that the Act of March 3, 1887, authorized a suit to cancel the patent. U. S. v. Central Pac. R. Co., (1898) 84 Fed. Rep. 218.

The cutting of timber will not be enjoined before a hearing on the merits in a suit by the United States to cancel land grants to a railroad company, and conveyances by the company to purchasers, when the railroad company alleges facts that if proved may sustain the company's title. U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1893) 55 Fed. Rep. 566.

Defenses.—The fact that the land department committed error in issuing patents for lands which did not belong to the railroad company does not constitute a defense to an action to recover the lands or their value, where they were sold to bona fide purchasers: especially where the company was not deprived of acquiring all the lands to which it had a right. U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1902) 117 Fed. Rep. 544.

Laches.—Where a suit which was brought to cancel a patent is in reality one between private parties, the court may take into consideration the equities of the case, such, for example, as whether laches exists. U. S. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., (C. C. A. 1902) 116 Fed. Rep. 969.

Parties defendant.—In a suit under the above Act and its amendments, where it appears that the purchasers from the railroad company occupying the same position are very numerous, all need not be made defendants, but some may be made parties to represent all, in which case all the titles may be confirmed if the parties were bona fide purchasers. U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1902) 117 Fed. Rep. 544.

SEC. 3. [Entries of bona fide settlers, erroneously canceled, may be perfected.] That if, in the adjustment of said grants, it shall appear that the homestead or pre-emption entry of any bona fide settler has been erroneously canceled on account of any railroad grant or the withdrawal of public lands from market, such settler upon application shall be reinstated in all his rights and allowed to perfect his entry by complying with the public land laws: Provided, That he has not located another claim or made an entry in lieu of the one so erroneously canceled: And provided also, That he did not voluntarily abandon said original entry: And provided further, That if any of said settlers do not renew their application to be reinstated within a reasonable time, to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior, then all such unclaimed lands shall be disposed of under the public land laws, with priority of right given to bona fide purchasers of said unclaimed lands, if any, and if there be no such purchasers, then to bona fide settlers residing thereon. [24 Stat. L. 557.]

Effect of Act.—"By this section Congress provided for a reinstating of the title of one deprived thereof by an erroneous ruling of the land department, but, at the same time, limited the right of reinstating to cases in which the original entryman had not voluntarily abandoned his entry, or had not since that time made a new entry. In other words, it was limiting the restoration of the title of the original entryman to cases in which he had a continuing and present equitable right to recognition. As to all other cases, Congress reserved the determination of the equities between the government, the railroad company, and purchasers from the latter, and in subsequent sections it made provision for the adjustment of such equities." U. S. v. Winona, etc., R. Co., (1897) 165 U. S. 463.

The terms "bona fide purchasers of said unclaimed lands," as used in the third proviso of section 3 of the Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 376, mean those persons who, without knowledge or wrong or error, have purchased from the railroad company lands which had been previously entered by a pre-emption or homestead settler, whose entry had been erroneously canceled as described in the first clause of that section, and which land the pre-emption or homestead settler did not elect to claim after the recovery by the proceedings prescribed by the second section of the Act. (1887) 19 Op. Atty-Gen. 68.

Breach of warranty—invalid patents.—Where a subsequent grantee in possession of land and claiming the rights of a bona fide purchaser under the Act sued his grantor for a breach of a covenant of warranty because the patent issued to the railroad company for the land was void, the court held that the action could not be maintained. Burr v. Greeley, (C. C. A. 1892) 52 Fed. Rep. 926. See also Montgomery v. Northern Pac. R. Co., (1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 445, holding that under section 4 of the Act of March 3, 1887 innocent purchasers from a railroad company cannot maintain an action for a breach of warranty against it, even though no rules have been made by the secretary of the interior.

SEC. 4. [Patents to purchasers from railroads—liability of railroads for purchase money.] That as to all lands, except those mentioned in the foregoing section, which have been so erroneously certified or patented as aforesaid, and which have been sold by the grantee company to citizens of the United States, or to persons who have declared their intention to become such citizens, the person or persons so purchasing in good faith, his heirs or assigns, shall be entitled to the land so purchased, upon making proof of the fact of such purchase at the proper land-office, within such time and under such rules as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, after the grants respectively shall have been adjusted; and patents of the United States shall issue therefor, and shall relate back to the date of the original certification or patenting, and the Secretary of the Interior, on behalf of the United States, shall demand payment from the company which has so disposed of such lands of an amount equal to the Government price of similar lands; and in case of neglect or refusal of such company to make payment as hereafter specified, within ninety days after the demand shall have been made, the Attorney-General shall cause suit or suits to be brought against such company for the said amount: Provided, That nothing in this act shall prevent any purchaser of lands erroneously withdrawn, certified, or patented as aforesaid from recovering the purchase-money therefor from the grantee company, less the amount paid to the United States by such company as by this act required: And provided, That a mortgage or pledge of said lands by the company shall not be considered as a sale for the purpose of this act, nor shall this act be construed as a declaration of forfeiture of any portion of any land-grant for conditions broken, or as authorizing an entry for the same, or as a waiver of any rights that the United States may have on account of any breach of said conditions. Provided further, That where such purchasers, their heirs or assigns, have paid only a portion of the purchase price to the company, which is less than the Government price of similar lands, they shall be required, before the delivery of patent for their lands, to pay to the Government a sum equal to the difference between the portion of the purchase price so paid and the Government price, and in such case the amount demanded from the company shall be the amount paid to it by such purchaser. [24 Stat. L. 557, 29 Stat. L. 6.]

This section was amended by the Act of Feb. 12, 1896, ch. 18, 29 Stat. L. 6, by adding the last proviso given in the text.

Act is prospective in operation. — The Act was not intended to be limited to cases of purchasers from the railroad company prior to its date. The Act applied not merely to transactions had before its date, but any had before the time of final adjustment. The statute is remedial and is to be construed liberally, so as to effectuate the purpose of Congress and secure the relief which was intended. The mere date of the transaction between the purchaser and the railroad company is not of itself vital in determining whether there is or is not an equity in behalf of the purchaser. U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1902) 184 U. S. 49, affirming in part (C. C. A. 1899) 98 Fed. Rep. 45, affirming (1898) 88 Fed. Rep. 832. But see Manley v. Tow, (1901) 110 Fed. Rep. 241.

"The proviso in the fourth section of the Act of Congress * * * does not add to or vary the legal rights or obligations of the parties as they existed at common law; its purpose was to preserve those rights, whatever they might be, and not to confer any new right." Burr v. Greeley, (C. C. A. 1892) 52 Fed. Rep. 926.

Issuance of patents. — Patents, the issue whereof is provided for in the fourth section of the Act of March 3, 1887, are only intended to be issued after it shall have been legally determined, in the mode prescribed in the second section, that the certification or patent to the railroad company had been erroneously issued. (1887) 19 Op. Atty-Gen. 68.

Bona fide purchasers. — Section 4 of the Act, expressly referring to all other lands erroneously certified or patented to any railroad company, provides that citizens who had purchased such lands in good faith should be entitled to the lands so purchased and to patents therefor issuing directly from the United States, and that the only remedy of the government should be an action against the railroad company for the government price of similar lands. It will be observed that this protection is not granted to simply bona fide purchasers (using that term in the technical sense), but to those who have one of the elements declared to be essential to a bona fide purchaser, to wit, good faith. It matters not what constructive notice may be chargeable to such a purchaser if, in actual ignorance of any defect in the railroad company's title and in reliance upon the action of the government in the apparent transfer of title by certification or patent, he has made an honest purchase of the lands. The plain intent of this section is to secure him the lands, and to reinforce his defective title by a direct patent from the United States, and to leave to the government a simple claim for money against the railroad company. It will be observed that the technical term "bona fide purchaser" is not found in this section, and while it is provided that a mortgage or pledge shall not be considered a sale so as to entitle the mortgagee or pledgee to the benefit of the Act, it does secure to every one who in good faith has made an absolute purchase from a railroad company protection to his title irrespective of any errors or mistakes in the certification or patent. U. S. v. Winona, etc., R. Co., (1897) 165 U. S. 463.

Mortgage — foreclosure — sale. — A railroad company conveyed the legal title to lands certified under its grant as earned, in trust for its bondholders. A subsequent mortgage was foreclosed and the railroad company's equity of redemption was sold, under which circumstances the title was left in the trustees subject to the first bondholders' rights. The court held that this sale extinguished the title of the original grantee, and the trustees were taken out of the proviso of the above Act, which excepts mortgages from being considered as a sale, for the purpose of the Act; and the trustees and purchaser of the equity of redemption were bona fide purchasers under the above Act and the Act of March 2, 1896, sec. 1. U. S. v. Flint, etc., R. Co., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 551.

Unearned lands purchased after date of Act. — The fourth section of the Adjustment Act of 1887 has no reference to any unearned lands purchased after the date of that Act from a company to whom they have never been certified or patented, although if it had kept its engagement with the state and completed the road, in due time, it could have acquired an interest in them; and where the state by legislative enactment resumed the title it acquired from the United States, and afterwards relinquished its interest to the United States—all before the passage of the Adjustment Act—a party could not, within the meaning of the Act, and after its passage, have become a purchaser in good faith. Knepper v. Sands, (1904) 194 U. S. 476.

Finding of good faith of purchasers.—Where the land department finds that a party is a purchaser in good faith, the finding will not be disturbed unless it clearly appears to have been founded on some construction of the law that cannot be sustained. Linkawiler v. Schneider, (1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 203.

Pleading.—Where a purchaser from a railroad company sued the company for breach of warranty, and the railroad company alleged that the purchaser was entitled under the Act of March 3, 1887, sec. 4, to the land on making proof of his purchase at the land office, also that the purchaser was entitled to purchase land under section 5, the court held that the railroad company's answer was demurrable as it did not allege that the land belonged to the class governed by the Act. Montgomery v. Northern Pac. R. Co., (1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 445.

Decree.—A suit was brought to annul certain patents and the certification of lands not patented. Purchasers from the company were made parties defendant. The decree which canceled the patents and certifications saved the rights of the purchasers. Pending the appeal in the Supreme Court of the United States, the Act of March 2, 1896, was passed. The court affirmed the decree, allowing the government to proceed in the Circuit Court to a final decree as to the purchasers. It was held that the Act of March 2, 1896, was applicable to the purchasers of lands patented to the railroad, whose titles were confirmed by that Act, and their titles would be recognized by the final decree, provided a showing of good faith was made, and regardless of citizenship. It was also held that in regard to land which had been certified and not patented to the railroad company, a decree against purchasers not shown to be citizens or to have declared their intention in respect to becoming citizens would be entered in favor of the government. U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1898) 88 Fed. Rep. 832, affirmed (C. C. A. (1899) 98 Fed. Rep. 45, affirmed in part (1902) 184 U. S. 49.

Recovery of price.—The provision requiring the company to pay to the United States an amount equal to the government price of similar lands was within the constitutional power of Congress to enact. Where it was contended that Congress could not make the railroad company a debtor by a retrospective Act, the court said: "The answer is that the company, having sold and disposed of the government's property without right, was, regardless of the statute, liable to the government, if not for its true value, certainly for the amount of money received by the company therefor, and which it had no right to retain; for, having received the land illegally, and disposed of it for money, there was an implied contract on the part of the company to pay over the money so received to its true owner. * * * There was no attempt on the part of Congress to add to the company's legal or equitable liability, but surely it could waive the whole or any part of the right of the United States without any valid objection on the part of the company. And by the legislation under consideration Congress did waive a part of the government's right in the present case; for it appears that all of the lands in suit that were conveyed by the company were sold by it for sums in excess of the government price for such lands." U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1902) 117 Fed. Rep. 544.

SEC. 5. [Rights of purchasers from railroads of coterminous lands not within grants.] That where any said company shall have sold to citizens of the United States, or to persons who have declared their intention to become such citizens, as a part of its grant, lands not conveyed to or for the use of such company, said lands being the numbered sections prescribed in the grant, and being coterminous with the constructed parts of said road, and where the lands so sold are for any reason excepted from the operation of the grant to said company, it shall be lawful for the bona fide purchaser thereof from said company to make payment to the United States for said lands at the ordinary Government price for like lands, and thereupon patents shall issue therefor to the said bona fide purchaser, his heirs or assigns: Provided, That all lands shall be excepted from the provisions of this section which at the date of such sales were in the bona fide occupation of adverse claimants under the pre-emption or homestead laws of the United States, and whose claims and occupation have not since been voluntarily abandoned, as to which excepted lands the said pre-emption and homestead claimants shall be permitted to perfect their proofs and entries and receive patents therefor:

Provided further, That this section shall not apply to lands settled upon subsequent to the first day of December, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, by persons claiming to enter the same under the settlement laws of the United States, as to which lands the parties claiming the same as aforesaid shall be entitled to prove up and enter as in other like cases. [24 Stat. L. 557.]

The main purpose of this Act was to relieve bona fide purchasers from railway companies of forfeited lands by permitting such purchasers or settlers to perfect their entries upon compliance with the public-land laws. San José Land, etc., Co. v. San José Ranch Co., (1903) 189 U. S. 177, affirming (1900) 129 Cal. 673.

Although a settler is favored in law, however, it does not follow therefrom that he is the only one whose equities are to be considered. Congress, by the above section, made provision for his protection—such provision as it deemed sufficient. While it gave to purchasers from the railway company a preferential right of purchase, it excepted therefrom lands which at the time of such purchase “were in the bona fide occupation of adverse claimants under the pre-emption or homestead laws of the United States, and whose claims and occupation have not since been voluntarily abandoned.” In other words, it said that no purchaser from the railway company should have a preferential right of purchasing any lands which at the time of his dealing with the railway company were in the hands of a bona fide settler under the laws of the United States, unless such settler should voluntarily abandon his settlement. As between a purchaser from the railway company and a settler on the lands, the settler was given the prior right. Where a party settled upon lands and put improvements thereon with knowledge of another’s superior rights, the court said, “He does not come within the letter of the statute, nor does he come within the reach of any reasonable equities.” Gertgens v. O’Connor, (1903) 191 U. S. 237.

Contests between private claimants—intent of legislation.—“In the settlement and readjustment of the railroad land grants, as provided for in the Acts of Congress * * *, it is the legislative intent that the government should act liberally with all persons who had in good faith purchased portions of the unearned lands from the railroad companies, and that the absolute or so-called technical right of the government to insist upon the restoration to the public domain of all lands not earned by the railway company under the terms of the grant to it would be waived in favor of good-faith purchasers from the railway company, but that it is not the intent of these Acts to declare that the equities and rights of third parties shall be disregarded in favor of such purchasers. In other words, when the issue is between individual claimants it was not the legislative intent to declare that purchasers from the defaulting railway companies of unearned lands should be favored over other good-faith claimants without regard being paid to the actual equities of such parties, but, on the contrary, in each the respective rights of such contesting claimants should be settled according to well-established and recognized rules of equity and public policy.” Benner v. Lane, (1902) 116 Fed. Rep. 407.

Citizenship.—Where it was contended that a party was an innocent purchaser for value of lands unlawfully selected by a railroad and that, therefore, he and his grantees were entitled to be protected in their title by virtue of the Act of March 3, 1887, the court said: “It is a sufficient answer to this contention that this defense was not set up in the state courts, and that it does not appear anywhere in the record that Clark, to whom the railroad company conveyed, or any subsequent grantee in the chain of title, was a citizen of the United States, or had declared his intention to become a citizen, and hence the Act of 1887, which purports to confirm alone the titles of citizens or those who have declared their intention to become citizens, has no application.” Clark v. Herington, (1902) 186 U. S. 206.

A corporation is a citizen within the meaning of the above Act. Ramsay v. Tacoma Land Co., (1903) 31 Wash. 351.

Aliens.—Congress expressly limited the privileges granted by the Act of 1887 to citizens of the United States or those who had declared their intention to become such. It excluded aliens, and in so doing acted in harmony with the general scope of public land legislation. Although in the Act of 1896, in respect to patented lands, Congress recognized aliens as entitled to the benefits of a bona fide purchase, the fact, however, that in a later statute, and in respect to a different class of lands, it extended certain privileges, is no reason for ignoring the limitations contained in his Act as applied to the lands covered by it. U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1902) 184 U. S. 49, affirming in part (C. C. A. 1899) 98 Fed. Rep. 45, affirming (1898) 88 Fed. Rep. 832.

Subsequent grantees — qualifications.—“The ruling of the department has been that the right of purchase from the government conferred by this section is not limited to the immediate purchaser from the company, but may be exercised by a subsequent grantee, who has the necessary qualifications, and that in such case it is immaterial what were the qualifications of such purchaser.” U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1902) 184 U. S. 49, (1898) 88 Fed. Rep. 832.

Necessity for conveyance to company or to some one for its use.—“To give the preference to the purchaser under the provisions of this section, it must appear that at the date of the sale to him by the railway company the title to the land purchased had been conveyed by the United States to the company, or to some one for its use and benefit. A conveyance by the United States of land to a third party as a trustee, to be held by the trustee, in order to ascertain whether the railway company will earn the lands, it being the duty of the trustee to reconvey the lands to the United States if the conditions of the grant are not performed, is not a conveyance to the company or for its use, within the meaning of section 5 of the Readjustment Act." Manley v. Tow, (1901) 110 Fed. Rep. 241; Benner v. Lane, (1902) 116 Fed. Rep. 407.

Upon the showing of a mere right to purchase granted by the above Act, the plaintiff was held not to be entitled to demand that its title be adjudged good and valid, and that the defendant had no estate or interest in the land, or that it should be enjoined from asserting any claim adverse to the plaintiff, or that it should recover possession of the land, with the right of ousting the defendant from improvements which its predecessors had made thereon, where the plaintiff never sought to take advantage of the above Act, or ever applied to purchase the lands, or made payment to the United States, or did anything whatever before the beginning of suit to indicate that this statute was relied upon. San José Land, etc., Co. v. San José Ranch Co., (1903) 189 U. S. 177.

Notwithstanding mere errors or irregularities in the proceedings of the land department, the above Act and the Act of March 2, 1896, confirmed the title of purchasers from a railroad of lands certified or patented to or for its benefit, and notwithstanding the fact that the lands so certified or patented were, by the true construction of the land grants, although within the limits, excepted from their operation; provided that they purchased in good faith, paid value for the lands, and that the lands were public lands in the statutory sense of the term, and free from individual or other claims. U. S. v. Winona, etc., R. Co., (1897) 165 U. S. 463. See also U. S. v. Flint, etc., R. Co., (C. C. A. 1899) 95 Fed. Rep. 551.

Facts authorizing confirmation of title.—Certain parties received a conveyance of land in controversy from a railroad company prior to the issuance of a patent to the company, and the land was the numbered sections prescribed in its grant; it was also coterminous with the constructed parts of the road. At the time the parties acquired the land it was not occupied by adverse claimants, as complainants' ancestor had relinquished the possession thereof a year and a half previously under circumstances which were regarded as voluntary relinquishment. It was held that the fifth section of the Act of March 3, 1887, covered the case in all its essential features and entitled the parties to a confirmation of their title. Wahstaff v. Collins, (C. C. A. 1899) 97 Fed. Rep. 3.

Bona fide purchasers.—A party who for a consideration secured an option from a railroad company, and relying upon the option expended money and labor in procuring settlers, was held to be a bona fide purchaser within the purview of the above Act. Gertgens v. O'Connor, (1903) 191 U. S. 237. In this case the court said: "The scope of section 5 is disclosed by its opening words, 'where any said company shall have sold.' In case of a sale, certain privileges are given upon certain conditions. Nowhere does it provide as one of those conditions that the company shall have received full, or indeed any, payment. If there is a sale it is sufficient. Why in a remedial statute may not the word include a sale upon conditions, one in which the proposed buyer has an election to accept the company's promise? The section does not attempt to relieve any one whose transactions with the railway company were not in good faith. The term 'bona fide purchaser' is used in the statute; but, as we pointed out in U. S. v. Winona, etc., R. Co., (1897) 165 U. S. 463, 480, 481, not in any technical sense, but simply as demanding good faith in the transactions between the individual and the company. It is true that the parties who, in that case, had dealt with the company had in fact purchased and paid value, and it was unnecessary to consider anything more than the effect of such transactions. But still it was distinctly held that the term 'bona fide purchaser' was not intended in any technical sense, but only as one implying good faith." The court also said: "The rulings of the land department have been along the line of a recognition of the fact that attempts in good faith by a party to obtain from a railroad company for bona fide settlements lands believed to belong to it or expected to be acquired by it, present cases which were intended to be included within the Act of 1887, and entitled to its protection."

Where a mortgage was made subsequent to the Act of March 3, 1887, one claiming under the mortgage is not entitled to the rights of a bona fide purchaser which are conferred by the Act. U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1896) 76 Fed. Rep. 134.

Where a party purchased for a valuable consideration land from a railroad without notice that a claim was made to the land by the United States and entered into possession of the land, he was held to be a bona fide purchaser within the meaning of the Act and entitled to its protection. U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1896) 76 Fed. Rep. 134.

Where parties purchased land from a railroad company knowing that the land was at the time mineral land, they were held not to be bona fide purchasers. U. S. v. Central Pac. R. Co., (1898) 84 Fed. Rep. 218.

Anterior to any claim of right by the railroad company, by virtue either of filing its map of definite location or of surveying and staking upon the ground its line, a pre-emption filing was placed upon the land, which was never canceled. There remained, therefore, on the record until after the certification to the state a claim of a right to pre-empt. The party making this claim continued in possession by himself or tenant until not only the construction of the railroad, but until after the conveyance by the railroad company to the land company, and so remained in possession until suit of ejectment was brought by the land company in 1877. On the strength of these facts the Court of Appeals was of opinion that the land company could not be considered as one purchasing in good faith from the railroad company; that it took its conveyance with notice, from possession, of all the rights and claims of the party so in possession, and therefore that it did not bring itself within the protecting clauses of the Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 376, 24 Stat. L. 556, and there was nothing to stay the right of the government to have this certification so erroneously issued canceled. With that conclusion the United States Supreme Court concurred. Winona, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1897) 165 U. S. 485, distinguishing U. S. v. Winona, etc., R. Co., (1897) 165 U. S. 463.

Where a party was in occupation of lands as a homesteader, one who purchased unearned and unconveyed lands from a railroad company which had forfeited its rights, and who had actual knowledge of the occupancy of the homesteader, is not a bona fide purchaser as against the homesteader within the meaning of the above Act. Benner v. Lane, (1902) 116 Fed. Rep. 407.

Speculative transaction.—While, according to the construction of the land department, the grantee of a purchaser from a railroad company is entitled to invoke the protection of this statute, yet the grantee must be one who is himself a bona fide purchaser and not one whose purchase was simply for the purpose of acquiring title from the government for the benefit of a foreigner. In U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1902) 184 U. S. 49, the testimony plainly showed a purely speculative transaction. The purchaser paid nothing. His agreement was to protect the company, in the original purchase of its title, or rather in its purchase money, and then make what he could over and above that. He did not buy with the purpose of holding the land, but was simply engaged in an effort to secure to the original purchaser from the railroad company the money it had invested in the purchase, advancing in that effort some money in the way of taxes and devoting his legal services to that end, and hoping to make a profitable speculation out of the matter. Under these circumstances the court held that the party was not a bona fide purchaser within the meaning of the Act.

A mere licensee is not a bona fide purchaser within the meaning of the above Act, where no contract of sale was made and the railroad company expressly refused to enter into such a contract. U. S. v. Holmes, (1900) 105 Fed. Rep. 41, judgment reversed (C. C. A. 1902) 118 Fed. Rep. 995.

Homestead entry of unearned lands—good faith.—Where a homesteader had knowledge that the terms of a railroad grant had not been complied with, nor the land earned thereunder, and good reason to believe that it would soon be restored to the public domain, as in fact it was, his good faith is not impeached by the fact that the land when settled upon was within the limits of a railroad grant, under which it had been withdrawn from market. Manley v. Tow, (1901) 110 Fed. Rep. 241; Benner v. Lane, (1902) 116 Fed. Rep. 407.

Where a party purchased in good faith from a railroad company and applied within a reasonable time to purchase the land after the land department's decision denying the railroad's right to the land, it was held that the party had a preference right over a party who made a homestead entry within four months after notice that the railroad's rights were canceled and with knowledge of all the facts. Ramsay v. Tacoma Land Co., (1903) 31 Wash. 351.

Settlement not protected.—A party attempted to enter and settle in lands under the homestead laws, but was rejected by the land department and threatened away by one of the defendants who purchased the land from the railroad. The defendants were permitted to purchase the land under the Act of March 3, 1887. The court held that the attempted settlement was not protected by the provisions of the above Act. Norton v. Evans, (C. C. A. 1897) 82 Fed. Rep. 804.

Determination by land department.—The land department's determination that a party was a bona fide purchaser was held to be conclusive in Brett v. Meisterling, (1902) 117 Fed. Rep. 768, and the court refused to hold that as a matter of law the department committed error in issuing a patent where at the time the party contracted with the railway company to receive his deed for the land no one was in possession thereof.

Where it was claimed that certain land in dispute did not fall within the limits of a railway grant and, therefore, the Readjustment Act of March 3, 1887, was not applicable, it was held that the action of the land department was final upon the question of the location of the limiting lines of the grant, consequently, the rights of the parties were to be determined upon the theory that the land in dispute fell within the limits of the railroad grant. Brett v. Meisterling, (1902) 117 Fed. Rep. 768.

The word "grant," in the fifth section of the Act of March 3, 1887, should be construed to include (as it does in the preceding sections of the Act) both the primary and indemnity limits. (1887) 19 Op. Atty.-Gen. 68.

Breach of warranty—defense.—In Montgomery v. Northern Pac. R. Co., (1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 446, it was held that the fact that the plaintiff purchased the land under the Act of March 3, 1887, sec. 5, was no defense to an action against the railroad company for a breach of warranty.

SEC. 6. [Rights of purchasers of land sold for taxes.] That where any such lands have been sold and conveyed, as the property of any railroad company, for the State and county taxes thereon, and the grant to such company has been thereafter forfeited, the purchaser thereof shall have the prior right, which shall continue for one year from the approval of this act, and no longer, to purchase such lands from the United States at the Government price, and patents for such lands shall thereupon issue. Provided, That said lands were not, previous to or at the time of the taking effect of such grant, in the possession of or subject to the right of any actual settler. [24 Stat. L. 558.]

SEC. 7. [Limitation of quantity of lands to be conveyed.] That no more lands shall be certified or conveyed to any State or to any corporation or individual, for the benefit of either of the companies herein mentioned, where it shall appear to the Secretary of the Interior that such transfers may create an excess over the quantity of lands to which such State corporation or individual would be rightfully entitled. [24 Stat. L. 558.]

An act to forfeit certain lands heretofore granted for the purpose of aiding in the construction of railroads, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Forfeiture and restoration to public domain of unearned lands granted to railroads.] That there is hereby forfeited to the United States, and the United States hereby resumes the title thereto, all lands heretofore granted to any State or to any corporation to aid in the construction of a railroad opposite to and coterminous with the portion of any such railroad not now completed, and in operation, for the construction or benefit of which such lands were granted; and all such lands are declared to be a part of the public domain: Provided, That this act shall not be construed as forfeiting the right of way or station grounds of any railroad company heretofore granted. [26 Stat. L. 496.]

The effect of this Act was to divest the legal title to lands out of the state and to invest them in the government, and where a certificate or patent is subsequently issued for the lands the patentee obtains the legal and equitable title. Williams' Invest. Co. v. Pugh, (1902) 137 Ala. 346; Dudley v. Gallops, (1900) 128 Ala. 236; Sullivan v. Van Kirk Land, etc., Co., (1899) 124 Ala. 225; McCarver v. Herzberg, (1898) 120 Ala. 523; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Miller, (1898) 20 Wash. 21.

Since the Northern Pacific Railroad Company never made a definite location of any line of road between Portland and Walula, the original land grant never took effect as to any land between those places; therefore, lands in controversy which were contiguous to the line built from Portland to Tacoma, within the grant of the joint resolution of May 31, 1870, were public lands of the United States, not reserved, sold, granted or otherwise appropriated, and by said joint resolution the same were granted to the company upon conditions which having been performed the title of the company and its vendees became vested and protected, and not affected by the above Act. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Balthazar, (1897) 82 Fed. Rep. 270.

Effect of Act on condition in granting Act.—It is clear implication from the action of Congress in the Forfeiture Act of Sept. 29, 1890, that Congress did not intend to insist on any condition subsequent which existed in the granting Act. U. S. v. Tennessee, etc., R. Co., (1895) 71 Fed. Rep. 71.

Lands restored to previous condition.—Under the Act of Sept. 29, 1890, it was the purpose of Congress to restore the lands to the public domain in precisely the same condition that they were in before the granting Acts were passed. Johnston v. Morris, (C. C. A. 1896) 72 Fed. Rep. 890.

Forfeiture is for benefit of government only.—Oregon, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1896) 77 Fed. Rep. 67, affirmed (1900) 176 U. S. 28; Eastern Oregon Land Co. v. Wilcox, (C. C. A. 1897) 79 Fed. Rep. 719, affirmed (1900) 176 U. S. 51.

Right of railroad's grantee to sue for purchase price of lands.—Where a claimant entered lands within the boundaries of a railroad grant and paid the price fixed by statute and both parties regarded that as the value of the land, but the government did not guarantee performance on the part of the grantee, a suit cannot be maintained because Congress

Right of railroad's grantee to sue for purchase price of lands.—Where a claimant entered lands within the boundaries of a railroad grant and paid the price fixed by statute and both parties regarded that as the value of the land, but the government did not guarantee performance on the part of the grantee, a suit cannot be maintained because Congress annulled the grant in consequence of the railroad company's inaction. Foster v. U. S., (1897) 32 Ct. Cl. 170.

Lands opposite completed roads.—The above Act does not apply to lands opposite to completed roads, consequently lands so situated were not forfeited by the Act. U. S. v. Tennessee, etc., R. Co., (1900) 176 U. S. 242, reversing judgment in (C. C. A. 1897) 81 Fed. Rep. 544.

SEC. 2. [Preference right to homestead entry of settlers on forfeited lands.] That all persons who, at the date of the passage of this act, are actual settlers in good faith on any of the lands hereby forfeited and are otherwise qualified, on making due claim on said lands under the homestead law within six months after the passage of this act, shall be entitled to a preference right to enter the same under the provisions of the homestead law and this act, and shall be regarded as such actual settlers from the date of actual settlement or occupation; and any person who has not heretofore had the benefit of the homestead or pre-emption law, or who has failed from any cause to perfect the title to a tract of land heretofore entered by him under either of said laws, may make a second homestead entry under the provisions of this act. The Secretary of the Interior shall make such rules as will secure to such actual settlers these rights. [26 Stat. L. 496.]

Amendment.—See the Act of Feb. 18, 1891, ch. 244, infra, p. 445.

Where a party was and had been in possession of public lands open to settlement pursuant to the Forfeiture Act of Congress approved Sept. 29, 1890, the court held that the party was entitled to maintain an action of ejectment against another party who made a peaceable entry upon the land and who intended to enter the same as a homestead under the laws of the United States, but who did not connect herself with the government title through the homestead laws or otherwise. Rourke v. McNally, (1893) 98 Cal. 291.

After an entry and settlement of lands it was held that a railroad could not make an entry on lands under the Act of March 3, 1875, to acquire a right of way. Johnson v. Bridal Veil Lumbering Co., (1893) 24 Oregon 182.

Right to purchase as asset in bankruptcy.—The equitable owner of a certain tract of land was a party whose equitable title consisted of the right to purchase the land from the government of the United States under the above Act. Subsequently the party filed a petition and obtained a discharge in bankruptcy. Judgment creditors brought proceedings to revoke his discharge in bankruptcy because the land and a crop thereon grown were not listed in the schedule of assets. It appeared that the bankrupt took possession of the land for the purpose of establishing and claiming a right to purchase it from the Northern Pacific Railroad Company in case the railroad company should acquire title to it from the United States. The railroad grant was afterward forfeited and a certain party made a homestead entry for the land. The bankrupt contested this entry, which contest was decided adversely to him. Subsequently the homesteader took possession of the land, established his residence and so continued in the actual occupancy of the premises until after the time the bankrupt filed his petition and after the time of his discharge. The commissioner of the general land office reversed the decision of the register and receiver in denying the bankrupt's claim to the land, and decided the contest against the homesteader. The decision of the commissioner was sustained by the secretary of the interior. The bankrupt informed his attorney of his relation to the land in question and took his advice as to including the land in his schedule of assets. The attorney advised him that he had no such right or interest as would pass by assignment to his trustee and as constituting an asset of his estate. It also appeared that the bankrupt gave to his trustee full information in respect to the matter, so that there was no fraud or concealment on his part. The court held that the circumstances did not warrant a revocation of the discharge. In re Hansen, (1901) 107 Fed. Rep. 252.

SEC. 3. [Right of purchasers from State or railroad to purchase, or to remove crops, etc.] That in all cases where persons being citizens of the United States, or who have declared their intentions to become such, in accordance with the naturalization laws of the United States, are in possession of any of the lands affected by any such grant and hereby resumed by and restored to the United States, under deed, written contract with, or license from, the State or corporation to which such grant was made, or its assignees, executed prior to January first, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, or where persons may have settled said lands with bona fide intent to secure title thereto by purchase from the State or corporation when earned by compliance with the conditions or requirements of the granting acts of Congress they shall be entitled to purchase the same from the United States, in quantities not exceeding three hundred and twenty acres to any one such person, at the rate of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, at any time within two years from the passage of this act, and on making said payments to receive patents therefor, and where any such person in actual possession of any such lands and having improved the same prior to the first day of January, eighteen hundred and ninety, under deed, written contract, or license as aforesaid, or his assignor, has made partial or full payments to said railroad company prior to said date, on account of the purchase price of said lands from it, on proof of the amount of such payments he shall be entitled to have the same, to the extent and amount of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, if so much has been paid, and not more, credited to him on account of and as part of the purchase price herein provided to be paid the United States for said lands, or such persons may elect to abandon their purchases and make claim on said lands under the homestead law and as provided in the preceding section of this act: Provided, That in all cases where parties, persons, or corporations, with the permission of such State or corporation, or its assignees, are in the possession of and have made improvements upon any of the lands hereby resumed and restored, and are not entitled to enter the same under the provisions of this act, such parties, persons, or corporations shall have six months in which to remove any growing crop, and within which time they shall also be entitled to remove all buildings and other movable improvements from said lands: Provided further, That the provisions of this section shall not apply to any lands situate in the State of Iowa on which any person in good faith has made or asserted the right to make a pre-emption or homestead settlement: And provided further, That nothing in this act contained shall be construed as limiting the rights granted to purchasers or settlers by "An act to provide for the adjustment of land grants made by Congress to aid in the construction of railroads and for the forfeiture of unearned lands, and for other purposes," approved March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, or as repealing, altering, or amending said act, nor as in any manner affecting any cause of action existing in favor of any purchaser against his grantor for breach of any covenants of title. [26 Stat. L. 496.]

Extension of time to purchaser.—See amendment by Act of Feb. 18, 1891, ch. 244, and statutes following, infra, p. 445.

Who are licensees.—Where a party purchased and improved land granted to a railroad, and received from the vendor company a postal card acknowledging the receipt of the application to purchase, stating that the same had been placed on file, and briefly describing the character of settlement or improvement necessary to be made in order to obtain a preference right of purchase from the company, it was held that the party would, independently of any rights the vendor might have had, be deemed to have been a licensee of the company within the above Act, where he caused the land to be fenced and plowed, and cropped it for several years and had possession thereof by a tenant, it further appearing by a resolution of the company that such persons would have been deemed by it to be licensees, if the land had been forfeited. Wiseman v. Eastman, (1899) 21 Wash. 163.

Separate estate of husband.—Where under a preference right given to a party in possession of lands a surviving husband purchased lands which had been forfeited, it was held that the purchase would give him a separate estate in the lands, even if the land was taken possession of by both husband and wife under the conveyance from the railroad company during the existence of the community. Carratt v. Carratt, (1903) 32 Wash. 517.

The phrase "are in possession" does not contemplate an actual settlement in the case of licensees. Possession by a tenant is sufficient. Wiseman v. Eastman, (1899) 21 Wash. 163.

Federal question—jurisdiction of United States courts.—Where the jurisdiction of the federal court was invoked on the ground that a federal question was involved in the case, where a bill was filed against certain parties claiming under the Act of Sept. 29, 1890, but in the complainant's statement of his controversy with the defendant as set forth in the bill, it did not appear that the dispute arose as to the meaning of the homestead laws or as to the Act of Sept. 29, 1890, the court held that the trial of the question involved only an investigation of the facts and that a federal court had no jurisdiction of the case made. Butler v. Shafer, (1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 161.

SEC. 4. [Repeal of special acts.]

This section repealed certain grants to Iowa and Minnesota. See 10 Stat. L. 9; 13 Stat. L. 74, 98, 527; 14 Stat. L. 88. It reads as follows:

"SEC. 4. That section five of an Act entitled 'An act for a grant of lands to the State of Iowa in alternate sections to aid in the construction of a railroad in said State,' approved May seventeenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and section seven of an act entitled 'An act extending the time for the completion of certain land-grant railroads in the States of Minnesota and Iowa, and for other purposes,' approved March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-five, and also section five of an act entitled 'An act making an additional grant of lands to the State of Minnesota in alternate sections to aid in the construction of railroads in said State,' approved July fourth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, so far as said sections are applicable to lands embraced within the indemnity limits of said grants, be, and the same are hereby, repealed; and so much of the provisions of section four of an act approved June second, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and entitled 'An act to amend an act entitled "An act making a grant of lands to the State of Iowa in alternate sections to aid in the construction of certain railroads in said State," approved May fifteenth, eighteen hundred and fifty-six, be, and the same are hereby, repealed so far as they require the Secretary of the Interior to reserve any lands but the odd sections within the primary or six miles granted limits of the roads mentioned in said act of June second, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, or the act of which the same is amendatory.' [26 Stat. L. 497.]

SEC. 5. [Relief of certain assignees of Northern Pacific R. R. Co.]

This section is special, providing for relief of certain assignees of the Northern Pacific R. R. Co.

SEC. 6. [Forfeited lands not to inure to the benefit of original grantees.]

That no lands declared forfeited to the United States by this act shall by reason of such forfeiture inure to the benefit of any State or corporation to which lands may have been granted by Congress, except as herein otherwise provided; nor shall this act be construed to enlarge the area of land originally covered by any such grant, or to confer any right upon any State, corporation or person to lands which were excepted from such grant. Nor shall the moiety of the lands granted to any railroad company on account of a main and a branch line appertaining to uncompleted road, and hereby forfeited, within the conflicting limits of the grants for such main and branch lines, when but one of such lines has been completed, inure by virtue of the forfeiture hereby declared, to the benefit of the completed line. [26 Stat. L. 498.]

SEC. 7. [Relief of certain purchasers from United States of lands granted to Gulf and Ship Island R. R. Co.]

This provision is special, and for that reason is omitted.

SEC. 8. [Relief of Mobile and Girard and Alabama and Florida R. R. Cos., and purchases of lands granted.]

This section is special legislation, and for that reason is omitted.

An act to amend an act entitled an act to forfeit certain lands heretofore granted for the purpose of aiding in the construction of railroads, and for other purposes.

[Act of Feb. 18, 1891, ch. 244, 26 Stat. L. 764.]

[Forfeited railroad lands — extension of time limit for homestead entries or purchases.] That an act entitled "An act to forfeit certain lands heretofore granted for the purpose of aiding in the construction of railroads, and for other purposes," approved September twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and ninety, be, and the same is hereby, amended so that the period within which settlers, purchasers, and others under the provisions of said act may make application to purchase lands forfeited thereby or to make or move to perfect any homestead entries which are preserved or authorized under said act when such period begins to run from the passage of the act shall begin to run from the date of the promulgation by the Commissioner of the General Land Office of the instructions to the officers of the local land offices, for their direction in the disposition of said lands: Provided, That nothing herein shall extend any time or enlarge any rights given by said act to any railroad company. [26 Stat. L. 764.]

An act to amend an act entitled "An act to forfeit certain lands heretofore granted for the purpose of aiding in the construction of railroads, and for other purposes."

[Forfeited railroad lands — extension of time to purchase.] That section three of an Act entitled "An Act to forfeit certain lands heretofore granted for the purpose of aiding in the construction of railroads, and for other purposes," approved September twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and ninety, and the several Acts amendatory thereof, be, and the same is, amended so as to extend the time within which persons entitled to purchase lands forfeited by said Act shall be permitted to purchase the same, in the quantities and upon the terms provided in said section, at any time prior to January first, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven: Provided, That actual residence upon the lands by persons claiming the right to purchase the same shall not be required where such lands have been fenced, cultivated, or otherwise improved by such claimants, and such persons shall be permitted to purchase two or more tracts of such lands by legal subdivisions, whether contiguous or not, but not exceeding three hundred and twenty acres in the aggregate. [28 Stat. L. 15, 29 Stat. L. 4.]

This Act was amended to read as above by the Act of Jan. 23, 1896, ch. 8, 29 Stat. L. 4. The amendment consisted in the addition of the proviso above given, and the omission of the proviso in the Act as originally enacted, which was as follows:

"Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to interfere with any adverse claim that may have attached to the lands or any part thereof."

An act for the relief of settlers upon certain lands in the States of North Dakota and South Dakota.

[Preamble.] Whereas under the rulings of the General Land Office the extension into Dakota Territory, now States of North Dakota and South Dakota, of the limits of the grants of land made by Congress to aid in the construction of the several lines of railroad now owned by the Saint Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company was denied, and in consequence of said rulings lands within the limits of the said grants in the said States have been claimed, settled upon, occupied, and improved by numerous persons in good faith under color of title or of right to do so derived from the various laws of the United States relating to the public domain, and are now claimed by them, their heirs, or assigns, and many of said lands have actually been patented to such occupants or to their grantors; and

Whereas under recent construction of said grants the said occupants, improvers, or purchasers, are liable to be evicted from their holdings: Now, therefore, for the purpose of relieving the said occupants, improvers, and purchasers of the said granted lands from the hardship of being now deprived of the same under the circumstances aforesaid,

[SEC. 1.] [Release by St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Manitoba R. R. Co. of certain lands — titles of settlers and purchasers perfected.] That the Secretary of the Interior shall, as soon as conveniently may be done, cause to be prepared and delivered to the said railway company a list of the several tracts which have been purchased, claimed, occupied, and improved, as stated in section two of this act, and are now claimed by such purchasers or occupants, their heirs or assigns, according to the smallest Government subdivisions. Within a reasonable time after the receipt by the said railway company of the said list, it shall execute under its corporate seal and deliver to the Secretary of the Interior its deed of conveyance releasing to the United States all its claims upon the lands described in said list, and shall also procure and cause to be released to the United States all liens and claims to said lands derived through or under said company, whereupon all right, title, and interest of the said railway company to each of such tracts shall revert to the United States, and such tracts shall be treated, under the laws thereof, in the same manner as if no rights thereto had ever vested in the said railway company, and all qualified persons who have occupied and made improvements on said lands, as herein provided, or who have purchased said lands in good faith, their heirs and assigns, shall be permitted to perfect their titles to said lands according to law as if said grants had never been made. [27 Stat. L. 390.]

SEC. 2. [Selections by railroad in lieu of lands released.] That the said railway company is hereby permitted to select, in lieu of any lands forming odd-numbered sections or parts thereof situated in the State of North Dakota or in the State of South Dakota, within the ten-mile limits of a grant of lands made to the Territory of Minnesota by act of Congress, entitled "An act making a grant of land to the Territory of Minnesota, in alternate sections, to aid in the construction of certain railroads in said Territory, and granting public lands, in alternate sections, to the State of Alabama, to aid in the construction of a certain railroad in said State," approved March third, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, as amended by an act of Congress entitled "An act extending the time for the completion of certain land-grant railroads in the States of Minnesota and Iowa, and for other purposes," approved March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-five, and of a grant made by act of Congress entitled "An act authorizing the Saint Paul and Pacific Railroad Company to change its line in consideration of a relinquishment of lands," approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, opposite to and coterminous with such portion of said railroad as was constructed and completed within the time required by the said grant and the acts amendatory thereof for the construction and completion of the whole of said railroad, which, prior to January first, anno Domini eighteen hundred and ninety-one, any person had purchased or occupied or improved, in good faith, under color of title or right to do so, derived from any law of the United States relating to the public domain, but not including any lands within the limits of the grant, to aid in construction of the Saint Vincent branch of said road, as located under the act of March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, upon which any person or persons had, in good faith, settled and made or acquired valuable improvements thereon prior to March, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, an equal quantity of non mineral public lands, so classified as non mineral at the time of actual Government survey which has been or shall be made, of the United States not reserved and to which no adverse right or claim shall have attached or have been initiated at the time of the making of such selection lying within any State into or through which the railway owned by said railway company runs, to the extent of the lands so relinquished and released: Provided, That the lands to be released by said company, and in lieu of which said company shall be entitled to select other lands of equal area, shall only include lands to which, at the date of the definite location of the lines of railroad in aid of which said land grants were made, no paramount grant, sale, pre-emption, or homestead right had attached, this proviso not to be considered as in any way extending the limitation as to eighteen hundred and seventy-seven herein above provided: And provided further, That the tracts of land so by said company to be selected in any one body under the authority of this act shall not exceed six hundred and forty acres, and such selections shall not exceed in the aggregate sixty-five thousand acres. But said company shall not be required to relinquish any greater amount of land than it is permitted by this act to select. [27 Stat. L. 391.]

SEC. 3. [Patents for lands selected — lists of lands — surveys.] That upon the filing by the said railroad company, at the local land office of the land district in which any tract of land selected in pursuance of this act shall lie, a list describing the tract or tracts selected, and the payment of the fees prescribed by law in analogous cases, and the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, he shall cause to be executed, in due form of law, and deliver to said company, a patent of the United States, conveying to it the lands so selected. In case the tract so selected shall at the time of selection be unsurveyed, the list filed by the company at the local land office shall describe such tract in such manner as to designate the same with a reasonable degree of certainty, and within the period of three months after the lands including such tract shall have been surveyed, and the plats thereof filed in the local land office, a new selection list shall be filed by said company, describing such tract according to such survey; and in case such tract as originally selected and described in the lists filed in the local land office shall not precisely conform with the lines of the official survey, the said company shall be permitted to describe such tract anew, so as to produce such conformity. [27 Stat. L. 392.]

SEC. 4. [Acceptance of act.] That this act shall take effect and be in force from and after the time of its acceptance by the said railway company, which must be within ninety days from the approval of this act. [27 Stat. L. 392.]

"This Act was accepted by the following resolution of the board of directors of this railroad company, adopted Aug. 26, 1892:

"Resolved, That this company does hereby accept the provisions of that certain Act of Congress entitled 'An act for the relief of settlers upon certain lands in the States of North Dakota and South Dakota,' approved Aug. 5, A. D. 1892; and that the secretary of this company be directed to file with the commissioner of the general land office of the United States a properly authenticated copy of this resolution." Compilers' note, 2 Supp. R. S. 70.

An Act To provide for the extension of the time within which suits may be brought to vacate and annul land patents, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Suits to annul patents erroneously issued under railroad or wagon road grants.] That suits by the United States to vacate and annul any patent to lands heretofore erroneously issued under a railroad or wagon road grant shall only be brought within five years from the passage of this Act, and suits to vacate and annul patents hereafter issued shall only be brought within six years after the date of the issuance of such patents, and the limitation of section eight of chapter five hundred and sixty-one of the acts of the second session of the Fifty-first Congress and amendments thereto is extended accordingly as to the patents herein referred to. But no patent to any lands held by a bona fide purchaser shall be vacated or annulled, but the right and title of such purchaser is hereby confirmed: Provided, That no suit shall be brought or maintained, nor shall recovery be had for lands or the value thereof, that were certified or patented in lieu of other lands covered by a grant which were lost or relinquished by the grantee in consequence of the failure of the Government or its officers to withdraw the same from sale or entry. [29 Stat. L. 42.]

SEC. 2. [Claims of bona fide purchasers, how established.] That if any person claiming to be a bona fide purchaser of any lands erroneously patented or certified shall present his claim to the Secretary of the Interior prior to the institution of a suit to cancel a patent or certification, and if it shall appear that he is a bona fide purchaser, the Secretary of the Interior shall request that suit be brought in such case against the patentee, or the corporation, company, person, or association of persons for whose benefit the certification was made, for the value of said land, which in no case shall be more than the minimum Government price thereof, and the title of such claimant shall stand confirmed. An adverse decision by the Secretary of the Interior on the bona fides of such claimant shall not be conclusive of his rights, and if such claimant, or one claiming to be a bona fide purchaser, but who has not submitted his claim to the Secretary of the Interior, is made a party to such suit, and if found by the court to be a bona fide purchaser, the court shall decree a confirmation of the title, and shall render a decree in behalf of the United States against the patentee, corporation, company, person, or association of persons for whose benefit the certification was made for the value of the land as hereinbefore provided. Any bona fide purchaser of lands patented or certified to a railroad company, and who is not made a party to such suit, and who has not submitted his claim to the Secretary of the Interior, may establish his right as such bona fide purchaser in any United States court having jurisdiction of the subject-matter, or at his option, as prescribed in sections three and four of chapter three hundred and seventy-six of the Acts of the second session of the Forty-ninth Congress. [29 Stat. L. 43.]

The Act here referred to is the Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 376, ante, p. 433.

SEC. 3. [Claims of bona fide purchasers — investigation before suit.] That if at any time prior to the institution of suit by the Attorney-General to cancel any patent or certification of lands erroneously patented or certified a claim or statement is presented to the Secretary of the Interior by or on behalf of any persons or persons, corporation or corporations, claiming that such person or persons, corporation or corporations, is a bona fide purchaser or are bona fide purchasers of any patented or certified land by deed or contract, or otherwise, from or through the original patentee or corporation to which patent or certification was issued, no suit or action shall be brought to cancel or annul the patent or certification for said land until such claim is investigated in said Department of the Interior; and if it shall appear that such person or corporation is a bona fide purchaser as aforesaid, or that such persons or corporations are such bona fide purchasers, then no such suit shall be instituted and the title of such claimant or claimants shall stand confirmed; but the Secretary of the Interior shall request that suit be brought in such case against the patentee, or the corporation, company, person, or association of persons for whose benefit the patent was issued or certification was made for the value of the land as hereinbefore specified. [29 Stat. L. 43.]

An Act For the relief of settlers on lands granted in aid of the construction of wagon roads.

[Act of July 1, 1902, ch. 1386, 32 Stat. L. 733.]

[Relief of settlers on wagon-road grants.] That the provision of the Act of June twenty-second, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, entitled "An Act for the relief of settlers on railroad lands," and all Acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto, including the Act approved March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, entitled "An Act to provide for the adjustment of land grants made by Congress to aid in the construction of railroads and for the forfeiture of unearned lands, and for other purposes," as modified or supplemented by the Act approved March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, entitled "An Act to provide for the extension of the time within which suits may be brought to vacate and annul land patents, and for other purposes," shall apply to grants of land in aid of the construction of wagon roads. [32 Stat. L. 733.]

[NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY.]

An act to provide for the examination and classification of certain mineral lands in the States of Montana and Idaho.

[SEC. 1.] [Claims to lands granted to Northern Pacific Railroad Company to be examined — mineral lands to be excepted.] That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, authorized and directed, as speedily as practicable, to cause all lands within the land districts hereinafter named in the States of Montana and Idaho within the land grant and indemnity land grant limits of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, as defined by an Act of Congress entitled "An Act granting lands to aid in the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from Lake Superior to Puget Sound, on the Pacific coast, by the northern route," approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and Acts supplemental to and amendatory thereof, to be examined and classified by commissioners to be appointed as hereinafter provided, with special reference to the mineral or nonmineral character of such lands, and to reject, cancel, and disallow any and all claims or filings heretofore made, or which may hereafter be made, by or on behalf of the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company on any lands in said land districts which upon examination shall be classified as provided in this Act as mineral lands. [28 Stat. L. 683.]

Taxation — effect of statute. — "The Act of Feb. 26, 1895, does not contain any provisions which indicate any intention on the part of Congress to relieve the lands granted from state taxation until such time as it may be finally settled what portions thereof, if any, are mineral lands." Myers v. Northern Pac. R. Co., (C. C. A. 1897) 83 Fed. Rep. 358, affirmed (1899) 172 U. S. 589.

SEC. 2. [Commissioners — compensation — oath — duties — decisions — rules.] That for the purpose of making the examination herein provided for there shall be appointed by the President of the United States, as soon as practicable after the passage of this Act, three commissioners for each of the following land districts, to-wit: The Bozeman, Helena, and Missoula land districts, in the State of Montana, and the Cœur d'Alene land district, in the State of Idaho, at least one of whom for each district shall be a practicable miner and a resident of such district; and said persons so appointed for each district shall constitute a board of commissioners to perform within such district the duties herein prescribed. They shall each receive for their compensation ten dollars for each day they may be actually engaged in the performance of their duties, which shall include their transportation and subsistence expenses, but the total amount of compensation to be paid to each commissioner annually shall in no case exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars; and their accounts shall be audited by the Secretary of the Interior and paid monthly. Before entering upon their duties each of said commissioners shall take an oath to faithfully perform the duties of his office. Said commissioners shall make examination of the lands herein mentioned within their respective districts, and may also take the testimony of witnesses as to the mineral or nonmineral character of any of said lands, and receive any other evidence relating to said matter, and shall have power to summon witnesses to appear before them, and to administer oaths; and they shall, immediately upon their appointment, proceed to examine and classify the lands herein mentioned within their respective districts, as provided in this Act, and shall fully complete said classification within the term of four years from the date of this Act. The oath of office of said commissioners shall be filed by them in the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office. All testimony taken by said commissioners shall be reduced to writing, subscribed by the witnesses, and filed with the report of the commissioners hereinafter required. The action or decision of a majority of said commissioners in each district shall control in all matters herein provided for. That the commissioners shall perform the work of examination and classification herein directed according to such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior shall prescribe. [28 Stat. L. 683.]

Right of commissioner to compensation.—Plaintiff's intestate was in 1896 appointed one of several commissioners to examine and classify lands within the land grant and indemnity land-grant limits of the Northern Pacific Railroad, with special reference to the mineral or nonmineral character of the lands within the states of Montana and Idaho, under the provisions of the above Act. On May 19, 1897, the secretary of the interior wrote to the intestate as follows: "To enable you to complete some of the work now on hand, your furlough, as telegraphed on the 17th ultimo, is hereby revoked, and you will continue on duty to the end of the fiscal year; please tender your resignation to take effect on the latter date." June 2, 1897, the commissioner of the general land office telegraphed: "Funds exhausted and your services are discontinued." The claimant's deceased replied: "I will remain here subject to orders prepared to again continue the active discharge of the duties of the office which I hold." July 1, 1897, without further instructions from the interior department, he entered upon his duties and continued to perform them till July 28, 1897. The nature of his work appeared in his weekly reports to the general land office. No objection was made by the department. July 27, 1897, he telegraphed that he had returned from the field and requested instructions in regard to his report. The reply was that his services had been previously ordered discontinued as of June 12, 1897. On these facts the court held, that where the head of a department makes a request for a resignation and it is not handed in, the officer forfeits no right, either because of his failure to resign or because requested to do so. Where the head of a department notifies an official acting under him that the fund for his employment is exhausted, it impliedly means for that fiscal year only. Where weekly reports are transmitted in good faith by an official of a department to its head in accordance with regulations, and received and filed without protest or objection and without notice that the work must cease, he is entitled to be paid. That the government finally decides not to accept work honestly done and authorized by law will not relieve it of the obligation to pay for it, though the work is not satisfactory. The government must be estopped, though it is less liable than individuals to the application of the principle of estoppel. Knight v. U. S., (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 129.

SEC. 3. [Lands to be classified as mineral — description.] That all said lands shall be classified as mineral which by reason of valuable mineral deposits are open to exploration, occupation, and purchase under the provisions of the United States mining laws, and the commissioners in making the classification hereinafter provided for shall take into consideration the mineral discovered or developed on or adjacent to such land, and the geological formation of all lands to be examined and classified, or the lands adjacent thereto, and the reasonable probabilities of such land containing valuable mineral deposits because of its said formation, location, or character. The classification herein provided for shall be by each legal subdivision where the lands have been surveyed. If the lands examined are not surveyed, classification shall be made by tracts of such extent, and designated by such natural or artificial boundaries to identify them, as the commissioners may determine. Where mining locations have been heretofore made or patents issued for mining ground in any section of land, this shall be taken as prima facie evidence that the forty-acre subdivision within which it is located is mineral land: Provided, That the word "mineral," where it occurs in this Act, shall not be held to include iron or coal: And provided further, That the examination and classification of lands hereby authorized shall be made without reference or regard to any previous examination or report or classification thereof. [28 Stat. L. 684.]

SEC. 4. [Surveyed lands to be first examined.] That such of the lands herein mentioned as have been surveyed prior to the passage of this Act shall be first examined and classified as herein provided, and afterwards, and as speedily as practicable, the lands herein mentioned which have not been surveyed, until all the lands herein mentioned shall have been examined and classified, as herein provided. [28 Stat. L. 684.]

SEC. 5. [Report of commissioners — protests — appeals — defense.] That said commissioners shall, on or before the fifth day of each month, file in the office of the register and receiver of the land office of the land district in which the land examined and classified is situated a full report, in duplicate, in such form as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, showing all lands examined by them during the preceding month, and specifying clearly, by legal subdivisions, where the land is surveyed, or otherwise by natural objects or permanent monuments to identify the same, the lands classified by them as mineral lands and those classified as nonmineral; and with said report shall be filed all testimony taken and written communications received by said commissioners relating to the lands embraced in the report. The register and receiver shall file one duplicate of said report in their office, together with all accompanying testimony and papers, and the other duplicate shall be by them forwarded direct to the Secretary of the Interior, and said commissioners shall furnish to the Secretary of the Interior at any time such further or additional report or information as he may require concerning any matters relating to their duties or the performance of the same. Upon receipt of such report the register of the land office shall, at the expense of the United States, cause to be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the land is located, and in one newspaper published at the capital city of the State in which the lands may be situated, at least once a week for four consecutive weeks, notice of the classification of lands as shown by said report, and any person, corporation, or company feeling aggrieved by such classification may, at any time within sixty days after the first publication of said notice, file with the register and receiver of the land office a verified protest against the acceptance of said classification, which protest shall set forth in concise language the grounds of objection to the classification as to the particular land in said protest described, whereupon a hearing shall be ordered by, and conducted before, the said register and receiver, under rules and regulations as near as practicable in conformity with the rules and practice of such land office in contests involving the mineral or nonmineral character of land in other cases; and an appeal from the decision of the register and receiver shall be allowed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office and the Secretary of the Interior, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe: Provided, That at such hearings the United States shall be represented and defended by the United States district attorney or his assistants for the judicial district in which the land is situated, unless the Secretary of the Interior shall detail some proper officer of the Department of the Interior for that purpose. The compensation for such service shall not exceed ten dollars per day for each day's actual service before the register and receiver, to be paid out of the fund provided for the examination and classification of said mineral lands. [28 Stat. L. 684.]

SEC. 6. [Entry, etc., of classification on land records.] That as to the lands against the classification whereof no protest shall have been filed as hereinbefore provided, the classification, when approved by the Secretary of the Interior, shall be considered final, except in case of fraud, and all plats and records of the local and general land offices shall be made to conform to such classification. All lands so classified as above without protest, and the classification whereof is disapproved by the Secretary of the Interior, and all lands whereof the classification has been invalidated for fraud, shall be subject to hearing and determination in such manner as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe. And as to all such lands, and as to the lands against the classification whereof protests may be filed, the final ruling made after the day set for hearing shall determine the proper classification; and all records of the local and general land offices shall be made to conform to the classification as determined by such final ruling, and all costs of such hearings shall be paid by the unsuccessful party, under such rules as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe; and the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to establish such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry into effect the true intent and provisions of this Act as speedily as practicable. [28 Stat. L. 685.]

SEC. 7. [Only patents for nonmineral lands to be issued to Northern Pacific Railroad.] That no patent or other evidence of title shall be issued or delivered to said Northern Pacific Railroad Company for any land in said land districts until such land shall have been examined and classified as nonmineral, as provided for in this Act, and such patent or other evidence of title shall only issue then to such land, if any, in said land districts as said company may be, by law and compliance therewith and by the said classification, entitled to, and any patent, certificate, or record of selection, or other evidence of title or right to possession of any land in said land districts, issued, entered, or delivered to said Northern Pacific Railroad Company in violation of the provisions of this Act shall be void: Provided, That nothing contained in this Act shall be taken or construed as recognizing or confirming any grant of land or the right to any land in the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company, or as waiving or in any wise affecting any right on the part of the United States against the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company to claim a forfeiture of any land grant heretofore made to said company. [28 Stat. L. 686.]

SEC. 8. [Appropriation for expenses — estimates.] That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of twenty thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended to carry into effect the provisions of this Act, the same to be paid out upon the order of the Secretary of the Interior; and the Secretary of the Interior is hereby required to embrace in the annual estimates submitted to Congress for appropriations for the Interior Department a sufficient sum to pay the said commissioners for the fiscal year next ensuing, and annually thereafter until the classification of lands required by this Act has been fully accomplished. [28 Stat. L. 686.]

[SEC. 1.] [Time for classification extended.] * * * The time for the completion of the classification of lands within the land-grant and indemnity land-grant limits of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, authorized by the Act of Congress entitled "An Act to provide for the examination and classification of certain mineral lands in the States of Montana and Idaho," approved February twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and the Acts supplementary thereto, is hereby extended to and including the thirty-first day of October, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, on or before which date the work of the commissioners shall be completed and the said commissioners be discharged. * * * [30 Stat. L. 1096.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1899, ch. 424.

[SEC. 1.] [Commissioners—appointment—compensation.] * * * For compensation of the twelve commissioners appointed under the Act of February twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, to examine and classify certain lands within the land-grant and indemnity land-grant limits of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, in the States of Montana and Idaho, with special reference to the mineral or non-mineral character of such lands, thirty thousand dollars: Provided, That said commissioners shall be paid at the rate of ten dollars a day each while actually engaged in the performance of their duties, which amount shall include their transportation and subsistence expenses, and that the total amount of compensation to be paid to each commissioner annually shall in no case exceed the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars: Provided, Said commissioners shall hereafter be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate: Provided, That not more than two members of each board shall belong to the same political party; * * * [30 Stat. L. 37.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of June 4, 1897, ch. 2. This paragraph, except the last two provisos, is repeated in the subsequent Appropriation Act of July 1, 1898, ch. 546, 30 Stat. L. 619.

[SEC. 1.] [Commissioners—appointment—compensation and duties.] * * * To complete the examination and classification of certain lands within the land grant and indemnity land grant limits of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company in the Helena and Missoula land districts in the State of Montana and in the Cœur d'Alene land district in the State of Idaho, with special reference to the mineral or non-mineral character of such lands, as authorized by the Act of February twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five (Twenty-eighth Statutes, six hundred and eighty-three), namely: For the compensation of the commissioners, not exceeding fifteen in number, of whom not more than ten shall be of one political party, to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, such compensation not to exceed six dollars per day for each commissioner while actually engaged in the performance of their duties, which amount shall include their transportation and subsistence expenses; also for the publication of monthly reports and for the payment of such clerical help as in the opinion of the Commissioner of the General Land Office may be necessary for the expeditious and economical prosecution of the work, twenty-five thousand dollars: Provided, That each commissioner shall act separately, and only one commissioner shall examine and report on any tract of land, and his examination and report shall have the same force and effect as if made by three commissioners, and under this appropriation the entire work of examination and classification, including the publication of notices and all other expenses therewith connected, shall be completed; and the law of February twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, entitled "An Act to provide for the examination and classification of certain mineral lands in the States of Montana and Idaho," shall be deemed and held to be applicable to the commissioners herein provided for. * * * [31 Stat. L. 615.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of June 6, 1900, ch. 791.

[SEC. 1.] [Selection of lieu lands by railroad grantee where purchaser from United States or settler refuses to transfer his entry.] That where, prior to January first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, the whole or any part of an odd-numbered section, in either the granted or the indemnity limits of the land grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, to which the right of the grantee or its lawful successor is claimed to have attached by definite location or selection, has been purchased directly from the United States or settled upon or claimed in good faith by any qualified settler under color of title or claim of right under any law of the United States or any ruling of the Interior Department, and where purchaser, settler, or claimant refuses to transfer his entry as hereinafter provided, the railroad grantee or its successor in interest, upon a proper relinquishment thereof, shall be entitled to select in lieu of the land relinquished an equal quantity of public lands, surveyed or unsurveyed, not mineral or reserved, and not valuable for stone, iron, or coal, and free from valid adverse claim or not occupied by settlers at the time of such selection, situated within any State or Territory into which such railroad grant extends, and patents shall issue for the land so selected as though it had been originally granted; but all selections of unsurveyed land shall be of odd-numbered sections, to be identified by the survey when made, and patent therefor shall issue to and in the name of the corporation surrendering the lands before mentioned, and such patents shall not issue until after the survey: Provided, however, That the Secretary of the Interior shall from time to time ascertain and, as soon as conveniently may be done, cause to be prepared and delivered to the said railroad grantee or its successor in interest a list or lists of the several tracts which have been purchased or settled upon or occupied as aforesaid, and are now claimed by said purchasers or occupants, their heirs or assigns, according to the smallest Government subdivisions. And all right, title, and interest of the said railroad grantee or its successor in interest in and to any of such tracts, which the said railroad grantee or its successor in interest may relinquish hereunder shall revert to the United States, and such tracts shall be treated, under the laws thereof, in the same manner as if no rights thereto had ever vested in the said railroad grantee, and all qualified persons who have occupied and may be on said lands as herein provided, or who have purchased said lands in good faith as aforesaid, their heirs and assigns, shall be permitted to prove their titles to said lands according to law, as if said grant had never been made; and upon such relinquishment said Northern Pacific Railroad Company or its lawful successor in interest may proceed to select, in the manner hereinbefore provided, lands in lieu of those relinquished, and patents shall issue therefor: Provided further, That the railroad grantee or its successor in interest shall accept the said list or lists so to be made by the Secretary of the Interior as conclusive with respect to the particular lands to be relinquished by it, but it shall not be bound to relinquish lands sold or contracted by it or lands which it uses or needs for railroad purposes, or lands valuable for stone, iron, or coal: And provided further, That whenever any qualified settler shall in good faith make settlement in pursuance of existing law upon any odd-numbered sections of unsurveyed public lands within the said railroad grant to which the right of such railroad grantee or its successor in interest has attached, then upon proof thereof satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior, and a due relinquishment of the prior railroad right, other lands may be selected in lieu thereof by said railroad grantee or its successor in interest, as hereinbefore provided, and patents shall issue therefor: And provided further, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as intended or having the effect to recognize the Northern Pacific Railway Company as the lawful successor of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company in the ownership of the lands granted by the United States to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, under and by virtue of foreclosure proceedings against said Northern Pacific Railroad Company in the courts of the United States, but the legal question whether the said Northern Pacific Railway Company is such lawful successor of the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company, should the question be raised, shall be determined wholly without reference to the provisions of this Act, and nothing in this Act shall be construed as enlarging the quantity of land which the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company is entitled to under laws heretofore enacted: And provided further, That all qualified settlers, their heirs or assigns, who, prior to January first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, purchased or settled upon or claimed in good faith, under color of title or claim of right under any law of the United States or any ruling of the Interior Department, any part of an odd-numbered section in either the granted or indemnity limits of the land grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company to which the right of such grantee or its lawful successor is claimed to have attached by definite location or selection, may in lieu thereof transfer their claims to an equal quantity of public lands surveyed or unsurveyed, not mineral or reserved, and not valuable for stone, iron, or coal, and free from valid adverse claim, or not occupied by a settler at the time of such entry, situated in any State or Territory into which such railroad grant extends, and make proof therefor as in other cases provided; and in making such proof, credit shall be given for the period of their bona fide residence and amount of their improvements upon their respective claims in the said granted or indemnity limits of the land grant to the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company the same as if made upon the tract to which the transfer is made; and before the Secretary of the Interior shall cause to be prepared and delivered to said railroad grantee or its successor in interest any list or lists of the several tracts which have been purchased or settled upon or occupied as hereinbefore provided, he shall notify the purchaser, settler, or claimant, his heirs or assigns, claiming against said railroad company, of his right to transfer his entry or claim, as herein provided, and shall give him or them option to take lieu lands for those claimed by him or them or hold his claim and allow the said railroad company to do so under the terms of this Act. * * * [30 Stat. L. 620-622.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 1, 1898, ch. 546.

The purpose of this Act was to provide a certain, speedy, and equitable way in which all controversies between the railroad grantee or its successors and purchasers or settlers upon odd-numbered sections within the place or indemnity limits of the land grant, who claimed by color of any law of the United States or any ruling of the land department, should be settled and adjusted without contest or litigation either in the land department or in the courts. The railway company, by its express acceptance of the Act, became bound by its provisions, and obligated to carry out its terms. By its terms, each of such purchasers and settlers is to be notified by the secretary of the interior of his option to transfer his entry or claim and take other lands in lieu thereof. If he takes such lieu lands, he relinquishes his former land, and this ends his contest with the railroad grantee. As to those purchasers or settlers who elect to retain their claimed lands, the railroad grantee or its successor, on receiving lists of such lands from the secretary, must relinquish the lands so listed, and may take lieu lands therefor, and the relinquished lands revert to the United States, and stand as if never included in the land grant, and the controversies about them are ended. The Act refers to conditions existing at the time of its passage and became operative at that time. After the passage and acceptance of the Act the railroad could not convey rights in the land not in subordination to its provisions. The Act has application to lands patented before Jan. 1, 1898. The fact that the land department had lost jurisdiction over the lands patented is immaterial. The Act does not provide for any examination or decision by the land department of the merits of any claims. The Acts required to be done by the secretary of the interior are merely ministerial — first, to offer the option to the individual claimant, and, if the land is by him relinquished, to require such instrument as will make the relinquishment effectual. If he refuses to relinquish, then the secretary's duty is to place the land on the list respecting which relinquishment is to be required of, and cannot be refused by the railroad claimant; the lists so furnished being conclusive. Humbird v. Avery, (1901) 110 Fed. Rep. 465.

The Act of Oct. 1, 1890, ch. 1258, entitled

"An Act for the relief of settlers on Northern Pacific Railroad indemnity lands," provided as follows:

"[SEC. 1.] That those persons who, after the fifteenth day of August, in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, and before the first day of January, in the year eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, settled upon, improved, and made final proof on lands in the so-called second indemnity belt of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company's grant under the homestead and pre-emption laws of the United States, or their heirs, may transfer their said entries from said tracts to such other vacant surveyed Government land in compact form and in legal subdivisions, subject to entry under the homestead and pre-emption laws, as they may select, and receive final certificates and receipts therefor, in lieu of the tracts proved up on in said belt by the respective claimants: Provided, That such transfer of entry shall be made and completed within twelve months from the date of the passage of this act, and be so made in person by the claimant, or in case of death by his legal representative, and without the intervention of agent or attorney. [26 Stat. L. 647.]

"SEC. 2. That all persons possessing the requisite qualifications under the pre-emption or homestead laws, who in good faith settled upon and improved land in said second indemnity belt, having made filing or entry of the same, and for any reason, other than voluntary abandonment, failed to make proof thereon, may, in lieu thereof within one year after the passage of this act transfer their claims to any vacant surveyed Government land subject to entry under the homestead or pre-emption laws, and make proof therefor as in other cases provided; and in making such proof credit shall be given for the period of their bona fide residence and amount of their improvements upon their respective claims in the said indemnity belt, the same as if made upon the tract to which the transfer is made: Provided, That no final entry shall be permitted, except upon proof of continuous residence upon the land, the subject of such new entry, for a period of not less than three months prior thereto. Payment for said final selection shall be made as under existing laws. The provisions of this Act shall be carried into effect under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior." [26 Stat. L. 647.]

An Act For the relief of settlers under the public-land laws to lands within the indemnity limits of the grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company.

[Extension of preceding section.] That the provisions of the Act of July first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, appearing in thirtieth Statutes at Large, at pages six hundred and twenty, six hundred and twenty-one, and six hundred and twenty-two, providing a plan for the adjustment by the Land Department of conflicting claims to lands within the limits of the grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, are hereby extended and made applicable to all instances where lands in odd-numbered sections within the indemnity limits of the grant to said company were patented to settlers under the public-land laws in pursuance of applications presented to or proceedings initiated in, the local land office at a time when the land was embraced in a pending indemnity selection made by said company in conformity with the regulations of the Land Department, which indemnity selection has not since been waived or abandoned. [31 Stat. L. 950.]

An Act For the relief of settlers on the Northern Pacific Railroad indemnity lands.

[SEC. 1.] [Settlers on second indemnity grant, Minnesota, allowed other lands for canceled entries.] That those persons, their heirs, or legal representatives, who, between the fifteenth day of August, anno Domini eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, and the first day of January, anno Domini eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, settled upon and made final proof and entry, under the homestead or preemption laws, of lands within the so-called second indemnity belt of the Northern Pacific Railway Company's grant in the State of Minnesota, which entries were afterwards, without their fault, canceled, upon establishing these facts before the register and receiver of the local land office, in such mode and under such rules as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, shall be allowed to make final homestead entry, and receive a patent therefor, of a quantity of land of any of the unappropriated public lands of the United States subject to homestead entry, equal in acreage to the land proved up and entered in the said second indemnity belt, as aforesaid, without being required to make any settlement or improvement upon or cultivation of such land so entered prior to such entry; and those persons, their heirs or legal representatives, who, within the period aforesaid for the space of six months settled upon, improved, and cultivated any of said indemnity lands with a view of entering the same under the homestead or preemption laws, being competent to make such entries, and who were not permitted to make such entries, upon establishing these facts before the register and receiver of the local land office, in such mode and under such rules as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, shall be allowed to enter under the homestead laws of the United States a quantity of land of the unappropriated public lands of the United States, subject to homestead entry, equal in amount to the land settled upon, improved, and cultivated, as aforesaid, and under the homestead entry so made, shall, when making proof and final entry, receive credit for the settlement, improvement, and cultivation made upon the said indemnity land as aforesaid: Provided, That the law in force in eighteen hundred and eighty-nine governing the commutation of homestead entries shall apply to the commutation of entries under this section. [29 Stat. L. 245.]

"In 1887 the interior department held that the withdrawal of the second indemnity belt of the Northern Pacific Railroad in the state of Minnesota was illegal and unauthorized, and held that the lands within such belt were open to homestead and pre-emption settlers. This order and ruling of the department remained in force until the first day of January, 1889, when it was revoked, and the lands were again withdrawn from settlement and entry. During this period, when the lands were thus thrown open for settlement and entry, many settlers moved onto these lands, and many homestead and pre-emption entries were made and allowed at the local land office. After the department revoked its order opening these lands for settlement and entry, all the entries that had been made and allowed were canceled and set aside, and those settlers who had not consummated their settlement by final entry were denied the right so to do. The object of this Act is to relieve these settlers." Compilers' note, 2 Supp. R. S. 499.

SEC. 2. [Entries on Chippewa lands.] That those who are entitled to make the homestead entries prescribed in the preceding section may make such entries of any of the agricultural lands embraced in the provisions of an Act entitled "An Act for the relief and civilization of the Chippewa Indians in the State of Minnesota," approved January fourteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, upon condition of paying for such lands the price prescribed in said Act. [29 Stat. L. 245.]

SEC. 3. [Rights not assignable.] That the right of homestead entry conferred by the provisions of this Act shall not be assignable, and no conveyance, sale, or transfer of the land so entered shall be valid or of any effect if made before patent has issued. [29 Stat. L. 246.]

Transfer by entryman.—Plaintiff purchased a tract of land, entered under 29 Stat. L. 246, ch. 316, on which the full amount of the purchase price had been paid by the entryman, but before patent had been issued. The court held that the restriction in such Act upon transfers of the entryman's rights before the issuance of the patent did not benefit a subsequent purchaser, who procured a deed in fraud of the first grantee. McAlpine v. Resch, (1901) 82 Minn. 523.

[XVI. RESERVATIONS AND GRANTS FOR PUBLIC PURPOSES — SCHOOL LANDS.]

Sec. 1946. [Reservation of school lands in certain Territories.] Sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six, in each township of the Territories of New Mexico, Utah, Colorado, Dakota, Arizona, Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming shall be reserved for the purpose of being applied to schools in the several Territories herein named, and in the States and Territories hereafter to be erected out of the same. School reservations as public lands.— "Because of the mere reservation or appropriation by the United States of these sections for the purpose of being applied to the common schools of the future, do they lose their character of public lands? It is true that they are not 'public lands,' in that they are open to entry, etc., but that fact alone does not prevent them being in a certain sense public lands. The government has, for a wise purpose, set apart and reserved these lands from the general domain, and announced the purpose to which they will be devoted. It retains control and dominion over these until the happening of a certain event. It is somewhat as a trustee of an express trust. It also retains the right, up to a certain time, to annul the Act by which such sections were severed, and might, within that limit, annul the former Act, and throw these lands open, as 'public lands.' This reserved right in the government must give it control over these lands as absolute as that of any owner could be. As is well said, ever since the organization of the territory, these school sections have been recognized as 'public lands,' and the courts have sustained all the rights of the government, whenever their aid has been invoked, in preventing trespass upon them. Any other doctrine would lead to a practical annulment of the Act of Congress, and render nugatory the effort to provide for and establish a common-school system." Barkley v. U. S., (1888) 3 Wash. Ter. 522.

Prior to statehood. — Where a suit, brought to enjoin a person from maintaining an inclosure upon land reserved to the territory of Utah for the purpose of being applied to schools when Utah should become a state, was resisted on the ground that the lands occupied were not "public lands" within the meaning of the statute authorizing suits to prevent unlawful occupancy of "public lands," it was held that the words "public lands" as used in the statute in question, included lands which, although reserved for the purpose of being applied to schools, had not yet been so applied. U. S. v. Elliot, (1895) 12 Utah 119.

Statehood conferred pending proceedings. — Where, however, after the above decision had been made and the cause remanded for further proceedings, the territory became a state by the Act granting the land in controversy to the state for school purposes, it was held that the lands were no longer public lands within the Act under which the suit was brought and that the bill must accordingly be dismissed. U. S. v. Elliott, (1896) 74 Fed. Rep. 92.

Title in United States until survey. — The legal right and title to sections 16 and 36 remain in the United States until they are surveyed; for until surveyed the sections and townships have no existence as such. *Ferry v. Authority of territorial legislature to make leases. — The reservation provided for in this section is not equivalent to a grant to the territory, and the territorial legislature has no right to pass a law giving authority to the County Court to lease sections 16 and 36, reserved by the United States for common school purposes. Burrows v. Kimball, (1894) 11 Utah 149. See also Vincennes University v. Indiana, (1852) 14 How. (U. S.) 274.

Mere settlement upon and cultivation of a portion of sections 16 and 36 before the same is surveyed does not exclude such portion from the school grant in the absence of an express provision in the statute to that effect. Whatever may be the possessory rights of a person who so occupies and cultivates such lands as against other claimants, such rights could not avail against the power of Congress to make other disposition of the lands. Gonzales v. French, (1896) 164 U. S. 338; Hartman v. Warren, (C. C. A. 1896) 76 Fed. Rep. 157.

Sec. 1947. [Certain sections in Washington Territory to be reserved.] Sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in each township of Washington Territory shall be reserved for the purpose of being applied to common schools in that Territory. In all cases where sections sixteen and thirty-six, or either or any of them, are occupied by actual settlers prior to survey thereof, the county commissioners of the counties in which such sections so occupied are situated are authorized to locate other lands, to an equal amount in sections or fractional sections, as the case may be, within their respective counties, in lieu of the sections so occupied. [R. S.]

See later provisions in this division.

Authority of those selecting "other lands" not a federal question.—From the legislation of Congress it is clear that the policy of the government has been a generous one in respect to grants for school purposes, and such acts are to be construed so as to carry out the intent of Congress, however difficult it might be to give full effect to the language used if the grants were by instruments of private conveyance; and in order to ascertain that intent, the condition of the country at the time the acts were passed, as well as the purpose declared, or the force of the Act, must be considered. Tested by this rule it is obvious that Congress intended that Washington should receive full sections 16 and 36, or, in case of a failure by reason of prior settlement, or natural causes, the equivalent of such sections, and designated the secretary of the interior as the officer to approve any selections made by the territory. Where a person assumes to act for the territory in selecting lands, and his selection is approved by the secretary of the interior, it is sufficient. At any rate the question as to the authority of the person who makes the selection is not a federal question, but one whose decision by the courts of Washington is final. Johanson v. Washington, (1903) 190 U. S. 179, affirming (1901) 26 Wash. 668.

Entry after survey void.—Under this section and the enabling Act making a present grant of sections 16 and 36 to the state, to take effect as soon as the state should be organized, an entry made upon such sections, subsequent to their survey and the approval of the enabling Act, is void, whether the entry was made under the timber and stone Act or the mining laws. Wheeler v. Smith, (1893) 5 Wash. 704.

Sec. 2275. [Settlements before survey on sections 16 or 36, deficiencies thereof.] Where settlements with a view to pre-emption or homestead have been, or shall hereafter be made, before the survey of the lands in the field, which are found to have been made on sections sixteen or thirty-six, those sections shall be subject to the claims of such settlers; and if such sections, or either of them, have been or shall be granted, reserved, or pledged for the use of schools or colleges in the State or Territory in which they lie, other lands of equal acreage are hereby appropriated and granted, and may be selected by said State or Territory, in lieu of such as may be thus taken by pre-emption of homestead settlers. And other lands of equal acreage are also hereby appropriated and granted, and may be selected by said State or Territory where sections sixteen or thirty-six are mineral land, or are included within any Indian, military, or other reservation, or are otherwise disposed of by the United States: Provided, Where any State is entitled to said sections sixteen and thirty-six, or where said sections are reserved to any Territory, notwithstanding the same may be mineral land or embraced within a military, Indian, or other reservation, the selection of such lands in lieu thereof by said State or Territory shall be a waiver of its right to said sections. And other lands of equal acreage are also hereby appropriated and granted, and may be selected by said State or Territory to compensate deficiencies for school purposes, where sections sixteen or thirty-six are fractional in quantity, or where one or both are wanting by reason of the township being fractional, or from any natural cause whatever. And it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior, without awaiting the extension of the public surveys, to ascertain and determine, by protraction or otherwise, the number of townships that will be included within such Indian, military, or other reservations, and thereupon the State or Territory shall be entitled to select indemnity lands to the extent of two sections for each of said townships, in lieu of sections sixteen and thirty-six therein; but such selections may not be made within the boundaries of said reservations: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall prevent any State or Territory from awaiting the extinguishment of any such military, Indian, or other reservation and the restoration of the lands therein embraced to the public domain and then taking the sections sixteen and thirty-six in place therein; but nothing in this proviso shall be construed as conferring any right not now existing. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by Act of Feb. 28, 1891, ch. 384, 26 Stat. L. 796.

The section originally read as follows:

"SEC. 2275. Where settlements, with a view to pre-emption, have been made before the survey of the lands in the field, which are found to have been made on sections sixteen or thirty-six, those sections shall be subject to the pre-emption claim of such settler; and if they, or either of them, have been or shall be reserved or pledged for the use of schools or colleges in the State or Territory in which the lands lie, other lands of like quantity are appropriated in lieu of such as may be patented by pre-emptors; and other lands are also appropriated to compensate deficiencies for school purposes, where sections sixteen or thirty-six are fractional in quantity, or where one or both are wanting by reason of the township being fractional, or from any natural cause whatever." Act of Feb. 28, 1859, ch. 58, 11 Stat. L. 385.

Application to Utah.—See Act of May 3, 1902, ch. 683, infra, div. XVI.

This Act is based upon the idea that as soon as a valid legal survey has been made in the field of lands of the United States, they are to all intents and purposes surveyed lands and are to be treated as such. Oakley v. Stuart, (1878) 52 Cal. 521.

Statute of general application.—This statute is general in its terms and was intended to be applicable alike to all states and territories receiving grants of school lands. Consequently it follows that the state of California is entitled to make a selection for land lost to the state, provided it is sufficiently established that the land lost is of a mineral character. Johnston v. Morris, (C. C. A. 1896) 72 Fed. Rep. 890.

When title vests.—This section clearly shows that it was the intention of Congress that title should not vest in the territory or state before the survey. "When a person settles on the public lands with a view to pre-emption, this section gives him a right to the patent, notwithstanding the land turns out, when surveyed, to be section 16 or 36, or a part thereof. The title and the right to dispose thereof is regarded as in the United States till the survey. If not, why transfer it by patent to the pre-emptor? Those sections, or their equivalent in other lands, are regarded as pledged for school purposes. The language of the law is 'reserved or pledged.' The term 'reserved' is regarded as synonymous in meaning with 'pledged.'" Ferry v. Street, (1886) 4 Utah 531, dismissed 119 U. S. 385.

The title to lands selected under this statute does not vest in a state by a mere selection of the land. Any selection by a state is ineffectual to transfer title from the United States to the state, at least until such selection is approved by the secretary of the interior, if not until the certification of such land to the state. Baker v. Jamison, (1893) 54 Minn. 17.

When lands withdrawn from private entry.

—When a selection of substituted lands has been made, and that selection approved by the secretary of the interior, the land is no longer subject to private entry. And while the land remains subject to such selection and approval no individual can come in and question its validity. Johanson v. Washington, (1903) 190 U. S. 179, affirming (1901) 26 Wash. 668.

Settlement is made the initiatory step by the laws of Congress to secure to a party the right of pre-emption. U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., (1894) 61 Fed. Rep. 143. affirmed (C. C. A. 1895) 67 Fed. Rep. 974.

Right of settlement not assignable.—The purpose of this section "is evidently to fix the status of such settlers as may prior to survey, without notice of the fact, have fixed their residence, with a view to pre-emption, on said sections, and to give such settlers the privilege of entering such lands under the pre-emption law, and obtaining title thereto; and for all such lands as may be patented to such pre-emptors, other lands, equal in quantity, are reserved to the territory or state for school purposes in lieu thereof. We think this privilege is limited by the language of section 2275, as well as by other provisions of the pre-emption laws, to such settlers as may be found on school lands at the time of the survey of the lands in the field. The right of pre-emption of such settlers as may have settled on school lands prior to survey being a personal privilege, it follows that sections 16 and 36 of each township are reserved to the territory or state for school purposes, subject only to the personal rights of such settlers to obtain title to the same under the pre-emption law; and, if they do not choose to assert their rights by filing and entering the land, or subsequently abandon their settlements, the land continues to be reserved to the state or territory for school purposes." A sale by the settlers of their right of possession and improvements does not pass any of their rights to the purchaser. Gonzales v. French, (1893) 4 Ariz. 77.

Necessity for entry in land office.—A claim of pre-emption is fatally defective where the grantees of the claimant failed to make or file an actual entry in the proper land office. Gonzales v. French, (1896) 164 U. S. 338.

Responsibility of officer receiving proof of entry.—Where an entryman who goes to the public land office for the purpose of obtaining public land is required by the receiver to pay the purchase price of the land before allowing his proofs of entry to be filed, the receiver accepts the money as a public officer of the United States, and not as the agent of the entryman; and the payment is to be regarded as one of public money made to the government within the meaning of the law and of the bond given by the receiver for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office. Smith v. U. S., (1898) 170 U. S. 372.

School lands included in forest reservation.—This Act, as amended by the Act of Feb. 28, 1891, does not authorize any exchange of lands between the federal and state governments, but only the indemnification of the state for the loss of lands to which it was entitled. The Act does not give to the state the right to select other lands of equal acreage with the school sections where the latter are included within the exterior boundaries of a forest reservation subsequent to their survey in the field, and the title thereto has thus become vested in the state. Hibberd v. Slack, (1897) 84 Fed. Rep. 571.

No indemnity for swamp land.—It seems that this statute does not authorize selections by the state in lieu of swamp lands lost from a school land grant, for that would be giving to the state an indemnity for a class of lands already donated to the state, and the principle upon which indemnity is given is for a deficiency and not for that which the state has already received. Johnston v. Morris, (C. C. A. 1896) 72 Fed. Rep. 890.

Exchange of state and federal lands not authorized.—This section does not authorize any exchange of lands between the federal and state governments, but only an indemnification of the state for the loss of lands to which it was entitled. Thus a state has no right to select other lands of equal acreage with the school sections where such sections, after the state had acquired title thereto by survey in the field, are included within the bounds of a forest reservation. Hibberd v. Slack, (1897) 84 Fed. Rep. 571.

Right to selected lands as against Central Pacific railroad grant.—Certain lands within the ten-mile limits of the Central Pacific railroad, being part of odd-numbered sections granted thereto by the Act of July 1, 1862, chapter 120, were, under section 7 of that Act, ordered to be withdrawn, and this order was received at the office at San Francisco on the 30th of January, 1865. The map showing definite location of line of said road was filed in the general land office Feb. 13, 1873, and on May 12, 1874, said lands were selected by the railroad company as inuring to it under said grant. But the same lands were selected by the state of California June 13, 1865, as indemnity for deficiency of school lands granted by Acts of March 3, 1853, and Feb. 26, 1859, and a list thereof was certified and approved to the state Sept. 8, 1870. The railroad company applied for patents for these lands. The secretary of the interior was advised that he was not authorized by the general laws or the provisions of the Act of July 1, 1862, to issue such patents to the company. (1882) 17 Op. Atty-Gen. 406.

Sec. 2276. [Selections to supply deficiencies of school lands.] That the lands appropriated by the preceding section shall be selected from any unappropriated, surveyed public lands, not mineral in character, within the State or Territory where such losses or deficiencies of school sections occur; and where the selections are to compensate for deficiencies of school lands in fractional townships, such selections shall be made in accordance with the following principles of adjustment, to wit: For each township, or fractional township, containing a greater quantity of land than three-quarters of an entire township, one section; for a fractional township, containing a greater quantity of land than one-half, and not more than three-quarters of a township, three-quarters of a section; for a fractional township, containing a greater quantity of land than one quarter, and not more than one half of a township, one-half section; and for a fractional township containing a greater quantity of land than one entire section, and not more than one-quarter of a township one-quarter section of land: Provided, That the States or Territories which are, or shall be entitled to both the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections in place, shall have the right to select double the amounts named, to compensate for deficiencies of school land in fractional townships. [R. S.]

This section was amended to read as above by the Act of Feb. 28, 1891, ch. 384, 26 Stat. L. 797.

The section originally read as follows:

"Sec. 2276. The lands appropriated by the preceding section shall be selected, within the same land-district, in accordance with the following principles of adjustment, to wit: For each township, or fractional township, containing a greater quantity of land than three-quarters of an entire township, one section; for a fractional township, containing a greater quantity of land than one-half, and not more than three-quarters, of a township, three-quarters of a section; for a fractional township, containing a greater quantity of land than one-quarter, and not more than one-half, of a township, one-half section; and for a fractional township, containing a greater quantity of land than one entire section, and not more than one-quarter of a township, one-quarter section of land." Act of Feb. 26, 1859, ch. 58, 11 Stat. L. 385; Act of May 20, 1826, ch. 83, 4 Stat. L. 179.

Application to Utah.—See Act of May 3, 1902, ch. 683, infra, div. XVI.

School lands included in forest reservation.—This Act, as amended by the Act of Feb. 29, 1891, does not authorize any exchange of lands between the federal and state governments, but only the indemnification of the state for the loss of lands to which it was entitled. The Act does not give to the state the right to select other lands of equal acreage with the school sections, where the latter, subsequent to their survey in the field, and the vesting of the title thereto in the state, are included within the exterior boundaries of a forest reservation. Hibberd v. Slack, (1897) 84 Feb. Rep. 571.

When title to selected lands vests. — The title to lands selected under this statute does not vest in a state by a mere selection of the land. Any selection by a state is ineffectual to transfer title from the United States to the state, at least until such selection is approved by the secretary of the interior, if not until the certification of such land to the state. Baker v. Jamison, (1893) 54 Minn. 17.

Priorities as between selections by register and entryman. — Under the Act of May 20, 1826, the secretary of the treasury, through the land office, directed the register to make selections and return lists thereof to be submitted to him for his approbation. Under this direction certain lands were selected and reserved from sale. Afterwards the register withdrew the selection by authority of the commissioner of the land office, and permitted a person, knowing the circumstances under which the land had been reserved from sale, to enter and take it up. Finally, the secretary of the treasury selected the land in question under authority given to him by the Act of 1826. It was held that the selection was good and conferred a title superior to the immediate entry. Campbell v. Doe, (1851) 13 How. (U. S.) 244, affirming (1848) 17 Ohio 267.

Sec. 2377. [Limitation of entries by agricultural college scrip.] In no case shall more than three sections of public lands be entered at private entry in any one township by scrip issued to any State under the act approved July two, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, for the establishment of an agricultural college therein. [R. S.]

Act of July 27, 1868, ch. 256, 15 Stat. L. 227.

Sec. 2378. [Grant to new states.] There is granted, for purposes of internal improvement, to each new State hereafter admitted into the Union, upon such admission, so much public land as, including the quantity that was granted to such State before its admission and while under a territorial government, will make five hundred thousand acres. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 4, 1841, ch. 16, 5 Stat. L. 455. See later provisions in this division.

No preferred right by settlement or improvement. — One of the characteristics of a grant under this Act is that no preferred right to make an entry therein can be acquired by settlement or improvement of the land to be entered. Hartman v. Warren, (C. C. A. 1896) 76 Fed. Rep. 157.

Necessity for selection. — No rights accrue to the state under this Act until a selection has been made. U. S. v. Des Moines Nav., etc., Co., (1892) 142 U. S. 510.

Title passed by certification. — "Such selections were subject to the approval of the land department of the United States, but when so made and approved the lands were to be certified to the state, and such certification was to have all the effect of a patent." Deweese v. Reinhard, (1897) 165 U. S. 386, affirming (C. C. A. 1894) 61 Fed. Rep. 777.

Character of public building authorized. — The phrase "internal improvement," as used in this section and in section 12 of the Enabling Act of Colorado, does not include public buildings, such as asylums, state houses, universities, and colleges, or any other public institution of like character, so that the proceeds derived from the sources mentioned in these Acts may be applied to their construction. In re Internal Imp. Fund, (1897) 24 Colo. 247. See also In re Internal Improvements, (1893) 18 Colo. 317.

Whether grant in present or in future. — The Act of Congress of Sept. 4, 1841, declaring that "there shall be granted to each state" 500,000 acres of land, only imports that a grant shall be made in the future, and did not convey the fee to any lands whatever, but left the land system of the United States in full operation as to regulations of title, so as to prevent conflicting entries. "It could not have been the intention of the government to relinquish the exercise of power over the public lands that might be located by the state. The same system was to be observed in the entry of the lands by the state as by individuals, except the payment of the money." Foley v. Harrison, (1853) 15 How. (U. S.) 433. See also McNee v. Donahue, (1892) 142 U. S. 587.

Rights of selection and vesting of title in California. — In Terry v. Megerle, (1864) 24 Cal. 610, it was held that the state of California has no right to select or locate the 500,000 acres of land granted to her for purposes of internal improvement until after the lands selected have been surveyed and sectionized by the proper officers of the government; and that no title to any specific portion of the grant can vest in the state unless the land has been surveyed and unless the selection is made of lands to which there is no subsisting valid claim by pre-emption or otherwise, and is made in parcels conformably to sectional divisions and subdivisions of not less than three hundred and twenty acres, and has been approved by the federal government.

Wisconsin. — The land granted to the territory of Wisconsin by the Act of 1838 (5 Stat. L. 245), to aid in opening a canal to unite the waters of Lake Michigan to those of Rock river, is not to be included and computed as part of the 500,000 acres granted by the Act of 1841, for the purposes of internal improvement. (1852) 5 Op. Atty.-Gen. 574.

Sec. 2379. [Selections and locations of lands granted in last section.] The selections of lands, granted in the preceding section, shall be made within the limits of each State so admitted into the Union, in such manner as the legislatures thereof, respectively, may direct; and such lands shall be located in parcels conformably to sectional divisions and subdivisions of not less than three hundred and twenty acres in any one location, on any public land not reserved from sale by law of Congress or by proclamation of the President. The locations may be made at any time after the public lands in any such new State have been surveyed according to law. [R. S.]

Act of Sept. 4, 1841, ch. 16, 5 Stat. L. 455.

Right as between state and settler.—As between a state seeking to select lands as a part of the grant to it by this Act and a settler seeking to acquire a right of pre-emption to the same land, the party first commencing the proceedings necessary to obtain title and following up the proceedings to the patent acquires the better right to the premises. "The patent, which is afterwards issued, relates back to the date of the initiatory Act, and cuts off all intervening claimants. Thus the patent upon a state selection takes effect as of the time when the selection is made and reported to the land office; and the patent upon a pre-emption settlement takes effect from the time of the settlement as disclosed in the declaratory statement or proofs of the settler to the register of the local land office. The action of the state and of the settler must, of course, in some way, be brought officially to the notice of the officers of the government having in their custody the records and other evidences of title to the property of the United States, before their respective claims to priority of right can be recognized. But it was not intended by the eighth section of the Act of 1841, in authorizing the state to make selections of land, to interfere with the operation of the other provisions of that Act, regulating the system of settlement and pre-emption. The two modes of acquiring title to land from the United States were not in conflict with each other. Both were to have full operation, that one controlling in a particular case under which the first initiatory step was had." McCreery v. Haskell, (1886) 119 U. S. 327. See also Shepley v. Cowan, (1875) 91 U. S. 330.

Previous pre-emption rights.—The states to which lands were given by the above statute are not entitled to take any land to which pre-emption rights existed. (1842) 4 Op. Atty.-Gen. 71.

Rights of pre-emptioners.—If the state selects as a part of the grant, lands in the possession of a bona fide pre-emptioner at the time of the selection, the pre-emptioner is in such privity with the common source of title that he can attack a patent granted by the state for such lands, in an action of ejectment brought by the patentee or his assignee. Terry v. Megerle, (1864) 24 Cal. 610.

No patent issuable pending contest between claimants.—Pending a contest between a grantee from the state, of lands acquired by the state by the Act of 1841, and a claimant under the Sioux Half Breed Location, under the Act of July 23, 1866, no patent can properly issue. U. S. v. Chapman, (1879) 5 Sawy. (U. S.) 528, 25 Fed. Cas. No. 14,785.

Right of homestead claimant to sue.—One who claims land by virtue of a homestead entry as against a grantee of a state, of lands selected by the state under this Act and duly certified to the state by the secretary of the interior, does not stand in such privity with the United States as entitles him to maintain a suit to annul the certification of the land in dispute. Deweese v. Reinhard, (C. C. A. 1894) 61 Fed. Rep. 777, affirmed (1897) 165 U. S. 386; Frasher v. O'Connor, (1885) 115 U. S. 102.

Lands previously reserved.—It was not the intention of Congress by section 8 of the Act of 1841 to give a state the power to take lands which had actually been reserved by the United States for any other purpose. Wolsey v. Chapman, (1879) 101 U. S. 755. See also (1856) 8 Op. Atty.-Gen. 16.

Jurisdiction of United States Supreme Court of claims of individuals.—Where a state issues patents to individuals, of lands granted to the state by this Act, such individuals do not derive their title to the land from any statute of the United States, and therefore the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction over contested claims in regard to such lands by virtue of the 25th section of the Judiciary Act. Shaffer v. Scudday, (1856) 19 How. (U. S.) 18; Wynn v. Morris, (1857) 20 How. (U. S.) 3.

No preferred right by settlement or improvement.—One of the characteristics of a grant under this Act is that no preferred right to make an entry therein can be acquired by settlement or improvement of the land to be entered. Hartman v. Warren, (C. C. A. 1896) 76 Fed. Rep. 157.

Sec. 2286. [Pre-emptions by counties for seats of justice.] There shall be granted to the several counties or parishes of each State and Territory, where there are public lands, at the minimum price for which public lands of the United States are sold, the right of pre-emption to one quarter-section of land, in each of the counties or parishes, in trust for such counties or parishes, respectively, for the establishment of seats of justice therein; but the proceeds of the sale of each of such quarter-section[s] shall be appropriated for the purpose of erecting public buildings in the county or parish for which it is located, after deducting therefrom the amount originally paid for the same. And the seat of justice for such counties or parishes, respectively, shall be fixed previously to a sale of the adjoining lands within the county or parish for which the same is located. [R. S.]

Act of May 26, 1824, ch. 169, 4 Stat. L. 50.
See later provisions in this division.

An Act Authorizing the Attorney-General, upon the request of the Secretary of the Interior, to appear in suits brought by States relative to school lands.

[Suit to determine right to school lands — parties.] That in any suit heretofore or hereafter instituted in the Supreme Court of the United States to determine the right of a State to what are commonly known as school lands within any Indian reservation or any Indian cession where an Indian tribe claims any right to or interest in the lands in controversy, or in the disposition thereof by the United States, the right of such State may be fully tested and determined without making the Indian tribe, or any portion thereof, a party to the suit if the Secretary of the Interior is made a party thereto; and the duty of representing and defending the right or interest of the Indian tribe, or any portion thereof, in the matter shall devolve upon the Attorney-General upon the request of such Secretary. [31 Stat. L. 950.]

Jurisdiction of Supreme Court — United States real party in interest adverse to state. — Congress "has by this legislation in effect declared that the Indians, although the real parties in interest, need not be made parties to the suit; that the United States will, for the purposes of the litigation, stand as the real party in interest, and so far as it could within constitutional limits has expressed the consent of the government to the maintenance of this suit in this court. By the Act it, in effect, declares that it waives all objections on the ground that it is a mere trustee; that it assumes the full responsibilities of ownership, and that it will, whatever may be the outcome of any legislation, stand responsible to the Indians for the full value of the lands in controversy. Can the court say that the United States may not assume such responsibility; may not waive all objections on account of the mere matter of trusteeship, and stand in court as the responsible owner, against whom all litigation may be directed? If it stands as such owner, then within the proposition heretofore referred to a suit which is against its agents, not affecting them individually, but affecting only its title to the real estate, is in substance and effect a suit against the United States. The controversy is made by the Act of 1901 one to which the United States is a party in interest, to be directly affected by the result, and, therefore, the case is within the first paragraph, as one to which the judicial power of the United States extends. Our conclusion, therefore, is that the original jurisdiction vested by the Constitution in this court over controversies in which a state is a party is not affected by the question whether the state is party plaintiff or party defendant; that a dispute as to the title to real estate is a question of a justiciable nature, and can properly be determined in a judicial proceeding, and that the United States is to be taken, for the purposes of this case, as the real party in interest adverse to the state. We are of opinion, therefore, that this court has jurisdiction of this controversy, and is called upon to determine the case upon its merits." Minnesota v. Hitchcock, (1902) 185 U. S. 373.

Lands ceded to Indians do not pass under school grant. — The general scope of the legislation of Congress in regard to public schools and also in regard to Indians as the wards of the government, as well as the technical rules of statutory construction, sustain the contention that none of the lands ceded to Indians passed to the state under the school grants. This is true, although no patent had been executed by the United States to the Indians in severalty or to the tribe at large. Clearly it is enough that from what had been done there resulted a certain definite tract appropriated to that purpose, and that the Indian occupation was confined by the treaty to that tract, which came in effect an Indian reservation. Minnesota v. Hitchcock, (1902) 185 U. S. 373. See also Spalding v. Chandler, (1896) 160 U. S. 394.

[SEC. 1.] [Selection of school lands on Indian reservations opened to settlement.] * * * That any State or Territory entitled to indemnity school lands or entitled to select lands for educational purposes under existing law may select such lands within the boundaries of any Indian reservation in such State or Territory from the surplus lands thereof, purchased by the United States after allotments have been made to the Indians of such reservation, and prior to the opening of such reservation to settlement. * * * [28 Stat. L. 899.]

This is from the Indian Appropriation Act of March 2, 1895, ch. 188.

Jurisdiction of suits on claims.—To give the court jurisdiction under this Act of a suit for damages growing out of the claimant's settlement on the Crow Creek and Winnebago reservations, the claim must have been wholly disallowed by the department of the interior; the suit must have been commenced within six months after the passage of the Act and it must be the same case in law that was before the department. Schewson v. U. S., (1896) 31 Ct. Cl. 192.

An act to grant lands to Dakota, Montana, Arizona, Idaho, and Wyoming for university purposes.

[Act of Feb. 18, 1891, ch. 61, 21 Stat. L. 326.]

[Grants to Dakota, Montana, Arizona, Idaho, and Wyoming for universities — sale of lands — investment and use of proceeds.] That there be, and are hereby, granted to the Territories of Dakota, Montana, Arizona, Idaho, and Wyoming respectively, seventy-two entire sections of the unappropriated public lands within each of said Territories, to be immediately selected and withdrawn from sale and located under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, and with the approval of the President of the United States, for the use and support of a university in each of said Territories when they shall be admitted as States into the Union: Provided, That none of said lands shall be sold except at public auction, and after appraisement by a board of commissioners, to be appointed by the Secretary of the Interior: Provided further, That none of said lands shall be sold at less than the appraised value, and in no case at less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre: Provided, That the funds derived from the sale of said lands shall be invested in the bonds of the United States and deposited with the Treasurer of the United States; that no more than one-tenth of said lands shall be offered for sale in any one year; that the money derived from the sale of said lands, invested and deposited as hereinbefore set forth, shall constitute a university fund; that no part of said fund shall be expended for university buildings, or the salary of professors or teachers, until the same shall amount to fifty thousand dollars, and then only shall the interest on said fund be used for either of the foregoing purposes until the said fund shall amount to one hundred thousand dollars, when any excess, and the interest thereof, may be used for the proper establishment and support respectively of said universities. [21 Stat. L. 326.]

Price.—See amendment. Act of Feb. 22, 1899, ch. 180, sec. 14, infra, p. 474.

Lands selected for the territory of Dakota under this Act, and which lie within the state of South Dakota, should be certified to that state. (1890) 19 Op. Atty-Gen. 635.

An act to amend an act passed February fifteenth, eighteen hundred and forty-three, chapter thirty-three, to authorize the legislatures of certain States to sell certain lands appropriated for school purposes.

[Act of June 12, 1884, ch. 79, 23 Stat. L. 41.]

[Protection or lease of school lands in Illinois, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Tennessee.] That the second section of the Act of Congress passed February fifteenth, eighteen hundred and forty-three, chapter thirty-three, be amended so as to read as follows, to wit:

"That the legislatures of the States of Illinois, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Tennessee be, and they are hereby, authorized to make such laws and needful regulations as may be deemed expedient to secure and protect from injury or waste the sections reserved by the laws of Congress for the use of schools to each township, and to provide by law, if not deemed expedient to sell, for leasing the same for any term of years they may think proper, in such manner as to render them productive and most conducive to the object for which they are designed." [23 Stat. L. 41.]

An Act To authorize the leasing of lands for educational purposes in Arizona.

[Lease of lands in Arizona reserved for schools and university — timber cutting prohibited.] That the lands reserved for university purposes, and all of the school land in the Territory of Arizona reserved by law for school purposes, may be leased under such laws and regulations as may be hereafter prescribed by the legislature of said Territory, but until such legislative action the governor, secretary of the Territory, and superintendent of public instruction shall constitute a board for the leasing of said lands under the rules and regulations heretofore prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior for the respective purposes for which the said reservations were made, except that it shall not be necessary to submit said leases to the Secretary of the Interior for his approval; and all necessary expenses and costs incurred in the leasing, management, and protection of said lands and leases may be paid out of the proceeds derived from such leases.

And it shall be unlawful to cut, remove, or appropriate in any way any timber growing upon the lands leased under the provisions of this Act, and not more than one section of land shall be leased to any one person, corporation, or association of persons, and no lease shall be made for a longer period than five years, and all leases shall terminate on the admission of said Territory as a State, and all money received on account of such leases in excess of actual expenses necessarily incurred in connection with the execution thereof shall be placed to the credit of the public school fund of said Territory, and shall not be used for any other than public school purposes: Provided, That the proceeds of leases of university and normal school lands shall be placed to the credit of separate funds for the use of said institutions. [29 Stat. L. 90.]

An act relating to indemnity school selections in the State of California.

[SEC. 1.] [Indemnity school lands confirmed to California.] That the title to the lands certified to the State of California, known as indemnity school selections, which lands were selected in lieu of sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections, lying within Mexican grants, of which grants the final survey had not been made at the date of such selection by said State, is hereby confirmed to said State in lieu of the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections, for which the selections were made. [19 Stat. L. 267.]

Lands not opened to pre-emption settlement.—Lands listed to California as indemnity school lands and patented by the state are not open to pre-emption settlement while in possession of the patentee. Durand v. Martin, (1887) 120 U. S. 366.

Lands claimed by state for deficiency no longer public lands.—The fact of the existence of a claim by a state to lands to make good deficiencies in a school grant, is sufficient to take the lands claimed from the category of "public lands" to which alone a railroad grant attached. U. S. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., (1896) 76 Fed. Rep. 134.

Conclusiveness of listing.—The listing and certification of lands to the state of California can be canceled and set aside by the United States Circuit Courts for inadvertence or mistake. U. S. v. Hendy, (1893) 54 Fed. Rep. 447.

Prior titles not affected.—This Act cannot affect the rights of a railroad company, which, seven years before this confirmatory Act was passed, acquired a perfect title. The United States then had no interest in the land upon which this Act could operate. U. S. v. Curtner, (1889) 38 Fed. Rep. 1.

SEC. 2. [Failure of selections of indemnity lands — protection of innocent purchasers.] That where indemnity school selections have been made and certified to said State, and said selection shall fail by reason of the land in lieu of which they were taken not being included within such final survey of a Mexican grant, or are otherwise defective or invalid, the same are hereby confirmed, and the sixteenth or thirty-sixth section in lieu of which the selection was made shall, upon being excluded from such final survey, be disposed of as other public lands of the United States; Provided, That if there be no such sixteenth or thirty-sixth section, and the land certified therefor shall be held by an innocent purchaser for a valuable consideration, such purchaser shall be allowed to prove such facts before the proper land-office, and shall be allowed to purchase the same at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, not to exceed three hundred and twenty acres for any one person: Provided, That if such person shall neglect or refuse, after knowledge of such facts, to furnish such proof and make payment for such land, it shall be subject to the general land-laws of the United States. [19 Stat. L. 268.]

Statute a complete ratification of school selections.—"This statute was, in our opinion, a full and complete ratification by Congress, according to its terms, of the lists of indemnity school selections which had been before that time certified to the state of California by the United States as indemnity school selections, no matter how defective or insufficient such certificates might originally have been, if the lands included in the lists were not of the character of any of those mentioned in section 4, and if they had not been taken up in good faith by a homestead or pre-emption settler prior to the date of the certificate. The history of the times, which is exemplified by the facts of this case, shows that such must have been the intention of Congress. Almost from the beginning many of the titles under these indemnity selections had been in doubt because of the delay which attended the settlement of Mexican claims, and the records of this court contain a large number of cases in which claimants under the pre-emption and homestead laws of the United States have sought to establish their titles, as against purchasers from the state under indemnity selections who had been many years in possession, because of some real or supposed defect in the title of the state." Durand v. Martin, (1887) 120 U. S. 366, affirming (1883) 63 Cal. 39. To the same effect are Green v. Hayes, (1886) 70 Cal. 276; Hambleton v. Duhain, (1886) 71 Cal. 141; Daniels v. Gualala Mill Co., (1888) 77 Cal. 300; People v. Noyo Lumber Co., (1893) 99 Cal. 456.

The words "or are otherwise defective or invalid," as used in this section, refer to indemnity selections which are invalid or defective for some other reason than that the lands in lieu of which they were made are not included within the final survey of a Mexican grant. Thus, where a selection made by the state was of land then in reserve, and the selection for that reason defective or invalid, the words quoted above apply to this case, and such selection is confirmed by said Act to the state. (1878) 16 Op. Atty-Gen. 69.

Subsequent patents by state valid.—The words "or are otherwise defective or invalid" show that the intention of Congress in enacting the law was to cover any and all defects in indemnity school selections. It follows that where land had been listed and certified to the state, if the selection failed by reason of any defect or invalidity, it was made good and such defect or invalidity cured. The state, therefore, having title to the land, could issue a valid patent therefor, and a patent subsequently issued for the same land by the United States is void. Daniels v. Gualala Mill Co., (1888) 77 Cal. 300.

Particular defects reached by statute.—“Clearly, such selections as had been made and certified in lieu of sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections, lying within Mexican grants, of which grants the final survey had not been made at the date of the selection by the state, were confirmed; for such is the clear and unequivocal language of the first section of the Act of Congress. Clearly, also, such selections as had been made and certified to the state, which should fail by reason of the land in lieu of which they were taken not being included within the final survey of a Mexican grant, were confirmed; for such is the clear and unequivocal language of the second section of the Act. Equally clear and unequivocal is the language of section 2, in which are confirmed such selections as were made and certified to the state, and which would fail by reason of other defects or invalidities than those previously enumerated. One such invalidity existed in the case under consideration, to wit, the selection of land at the time within the claimed limits of a Mexican grant, but which were finally excluded therefrom. Such defect clearly comes within the letter as well as the intent of the statute, which is a curative Act, designed to quiet the possession and confirm the claim of those who, in good faith, purchased from the state, thinking they thereby got a title, but who in law did not, and which upon well-settled principles should be liberally construed.” Martin v. Durand, (1883) 63 Cal. 39.

Where there was no sixteenth or thirty-sixth section, in lieu of which an indemnity selection has been made, no title to the land embraced by such selection passes to the state. (1878) 16 Op. Atty-Gen. 69.

Double selection not authorized.—Where two or more indemnity selections have been made in lieu of the same sixteenth or thirty-sixth section, the state is entitled to but one of the indemnity selections; there being nothing in the Act of March 1, 1877, from which it can be fairly inferred that double selections were meant to be ratified, and that the state should thus obtain a greater quantity of land than had originally been allowed by law for school purposes. (1878) 16 Op. Atty-Gen. 69.

Validating Act equivalent to new grant.—The ratification by the United States in the passage of this Act of the prior defective listing of lands was equivalent to a grant of those lands to the state as of the date of the listing, Feb. 5, 1870, and validates the listing as though the lands had belonged to the state at the time of the passage of the Act. People v. Noyo Lumber Co., (1893) 99 Cal. 456.

Who are innocent purchasers.—The first proviso of the above section contemplates only prior purchasers for valuable considerations. There could be no object in protecting those who had paid nothing, nor can such persons be held to be described by the term “innocent purchasers for a valuable consideration.” U. S. v. Hendy, (1893) 54 Fed. Rep. 447; Durand v. Martin, (1887) 120 U. S. 447.

Rights of innocent purchasers—burden of proof.—An innocent purchaser for a valuable consideration of lieu lands selected by the state, where there is no 16th or 36th section, has a preferred right to purchase the same from the United States, and when he has received a patent therefor he is not called upon to support the validity of his patent with proof of the fact that it has been issued to him under the provisions of this section, but it devolves upon the party assailing his patent to allege and to show that under no circumstances were the officers of the land department authorized in issuing the patent to the patentee. Burling v. Thompson, (1888) 77 Cal. 257.

Decisions of department of interior final.—Whether lands are held by an innocent purchaser for a valuable consideration is a question of fact, or a mixed question of law and fact, and where the court cannot so separate it as to see clearly that there is a mistake of law, the decision of the department of the interior in regard to the question is final. Green v. Hayes, (1886) 70 Cal. 276.

Confirmed listment not subject to cancellation.—The secretary of the interior has no authority to cancel a listment of lands to the state of California in lieu of the 16th section made on the first day of July, 1870, and confirmed by the above Act, and the issuance of a patent of the United States in pursuance of an attempted cancellation is void and subject to collateral attack. Cucomonga Fruit-Land Co. v. Moir, (1890) 83 Cal. 101.

Suit for lands listed by mistake—parties.—Where a bill in equity is brought by the United States to recover lands alleged to have been listed to the state under this Act by mistake, and sold by the state to an individual, the state is not a necessary party. U. S. v. Hendy, (1893) 54 Fed. Rep. 447, following Williams v. U. S., (1891) 138 U. S. 514.

Where a school selection is found in disputed territory outside the limits of an unsettled survey by the United States of a private claim, and the proper officers of the United States approve such selection and issue the proper certified list, and a purchaser under such a title enters into possession of the land and improves, cultivates, and holds it, no one by forcibly or surreptitiously getting into possession can make a pre-emption settlement which will defeat his title. Mower v. Fletcher, (1886) 116 U. S. 380. See also Hambleton v. Duhain, (1886) 71 Cal. 136.

SEC. 3. [Confirmation not to extend to claims of actual settlers.] That the foregoing confirmation shall not extend to the lands settled upon by any actual settler claiming the right to enter not exceeding the prescribed legal quantity under the homestead or pre-emption laws: Provided, That such settlement was made in good faith upon lands not occupied by the settlement or improvement of any other person, and prior to the date of certification of said lands to the State of California by the Department of the Interior: And provided further, That the claim of such settler shall be presented to the register and receiver of the district land-office, together with the proper proof of his settlement and residence, within twelve months after the passage of this act, under such rules and regulations as may be established by the Commissioner of the General Land Office. [19 Stat. L. 268.]

Necessity for presentation of claim within time specified.—In an action of ejectment by one claiming title through a patent from the state of California, against one who had settled upon lands prior to their listing but after they had been selected by the state in lieu of the 36th section, allowed within a Mexican grant of which the final survey had not been made, where it appeared that the defendant had failed to present his claim to the register and receiver of the district land office, together with proper proof of his settlement and residence within twelve months after the passage of this Act, it was held that he did not come within the saving clause of this section and that, therefore, the title of the state, though originally void, was validated by the Act, and that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover. Hellman v. Jones, (1880) 56 Cal. 462.

SEC. 4. [Act not to apply to mineral lands nor lands in San Francisco.] That this act shall not apply to any mineral lands, nor to any lands in the city and county of San Francisco, nor to any incorporated city or town, nor to any tide, swamp, or overflowed lands. [19 Stat. L. 268.]

SEC. 7. [School lands in Colorado.] That sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in every township, and where such sections have been sold or otherwise disposed of by any act of Congress, other lands, equivalent thereto, in legal subdivisions of not more than one quarter-section, and as contiguous as may be, are hereby granted to said State for the support of common schools. [18 Stat. L. 475.]

This and sections 12, 14, 15 following are from the Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 139, "An Act to enable the people of Colorado to form a constitution and State government, and for the admission of the said State into the Union on an equal footing with the original States."

SEC. 12. [Five per cent. of sales of public lands for internal improvements.] That five per centum of the proceeds of the sales of agricultural public lands lying within said State which shall be sold by the United States subsequent to the admission of said State into the Union, after deducting all the expenses incident to the same, shall be paid to the said State for the purpose of making such internal improvements within said State as the legislature thereof may direct: Provided, That this section shall not apply to any lands disposed of under the homestead laws of the United States, or to any lands now or hereafter reserved for public or other uses. [18 Stat. L. 476.]

See note under section 7, supra.

Character of improvements authorized.—It must not be understood from the language of this section that there are no limitations upon the powers of the legislature respecting the nature of the internal improvements for which the fund hereby created is to be used. The improvements must be of a fixed and permanent nature, as improvements of real property, and must be such improvements as are designated and intended for the benefit of the public. Appropriation for transient objects, as for personalty, as well as appropriations to promote private or individual enterprises, would be contrary to the intention of the general government as donor of the fund. The character and purpose of the "buildings for state institutions" contemplated by the question are not stated; but whatever their character or purpose, it would seem clear that no part of such internal improvement fund can be lawfully appropriated to defray the current expenses of carrying on state institutions. In re Internal Improvements, (1893) 18 Colo. 317.

Public reservoirs for the storage of water for irrigation and domestic uses are internal improvements within the meaning of the statute, and the general assembly may lawfully make appropriations therefor from the fund provided by the statute for internal improvements. And there appears to be no objection to appropriate the fund in question for the purpose of diverting water from natural streams and storing the same in reservoirs for the uses enumerated, due regard being had for all prior water rights. Internal Imp. Fund, (1888) 12 Colo. 287.

SEC. 14. [School fund.] That the two sections of land in each township herein granted for the support of common schools shall be disposed of only at public sale and at a price not less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre, the proceeds to constitute a permanent school-fund, the interest of which to be expended in the support of common schools. [18 Stat. L. 476.]

See note under section 7, supra.

SEC. 15. [Mineral lands excepted.] That all mineral lands shall be excepted from the operation and grants of this act. [18 Stat. L. 476.]

See note under section 7, supra.

SEC. 10. [Grant of school lands to North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, and Washington.] That upon the admission of each of said States into the Union sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in every township of said proposed States, and where such sections, or any parts thereof, have been sold or otherwise disposed of by or under the authority of any act of Congress, other lands equivalent thereto, in legal subdivisions of not less than one-quarter section, and as contiguous as may be to the section in lieu of which the same is taken, are hereby granted to said States for the support of common schools, such indemnity lands to be selected within said States in such manner as the legislature may provide, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior: Provided, That the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections embraced in permanent reservations for national purposes shall not, at any time, be subject to the grants nor to the indemnity provisions of this act, nor shall any lands embraced in the Indian, military, or other reservations of any character be subject to the grants or to the indemnity provisions of this act until the reservation shall have been extinguished and such lands be restored to, and become a part of, the public domain. [25 Stat. L. 679.]

This and secs. 11-19 following are from the Act of Feb. 22, 1889, ch. 180, "An Act to provide for the division of Dakota into two States and to enable the people of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Washington to form constitutions and State governments and to be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States, and to make donations of public lands to such States."

Washington to receive full sections. — It is obvious that Congress intended that Washington should receive full sections 16 and 36, or in case of a failure by reason of prior settlement or from natural causes, the equivalent of such sections, and designated the secretary of the interior as the officer to approve any selections made by the territory. Johanson v. Washington, (1903) 190 U. S. 183, affirming (1901) 26 Wash. 671.

The word "embraced," used in the proviso of the above section, refers only to such lands as form constituent parts of the reservation. Hibberd v. Slack, (1897) 84 Fed. Rep. 571.

Subsequent entries under timber and stone or mining laws void. — Under the Act of Congress reserving sections 16 and 36 in each township in Washington territory for the purpose of being applied to its common schools, and the enabling Act, making a present grant of such sections to the state to take effect as soon as the state should be organized, an entry made upon such school sections subsequent to their survey and to the approval of said enabling Act is void, whether entered under the timber and stone Act or under the mining laws. Wheeler v. Smith, (1893) 5 Wash. 704.

SEC. 11. [Sale or lease of school lands.] That all lands herein granted for educational purposes shall be disposed of only at public sale, and at a price not less than ten dollars per acre, the proceeds to constitute a permanent school-fund, the interest of which only shall be expended in the support of said schools. But said lands may, under such regulations as the legislatures shall prescribe, be leased for periods of not more than five years, in quantities not exceeding one section to any one person or company; and such land shall not be subject to pre-emption, homestead entry, or any other entry under the land laws of the United States, whether surveyed or unsurveyed, but shall be reserved for school purposes only. [25 Stat. L. 679.]

See note to section 10, supra.

The clause "all lands herein granted" is not confined in meaning to the lands granted in section 10 for common-school purposes. Section 11 is an independent section; and it seems conclusive that Congress intended to make it refer not only to the preceding section, but to the whole Act, and that the words "herein" and "educational purposes" were used advisedly and refer to all lands granted for such purposes in the whole Act. State v. Maynard, (1903) 31 Wash. 132.

Conflicting statute void. — A statute of the state of Washington providing for the creation of a state normal school fund into which shall be paid all proceeds from the sales of lands granted to the state of Washington by the United States for normal schools, and authorizing the payment of the costs of the erection of the normal school buildings from such fund, is void because in conflict with the provision of the above section of the enabling Act "that all lands herein granted for educational purposes shall be disposed of only at public sale, * * * the proceeds to constitute a permanent school fund, the interest of which only shall be expended in the support of said schools." State v. Maynard, (1903) 31 Wash. 132.

SEC. 12. [Lands for public buildings.] That upon the admission of each of said States into the Union, in accordance with the provisions of this act, fifty sections of the unappropriated public lands within said States, to be selected and located in legal subdivisions as provided in section ten of this act, shall be, and are hereby, granted to said States for the purpose of erecting public buildings at the capital of said States for legislative, executive, and judicial purposes. [25 Stat. L. 680.]

See note to section 10, supra.

SEC. 13. [Five per cent. of proceeds of public land sales for school fund.] That five per centum of the proceeds of the sales of public lands lying within said States which shall be sold by the United States subsequent to the admission of said States into the Union, after deducting all the expenses incident to the same, shall be paid to the said States, to be used as a permanent fund, the interest of which only shall be expended for the support of common schools within said States, respectively. [25 Stat. L. 680.]

See note to section 10, supra.

SEC. 14. [University lands — sale of — control of educational institutions.] That the lands granted to the Territories of Dakota and Montana by the act of February eighteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, entitled "An act to grant lands to Dakota, Montana, Arizona, Idaho, and Wyoming for university purposes," are hereby vested in the States of South Dakota, North Dakota, and Montana, respectively, if such States are admitted into the Union, as provided in this act, to the extent of the full quantity of seventy-two sections to each of said States, and any portion of said lands that may not have been selected by either of said Territories of Dakota or Montana may be selected by the respective States aforesaid; but said act of February eighteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, shall be so amended as to provide that none of said lands shall be sold for less than ten dollars per acre, and the proceeds shall constitute a permanent fund to be safely invested and held by said States severally, and the income thereof be used exclusively for university purposes. And such quantity of the lands authorized by the fourth section of the act of July seventeenth, eighteen hundred and fifty-four, to be reserved for university purposes in the Territory of Washington, as, together with the lands confirmed to the vendees of the Territory by the act of March fourteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, will make the full quantity of seventy-two entire sections, are hereby granted in like manner to the State of Washington for the purposes of a university in said State. None of the lands granted in this section shall be sold at less than ten dollars per acre; but said lands may be leased in the same manner as provided in section eleven of this act. The schools, colleges, and universities provided for in this act shall forever remain under the exclusive control of the said States, respectively, and no part of the proceeds arising from the sale or disposal of any lands herein granted for educational purposes shall be used for the support of any sectarian or denominational school, college, or university. The section of land granted by the act of June sixteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty, to the Territory of Dakota, for an asylum for the insane shall, upon the admission of said State of South Dakota into the Union, become the property of said State. [25 Stat. L. 680.]

See note to section 10, supra.

Particular provisions construed.—The purpose of the provision, "None of the lands granted in this section shall be sold at less than ten dollars per acre; but said lands may be leased in the same manner as provided in section 11 of this Act," was evidently to avoid the possibility of a construction that university lands might be sold, under the provisions of the Act of 1854, at less than ten dollars per acre. State v. Maynard, (1903) 31 Wash. 132.

The clause "in like manner," used in the grant to the state of Washington for the purpose of a university, contained in the above section, refers to the preceding provisions and means that "the proceeds shall constitute a permanent fund to be safely invested and held by said states severally, and the income thereof be used exclusively for university purposes." State v. Maynard, (1903) 31 Wash. 132.

Provision for University of Washington not exclusive.—The above provision for the University of Washington does not exclude the university from the benefit of section 17 of the enabling Act granting two hundred thousand acres for "state, charitable, educational and reformatory institutions." State v. Callvert, (1904) 34 Wash. 58.

Provision of enabling Act modified by state constitution.—Although the Act of Congress enabling the territory of Washington to form a state and be admitted to the Union may have granted to the state certain lands for the support of public schools upon the condition subsequent that such lands should be sold only at public auction and for not less than ten dollars per acre, yet, where the constitution as adopted by the people and accepted by the federal government provides for the confirmation of sales of such lands theretofore made under the authority of territorial laws, the provisions of the enabling Act must be construed as modified thereby. Romine v. State, (1893) 7 Wash. 215.

North and South Dakota each entitled to grant.—The states of North Dakota and South Dakota each take seventy-two sections of land for university purposes. (1890) 19 Op. Atty-Gen. 635.

SEC. 15. [Grant of land for penitentiaries.] That so much of the lands belonging to the United States as have been acquired and set apart for the purpose mentioned in "An act appropriating money for the erection of a penitentiary in the Territory of Dakota," approved March second, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, together with the buildings thereon, be, and the same is hereby, granted, together with any unexpended balances of the moneys appropriated therefor by said act to said State of South Dakota, for the purposes therein designated; and the States of North Dakota and Washington shall, respectively, have like grants for the same purpose, and subject to like terms and conditions as provided in said act of March second, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, for the Territory of Dakota. The penitentiary at Deer Lodge City, Montana, and all lands connected therewith and set apart and reserved therefor, are hereby granted to the State of Montana. [25 Stat. L. 680.]

See note to section 10, supra.

See also PRISONS AND PRISONERS, ante, p. 23.

SEC. 16. [Lands for agricultural colleges.] That ninety thousand acres of land, to be selected and located as provided in section ten of this act, are hereby granted to each of said States, except to the State of South Dakota, to which one hundred and twenty thousand acres are granted, for the use and support of agricultural colleges in said States, as provided in the acts of Congress making donations of lands for such purpose. [25 Stat. L. 681.]

See note to section 10, supra.

SEC. 17. [Grants of lands for internal improvements in lieu of grants by other acts, etc.] That in lieu of the grant of land for purposes of internal improvement made to new States by the eighth section of the act of September fourth, eighteen hundred and forty-one, which act is hereby repealed as to the States provided for by this act, and in lieu of any claim or demand by the said States, or either of them, under the act of September twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and fifty, and section twenty-four hundred and seventy-nine of the Revised Statutes, making a grant of swamp and overflowed lands to certain States, which grant it is hereby declared is not extended to the States provided for in this act, and in lieu of any grant of saline lands to said States, the following grants of land are hereby made, to wit:

To the State of South Dakota: For the school of mines, forty thousand acres; for the reform school, forty thousand acres; for the deaf and dumb asylum, forty thousand acres; for the agricultural college, forty thousand acres; for the university, forty thousand acres; for State normal schools, eighty thousand acres; for public buildings at the capital of said State, fifty thousand acres, and for such other educational and charitable purposes as the legislature of said State may determine, one hundred and seventy thousand acres; in all five hundred thousand acres.

To the State of North Dakota a like quantity of land as is in this section granted to the State of South Dakota, and to be for like purposes, and in like proportion as far as practicable.

To the State of Montana: For the establishment and maintenance of a school of mines, one hundred thousand acres; for State normal schools, one hundred thousand acres; for agricultural colleges, in addition to the grant hereinbefore made for that purpose, fifty thousand acres; for the establishment of a State reform school, fifty thousand acres; for the establishment of a deaf and dumb asylum, fifty thousand acres; for public buildings at the capital of the State, in addition to the grant hereinbefore made for that purpose, one hundred and fifty thousand acres.

To the State of Washington: For the establishment and maintenance of a scientific school, one hundred thousand acres; for State normal schools, one hundred thousand acres; for public buildings at the State capital, in addition to the grant hereinbefore made for that purpose, one hundred thousand acres; for State charitable, educational, penal, and reformatory institutions, two hundred thousand acres.

That the States provided for in this act shall not be entitled to any further or other grants of land for any purpose than as expressly provided in this act. And the lands granted by this section shall be held, appropriated, and disposed of exclusively for the purposes herein mentioned, in such manner as the legislatures of the respective States may severally provide. [25 Stat. L. 681.]

See note to section 10, supra.

Construction of concluding provisions. — The concluding provision of this section refers to the manner of holding and of appropriating and of disposing of lands, and must be construed with reference to the limitations contained in section 11 as to lands granted for educational purposes. The manner of the disposition or the sale of such lands and the manner of the holding or the investment of the proceeds, and the appropriation of the interest or income, is subject to the limitations in section 11 of this Act. State v. Maynard, (1903) 31 Wash. 132.

Benefits extending to university of Washington.—The Washington statutes assigning and directing the selection of one hundred thousand acres of state lands for the support of the state university are not unconstitutional on the theory that inasmuch as section 14 of the enabling Act makes a special provision of forty-two thousand and eighty acres for the university, the intent was to exclude it from the benefits of section 17, granting two hundred thousand acres for "state, charitable, educational and reformatory institutions;" since no educational institution is excluded from the benefits of said grant, and the amount that may be appropriated therefrom to the use of any one institution is a question of public policy, to be determined exclusively by the legislature. State v. Callvert, (1904) 34 Wash. 58.

Grant in nature of trust—Washington statute.—Under the enabling Act of Congress granting to the state of Washington one hundred and thirty thousand acres of public lands for the erection of public buildings at the state capital, sixty-five thousand acres of which have been selected and are now held for sale by the state, and under the Act of March 2, 1893 (Laws of Wash., p. 462), creating a "state capitol building fund," into which the proceeds derived from the sales of such granted lands are to be paid, and making provision for the appropriation of certain sums therefrom for the erection of public buildings, it is the duty of the state auditor, although no moneys may have been accumulated in the fund, to issue warrants thereon to parties entitled, provided that such warrants express upon their face that they are drawn upon the "state capitol building fund" and are payable only as that fund may be accumulated from the sale of lands. This grant was in the nature of a trust imposed upon the state to select a number of acres granted and apply the proceeds of land sold to the purposes enumerated. Allen v. Grimes, (1894) 9 Wash. 424.

Land covered by flow of tide.—A tract of land shown by the public surveys to be a portion of a bay, which is covered and uncovered by the flow and ebb of the tide, is not "land" but "water," to which the public or special and private land laws of the United States have no application. Baer v. Moran Bros. Co., (1891) 2 Wash. 608.

SEC. 18. [Mineral lands excepted—lieu lands.] That all mineral lands shall be exempted from the grants made by this act. But if sections sixteen and thirty-six, or any subdivision or portion of any smallest subdivision thereof in any township shall be found by the Department of the Interior to be mineral lands, said States are hereby authorized and empowered to select, in legal subdivisions, an equal quantity of other unappropriated lands in said States, in lieu thereof, for the use and the benefit of the common schools of said States. [25 Stat. L. 681.]

See note to section 10, supra.

SEC. 19. [Selections, how made—deductions.] That all lands granted in quantity or as indemnity by this act shall be selected, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, from the surveyed, unreserved, and unappropriated public lands of the United States within the limits of the respective States entitled thereto. And there shall be deducted from the number of acres of land donated by this act for specific objects to said States the number of acres in each heretofore donated by Congress to said Territories for similar objects. [25 Stat. L. 682.]

See note to section 10, supra.

[Preference right to select lands.] * * * That the States of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington shall have a preference right over any person or corporation to select lands subject to entry by said States granted to said States by the act of Congress approved February twenty-second, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, for a period of sixty days after lands have been surveyed and duly declared to be subject to selection and entry under the general land laws of the United States: And Provided further, That such preference right shall not accrue against bona fide homestead or pre-emption settlers on any of said lands at the date of filing of the plat of survey of any township in any local land office, of said States. * * * [27 Stat. L. 592.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1893, ch. 208.

SEC. 4. [Grant of school lands to Idaho.] That sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in every township of said State, and where such sections, or any parts thereof, have been sold or otherwise disposed of by or under the authority of any act of Congress, other lands equivalent thereto, in legal subdivisions of not less than one quarter section, and as contiguous as may be to the section in lieu of which the same is taken, are hereby granted to said State for the support of common schools, such indemnity lands to be selected within said State in such manner as the legislature may provide, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior. [26 Stat. L. 215.]

This and sections 5-14 following are from the Act of July 3, 1890, ch. 656, "An act to provide for the admission of the State of Idaho into the Union."

Right of eminent domain not suspended.
—The Act of Congress approved July 3,

1890, known as the Idaho Admission Act, does not prohibit or restrict the right of eminent domain over the lands granted to the state by said Act. Hollister v. State, (Idaho 1903) 71 Pac. Rep. 541.

SEC. 5. [Sale or lease of school lands.] That all lands herein granted for educational purposes shall be disposed of only at public sale, the proceeds to constitute a permanent school fund, the interest of which only shall be expended in support of said schools. But said lands may, under such regulations as the legislature shall prescribe, be leased for periods of not more than five years, and such lands shall not be subject to pre-emption, homestead entry, or any other entry under the land laws of the United States, whether surveyed or unsurveyed, but shall be reserved for school purposes only. [26 Stat. L. 216.]

See note to section 4, supra.

SEC. 6. [Grant of lands for public buildings.] That fifty sections of the unappropriated public lands within said State, to be selected and located in legal subdivisions as provided in section four of this act, shall be, and are hereby, granted to said State for the purpose of erecting public buildings at the capital of said State for legislative, executive, and judicial purposes. [26 Stat. L. 216.]

See note to section 4, supra.

SEC. 7. [Five per cent. of proceeds of sales of public lands for school fund.] That five per centum of the proceeds of the sales of public lands lying within said State which shall be sold by the United States subsequent to the admission of said State into the Union, after deducting all the expenses incident to the same, shall be paid to the said State, to be used as a permanent fund, the interest of which only shall be expended for the support of the common schools within said State. [26 Stat. L. 216.]

See note to section 4, supra.

SEC. 8. [University lands — sale — proceeds, how applied.] That the lands granted to the Territory of Idaho by the act of February eighteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, entitled "An act to grant lands to Dakota, Montana, Arizona, Idaho, and Wyoming for university purposes," are hereby vested in the State of Idaho to the extent of the full quantity of seventy-two sections to said State, and any portion of said lands that may not have been selected by said Territory of Idaho may be selected by the said State; but said act of February eighteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, shall be so amended as to provide that none of said lands shall be sold for less than ten dollars per acre, and the proceeds shall constitute a permanent fund to be safely invested and held by said State, and the income thereof be used exclusively for university purposes. The schools, colleges, and universities provided for in this act shall forever remain under the exclusive control of the said State, and no part of the proceeds arising from the sale or disposal of any lands herein granted for educational purposes shall be used for the support of any sectarian or denominational school, college or university. [26 Stat. L. 216.]

See note to section 4, supra.

SEC. 9. [Grants penitentiary and personal property.] [Executed.]

SEC. 10. [Lands for agricultural college.] That ninety thousand acres of land, to be selected and located as provided in section four of this act, are hereby granted to said State for the use and support of an agricultural college in said State, as provided in the acts of Congress making donations of lands for such purposes. [26 Stat. L. 216.]

See note to section 4, supra.

SEC. 11. [Swamp and overflowed lands, and saline lands — grant of lieu lands for certain purposes.] That in lieu of the grant of land for purposes of internal improvement made to the new States by the eighth section of the act of September fourth, eighteen hundred and forty-one, which section is hereby repealed as to the State of Idaho, and in lieu of any claim or demand by the said State under the act of September twenty-eighth eighteen hundred and fifty, and section twenty four hundred and seventy nine of the Revised Statutes, making a grant of swamp and overflowed lands to certain States, which grant it is hereby declared is not extended to the State of Idaho, and in lieu of any grant of saline lands to said State the following grants of lands are hereby made, to wit: To the State of Idaho: For the establishment and maintenance of a scientific school, one hundred thousand acres; for State Normal schools, one hundred thousand acres; for the support and maintenance of the insane-asylum located at Blackfoot, fifty thousand acres; for the support and maintenance of the State University located at Moscow, fifty thousand acres; for the support and maintenance of the penitentiary located at Boise City, fifty thousand acres; for other State, charitable, educational, penal, and reformatory institutions, one hundred and fifty thousand acres. None of the lands granted by this act shall be sold for less than ten dollars an acre. [26 Stat. L. 216.]

See note to section 4, supra.

SEC. 12. [Grants limited to specific use.] That the State of Idaho shall not be entitled to any further or other grants of land for any purpose than as expressly provided in this act. And the lands granted by this section shall be held, appropriated, and disposed of exclusively for the purpose herein mentioned, in such manner as the legislature of the State may provide. [26 Stat. L. 217.]

See note to section 4, supra.

SEC. 13. [Mineral lands excepted from grants — lieu lands.] That all mineral lands shall be exempted from the grants by this act. But if sections sixteen and thirty-six, or any subdivision, or portion of any smallest subdivision thereof in any township shall be found by the Department of the Interior to be mineral lands, the said State is hereby authorized and empowered to select, in legal subdivisions, an equal quantity of other unappropriated lands in said State, in lieu thereof, for the use and the benefit of the common schools of said State. [26 Stat. L. 217.]

See note to section 4, supra.

SEC. 14. [Selections, how made — deductions.] That all lands granted in quantity or as indemnity by this act shall be selected, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, from the surveyed unreserved, and unappropriated public lands of the United States within the limits of the State entitled thereto. And there shall be deducted from the number of acres of land donated by this act for specific objects to said State the number of acres heretofore donated by Congress to said Territory for similar objects. [26 Stat. L. 217.]

An act to appropriate lands for the support of schools in certain fractional townships in the State of Missouri.

[Act of June 22, 1874, ch. 422, 18 Stat. L. 202.]

[SEC. 1.] [Reservation and selection of school lands in Missouri.] That for all fractional townships in the State of Missouri, which are entitled to public lands for the support of schools, according to the provisions of the act of Congress approved May twentieth eighteen hundred and twenty-six entitled, "An act to appropriate lands for the support of schools in certain townships and fractional townships not before provided for," and for which no selections have heretofore been made, there shall be reserved and appropriated out of the public lands, for each of said fractional townships, the amount of land to which they were respectively entitled according to the provisions of said act. [18 Stat. L. 202.]

The provisions of Act of May 20, 1826, ch. 83, referred to above, are incorporated into the Revised Statutes as sections 2275, 2276, given infra, under div. XVI.

SEC. 2. [Manner of selection and tenure of title.] That the lands to which said fractional townships are entitled as aforesaid shall be selected by the Commissioner of the General Land-Office out of any unappropriated public land within the State of Missouri subject to sale or location at one dollar and twenty-five cents an acre: Provided, That said Commissioner, in making such selection, shall select such land as shall be designated to him for that purpose by the county courts of the counties in which such fractional townships are situated; and, when so selected, said lands shall be held by the same tenure, and upon the same terms, for the support of schools in such fractional townships, as sections numbered sixteen are, or may be, held in the State of Missouri. [18 Stat. L. 202.]

An act to grant the State of Nevada lands in lieu of the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections in said State.

[Preamble.] Whereas, the legislature of the State of Nevada on March eighth, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, passed an act accepting from the United States a grant of two millions or more acres of land in lieu of the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections therein, and relinquishing to the United States all such sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections in said State as have not been heretofore sold or disposed of by said State, and which act of said State is in words as follows, to wit:

"An act accepting from the United States a grant of two millions or more acres of land in lieu of the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections, and relinquishing to the United States all such sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections as have not been sold or disposed of by the State.

"The people of the State of Nevada represented in Senate and assembly do enact as follows:

"SECTION 1. The State of Nevada hereby accepts from the United States not less than two millions of acres of land in the State of Nevada in lieu of the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections heretofore granted to the State of Nevada by the United States: Provided, That the title of the State and its grantees to such sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections as may have been sold or disposed of by the State prior to the enactment of any such law of Congress granting such two millions or more acres of land to the State shall not be changed or vitiated in consequence of or by virtue of such act of Congress granting such two millions or more acres of land, or in consequence of or by virtue of this act surrendering and relinquishing to the United States the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections unsold or undisposed of at the time such grant is made by the United States.

"SEC. 2. The State of Nevada, in consideration of such grant of two millions or more acres of land by the United States, hereby relinquishes and surrenders to the United States all its claim and title to such sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections in the State of Nevada heretofore granted by the United States as shall not have been sold or disposed of subsequent to the passage of any act of Congress that may hereafter be made granting such two millions or more acres of land to the State of Nevada: Provided, That the State of Nevada shall have the right to select the two millions or more acres of land mentioned in the act":

Therefore,

[SEC. 1.] [Grant to Nevada in lieu of sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections.] That there be, and are hereby, granted to the State of Nevada two million acres of land in said State in lieu of the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections of land heretofore granted to the State of Nevada by the United States: Provided, That the title of the State and its grantees to such sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections as may have been sold or disposed of by said State prior to the passage of this act shall not be changed or vitiated in consequence of or by virtue of this act. [21 Stat. L. 287.]

SEC. 2. [Lands, how selected.] The lands herein granted shall be selected by the State authorities of said State from any unappropriated, non-mineral, public land in said State, in quantities not less than the smallest legal subdivision; and when selected in conformity with the terms of this act the same shall be duly certified to said State by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and approved by the Secretary of the Interior. [21 Stat. L. 288.]

SEC. 3. [Disposal of lands and proceeds.] The lands herein granted shall be disposed of under such laws, rules, and regulations as may be prescribed by the legislature of the State of Nevada: Provided, That the proceeds of the sale thereof shall be dedicated to the same purposes as heretofore provided in the grant of the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections made to said State. [21 Stat. L. 288.]

SEC. 4. [In effect.] This act shall take effect from and after its passage. [21 Stat. L. 288.]

An Act To make certain grants of land to the Territory of New Mexico, and for other purposes.

[Act of June 21, 1898, ch. 489, 30 Stat. L. 484.]

[SEC. 1.] [Grant of school lands to New Mexico.] That sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in every township of the Territory of New Mexico, and where such sections, or any parts thereof, are mineral or have been sold or otherwise disposed of by or under the authority of any Act of Congress, other non-mineral lands equivalent thereto, in legal subdivisions of not less than one-quarter section, and as contiguous as may be to the section in lieu of which the same is taken, are hereby granted to said Territory for the support of common schools, such indemnity lands to be selected within said Territory in such manner as is hereinafter provided: Provided, That the sixteenth, and thirty-sixth sections embraced in permanent reservations for national purposes shall not at any time be subject to the grants of this Act, nor shall any lands embraced in Indian, military, or other reservations of any character be subject to the grants of this Act; but such reservations shall be subject to the indemnity provisions of this Act. [30 Stat. L. 484.]

SEC. 2. [Lands for public buildings.] That fifty sections of the unappropriated non-mineral lands within said Territory, to be selected and located in legal subdivisions as hereinafter provided in this Act, shall be, and are hereby, granted to said Territory for the purpose of erecting public buildings at the capital of the State of New Mexico when said Territory shall become a State and be admitted into the Union, when said capital shall be permanently located by the people of New Mexico, for legislative, executive, and judicial purposes. [30 Stat. L. 484.]

SEC. 3. [Lands for university and agricultural college.] That lands to the extent of two townships in quantity, authorized by the sixth section of the Act of July twenty-second, eighteen hundred and fifty-four, to be reserved for the establishment of a university in New Mexico, are hereby granted to the Territory of New Mexico for university purposes, to be held and used in accordance with the provisions in this section, and any portions of said lands that may not have been heretofore selected by said Territory may be selected now by said Territory. That in addition to the above, sixty-five thousand acres of non-mineral, unappropriated and unreserved public land, to be selected and located as hereinafter provided, together with all other lands in said Territory, are hereby granted to the said Territory for the use of said university, and one hundred thousand acres to be in like manner selected for the use of an agricultural college. That the proceeds of the sale of said lands, or any portion thereof, shall, upon the termination of the said university, and the income therefrom be used exclusively for the purpose of such university and agricultural college respectively. [30 Stat. L. 484.]

SEC. 4. [Lands for the support of the school fund.] That the sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in every township lying within said Territory, and where such sections, or any parts thereof, are mineral or have been sold or otherwise disposed of by or under the authority of any Act of Congress, other non-mineral lands equivalent thereto, in legal subdivisions of not less than one-quarter section, and as contiguous as may be to the section in lieu of which the same is taken, shall be paid to the said Territory, to be used as a permanent fund, the interest of which only shall be expended for the support of the common schools within said Territory. [30 Stat. L. 485.]

SEC. 5. [Schools, etc., under control of Territory.] That the schools, colleges, and university provided for in this Act shall forever remain under the exclusive control of said Territory, and no part of the proceeds arising from the sale or disposal of any lands herein granted for educational purposes, or of the income thereof, shall be used for the support of any sectarian or denominational school, college, or university. [30 Stat. L. 485.]

SEC. 6. [Lands for internal improvements, and certain institutions.] That in lieu of the grant of land for purposes of internal improvement, made to new States by the eighth section of the Act of September fourth, eighteen hundred and forty-one, which section is hereby repealed as to New Mexico, and in lieu of any claim or demand of the State of New Mexico, under the act of September twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and fifty, and section twenty-four hundred and twenty-nine of the Revised Statutes, making a grant of swamp and overflowed lands, which grant it is hereby declared is not extended to said State of New Mexico, the following grants of non-mineral, and unappropriated land are hereby made to said Territory for the purposes indicated, namely:

For the establishment of permanent water reservoirs for irrigating purposes, five hundred thousand acres; for the improvement of the Rio Grande in New Mexico, and the increasing of the surface flow of the water in the bed of said river, one hundred thousand acres; for the establishment and maintenance of an asylum for the insane, fifty thousand acres; for the establishment and maintenance of a school of mines, fifty thousand acres; for the establishment and maintenance of an asylum for the deaf and dumb, fifty thousand acres; for the establishment and maintenance of a reform school, fifty thousand acres; for the establishment and maintenance of normal schools, one hundred thousand acres; for the establishment and maintenance of an institution for the blind, fifty thousand acres; for a miners' hospital for disabled miners, fifty thousand acres; for the establishment and maintenance of a military institute, fifty thousand acres; for the enlargement and maintenance of the Territorial penitentiary, fifty thousand acres. The building known as the Palace, in the city of Santa Fe, and all lands and appurtenances connected therewith and set apart and used therewith, are hereby granted to the Territory of New Mexico. [30 Stat. L. 485.]

SEC. 7. [Grants in this act only partial.] That this Act is intended only as a partial grant of the lands to which said Territory may be entitled upon its admission into the Union as a State, reserving the question as to the total amount of lands to be granted to said Territory until the admission of said Territory as a State shall be determined on by Congress. [30 Stat. L. 485.]

SEC. 8. [Selection of lands.] That all grants of land made in quantity or as indemnity by this Act shall be selected by the governor of the Territory of New Mexico, the surveyor-general of the Territory of New Mexico, and the solicitor-general of said Territory, acting as a commission, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, from the unappropriated public lands of the United States within the limits of the said Territory of New Mexico. [30 Stat. L. 485.]

SEC. 9. [Procedure on selection of lands.] That said commission shall proceed, upon the passage of this Act, to select said lands, for each purpose as

SEC. 18. [Reservation of school lands in Oklahoma.] That sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in each township in said Territory shall be, and the same are hereby, reserved for the purpose of being applied to public schools in the State or States hereafter to be erected out of the same. In all cases where sections sixteen and thirty-six, or either of them, are occupied by actual settlers prior to survey thereof, the county commissioners of the counties in which such sections are so occupied are authorized to locate other lands, to an equal amount, in sections or fractional sections, as the case may be, within their respective counties, in lieu of the sections so occupied. * * * [26 Stat. L. 89.]

This is from the Act of May 2, 1890, ch. 182, "An act to provide a temporary government for the Territory of Oklahoma, to enlarge the jurisdiction of the United States Court in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes." Other provisions of the Act relating to public lands are set forth supra, p. 414

SEC. 36. [Lease of school lands in Oklahoma.] That the school lands reserved in the Territory of Oklahoma by this and former acts of Congress, may be leased for a period not exceeding three years for the benefit of the school fund of said Territory by the governor thereof, under regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior. [26 Stat. L. 1043.]

This and section 38 following are from the Indian Appropriation Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 543. For other provisions of the Act, see supra, p. 418.

SEC. 38. [Sections reserved for schools in Oklahoma.] No provision for settlement on or sale of the lands in the various agreements hereinbefore mentioned shall apply to sections sixteen and thirty-six thereon, which land[s] in the States are hereby granted to the State in which they are situated, for the support of the common schools of such State under the limitations prescribed by law, and such sections in the Territories of the United States are reserved from occupancy, entry, or sale, under any land law of the United States; but this provision shall not apply to mineral land which may be disposed of under the laws applicable thereto. [26 Stat. L. 1044.]

See note to section 36, supra.

An act to ratify the reservation of certain lands made for the benefit of Oklahoma Territory, and for other purposes.

[Act of May 4, 1894, ch. 68, 28 Stat. L. 71.]

[Reservations in Oklahoma for school and public buildings.] That the reservation for university, agricultural college, and normal school purposes, of section thirteen in each township, of the lands known as the Cherokee Outlet, the Tonkawa Indian Reservation, and the Pawnee Indian Reservation, in the Territory of Oklahoma, not otherwise reserved or disposed of, and the reservation for public buildings of section thirty-three in each township of said lands, not otherwise disposed of, made by the President of the United States in his proclamation of August nineteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, be, and the same are hereby, ratified, and all of said lands and all of the school lands in said Territory may be leased under such laws and regulations as may be hereafter prescribed by the legislature of said Territory; but until such legislative action the governor, secretary of the Territory, and superintendent of public instruction shall constitute a board for the leasing of said lands under the rules and regulations heretofore prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, for the respective purposes for which the said reservations were made, except that it shall not be necessary to submit said leases to the Secretary of the Interior for his approval; and all necessary expenses and costs incurred in the leasing, management, and protection of said lands and leases may be paid out of the proceeds derived from such leases.
